(NICE) on treatment for lymphoedema. In 2002, NICE updated its "Improving outcomes in breast cancer" guidance, which makes recommendations on the identification and management of lymphoedema and on the provision of lymphoedema services. In 2004, NICE made further recommendations for commissioners of health services on the provision of the range and volume of rehabilitation services, including lymphoedema therapists, in its "Improving Supportive and Palliative care for Adults with Cancer" guidance. Recommendations on lymphoedema management were also made in NICE'S clinical guidelines on breast cancer published in February 2009. This guidance can be found on NICE's website at:

www.nice.org.uk.

Through the Department's National Cancer Survivorship Initiative, formally launched in September 2008, we are looking at the late effects and long-term consequences of cancer and its treatment, including effects such as lymphoedema.

Drugs: Children

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the total cost of prescribing anti-psychotic drugs to persons under the age of 16 years was in each health trust area in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [273861]

Dawn Primarolo: This information is not held in the format requested.

Health Services

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS facilities have been (a) closed and (b) had a reduction in the number of services provided since May 1997. [274638]

Ann Keen: The information requested is not held centrally.

Deciding where and how to provide national health service services is a matter for the local NHS, in conjunction with clinicians, patients and other stakeholders. The Department's 2008 publication—"Leading Local Change"—makes clear that any changes should be locally led, clinically driven and built upon a sound clinical case for change. A copy has already been placed in the Library.

Influenza: Vaccination

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to ensure that immunosuppressive people with a prescription for influenza vaccine have access to the vaccine; and if he will make a statement. [274943]

Dawn Primarolo: The national policy is that seasonal influenza vaccine should be offered to all those aged six months or over in a clinical at-risk group, including immunosuppression. The responsibility for ordering seasonal influenza vaccines for the target population lies with general practitioners (GPs). GPs have a contractual responsibility to their primary care trust under the Primary Medical Services (Directed Enhanced Services) (England) Directions 2006 to develop a proactive and preventative approach to offering immunisation against influenza with the aim of maximising uptake in the interest of at-risk patients.

Injuries: Children

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children aged under 10 years attended hospital accident and emergency departments where the primary or secondary diagnosis was a stab wound or other injury inflicted by a sharp or pointed instrument in each health trust area in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [273863]

Dawn Primarolo: Information about the number of children aged 10 years or younger, who have been admitted to hospital accident and emergency departments where the primary or secondary diagnosis was a stab wound or other injury inflicted by a sharp or pointed instrument is not collected centrally and it is therefore not possible to specify numbers.

Lyme Disease

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance his Department has issued on the treatment of borreliosis. [273621]

Dawn Primarolo: Clinical guidelines for the treatment of borreliosis, commonly known as Lyme disease, are provided to general practitioners and other physicians by the Health Protection Agency (HPA) and published on the HPA's website at:

www.hpa.org.uk/webw/HPAweb&HPAwebStandard/HPAweb_C/1204031510081?p=1199451958599

The treatment guidelines published by the Infectious Diseases Society of America in 2006[1] are included within the HPA's advice, together with published guidance for the diagnosis and treatment of neuroborreliosis[2,3].

In addition, the HPA's Lyme Disease Reference Unit advises clinicians directly on treatment and patient referral as appropriate.

Methadone

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost of prescribing methadone was in each NHS trust in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [273864]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

NHS: Theft

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many thefts from NHS premises have been recorded in each of the last five years. [274989]

Ann Keen: The information is not available centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Radon Gas

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department plans to provide (a) high level alerts and (b) public health advice to those resident in areas prone to high levels of radon gas. [273618]

Dawn Primarolo: Householders and employers are able to find out the risk of a high radon gas level in a property from the radon probability maps of the United Kingdom published by the Health Protection Agency (HPA) and, for England and Wales, the British Geological Survey.

The HPA operates a website www.ukradon.org.

It holds annual radon forums with local government, the national health service, the Building Research Establishment (BRE) and other stakeholders to publicise the radon programme, to receive feedback, and to explore any policy gaps. HPA also supports regional radon steering groups comprising groupings of local authorities in high risk areas of England and recommends testing homes in radon affected areas (that is where 1 per cent. or more of homes are estimated to be above the Action Level of 200 Becquerels/m^3).

The basis of the Government radon programme in England for existing homes is to target the higher risk areas, where 5 per cent. or more of the houses are estimated to be above the action level. Radon testing programmes are run in partnership between HPA and local authorities, with radon tests offered free to householders in these areas. The local primary care trust and the BRE provide support and registered social landlords such as local councils and housing associations are encouraged to extend the radon testing programmes to all their properties in radon affected areas. HPA informs householders and landlords by letter of the result of the radon test and whether it is near to or exceeds the action level. If so, remediation is advised and householders are encouraged to attend special local events to discuss remediation organised jointly by the HPA, the relevant local authority and the BRE. A small number of homes in England have been found to have radon levels in excess of 10,000 Bq/m^3 (50 times the action level). HPA offers financial help and works with the local authority to remediate these homes, using advice from the BRE to help local contractors.

Devolved Administrations generally mirror English policies and contribute proportionate funds to HPA for each initiative. In particular, a similar radon programme has recently been announced by the Scottish Government, to accompany publication by the HPA of new radon maps for Scotland.

Social Services

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the job descriptions of his Department's Deputy Regional Directors for Social Care and Partnerships are; and who has been appointed to each such post. [272548]

Phil Hope: The deputy regional director's job description is contained in "Job Proforma—Deputy Regional Director" which has been placed in the Library.

The appointed deputy regional directors are:

	Deputy regional director
London	Ian Winter
North West	David Jones
North East	Wendy Balmain
Yorkshire and the Humber	Philip Lewer (Interim)
East Midlands	Rachel Holynska
West Midlands	Denise Porter
East of England	Amanda Reynolds
South West	Lynne Dean
South East	Ian Bainbridge

Swine Flu: Health Education

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps have been taken to make swine influenza information distributed by the Government accessible to deaf people who use British Sign Language. [274725]

Dawn Primarolo: A British Sign Language version of the swine flu information leaflet will be available to download from the NHS Choices and Directgov websites from Thursday 14 May and by DVD from Wednesday 20 May.

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what provisions his Department will make to ensure that deaf and hearing-impaired people have access to the same information as hearing people in respect of the National Flu Helpline. [274940]

Dawn Primarolo: The Swine Flu Information helpline is automated. It offers recorded information but no interaction with call handlers and is not therefore accessible to deaf or hearing impaired people. However, deaf and hearing-impaired people may access the same information through websites and a British Sign Language version of the swine flu information leaflet, available from the NHS Choices and Directgov websites from Thursday 14 May and on DVD from Wednesday 20 May.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Community Development

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which organisation was awarded the contract as the national partner for the Community Builders programme. [272445]

Mr. Khan: The competition for the contract to act as national partner for the Community Builders programme is still in progress. The Department is currently evaluating tenders and expects to make an announcement in June.

Council Tax

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the contribution of the Minister for Local Government on 26 March 2009, Official Report, column 473, on council tax, what ideas were submitted to the Minister by the hon. Member for Southampton, Test (Dr. Whitehead). [273339]

John Healey: The contents of letters from an individual Member to Communities and Local Government Ministers are treated as private; and, unless the sender specifies otherwise, are not released for public consumption.

Council Tax: Valuation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Peterborough (Mr. Jackson) of 12 March 2009, Official Report, column 736W, on council tax: valuation, how many domestic dwellings in England were assigned the code CL26 in each year between 1997-98 and 2005-06. [273685]

John Healey: The number of properties in England reviewed and cleared with the notification code CL26 in each year between 1997-98 and 2005-06 is shown in the following table.

	Number
1997-98	60,365
1998-99	53,811
1999-2000	50,844
2000-01	39,010
2001-02	27,724
2002-03	31,002
2003-04	36,652
2004-05	29,928
2005-06	31,147

Departmental Complaints

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what procedure her Department follows for dealing with complaints received (a) by e-mail, (b) by post, (c) by telephone and (d) via her Department's website. [274529]

Mr. Khan: Full details of how Communities and Local Government handles complaints via all these channels can be found on the Communities website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/corporate/about/freedom-of-information/complaintsprocedure/

Departmental Internet

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding has been assigned to the production of video content for her Department's YouTube channel in 2009-10. [273758]

Mr. Khan: None.

Departmental Procurement

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 4 February 2009, Official Report, column 1279W, on departmental procurement, what the title was of the digital mapping project; and what services that project was commissioned to provide. [273595]

Mr. Khan: The project is called the Pan-Government Agreement, which provides a portfolio of geographical information to central Government Departments. We procured aerial photography from Infoterra.

Departmental Responsibilities

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which Minister is responsible for each regional spatial strategy. [273598]

Mr. Khan: The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government has overall responsibility for regional spatial strategies.

Day to day responsibility for the eight regional spatial strategies is divided among the CLG ministerial team as follows.

I have responsibility for:

South East;

East Midlands;

East of England;

Yorkshire and Humber.

Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, The Baroness Andrews has responsibility for:

South West;

West Midlands;

North West;

North East.

Derelict Land: Gardens

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government by what date she expects her Department to have completed the first stage of its review of the effect of development on gardens. [274824]

Mr. Iain Wright: The deadline for responses from local authorities is 29 May, and we aim to conclude the review by the summer.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many responses from local authorities her Department has received to its review of the effect of development on gardens. [274825]

Mr. Iain Wright: We will make further statements about the review in due course.

Domestic Violence

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what contribution her Department has made to the cross-Government consultation, Together We Can End Violence Against Women and Children and to the development of Government policy in this area. [274286]

Mr. Khan: Communities and Local Government has been positively engaged with work on, "Together We Can End Violence Against Women and Girls" on which the Home Office is leading, since it commenced last year. During the development of the consultation document, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government wrote to the Home Secretary to affirm her support for this important agenda particularly through work on the domestic violence agenda, the Supporting People programme and through the domestic violence virtual unit. The Department's officials have actively supported the cross-Government working group that has shaped and developed the current consultation document.

Economic Situation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps) of 2 April 2009, Official Report, columns 1498-502W, on departmental conferences, if she will place in the Library a copy of the presentations and handouts produced for the Regeneration in Recession seminar on 18 February 2009. [273459]

Mr. Khan: Henry Overman and Ian Gordon of the Spatial Economics Research Centre, London School of Economics, presented their views at the Regeneration in Recession seminar on 18 February 2009. External stakeholders are responsible for their own presentations and handouts.

Energy Performance Certificates

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 5 May 2009, Official Report, column 128W, on energy performance certificates, how many fixed penalties have been imposed on landlords in each month since the provisions of the Energy Performance of Buildings Directive took effect in England. [274958]

Mr. Iain Wright: Penalty notices are issued by local weights and measures authorities who are empowered to enforce the Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007. There is no requirement for the Department to be informed when a penalty charge notice is issued.

EU Grants and Loans

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Peterborough (Mr. Jackson) of 12 March 2009, Official Report, column 740W, on the European Commission: financial corrections, what the monetary value is of the provision made for further financial corrections relating to audits carried out on the 1997 to 1999 round of structural fund programmes. [273604]

John Healey: The provision made for further financial corrections relating to audits carried out on the 1997 to 1999 round of structural fund programmes was £25.7 million, as stated in paragraph 1.20.7 of the Department's 2007-08 resource accounts.

Fire Services

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to give fire authorities the power to promote well-being. [274783]

Mr. Khan: The power to promote well-being is available to local authorities as defined in Section 1 of the Local Government Act 2000 (LGA 2000). That includes those county councils which are also fire and rescue authorities (FRAs).

The possible extension of the power to promote well-being contained within Section 2 of LGA 2000 to all FRAs was considered at the request of consultees in 2003 prior to the introduction of the Fire and Rescue Services Act 2004.

The power to promote well-being is intended to reflect the unique community leadership role of local authorities and consequently it has not been extended to any other form of authority with responsibility for delivery of public services. For this reason, and because we believe the powers available to FRAs are sufficient to enable them to undertake any activities required to fulfil the duties and responsibilities placed on them by legislation and the national framework for the fire and rescue service, it was not considered appropriate to amend the scope of this power more widely.

First Time Buyers

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much funding has been allocated to the First Time Buyers Initiative for each of the next three years. [274835]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave him on 23 March 2009, Official Report, columns 67-68W.

Freedom of Information

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Peterborough (Mr. Jackson) of 17 March 2009, Official Report, column 1106W, on freedom of information, (1) if she will place in the Library a copy of the substantive reply given to Freedom of Information Act 2000 request reference: F0002744, on the Church of Scientology, redacting the name and address of the recipient; [272320]

(2) if she will place in the Library a copy of the substantive reply given to Freedom of Information Act 2000 request reference: F0002977, on all communications between Lord Taylor of Blackburn and Ministers and senior civil servants at the Department about plans by Canatxx to build a gas storage facility at Preesall from 2005 up to the present date, redacting the name and address of the recipient; [272327]

(3) if she will place in the Library a copy of the substantive reply given to Freedom of Information Act 2000 request reference: F0002967, on organisations or projects that have received funding to date on the Preventing Extremism Together Initiative, redacting the name and address of the recipient. [272328]

Mr. Khan: I have today placed copies of the responses to these three Freedom of Information requests in the Library.

Housing: Construction

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and what proportion of new dwellings were built on previously residential land in (a) England and (b) each Government Office region in England in the most recent year for which figures are available. [273239]

Mr. Iain Wright: The percentage, and estimated number, of new dwellings built on previously-residential land in 2007 by region and for England are given in the following table:

New dwellings on previously residential land by Government Office Region 2007

	Percentage dwellings on residential land	Estimated dwellings on residential land
North East	14	1,380
North West	22	4,300
Yorkshire and the Humber	24	4,100
East Midlands	19	3,500
West Midlands	23	3,300
East of England	29	6,600
London	37	8,300
South East	32	9,800
South West	28	5,700
England	27	47,100

Housing: Low Incomes

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 27 April 2009, Official Report, column 1117W, on housing: low incomes, what the average cash incentive grant was (a) in England and (b) in each region of England in each year since 1997. [273953]

Mr. Iain Wright: This information is not held centrally.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of major works voids in social housing in each (a) region and (b) local authority area in England. [274258]

Mr. Iain Wright: The term social housing has been interpreted as social rented dwellings let by local authorities or registered social landlords.

A table showing the number of vacant dwellings in each region and local authority area undergoing or awaiting works has been placed in the House Library.

Figures for RSL dwellings that are vacant and awaiting major works are not available at regional or local authority level. However, figures are available showing the number of RSL dwellings which are vacant but unavailable for letting at a local authority and regional level. A table showing these figures has been placed in the House Library. Figures for RSLs are for general needs self-contained units only.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what the right to acquire discount limit for each local authority is; [274853]

(2) what discount was available to tenants under the right to acquire scheme in each local authority area in each year since 1997. [274868]

Mr. Iain Wright: The discount available to tenants under the right to acquire scheme in each local authority area is set out in The Housing (Right to Acquire) (Discount) Order 2002 (Statutory Instrument 2002 No 1091). This is available on the website of the Office of Public Sector Administration:

http://www.opsi.gov.uk/si/si2002/uksi_20021091_en.pdf

Between 1997, when the right to acquire scheme was introduced, and 2002, the available discounts were specified annually in the following statutory instruments:

The Housing (Right to Acquire) (Discount) Order 2001 (SI 2001/1501)

These are also available on the website of the Office of Public Sector Administration:

http://search.opsi.gov.uk/search?client=semaphore_frontend&btnG=Search&site=SI&output=xml_no_dtd&proxystylesheet=opsisearch_semaphore&ie=UTF8&oe=UTF8&as_q=right%20to%20acquire%20discount&as_ft=i&as_occt=any

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how much her Department and its predecessors received in right to buy clawbacks in each year since 1997; [274864]

(2) over what period a former social tenant is liable for clawback under the right to buy scheme. [274867]

Mr. Iain Wright: Under section 155 of the Housing Act 1985, social landlords which have sold properties under the right to buy scheme may require former social tenants who have bought properties and choose to dispose of them within five years of the right to buy sale to repay all or part of the discount they received.

The decision on whether to require repayment rests solely with the landlord. Neither the Department for Communities and Local Government nor any of its predecessor Departments have received any funds as a result of social landlords deciding to require former tenants to repay right to buy discount.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 6 May 2009, Official Report, column 245-6W, on housing: low incomes, (1) what the maximum right to buy discount is in each of the local authorities offering cash incentives for their tenants to leave the social rented sector; [274877]

(2) how many local authorities which offer cash incentives for social renters to buy a property are in areas where restricted right to buy discounts apply under the Housing (Right to Buy) (Limits on Discount) (Amendment) Order 2003. [274878]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information requested is set out in the following table. As reported by local authorities through the 2007-08 Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix, the listed local authorities in England provided cash incentive scheme grants, under section 129 of the Housing Act 1988, to assist tenants to acquire an interest in a new home in 2007-08. Grants under section 129 cannot be used for the purpose of assisting local authority tenants buy their existing council home.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the average cost to a registered social landlord of maintaining a home in each age profile in 2008. [274836]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 5 May 2009, Official Report, column 142W.

Housing: Standards

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 5 May 2009, Official Report, column 127W, on council housing, when the Homes and Communities Agency's review of the benchmarks for high quality urban design, construction and environmental sustainability is expected to be completed. [274889]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Homes and Communities Agency's (HCA) review of standards is planned to culminate in the publication of new HCA Design and Sustainability Standards document in April 2010, in advance of application of the new standards. These new standards will apply to new national housing programmes from April 2011, on completion of the HCA's legacy National Affordable Housing programme (NAHP). Where possible, earlier implementation of the new standards will apply to new housing projects developed on HCA land where HCA is undertaking the role of developer direct.

Judicial Review

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government to what (a) completed judicial review cases and (b) partial review cases involving a ministerial decision (i) her Department and (ii) its agencies have been a party in the last 36 months; and what the title and outcome of each such case was. [274904]

Mr. Khan: This information is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Local Government Finance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to page 130 of Budget 2009, what steps she plans to take in respect of local authorities which do not contribute adequately to the £600 million of additional recyclable savings required from local authorities in 2010-11. [273360]

John Healey: The local government sector has a strong track record of delivering substantial value for money savings. Authorities are working to go further and are raising their ambition for efficiency. Both central and local government have identified more scope for increased efficiencies which will allow a further one percentage point to be added to the totals savings target in 2010-11 taking it to at least 4 per cent. This will generate an additional £600 million in savings across the sector. This money will be directly recycled within local authorities' budgets to be put towards front line services and keeping council tax down.

Local authority efficiency will be measured annually by the national indicator for efficiency savings. The new comprehensive area assessment (CAA), introduced on 1 April 2009, will report on performance in each area against all the national indicators. The first CAA reports are expected to be published by the inspectorates in late November 2009.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) of 6 November 2008, Official Report, column 654W, on domestic waste, what estimate she has made of the effect on the level of performance award grant allocated to local authorities which have been set local area agreement targets in relation to national indicator 191 on residual household waste of such local authorities not meeting those targets. [273670]

John Healey: The level of performance reward grant payable will be determined by the average level of performance achieved across all designated targets in the local area agreement, subject to a minimum threshold of 60 per cent. At this stage it is not possible to determine the precise impact on the level of reward payable of a local authority not meeting targets based upon national indicator 191. The impact will depend upon how far short of the target an area's performance on NI 191 has actually fallen at the end of the LAA, how many designated targets were included in the LAA and the level of performance achieved across the other relevant targets.

Detailed guidance on the reward model has been published at:

Local Government: Bank Services

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to amend her Department's (a) investment advice to local authorities and (b) procedures for transmitting warnings about the risk profile of investments identified by the Financial Services Authority to local authorities in light of the Icelandic banking collapse. [273214]

John Healey: Under the Local Government Act 2003, local authorities are responsible for their own investment decisions. My officials are working with the Audit Commission, CIPFA and the local authority associations to assess how the Department's investment guidance might be refined in light of the report of the Audit Commission on local authorities and Icelandic banks, and the forthcoming report from the CLG Select Committee. The Department's guidance on local government investments is available at:

http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/capital/data/lginvest2.pdf

The Financial Services Authority have, for good reasons, a policy of not commenting publicly on individual institutions.

Local Government: Elections

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's policy is on single member wards in local government. [273325]

John Healey: The 2006 Local Government White Paper—Strong and prosperous communities—stated that single member wards offer benefits including providing a simple, strong link between the councillor and their electorate, and giving clarity of leadership to the area, while accepting that there is no consensus on this.

We have therefore provided a permissive approach in the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 that any principal council who holds whole council elections can request that the Electoral Commission directs the Boundary Committee to undertake a review for the purpose of re-warding the area with single member wards.

Local Government: Equal Pay

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the likely effects on local authorities of the ruling of the Court of Appeal in the case of Joyce Slack and others v. Cumbria county council in relation to equal pay claims in the public sector. [274272]

John Healey: Local authorities, in their capacity as employers, are considering the potential implications of the recent court of appeal judgment in "Joyce Slack and Ors and Cumbria county council".

Communities and Local Government continues to monitor the implications of this and similar judgements with the local government employers organisation.

Local Government: Greater Manchester and Leeds

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what powers the city region pilots will have. [273219]

John Healey: Work to identify and agree priorities between the Government and Leeds and Greater Manchester will draw on recent work from the Manchester Independent Economic Review and on innovation in the Leeds city region. Proposals will include new strategy-setting powers over adult skills funding, expected to be in place within three to six months, new joint investment boards with regional development agencies, the Homes and Communities Agency and other partners to co-ordinate and align investment and the piloting of new employment programmes. Further details will be announced in the summer.

Local Government: Inspections

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the timetable is for each local authority to be inspected under the new Comprehensive Area Assessment; and whether authorities with a good or excellent rating under the previous Comprehensive Performance Assessment regime will receive fewer inspections than others. [273669]

Mr. Khan: This is an operational matter for the Audit Commission and the other local public service inspectorates. I have asked the chief executive of the Audit Commission to write to the hon. Member.

Letter from Steve Bundred, dated 12 May 2009:

Parliamentary Question on what the timetable is for each local authority to be inspected under the new Comprehensive Area Assessment; and whether authorities with a good or excellent rating under the previous Comprehensive Performance Assessment regime will receive fewer inspections than others.

Your Parliamentary Question on the approach to inspection under the new Comprehensive Area Assessment has been passed to me for reply.

Comprehensive Area Assessment (CAA) took effect from 1 April 2009 and the first set of joint inspectorate reports covering each of the 152 local areas with a Local Area Agreement and all local authorities will be published in late 2009. CAA represents a fundamentally different approach to promoting better results for local people and better value for public money.

The inspections of local authorities' corporate arrangements (known as corporate assessments) used as part of the former Comprehensive Performance Assessment (CPA) framework have ceased. CAA does not require routine programmes of such inspections. Instead, the inspectorates are drawing on existing evidence and the information local authorities and their partners already use to manage their businesses to inform the new area assessment. This focuses on outcomes for local people and therefore for the first time also holds the councils' partners accountable for their contribution.

Such routine inspection of local authorities as remains relates primarily to specific services for vulnerable people where the inherent risk is high (e.g. Ofsted's new approach to inspecting child protection arrangements and inspections of youth offending teams led by HMI Probations). Any other inspections involving local authorities will only be triggered where a specific risk or concern has been identified. The total cost of inspection work involving local authorities has reduced by a third from 2003/04 to 2008/09.

The Audit commission will play a new coordinating role for all remaining inspection involving local authorities to ensure that it is risk based and proportionate. Authorities previously assessed as good or excellent (or three or four stars) under CPA, and who are able to demonstrate continued high performance and a strong contribution to positive outcomes for their locality will continue to receive fewer inspections than others.

I trust this information is helpful.

A copy of this letter will be placed in Hansard.

Maps: EU Law

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, what steps the Valuation Office Agency is taking to comply with the EU INSPIRE Directive. [273719]

John Healey: The INSPIRE Directive has limited direct application to the Valuation Office Agency. However, the Agency keeps itself informed about the application of the directive and has had dealings with bodies concerned with the directive, including the UK location council.

Mobile Homes

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the timetable is for establishment of dispute resolution procedures for park home residents. [273717]

Mr. Iain Wright: The written ministerial statement I have made today announced the Government's intention to transfer the jurisdiction on appeals and applications under the Mobile Homes Act 1983 from county courts to Residential Property Tribunals. It is the intention to bring into force the Residential Property Tribunal's jurisdiction at the earliest opportunity.

National Secular Society

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her Department has provided funding to the National Secular Society in the last 12 months. [273212]

Mr. Khan: The Department has not provided funding to the National Secular Society.

Non-Domestic Rates

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether local authorities will be refunded under the new burdens principle for the cost of rebilling firms which defer 60 per cent. of their business rate increases in 2009. [273213]

John Healey: As set out in a Business Rates Information Letter from 31 March 2009, which was provided to all Billing Authorities in England, any net additional costs to local government as a whole arising from the business rates deferral scheme will be fully funded under the new burdens principle.

Non-Domestic Rates: Empty Property

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will use her powers under the Rating (Empty Properties) Act 2007 to reintroduce the pre-April 2008 regime of empty property business rate relief. [273571]

John Healey: In the 2008 pre-Budget-report, the Government announced a temporary measure for the 2009-10 business rates year, raising the threshold at which rates on empty property become liable from £2,200 to £15,000. Seventy per cent. of properties have a rateable value below £15,000, and if empty, will benefit from this measure.

The Government have no current plans to make further changes to empty property rate relief introduced from 1 April 2008. However, as with all taxes, we will keep the position under review. Decisions on taxes are a matter for the Chancellor.

Planning

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what timetable has been set for publication of the final version of her Department's planning policy statement on economic prosperity. [273735]

Mr. Iain Wright: We expect to publish the final version of Planning Policy Statement 4: Planning for Prosperous Economies later this year following consultation.

Planning Permission

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government in what areas simplified planning zones have operated; and over what period in each case. [273221]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Town and Country Planning Act 1990 (sections 82-87), amended by the Planning and Compensation Act 1991 (section 28), provides for the creation of simplified planning zones (SPZs). Since the powers were taken, we are aware of six SPZs that have been created, two of which remain in existence today. These are listed in the following tables:

SPZs in operation

SPZ	Council	Date
Slough Trading Estate	Slough Borough Council	From January 1995 to January 2005. On 12 November 2004 Slough Borough Council agreed to a new up-dated version of the SPZ to run for a further 10 years to 2014.
Kings Norton	Birmingham City Council	From November 1998 to 2017.

Other SPZs that have operated in the past

SPZ	Council	Date
Sir Francis Ley Industrial Park	Derby City Council	From August 1988 to August 1998.
Willowbrook	Corby Borough Council	From September 1988 to September 1998.
Victoria Park	Gedling Borough Council	From November 1991 to November 2001.
Knowsley Industrial Park	Knowsley Metropolitan Borough	Information unavailable.

A new SPZ is proposed in Rochdale.

Planning Permission: Costs

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate has been made of the effect of recent changes to the planning appeals system in relation to extending the costs regimes on local authorities' expenditure for paying out cost claims to applicants who make a planning application and are refused but who win on appeal. [273718]

Mr. Iain Wright: An assessment of the impacts of the guidance in Circular 03/09 'Costs Awards in Appeals and other Planning Proceedings' and the extension of the costs regime to appeals dealt with on the basis of representations in writing can be accessed via the following link:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/planningandbuilding/impactassessmentcosts

Parties to an appeal are normally expected to meet their own expenses. Costs will normally be awarded where the following conditions have been met:

a party has made a timely application for an award of costs;

the party against whom the award is sought has acted unreasonably; and the unreasonable behaviour has caused the party applying for costs to incur unnecessary or wasted expense in the appeal process—either the whole of the expense because it should not have been necessary for the matter to be determined by the Secretary of State or appointed Inspector, or part of the expense because of the manner in which a party has behaved in the process.

Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps) of 23 April 2009, Official Report, column 889W, on Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre, which public body made each of the 29 bookings; what the date and purpose of each booking was; what rooms were hired on each occasion; and what the aggregate revenue to the Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre was from those bookings. [272147]

Mr. Iain Wright: This is an operational matter for the Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre and I have asked the chief executive of the Agency to respond to the hon. Member direct.

Letter from Ernest Vincent, dated 12 May 2009:

Your Parliamentary question asking the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, pursuant to the Answer to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield of 23 April 2009, Official Report, column 889W, on Queen Elizabeth II (QE2) Conference Centre, if she will list the public bodies that made each of the 29 bookings; what was the date and purpose of each booking; what rooms were hired on each occasion; and what was the aggregate revenue to the QE2 Conference Centre from those bookings has been passed to me for reply.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 23 April 2009, Official Report, column 889W, on the Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre, what the title was of each conference held at the centre by Central Government Departments was; which Department sponsored each event; and how much was charged for each event. [272555]

Mr. Iain Wright: This is an operational matter for the Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre and I have asked the chief executive of the agency to write to the hon. Member direct.

Letter from Ernest Vincent, dated 12 May 2009:

Your Parliamentary question asking the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, pursuant to the Answer of 23 April 2009, Official Report, column 889W, on Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre, what the title of each conference held at the centre by central government department was; which Department sponsored each event; and how much was charged for each event has been passed to me for reply.

As has been stated in the reply to the Answer of 23 April 2009, the policy of the Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre is not to offer discounted rates. Complimentary room hire is offered on very rare occasions and only with my authorisation. There also must be good reason to do so. The meetings below were, bar one, charged at the standard list price. The amounts below are exclusive of VAT.

Recreation Spaces

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what support her Department provides to local authorities to assist them in discharging responsibilities to provide, manage and maintain parks, recreation grounds and other open spaces; and if she will make a statement. [273548]

Mr. Iain Wright: Public parks and green spaces are primarily funded through revenue support grant provided by Communities and Local Government. Central Government do not prescribe how much should be spent by each local authority on their open spaces; this is a matter for them to determine in line with local priorities.

Communities and Local Government also funds CABE Space, the Government adviser on public space issues, to provide support to all local authorities through advisory services, good practice guidance, campaigns and training. They also help to tackle the retention and recruitment problems that the sector is experiencing and improve the skills mix at the local level; continue to build a supportive evidence base for investment in parks and open spaces; and engage communities in improving their local green spaces.

Unitary Councils

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her Department's latest estimate is of the cost of unitary restructuring in the areas which have new unitary councils. [273259]

John Healey: When seeking parliamentary approval for the nine new unitary councils, we estimated transitional restructuring costs of around £138 million, with total annual savings of at least £100 million. Our latest estimates, following a stocktake exercise we with the support of independent financial experts have undertaken prior to 1 April 2009, are for the restructuring costs to be around £135 million, slightly less than the original estimate.

Unitary Councils: Freedom of Information

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which bodies will hold the records of local authorities which have been replaced under unitary restructuring for Freedom of Information Act 2000 purposes. [273209]

John Healey: The Local Government (Structural Changes)(Transfer of Functions, Property, Rights and Liabilities) Regulations 2008 (SI 2008/2176) require that where predecessor councils are succeeded by one unitary council, property, rights and liabilities which would include records transfer to the successor council. Where two new unitary councils have been formed in a former county area, the regulations require that the records of the predecessor district councils transfer to the relevant new unitary and those of the predecessor county council transfer to one or other of the new unitary councils as agreed between them. The regulations also require that where there are two successor councils, the one holding the records must make them available to the other.

JUSTICE

Ashwell Prison

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will publish the findings of the Prison Service investigation into the disturbance at HM Prison Ashwell on 11 April 2009. [273535]

Mr. Hanson: As I made clear to the House in my written ministerial statement on 20 April 2009, and in subsequent answers to parliamentary questions, I will make the findings of the investigation and our conclusions on it available to the House in due course.

Cabinet: Glasgow

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many (a) special advisers and (b) officials of his Department accompanied him to Glasgow for the Cabinet meeting on 16 April 2009; [273957]

(2) what car journeys he undertook in attending the Cabinet meeting in Glasgow on 16 April 2009; [273958]

(3) how much expenditure was incurred by his Department in respect of the Cabinet meeting in Glasgow on 16 April 2009; [273959]

(4) what expenditure on (a) travel, (b) accommodation and (c) food (i) he and (ii) officials in his Department incurred in connection with the Cabinet meeting in Glasgow on 16 April 2009. [273960]

Mr. Straw: I was not accompanied by officials or by special advisers when I attended the Cabinet meeting in Glasgow on 16 April 2009.

I travelled by car between Ambleside, Cumbria and Oxenholme station and between Glasgow Central station and the venue for the Cabinet meeting.

£132 was incurred for my return travel by train from Oxenholme station to Glasgow Central station. My transport by car to and from Oxenholme station and between Glasgow Central station and the Cabinet venue was provided by the Metropolitan police, the cost of which is a matter for them.

There was no departmental expenditure on accommodation or food and no officials from the Ministry of Justice attended the meeting.

Children: Protection

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will take steps to encourage local authorities to issue child protection proceedings. [273665]

Beverley Hughes I have been asked to reply.

Local authorities have a clear statutory duty under section 47 of the Children Act 1989 to investigate where they have reasonable cause to suspect that a child is suffering or likely to suffer significant harm. Where as a result of that investigation they conclude they should take action to safeguard and promote the child's welfare by for example applying for a care order, they must take that action. It is for individual authorities to decide when to initiate care proceedings under section 31 of Children Act 1989 when a child is at risk in their own home.

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many child protection cases were heard by the family court in (a) 2005, (b) 2006, (c) 2007 and (d) 2008. [273676]

Bridget Prentice: The following table shows the number of care, supervision and emergency protection order applications made to the family courts in England and Wales during the specified years.

Number of (a) care applications (b) supervision applications and (c) emergency protection order applications in the England and Wales family courts, 2005-08

Application type	2005	2006	2007	2008[1]
Care applications	13,498	13,421	13,717	12,089
Supervision applications	897	938	1,069	624
Emergency protection order applications	2,736	1,676	1,459	1,722

[1] Provisional

Notes:

1. 2005-07 data cover all tiers of court, and are as published in the annual Ministry of Justice reports 'Judicial and Court Statistics'.
2. 2008 data exclude applications made to the High Court (which typically account for around 3 per cent. of all child protection applications) and should be treated as provisional. Final figures will be published in 'Judicial and Court Statistics 2008' later in the year.
3. Figures relate to the number of children subject to each application. On this basis, an application relating to two children will be counted twice.
4. Figures for Family Proceedings Courts prior to April 2007 are likely to be an undercount. A new method of data collection was introduced in April 2007 which has improved the coverage and completeness of data. Any comparison with figures prior to April 2007 may be affected by the improved data recording.

HM Courts Service case management systems

An application will not necessarily result in a full court hearing in every case, as the application can be withdrawn or the proceedings otherwise discontinued before this stage is reached. It should also be noted that an application of one type can result in an order of a different type being made by the court.

Departmental ICT

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he has taken to reduce the level of carbon dioxide emissions arising from the operation of ICT systems in his Department under the Greening Government ICT Strategy. [273564]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice is committed to reducing its carbon emissions in accordance with the campaign initiated by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs and the Greening Government ICT Strategy. The MOJ recognises that reducing its ICT carbon emissions is not just about technology but also about embedding sustainability in its process and behaviour as well.

The MOJ has worked to implement the appropriate 'Areas for ICT Carbon Reduction' in the Greening Government ICT Strategy improving the sustainability of its printing, the energy efficiency of its desktop PCs and data centres.

The MOJ has built sustainable IT principles into its IT policy and consideration of sustainability forms part of process of evaluation of changes to the IT estate. The MOJ is working with its suppliers to improve the energy efficiency of IT operations both in its outsourced data centres and at its own sites. It has employed third party expertise to analyse the sustainability of IT operations managed by a sample of the MOJ's key suppliers and advise on how best to realise improvements. This work has already led to increased data centre energy efficiency, and work on the centralisation of data processing will further reduce server energy consumption without negative effect on the volume or efficiency of data processing carried out. The convergence of formerly separate networks offers better sharing of IT resources for staff and the reduction of the overall number of devices we need to deliver the same level of service.

The MOJ has also used initiatives to realise the positive impact that ICT can have on the overall carbon emissions of its operations. It continues to invest in video-conferencing and teleconferencing technology to reduce emissions. The imminent upgrade of desktop PCs will offer not just improved power management to reduce energy consumption but also roaming profiles allowing any users to log on to any machine helping support MOJ estates' goal of 80 per cent. desking and a reduction in the overall size of the MOJ HQ estate.

MOJ is also working on staff awareness of green IT issues. Campaigns have been run encouraging the shut down of electrical items outside of office hours, the reduction of printing and paper consumption and the better use of video-conferencing and teleconferencing to reduce travel.

Elections: Fraud

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many successful prosecutions there were for offences of electoral fraud arising from elections held in 2008. [274248]

Mr. Wills: The report recently published by the Electoral Commission and the Association of Chief Police Officers entitled "Allegations of electoral malpractice at the May 2008 elections in England and Wales" found that the police had recorded 103 cases of electoral malpractice at those elections. Eighty-one per cent. of the cases required no further action by the police. One case has led to a prosecution, which resulted in a conviction of one person on a charge of making a false application to vote by proxy. Nine cases resulted in formal cautions which may lead to criminal records, with 12 cases under investigation or awaiting advice from the Crown Prosecution Service.

These figures must be seen in the context of over 16 million voters at the local elections in England and Wales in May 2008 in nearly 4,000 separate elections involving over 13,500 candidates.

The report is consistent with earlier findings that the scale and volume of allegations of fraud at recent elections have been decreasing.

Extradition: Legal Aid

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what expenditure his Department has incurred on the provision of legal aid for cases involving extradition to the United States in each of the last five years. [274731]

Mr. Malik: Neither the Ministry of Justice nor the Legal Services Commission records extradition cases centrally in terms of the country that is requesting extradition. The information requested could therefore be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Judiciary: Ethnic Groups

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many black and minority ethnic people were appointed to the judiciary in each of the last five years. [273691]

Mr. Straw: Following the question tabled in February on appointments, we are in the process of cleansing our data. This has yet to be completed, so I regret that I am unable to respond at this time. I will write with further information in due course, and ensure copies of this information are made available in the Libraries of both Houses.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what proportion of applications to become a member of the judiciary were from black and minority ethnic candidates in each of the last five years. [273692]

Mr. Straw: We have not been able to provide all the information in the time requested, but are working to provide it. I will write with further information in the near future, and ensure copies of this information are made available in the Libraries of both Houses.

Legal Profession: Chinese Community

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what criteria are applied to the selection of applicants to participate in the Lord Chancellor's Training scheme for young Chinese Lawyers; and if he will consider the merits of increasing the number of places available under the scheme each year. [273768]

Mr. Wills: Applicants to the Lord Chancellor's Training scheme for young Chinese Lawyers must:

be Chinese nationals aged between 25 and 40 on the application closing date;

be graduates of law who have passed the national lawyers' examination in China and have at least two years' post-qualification experience in a law firm in China;

have excellent written and oral English demonstrated by an overall score of 6.5 or over in the International English Language Testing System test (IELTS), ideally with a score of 6.0 or over in every test; have specialist experience in one or more areas of legal practice of significance to China's development as a market economy and have strong personal motivation and an ability to adapt to different environments.

From past experience it has also been found desirable that the 15 successful lawyers:

represent a gender balance between males and females;

represent a wide variety of Chinese regions;

be working for Chinese law firms;

be experienced in commercial areas of law;

have a strong interest and perhaps some experience in international work;

be willing and keen to contribute to the development of the Chinese Justice system upon their return; have excellent communication skills;

be highly motivated to learn, have a positive attitude, and be an excellent team player; and be capable of resolving ethical dilemmas.

The Ministry of Justice has committed to fund the scheme until 2011. We will review the scheme in due course, using a set of criteria which is likely to focus on value for money, impact, achievements, and fit with our departmental strategic objectives. We will also need to consider the public sector's fiscal restraints at that time. I am sure that my hon. Friend will appreciate therefore that I cannot comment on the merits of increasing the number of places available until the review has been concluded.

Life Imprisonment

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners serving whole life tariffs are held in each Category A prison. [273817]

Mr. Hanson: The break-down for prisoners on whole life tariffs in high security prisons is as follows:

High security prison	Number of prisoners
Belmarsh	0
Frankland	8
Full Sutton	5
Long Lartin	[1]Fewer than 5
Manchester	0
Wakefield	11
Whitemoor	[1]Fewer than 5
Woodhill	0

[1] We have withheld exact numbers because to provide the information at this level could identify individuals.

Life Imprisonment: Females

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many female prisoners are serving life sentences with a whole life tariff. [273819]

Mr. Hanson: Fewer than five[1] female prisoners are currently serving a life sentence with a whole life tariff.

[1] We have withheld exact numbers because to provide the information at this level could identify individuals.

Life Imprisonment: Mentally Disturbed Offenders

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners sentenced to whole life tariffs are held in secure NHS premises. [273818]

Mr. Hanson: Fewer than five[1] prisoners sentenced to whole life tariffs are currently detained in secure hospitals.

[1] We have withheld exact numbers because to provide the information at this level could identify individuals.

National Offender Management Service

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many staff (a) employed in and (b) seconded to the Interventions and Substance Abuse Group of the National Offender Management Service have previously worked for (i) the probation service and (ii) the Prison Service. [273536]

Mr. Hanson: Of staff currently in post in the National Offender Management Service's Interventions and Substance Misuse Group (ISMG):

(i) 15 have a national probation service background;

(ii) 125 have a HM Prison Service background; and

(iii) Seven have previously worked in both HM Prison Service and the national probation service.

Nine current ISMG staff are seconded from the national probation service.

Prison Accommodation

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice for how many hours per week on average high security prisoners have been confined to their cells (a) in the latest period for which figures are available and (b) over a similar period immediately before the introduction of core day standardisation. [273797]

Mr. Hanson: Prisoners in the High Security Estate are locked in their cells for an average of 109 hours a week. Prior to the introduction of the Standard Core Day prisoners were locked in their cells for an average of 107 hours a week. After the introduction of the Standard Core Day across the Prison Service prisoners in the High Security Estate spend an extra two hours a week, or 1 per cent. of their time, locked up.

The Prison Service has looked carefully at how it can make efficiencies in the operation of prisons to support the Department's efficiency plans. The standardisation of the core day delivers efficiencies, improves consistency of regime delivery across the affected establishments and helps to maximise the access prisoners have to activities when they are running without compromising the running of safe, decent and secure establishments.

Prison Sentences

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) men and (b) women aged (i) under 18 years, (ii) 18 to 20 years and (iii) 21 years and over were serving indeterminate sentences for public protection on the latest date for which figures are available. [271975]

Mr. Hanson: The following table gives the numbers of prisoners serving indeterminate sentences for public protection on 24 April 2009. The table includes those subject to imprisonment for public protection (IPP) and young prisoners subject to detention for public protection (DPP). The table also includes the 104 offenders of this type who are located in a secure psychiatric hospital.

Serving IPPs and DPPs on 24 April 2009

Age range	(a) Men	(b) Women	Subtotals
(i) Under 18 years	35	[1]Fewer than 5	36
(ii) 18 to 20 years	370	[1]Fewer than 5	372
(iii) 21 years and over	4,696	142	4,838
Total			5,246

[1] We have withheld exact numbers because to provide the information at this level could identify individuals.

These figures were drawn from the NOMS IPP database. The database is updated every other month, based on data provided by establishments. As with any large scale recording system, the database is subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Changes introduced by the CJIA 2008 included a minimum tariff of two years below which IPPs cannot be given, except where offenders have committed extremely serious crimes in the past.

These changes will ensure better use of the all the sentences available to the courts.

In January 2008, a new streamlined process was introduced for assessing and managing IPP offenders through the implementation of offender management for IPPs. The new process will ensure that appropriate sentence plans are drawn up and implemented for offenders, without undermining public protection.

Prison Sentences: Swine Flu

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) whether he has made an assessment of the potential effects of the outbreak of swine influenza on (a) levels of sentencing to custody by magistrates courts and Crown courts and (b) the safe management of adult prisons, young offender institutions and secure training centres; [274325]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effect of the outbreak of swine influenza on the provision of healthcare in (a) adult prisons, (b) young offender institutions and (c) secure training centres. [273824]

Mr. Straw: Contingency planning for coping with the effects of a flu pandemic on the justice system including prisons and places of detention, has been underway for several years. Sentencing will continue to be a matter for judges taking account of individual circumstances and sentencing guidelines.

Protecting the public and ensuring the smooth running of the justice system is paramount and every effort would be made to ensure those who pose a risk continue to be appropriately dealt with.

In 2006, all prisons were instructed, through Prison Service Instruction PSI (29/2006), to develop contingencies plans in the event of pandemic influenza. Prison senior clinical staff were to be involved at all stages of planning. The plans were to be signed off as fit for purpose by area managers. The governor was required to establish links with the local health protection unit (HPU) and the primary care trust (PCT) to finalise arrangements for antiviral access and infection control management, and to adapt local community policies to a prison setting.

At the outset of this swine flu outbreak governors were reminded to review these plans and ensure they are up to date and capable of being acted on if the situation calls for it. This is to be done in consultation with local primary care trusts and in line with the current PSI.

A revised version of the Prison Service Instruction is currently in draft. It provides further advice on key areas including infection control, UK pandemic phases, detail on key issues to be covered in contingency plans including supply lines and participation in local resilience fora, along with advice on human resources matters.

Prisons: Education

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much his Department spent on prisoner re-education in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08. [273840]

Mr. Hanson: In terms of money spent on education and training in prisons for those two years, £156 million was spent in financial year 2006-07 and £168 million was spent in financial year 2007-08, funded from the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills via provider contracts commissioned by the Learning and Skills Council. Spending on offender learning, commissioned by the Learning and Skills Council, now stands at over £175 million (2008-09 financial year), for juvenile, young and adult offenders—almost a threefold increase since 2001.

The Learning and Skills Council also spent a further £30 million in European Social Funding for the two calendar years 2006 and 2007, and established a £13.9 million budget from EQUAL funding for the period December 2006 to March 2008 to meet additional provision for offenders both in custody and in the community.

In addition training for prisoners is undertaken, mainly by Prison Service staff, whilst prisoners work or are engaged in various areas such as prison industries, catering, physical education, land based activities, industrial cleaning and laundries. The central costs of the training elements of these, mainly production functions, are not kept centrally.

Probation: Wales

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many probation posts are planned for (a) Dyfed Powys, (b) Gwent, (c) North Wales and (d) South Wales probation areas in (i) 2009-10, (ii) 2010-11 and (iii) 2011-12. [273755]

Mr. Hanson: It is not yet possible to predict final figures for 2009-10. As no final decisions have been taken on budgets for subsequent years, it is also not possible to provide accurate staffing projections for 2010-11 and 2011-12.

Responsibility for resourcing levels ultimately lies with each probation board or trust as they are the employers of probation staff. It is for them to take the action necessary at a local level to ensure they can deliver the required service within available resources.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan and Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many UK service personnel serving in (a) Afghanistan and (b) Iraq are residents of (i) Northern Ireland and (ii) the Republic of Ireland. [272893]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Data on the residential location of armed forces personnel are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many service personnel from each of the armed forces are serving in Afghanistan. [273000]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The number of UK service personnel in Afghanistan fluctuates on a daily basis but there are currently approximately 8,300 UK service personnel serving in Afghanistan. Due to the current deployment of 19 Light Brigade approximately 80 per cent. of these personnel are from the Army and approximately 10 per cent. each from the Royal Navy and Royal Air Force respectively.

Afghanistan: Reconstruction

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will bring forward plans to improve liaison between his Department and the Department for International Development on reconstruction in Afghanistan. [273672]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 8 May 2009]: Ministers and Officials from the Ministry of Defence, the Department for International Development (DFID), and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) meet regularly to discuss the UK's policy in Afghanistan. This cooperation is replicated on the ground by the Helmand Provincial Reconstruction Team which integrates the efforts of DFID, the FCO and the military Task Force Commander, with international partners, in a comprehensive approach to security, reconstruction and development.

Armed Forces: Coroners

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the outcome of his Department's challenge was to the inquest verdict in the case of Ronald George Maddison which the then Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State announced in the written ministerial statement of 21 December 2004, Official Report, column 168WS; and if he will make a statement. [274726]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Judicial Review was scheduled to take place on 13 February 2006 in the High Court. However before the hearing was due to commence, Counsel representing the Maddison family offered a possible resolution of the issues to be addressed, which the Ministry of Defence found acceptable. The presiding judges, set to hear the Judicial Review, endorsed the terms of the agreement. This therefore concluded matters.

Armed Forces: Housing

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what recent assessment he has made of the adequacy of provision of (a) service family accommodation and (b) service single living accommodation for armed forces personnel in Scotland; and if he will make a statement; [274595]

(2) how many and what percentage of (a) service family accommodation and (b) service single living accommodation properties in (a) the UK and (b) Scotland there were in each grade in each of the last five years. [274593]

Mr. Kevan Jones: UK service family accommodation was at the following standard for condition (SfC) in each of the last five years.

	April 2004		April 2005		April 2006		April 2007		July 2008
	Properties	Percentage	Properties	Percentage	Properties	Percentage	Properties	Percentage	Properties	Percentage
S1fC	25,276	50	26,426	53	28,796	57	29,691	59	28,354	59
S2fC	22,215	44	20,774	41	18,950	38	17,910	36	17,414	36
S3fC	3,083	6	2,792	6	2,309	5	2,165	5	2,098	4
S4fC	146	≤1	195	≤1	159	≤1	145	≤1	109	1
Total	50,720		50,187		50,214		49,911		47,975

Figures for Scotland across the last five years are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, as at March 2009, SFA in Scotland was at the following SfC:

	Properties	Percentage
S3fC	5	≤1

In the past two years, single living accommodation, in the UK and Scotland was at the following grade, which is an assessment of the physical condition and scale of the accommodation, but excludes environmental and locational factors.

	July 2007				March 2008
	UK		Scotland		UK		Scotland
	Bed-spaces	Percentage	Bed-spaces	Percentage	Bed-spaces	Percentage	Bed-spaces	Percentage
Grade 1	35,388	26	2,576	32	34130	25	2,580	33
Grade 2	17,398	13	1,576	20	19,180	14	1,560	20
Grade 3	23,346	17	1,691	21	21,460	16	1,680	21
Grade 4	62,212	44	2,128	27	62,460	45	2,010	26
Total	138,344		7,948		137,420		7,830

Further information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Due to a legacy of decades of underinvestment, in Scotland and elsewhere, not all service accommodation is of the high standard that service personnel and their families deserve. We are addressing this and in addition to the significant investment in recent years, we plan to spend over £3 billion in the next decade to improve and upgrade accommodation worldwide.

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much has been spent on upgrading accommodation for serving personnel and their families in (a) the UK and (b) Scotland since 2000. [274599]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I will write to the right hon. and learned Member with the information requested because it is not held centrally and will take more time to collate and verify.

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) single living accommodation and (b) service family accommodation properties in Scotland have been declared unfit for habitation. [274600]

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) single living accommodation and (b) service family accommodation properties in the UK have been declared unfit for habitation. [274777]

Mr. Kevan Jones: While all occupied properties are considered to be of a habitable standard, properties can be uninhabitable for various reasons, such as awaiting demolition or undergoing major repair, modernisation or upgrade work.

The situation changes frequently and therefore detailed numbers are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Pensions

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he plans to review the functions of the war pension committees. [274688]

Mr. Kevan Jones: A review of the war pensions committees is currently underway. The review is being conducted in consultation with the committees and other stakeholders and an initial symposium was held on 25 March 2009.

Armed Forces: Resignations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the voluntary outflow rate from each (a) service and (b) rank of the armed forces was in each of the last three years. [274980]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The voluntary outflow rates of officers and of other ranks from each service are published in tables 3-8 of Tri-Service Publication 05 (TSP05). TSP05 is published monthly; the current March 2009 publication includes time series back to 1998-99 and can be found at:

http://www.dasa.mod.uk/applications/newWeb/www/index.php?page=48&thiscontent=60&date=2009-04-28&pubType=all&PublishTime=09:30:00&from=home&dateOption=1

Voluntary outflow rates for each rank have not been compiled and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Copies of TSP05 are also available from the Library of the House.

Armed Forces: Swine Flu

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what preparations his Department is making to ensure that sufficient military forces are available to participate in civil contingency operations in relation to the swine influenza outbreak. [275048]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The UK's preparations are led by the Department of Health, involving all relevant Government Departments and agencies including the MOD. There are currently no plans for military involvement in civil contingency operations in relation to the swine influenza outbreak.

Armed Forces: Training

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people were enrolled in an officer training corps course at each university in each year since 1997. [274898]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The following table illustrates the numbers commencing training at university officer training corps in each year since 1997.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his most recent estimate is of the cost of the Defence Training Review contract over the next five financial years. [275059]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The most recent estimate of the cost of the Defence Training Review (DTR) contract over the next five financial years, after expected contract signature in 2010, is £1.8 billion. It should be noted that the vast majority of this figure represents the operating costs that we carry today within the existing training establishment.

Army: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) required, (b) actual and (c) fit for duty strengths of each regiment of the (i) Royal Armoured Corps, (ii) Royal Corps of Signals, (iii) Royal Engineers and (iv) Royal Logistics Corps is. [275044]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This information is not held centrally and could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Clyde Submarine Base

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects the Faslane primary effluent barge to return to service; and what plans he has for its replacement in the long-term. [273884]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The primary effluent barge was retired in February 2008 and will not be returned to service.

Her Majesty's Naval Base Clyde is currently undertaking a future waste management options study to determine the long-term plans for radioactive waste management. Primary effluent tanks will continue to collect liquid waste in the interim.

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has for a new facility to handle radioactive waste at Faslane. [273885]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Work is currently being undertaken to determine the future waste management plans at Faslane, the results of which will inform the design and development of a new capability.

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what (a) procedures and (b) protocols will apply to the discharge of radioactive coolant from submarines at the new Astute jetty. [273886]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The procedures and protocols for the discharge of radioactive coolant from submarines at the new Astute jetty will be similar to those in place for current berths. Primary effluent tanks will be used for the discharge of radioactive liquid effluent, a process that is regulated and inspected by both the Scottish Environment Protection Agency and the Defence Nuclear Safety Regulator.

Defence: Employment

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people in (a) Devon and (b) Cornwall are employed in the defence sector. [271598]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The latest available figures for the numbers of MOD civilian and service personnel who are directly employed at MOD establishments or bases located in Devon, Cornwall and the unitary authority of Plymouth are provided in the following table.

	All MOD service personnel	MOD civilian personnel	Total
South West of which:	30,980	17,600	56,480
Plymouth	7,380	1,200	8,580
Devon	4,120	410	4,530
Cornwall	1,640	630	4,280

The Ministry of Defence does not produce estimates at county or unitary authority level for the number of people employed in UK industry and commerce in companies that receive contracts directly from MOD or in the supply chain supporting such contracts.

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people in the South West of England work in the defence sector. [273991]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The latest available estimate for those people employed directly in industry and commerce in the South West of England in those companies that receive contracts directly from MOD is approximately 37,000 full-time equivalent jobs.

It is not possible to prepare estimates for indirect employment due to the quality of the underlying administrative data, so this could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

In addition a further 17,600 civilian and 38,880 service personnel are directly employed at MOD establishments or bases located in the South West.

Defence: Information and Communications Technology

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) target and (b) actual number of terminal installations completed for the Defence Information Infrastructure programme is. [274968]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Ministry of Defence intends to design, install and run 140,000 terminals on the Defence Information Infrastructure system, supporting some 300,000 users at more than 2,000 sites. As at 30 April 2009, some 70,000 terminals had been installed.

Defence: Procurement

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) original forecast in-service date at main gate and (b) actual in-service date of each post-main gate Category (i) A, (ii) B and (iii) C procurement project was in each of the last two years. [275022]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The following table gives the actual in-service date for category A, B and C post main gate projects in each of the last two financial years for which results have been published together with the originally forecast in-service date at main gate:

In service date forecast at main gate	Actual in service date	Category	Project title

Departmental Buildings

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department spent on building maintenance in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274556]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The diverse defence estate includes office, technical and living accommodation. Building maintenance is covered by a number of contractual arrangements both in the UK and overseas, including a number of private finance initiatives (PFI). For these reasons, the cost of building maintenance as distinct from such things as the maintenance of runways and other elements of the estate, is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The MOD's annual accounts include property management costs, which are mostly maintenance but exclude those falling under PFI arrangements.

These figures are provided in the following table.

	£ million
2003-04	1,393
2004-05	1,309
2005-06	1,367
2006-07	1,258
2007-08	1,523

The final figures for 2008-09 are currently being prepared and are subject to audit by the National Audit Office.

Departmental Consultants

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department spent on external consultants for services delivered in 2008-09. [274977]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This information is not yet verified but is intended for future publication and will be placed in the Library of the House before the summer recess, as is our usual practice.

Departmental Correspondence

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what procedure his Department follows for dealing with complaints received (a) by e-mail, (b) by post, (c) by telephone and (d) via his Department's website. [274527]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The MOD's complaints handling policy is based on the Parliamentary and Health Service Ombudsman's publication "Principles of Good Complaint Handling" and covers all complaints irrespective of how they are received. There are separate and published points of contact for complaints about specific activities, for example pensions or low flying, and our experience is that complaints are most effectively handled at the initial point of contact. Our policy sets out how complaints should be handled and, should it be necessary, explains how an internal review should be offered and conducted. Finally, we offer independent internal reviews and will explain to the complainant how they are able to take their complaint to the Parliamentary and Health Service Ombudsman.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department has spent on (a) conference services and (b) banqueting services in each of the last five years. [274508]

Mr. Kevan Jones: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Expenditure on conference and banqueting services must be necessary, appropriate, cost effective and an admissible charge to public funds.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department spent on entertainment and hospitality in the last two financial years. [275011]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The MOD spent £4.2 million on entertainment in 2007-08. The information for 2008-09 is intended for future publication in our annual report and accounts before the summer recess, as is our usual practice.

The aim of official entertainment is to support MOD objectives, facilitate wider public understanding of the armed forces, enhance professional contacts, further British security policy interests and meet defence diplomacy objectives. Official entertainment may be used to support management objectives or enhance esprit de corps.

European Fighter Aircraft

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his most recent assessment is of progress in the ordering of Tranche 3 Eurofighter Typhoons. [274896]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Negotiations with partner nations and industry are continuing on the Typhoon Tranche 3 contract and decisions will be taken once these negotiations are complete.

Ex-servicemen: Military Decorations

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will make an estimate of the number of British veterans of the Korean War who have not received each medal for military service in that war for which they are eligible. [274356]

Mr. Kevan Jones: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 24 April 2008, Official Report, column 927W, on Iraq: peacekeeping operations, what the established procedures for the gifting of equipment to Iraq are. [274639]

Mr. Hutton: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 30 March 2009, Official Report, column 888W, to the hon. Member for Aldershot (Mr. Howarth).

Israel: Military Aid

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much aid was given to Israel for military purposes between 1997 and 2008. [273849]

Mr. Hutton: MOD gave no aid to Israel for military purposes between 1997 and 2008. We do, however, offer places on defence education courses which are paid for by Israel on an attendance basis. Our defence relationship with Israel is in line with HMG's policy in support of the Middle East Peace Process of having a balanced relationship with the Israelis and the Palestinians.

Military Aid: Defence Equipment

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what equipment his Department has authorised the armed forces to gift to other nations in each of the last five years. [273584]

Mr. Hutton: Gifts valued above the MOD's delegated gifting authority (above £100,000 in 2004-05 and above £250,000 from August 2006 onwards) have been approved by Parliament through a departmental minute are set out as follows.

We also publish some details of such gifts in the note on losses and special payments in our Annual Report and Accounts, copies of which have been placed in the Library of the House and which are available on line in the MOD's Freedom of Information Publication Scheme at:

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/AboutDefence/CorporatePublications/AnnualReports/

A fully comprehensive list of gifts could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Surplus assets are normally disposed of through sale to secure the best value for the taxpayer. Where surplus assets are disposed of as gifts, this must produce a positive benefit for the MOD or UK security interests.

There have been no parliamentary approved gifts in this year.

Navy: Drug Seizures

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what drug seizures were made by Royal Navy vessels since 1997; where the seizures took place; what the value of each seizure was; and if he will make a statement. [271390]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I will write to the hon. Member.

Radioactive Waste: Waste Management

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date his Department published its report on Future Radioactive Waste Management Capability, RWMF/URD/001; and what representations have been received on the report since that date. [272722]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The Future Radioactive Waste Management Capability—User Requirement Document was published within the Department in August 2008 and was provided to the Scottish Environment Protection Agency in September 2008.

No representations have been received on the report since it was issued.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much liquid radioactive waste has been discharged into the sea loch at Faslane in each year since it first hosted Polaris nuclear submarines; and whether he has received recent representations from the Scottish Environmental Protection Agency on the matter. [272723]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Officials are currently in the process of collating the information held by the Department; I will write to the hon. Member once this work is complete.

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the extent to which the recommendations in the report Assessment of Arrangements to Comply with Best Practicable Means for the Handling, Movement, Processing, Storage and Disposal of Radioactive Waste at HM Naval Base Clyde, Faslane have been complied with; and upon what data his assessment is based. [273541]

Mr. Quentin Davies: An internal assessment of the report was completed by officials at HMNB Clyde during March 2009. The majority of the recommendations arising from the report have now been implemented and we expect that outstanding issues will be addressed by the end of September 2009. Officials continue to work with the various regulatory authorities to ensure they are content with the work that is being undertaken.

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps have been taken at HM Naval Base Clyde to ensure that requirements on waste prevention and minimisation have been incorporated into waste generation procedures and training at the base. [273543]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Waste generation is always considered during the planning of any nuclear work, and efforts are made to minimise the rate of production and the quantity of waste produced. Initial and refresher training is provided to both submarine and base staff that specifically addresses the requirement to prevent and reduce radioactive waste. Waste disposals from HM Naval Base Clyde continue to be well below the agreed disposal limits.

Somalia: Piracy

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Royal Navy personnel of each rank are stationed in the Gulf of Aden. [272906]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The breakdown by rank of Royal Navy personnel who are stationed or whose tasking may require them to be stationed in the Gulf of Aden is provided in the following table.

Rank	Number
Captain (RN)	1
Commander	3
Lieutenant Commander	8
Lieutenant	15
Captain (RM)	1
Sub-Lieutenant	2
Warrant Officer	4
Chief Petty Officer	21
Colour Sergeant (RM)	1
Petty Officer	33
Sergeant (RM)	1
Leading Hand	43
Lance Corporal (RM)	3
Able Rate	79
Corporal (RM)	1
Marine (RM)	5

Special Reconnaissance Regiment: Northern Ireland

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of the Special Reconnaissance Regiment (a) have served in Northern Ireland in each of the last 12 months and (b) are serving there. [272861]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I am withholding the information as its disclosure would, or would be likely, to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the Special Forces.

Submarines

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what locations will be included in the Strategic Environmental Assessment for the Submarine Dismantling Project; what timetable he has set for the conduct of the assessment; and against what criteria the assessment will be made. [274640]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The Strategic Environmental Assessment (SEA) for the Submarine Dismantling Project (SDP) will consider location options for both the submarine dismantling facility and the interim storage of the resulting Intermediate-Level Waste (ILW). In both cases, the SEA proposes to consider the following types of location:

(i) Conduct activity at a Green-Field (not previously developed) location;

(ii) Conduct activity at a Brown-Field (previously developed) location; and

(iii) Conduct activity at an existing nuclear licensed/ authorised location.

It is the intention for the SEA report to be completed before spring 2010, following a period of public consultation.

Assessment will be made against the criteria detailed in EU Directive 2001/42/EC 'On the Assessment of the Effects of Certain Plans and Programmes on the Environment' and the 'Environmental Assessment of Plans and Programmes Regulations 2004 (SI 2004 No 1633)'. It should be noted that the latter document normally applies only to England but, in line with the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (now Department for Communities and Local Government) guidance, is also applicable to those activities with a UK-wide remit.

Warships: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) required and (b) actual manning strength for each (i) frigate and (ii) destroyer in the Royal Navy is. [275052]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answers I gave him on 13 November 2007, Official Report, column 127W and on 4 February 2009, Official Report, column 1257W.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departmental Stationery

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much his Department has spent on branded stationery and gifts for (a) internal and (b) external promotional use in each of the last five years. [273788]

Paul Goggins: The costs requested for the Department, excluding its agencies and Executive NDPBs, in each of the last five years, are shown in the following table.

	Internal	External
2004-05	0	841
2005-06	318	26,149
2006-07	0	22,046
2008-09	698	8,548

Community Safety Unit (CSU) accounts for around 50 per cent. of the costs. CSU purchased items to support campaigns that had been running from 2005-06, such as the domestic burglary campaign. CSU's 2008-09 costs relate more to Community Safety Week and ongoing community safety events rather than major campaigns, hence the fall in spend.

SCOTLAND

Departmental ICT

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland pursuant to the answer my hon. Friend the Member for Cardiff, Central (Jeremy Willott) of 24 April 2009, Official Report, column 978W, on departmental ICT, what recent discussions he has had with Scottish Executive Ministers on steps to reduce carbon emissions from ICT systems in his Department. [274903]

Ann McKechin: My officials are in regular communication with their counterparts in the Scottish Government about the information and communications technology system (SCOTS) which the Scotland Office shares with the Scottish Government. The Scottish Government are complying with the same standards as those set out in the Greening Government ICT Strategy.

Departmental Stationery

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department spent on the purchase of (a) recycled office supplies in the last 12 months and (b) printer ink cartridges in each of the last five years. [274572]

Ann McKechin: The Office does not record this information in the form requested.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what his Department's policy is on the practice of holding departmental away days outside the Department's buildings. [268538]

Ann McKechin: My Office has not laid down a policy on holding departmental away days outside the Department's buildings. Occasional staff events off site are approved by the Director of the Scotland Office, when there is a clear benefit to the business to be gained. Whether Government or hotel accommodation is used, it must be fit for purpose and provide value for money taking account of the nature of the event.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Blackwater Estuary: Pollution

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on (i) the effects on the marine ecology of the Blackwater Estuary of chlorination of water inlet and outlet pipes at Bradwell power station, with particular reference to the native oyster population and (ii) changes to such effects arising from the construction of a new nuclear power station at Bradwell. [275213]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA has neither commissioned nor evaluated any such research. However, analysis of samples of cooling water discharges undertaken by the Environment Agency has not identified any significant issue regarding chlorine.

Detailed proposals for developing a new nuclear power station at Bradwell have yet to come forward. As a result, the Environment Agency is unable to comment on any potential changes on the marine ecology resulting from new construction at the site.

Common Fisheries Policy

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions his Department has had with the European Commission on reform of the Common Fisheries Policy. [274609]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I exchanged correspondence with Commissioner Joe Borg of the European Commission on the reform of the common fisheries policy in April this year. I presented the UK's early thoughts on reform of the common fisheries policy at the April Agriculture and Fisheries Council where the European Commission presented its Green Paper on reform of the common fisheries policy.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his Department's policy is on holding departmental away days at locations other than departmental premises. [268464]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Each business area in DEFRA has a devolved learning and development budget which is used to fund locally arranged training for staff. This can include staff away days and team building exercises.

Managers have discretion to decide whether or not to hold away days and, if so, whether these should be held at locations other than departmental premises. In exercising this discretion, managers will be expected to ensure that value for money considerations are fully taken into account, and to evaluate all alternative options.

Fisheries: Expenditure

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was spent by the Marine and Fisheries Agency on fisheries enforcement in each of the last 10 years. [274279]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Marine Fisheries Agency was created on 1 October 2005 and was renamed the Marine and Fisheries Agency on 1 April 2007, when it took on marine licensing responsibilities.

A summary of the expenditure on fisheries enforcement over the life of the agency to date is as follows. The figures for 2004-05 is a broad estimate from the comparative figures in the annual report and accounts.

2008-09	12.1
2007-08	12.3
2006-07	12.3
2005-06	12.2
2004-05	12.2

Recycling

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what steps he has considered to increase levels of plastic and glass bottle recycling; if he will bring forward proposals to promote bottle return schemes in shops; and if he will make a statement; [273465]

(2) what measures he has considered to increase levels of plastic and glass bottle recycling; what consideration he has given to tax incentives for (a) companies who recycle, (b) companies who do not and (c) the promotion of bottle return schemes in shops; and if he will make a statement. [273380]

Jane Kennedy: The Government provide incentives and support for recycling by companies, for example through advisory services provided by the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP). In addition the landfill tax discourages landfill and encourages the recycling and recovery of wastes.

The Government also provide capital grant and other funding for the demonstration and pre-commercial deployment of low carbon and renewable energy technologies under the Environmental Transformation Fund, which has a budget of £400 million over the 2008-11 period. The Government also provide support for renewables through market drivers such as the renewables obligation, which is expected to be worth around £1 billion a year by 2010.

In December 2008 DEFRA published a report into packaging deposit systems and the role they might play in increasing recovery and recycling of single use drink containers (plastic, aluminium and glass) in the UK. The report was completed in consultation with a range of industry stakeholders and reviewed deposit systems in four other EU member states to assess the implications of introducing such a system in the UK.

The report concluded that while deposit schemes would increase recycling, alternative schemes could achieve the same or better results at a lower cost, as the relative cost of introducing a deposit scheme system was high. For example, the deposit scheme operating in Germany costs three times as much per container as a household collection system.

However, the Government are keeping an open mind in regard to deposit schemes and 'reverse vending', where vending machines take used bottles and cans for recycling and usually give a reward such as supermarket loyalty points or vouchers. A number of reverse vending systems are being set up by major retailers and the performance of these systems is being monitored.

Rivers: Pollution

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many prosecutions for river pollution were brought by the Environment Agency in each of the last five years; and how many of those were successful. [274227]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The table shows the number of successful prosecutions for water pollution under section 85 of the Water Resources Act 1991 between 2004 and 2008. This information comes from the Environment Agency's National Enforcement Database.

	Rivers		All controlled waters[1]
	Total	Successful	Total	Successful
2004	57	56	190	187
2005	53	51	235	231
2006	44	43	189	184
2007	44	42	183	177
2008	37	36	148	146

[1] Under the Water Resources Act 1991, 'controlled waters' are defined as rivers, lakes, groundwaters or tidal and coastal waters up to three nautical miles out to sea.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

E-mail and Intranet

Mr. Drew: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission on how many occasions PICT has shut down the parliamentary (a) e-mail system and (b) intranet (i) wholly and (ii) partially in the last 12 months; and what the reasons for the shut-down were in each case. [273447]

Nick Harvey: The information is as follows:

(a) Mailboxes are stored on any one of five mail servers. The closure of any one of these servers would impact only on those users with mailboxes stored on it. Each server contains approximately 2,500 mailboxes. For the purpose of the answer, the closure of an individual server is reported as (ii) partially.

(i) The e-mail service has not been wholly shut down for the last 12 months.

(ii) The e-mail service has been partially shutdown on the following occasions in the last 12 months:

29-31 August 2008: 41 hours—one server failed due to software problems;

29-30 October 2008: 11 hours 30 minutes—one server failed due to software problems;

10-11 March 2009: 15 hours 30 minutes—one server failed due to a backup failure;

1 April 2009: Two hours 35 minutes—one server failed due to anti-virus scanner failure;

4 April 2009: All servers were down at some point during an eight hour period for security patch installation.

(b) (i) The Parliamentary intranet has been wholly shutdown on the following occasions during the last 12 months:

24 January 2008: 45 minutes due to a domain name service (DNS) failure;

29 February 2008: One hour and 30 minutes due to a proxy server service failure.

The Parliamentary intranet has also been unavailable due to planned maintenance on the following occasions:

21 March 2009: nine hours due to emergency security patch requirements

(ii) The Parliamentary intranet has not been partially shutdown during the last 12 months.

Mr. Drew: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how many complaints the House authorities have received about the speed or reliability of the parliamentary (a) e-mail system and (b) intranet in the last 12 months. [273448]

Nick Harvey: All complaints are logged in PICT's case management system. There is no record of a complaint being made for either of the above items in the past 12 months. This answer does not cover complaints about unavailability of broadband or VPN which may have resulted in loss of access to email or the internet.

Chris Huhne: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission who the internet service provider is for the parliamentary IT system; and whether the (a) provider and (b) system will be subject to the provisions of the UK Data Retention (EC Directive) Regulations 2009. [272019]

Nick Harvey: The internet service provider for Parliament is Colt. The provisions of the UK Data Retention (EC Directive) Regulations 2009 apply to all public communications providers to whom a written notice has been given by the Secretary of State. I understand that Colt has not received such a notice.

DEFENCE

Air Force: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) average, (b) shortest and (c) longest tour interval for the (i) RAF Field Regiment, (ii) RAF Rapier, (iii) RAF Biological Detection and (iv) Royal Auxiliary Air Force Regiment squadron was in the last five years. [275041]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The RAF average, shortest and longest tour intervals, i.e. the interval between overseas deployments, for the:

(i) RAF Regiment Field Squadrons are:

	Number of months
Average	12.5
Shortest	11.5
Longest	23

(ii) RAF Rapier. The RAF Rapier role was transferred to the Army in 2007 and the Squadrons disbanded or became field regiments. The squadron tour intervals between 2007 and 2004 are:

	Number of months
Average	7
Longest	24

(iii) RAF Biological Detection. The unit has not been deployed as a formed unit since 2003.

(iv) Royal Auxiliary Air Force Regiment do not deploy as a formed unit but augment Regiment Squadrons in Theatre when required.

Air Force: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of personnel serving with (a) each RAF Field Regiment and (b) each RAF aircraft type exceed the level set out in harmony guidelines. [275051]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The percentage of personnel exceeding the harmony guideline levels within the RAF field regiments are:

	Personnel breaching unit harmony guidelines (percentage)
RAF regiment non-officers[1]	40.8
RAF regiment officer[1]	27.4

[1] Refers to all RAF regiment personnel

The information requested in relation to separate RAF field regiments and for personnel serving with each RAF aircraft type is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Aviation

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what percentage of flights (a) to and (b) from operational theatres have been (i) cancelled and (ii) delayed in each year since 2007; what the (A) location and (B) destination was of each such delayed flight; and what the (1) the length of time of and (2) reason for the delay was of each such delayed flight. [274978]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I will write to the hon. Member.

Armed Forces: Dental Services

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Defence Dental Service officers were based (a) in the UK and (b) abroad, including those deployed on operations, in each of the last five years. [275019]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The numbers of Defence Dental Service Officers are provided in the following table, as at 1 April in each year stated. Figures as at 1 April 2009 have yet to be finalised.

(a) UK
Military	198	198	200	202	198
Civilian	42	42	42	37	37
(b) Abroad
Military	52	52	50	56	56
Civilian	11	11	11	11	11

No civilian dental practitioners are deployed on operations. The uniformed defence dental service officers deployed on operations are drawn from the total cadre based in the UK and abroad as provided in the table. The numbers deployed on operations overseas in each calendar year were:

	Number of operations
2004	36
2005	36
2006	48
2007	47

Armed Forces: Housing

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) longest and (b) average period of time taken to make repairs to a forces accommodation property after a call-out was in the latest period for which figures are available. [275021]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The requested information is not held centrally and will take a little time to collate and verify. I will write to the hon. Member.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many Vector armoured vehicles have been bought by his Department since 2006; and how many such vehicles have been deployed in (a) Afghanistan and (b) Iraq; [274741]

(2) how many Vector armoured vehicles are in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan. [274746]

Mr. Quentin Davies: 178 Vector Protected Patrol Vehicles have been delivered since 2006. Details on the number of Vectors deployed is being withheld for reasons of operational security.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether any of the second tranche of Mastiffs have been deployed to (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan. [274972]

Mr. Quentin Davies: A number of Mastiff tranche 2 vehicles have already deployed to Afghanistan, however, none have deployed to Iraq. Details of the numbers deployed to Afghanistan are being withheld for reasons of operational security.

Army: Labour Turnover

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the (a) inflow to and (b) outflow from each infantry battalion was in each year since 2001; [274975]

(2) what the (a) outflow and (b) voluntary outflow from each service was in each of the last three years, broken down by length of service. [275045]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Current inflow and outflow information for the Army is not segregated by infantry battalions and is only provided as an overall Army level due to the ongoing validation of data following the implementation of the new JPA system. Historical flow information broken down by each Infantry Battalion is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, the inflow and outflow to the trained strength of the total Army can be found in Table 4 and 6 of Tri-Service Publication 4, UK Armed Forces Quarterly Manning Report. This can be found at the following link:

http://www.dasa.mod.uk/applications/newWeb/www/index.php?page==48&thiscontent=20&date=2009-02-26&pubType=1&PublishTime=09:30:00&from=home&tabOption=3

Information on outflow and voluntary outflow from each service in the last three years broken down by length of service of armed forces personnel is currently unavailable and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Army: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) required, (b) actual and (c) fit for task strength of each corps of the Army is. [274967]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: In the following table, the requirement figures requested are shown by the funded liability, as at 1 March 2009[1]:

Organisation	Funded liability	Trained strength
Royal Armoured Corps	5,690	5,680
Royal Artillery	7,510	7,240
Royal Engineers	9,370	[2]9,600
Royal Signals	8,440	7,750
Infantry	24,540	23,200
Army Air Corps	2,030	2,050
Royal Army Chaplains Department	150	130
Royal Logistics Corps	15,550	14,900
Royal Army Medical Corps	3,350	2,960
Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers	9,900	9,460
Adjutant General's Corps
Provost	1,650	1,710
Staff and Personnel Support	3,820	3,500
Military Provost Service	100	105
Educational and Training Services	315	343
Army Legal Services	109	103
Royal Army Veterinary Corps	220	290
Small Arms School Corps	140	150
Royal Army Dentistry Corps	440	380

Organisation	Funded liability	Trained strength
Intelligence Corps	1,610	1,450
Army Physical Training Corps	430	450
Queen Alexandra's Royal Auxiliary Nursing Corps	1,270	1,030
Corps of Army Music	890	810
Staff	720	850
Territorial Army	42,040	34,310

[1] Figures are rounded and exclude Gurkhas.
[2] Provisional.

As at 1 April, Infantry "Fit for Task" (interpreted as "Fit to Deploy") strength, excluding 1 Para and 1 Rifles, was 18,995. "Fit for Task" figures for other Corps are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Army: Recruitment

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what funding his Department budgeted for overseas travel expenses for Army recruitment teams in each of the last 10 years. [275214]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Army recruiting teams (formerly known as regimental recruiting teams) operate in the United Kingdom and do not incur any costs for overseas travel.

However, the Army's overseas pre-selection teams, which travel to countries that have a high number of people who have applied to join the Army, have incurred the following costs for flights, transport and accommodation charges for staff:

Financial year	Cost (£)
2005-06	42,507
2006-07	78,639
2007-08	197,589
2008-09	140,566

Costs prior to 2005-06 are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Ex-servicemen: Military Decorations

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many veterans badges have been issued to residents in Hendon to date. [272303]

Mr. Kevan Jones: This information is not available and could be collected only at disproportionate cost.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) men and (b) women left the armed forces within six months of returning from service in (i) Iraq and (i) Afghanistan in 2007-08. [273313]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: An estimate of the number of male and female UK armed forces personnel identified as having left Iraq or Afghanistan during 2007-08 and who were no longer in the armed forces six months later is provided in the following table.

Deployed country	Male	Female	Total
Afghanistan	530	10	540
Iraq	510	20	540
Total	1,040	40	1,080

Notes:
1. UK armed forces personnel includes all UK regular forces and Gurkhas but excludes all reservist personnel.
2. Data exclude repeat tours. Where individuals have deployed to both theatres in 2007-08 they are shown against the latest country of deployment.
3. Data include all personnel who left Iraq or Afghanistan in FY 2007-08 without returning thereafter and were no longer in the armed forces six months after having left Iraq or Afghanistan.
4. Data include all outflow reasons from the armed forces, including operational and non-operational fatalities.
5. All figures are rounded to the nearest 10, totals and sub-totals have been rounded separately and so may not equal the sum of their rounded parts.
6. All data are provisional and subject to review.

Joint Rapid Reaction Force

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which regiment or battalion forms the Spearhead Land Element (SLE); whether it is fully equipped; whether the present SLE is deployed; and when the future SLE will take over from the present SLE. [274973]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The 1st Battalion the Royal Anglian Regiment forms the Spearhead Land Element (SLE), which is not currently deployed. The SLE is fully equipped in accordance with the Joint Rapid Reaction Force Directive and operational mounting instructions. The next SLE will be provided by the Royal Highland Fusiliers, 2nd Battalion the Royal Regiment of Scotland, who will assume this role from 1 August 2009.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which regiment or battalion forms the Small Scale Contingent Battle Group; whether it is fully equipped; whether the present Small Scale Contingent Battle Group is deployed; and when the future Small Scale Contingent Battle Group will take over. [274974]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The 3rd Battalion the Parachute Regiment forms the Small Scale Contingent Battle Group (SSCBG), which is not currently deployed. The SSCBG is equipped according to their readiness state. The next SSCBG will be provided by 42 Commando Royal Marines, who will assume this role from 1 December 2009.

Military Aircraft: Helicopters

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) required, (b) actual and (c) fit for duty strength of each helicopter crew unit in each service is. [275046]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 27 February 2009, Official Report, column 1148W. The information requested in relation to fit for duty strengths for helicopter crew is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Royal Irish Regiment: Pay

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what steps his Department has taken to inform former members of the Royal Irish Regiment who received overpayment through the Special Capital Payment Scheme that they are not required to reimburse the scheme; [275105]

(2) on what date it was determined that former members of the Royal Irish Regiment who received overpayments from the Special Capital Payments Scheme would not be required to reimburse the scheme; and if he will make a statement. [275109]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Former members of the Royal Irish Regiment remain required to reimburse any overpayment of special capital payment they have received.

TRANSPORT

Aviation: Greater London

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the effects on the number of flights over east London of the expansion of Heathrow Airport, with particular reference to Walthamstow. [274716]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The adding capacity at Heathrow Airport consultation document in November 2007 contained indicative flight path maps. Figure 9 shows that in 2002 Walthamstow was overflown by an average of 298 arriving aircraft a day at a height of 6,000 to 3,000 feet. Figures 8a and 8b show that in 2030, with a fully utilised third runway, numbers are predicted to fall to an average of 260 aircraft a day at a height of more than 6,000 feet. This is because, with a third runway, arrivals would be spread between three runways and final approaches would be further out from the airport, so aircraft would be higher at the point where they are overflying Walthamstow. Walthamstow is not overflown by departing aircraft at a height of less than 4,000 feet and that would continue to be the case with a third runway.

Buses: EU Law

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) buses and (b) coaches have been subject to recall under the provisions of EU Directive 2007/46/EC Article 32, and EU Directive 2001/95/EC since each such Directive came into force. [273908]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There have been 57 recall notifications involving 12,462 vehicles. We do not have figures separately relating to buses and coaches.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the merits of changing UK safety standards for buses in the light of EU Directive 2007/46/EC, with particular reference to the testing of seating and buggy space for passenger safety. [274394]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport has made no specific assessment of the merits of introducing EU Directive 2007/46/EC with respect to the safety of seating and buggy spaces on buses.

The seating requirements contained within current national regulations and those referred to in the new European directive are similar, but neither contains specific provisions for buggy spaces. General vehicle safety regulations would prevent a vehicle entering service which presented a clear hazard to its passengers or other road users.

Cycling: Mobile Phones

Jim Dowd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps his Department is taking to discourage the use of hand-held mobile phones while cycling. [274754]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport advises cyclists through publications such as The Highway Code to "avoid any distractions when cycling" and to "keep both hands on the handlebars except when signalling or changing gear"; Tales of the Road—A highway code for young road users—also advises "not to use a personal stereo or mobile phone whilst cycling".

Departmental Complaints

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what procedure his Department follows for dealing with complaints received (a) by e-mail, (b) by post, (c) by telephone and (d) via his Department's website. [274517]

Mr. Hoon: All complaints to the Department for Transport, however they are received, are handled in accordance with the Department's published complaints procedure. This can be viewed on the internet at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/about/complaints

Departmental Databases

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) guidelines and (b) safeguards his Department has in place for the commercial licensing of its departmental databases. [271992]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 30 April 2009]: The Department for Transport has published an Information Charter which sets out its commitment to comply with the Data Protection Act 1998 in the use and disclosure of personal data. Similarly, each of our agencies has published its own Information Charter which can be viewed on their websites.

Furthermore, the Department has issued guidelines on the reuse of its information for commercial purposes. These make clear that, among other requirements: resources must not be diverted from core functions (including any resources involved in anonymisation/preparation of the information, or in setting up and running the scheme); a third party must not own the intellectual property rights; only anonymised data should be used for bulk sharing with private sector bodies; and that the production of the information is not outside core functions of DFT.

Two of the Department's Executive agencies, the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) and Driving Standards Agency (DSA), have a derogation from the Office of Public Sector Information to license the re-use of their information and are accredited under the Information Fair Trader Scheme. The information they sell is anonymised and the licences and corresponding contracts restrict how the data can be used.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which of his Department's (a) centrally managed and (b) agency managed databases are commercially licensed for the use of private companies; to whom each is licensed; and how much revenue his Department has received for each licence. [271993]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 30 April 2009]: None of the central Department for Transport's databases or those of its agencies are commercially licensed in their entirety for the use of private companies. Two of our agencies, the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) and the Driver Standards Agency (DSA), license information extracted from their databases for commercial re-use. This is done in accordance with their derogation from the Office of Public Sector Information and their accreditation under the Information Fair Trader Scheme.

2003-04	993
2004-05	1,093
2005-06	1,722
2006-07	2,051
2007-08	2,005
2008-09	[1]1,710

A list of the companies that DVLA have licensed to re-use this information has been placed in the House Library.

The individual income from these companies could not be calculated without incurring disproportionate cost.

DSA license the use of the Official DSA Theory Test question banks and 16 simulated Hazard Perception Test video clips for use by other publishers by way of a Crown Copyright Licence Agreement.

There are currently 140 licence holders, some of which are private companies and others are sole traders (e.g. driving instructors). Income derived from royalty-paying licence holders over the past four years is as follows:

2005-06	432
2006-07	352
2008-09	392

A list of company royalty-paying licence holders has been placed in the House Library. The amounts paid by individual licence holders cannot be disclosed for reasons of commercial confidentiality.

Driving: Elderly

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he has conducted a cost-benefit analysis of testing drivers over the age of 70 years before their licences are renewed; and if he will make a statement. [273574]

Jim Fitzpatrick: No cost-benefit analysis of testing drivers over the age of 70 years before their licences are renewed, has been conducted.

Drivers must already meet specific health requirements when renewing a driving licence at age 70 and are required by law to notify the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency at any time about the onset or worsening of any health condition that may affect safe driving.

The current arrangements are based on an assessment of the risks that an individual poses to road safety and as such are balanced and proportionate. They do not penalise those persons aged 70 and over who are medically fit to hold a licence.

Garage and Petrol Stations

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of motor repairs made by (a) dealerships and (b) independent garages in the last 12 months. [274352]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport does not hold this information.

M6: Accidents

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many road traffic accidents between junctions 14 and 16 of the M6 were reported in each of the last five years. [274371]

Paul Clark: The following table gives details of the number of accidents on the M6 between Junctions 14 and 16 from 2003 to 2007. The accidents are broken down by severity.

Over the whole period there were 247 accidents on this stretch of road, nine fatal, 15 serious, and 223 slight.

These are the most recent validated statistics available. Data collected since 2007 are currently undergoing validation.

Fatal	1	1	1	4	2	9
Serious	2	5	0	2	6	15
Slight	40	67	45	43	28	223
Total	43	73	46	49	36	247

Ports: Inspections

Albert Owen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many Vehicle and Operator Services Agency checks have been undertaken at the ports of (a) Holyhead, (b) Pembroke, (c) Fishguard, (d) Liverpool, (e) Heysham and (f) Stranraer since the checking system came into operation; what the frequency of checks is at each of those ports; and if he will make a statement. [274623]

Jim Fitzpatrick: A list of checks undertaken at the ports of (a) Holyhead, (b) Pembroke, (c) Fishguard, (d) Liverpool, (e) Heysham and (f) Stranraer since the checking system came into operation and the frequency of checks is at each of those ports has been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Railway Stations: Access

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans (a) his Department and (b) Network Rail has to provide step-free access at each of the former Silverlink rail stations which also have Bakerloo Line platforms. [274708]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport and Network Rail currently have no plans to provide step-free access to the former Silverlink overground platforms at these stations, which comprise Harrow and Wealdstone, Willesden Junction, and Queens Park. Decisions regarding the provision of step-free access to London Underground services at those stations are the responsibility of Transport for London, contact details for which can be found at http://www.tfl.gov.uk/

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many railway stations do not have step-free access. [274709]

Paul Clark: Detailed information about station facilities is held and maintained by train operators and the Association of Train Operating Companies (ATOC) and not by the Department for Transport. However, studies for the Strategic Rail Authority in 2005 showed that approximately 50 per cent. of stations provided step-free access routes to platforms, covering 57 per cent of journeys.

In March 2006 the Railways for All Strategy was launched, which includes £370 million of Access for All funding for station improvements over a 10 year period, in addition to access improvements delivered as part of rail franchises and major investment projects. We anticipate that over 80 per cent. of journeys will start or end at a step-free station by 2015.

Railways: Finance

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how much has been spent on capital funding for (a) railway infrastructure and (b) rail rolling stock from (i) the public purse and (ii) the private sector in each year since 1979; [274480]

(2) what estimate he has made of the financial subsidy to the running cost of railways in the UK paid from the public purse in each year since 1979. [274481]

Paul Clark: The information is not available in the form requested. However, full details of historic Government expenditure on the railway is published in National Rail Trends by the Office of Rail Regulation. Copies are available in the Library of the House and online at

Railways: Torbay

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations his Department has received in the last five years on rail services in Torbay from (a) Torbay local authority and (b) the South West Regional Development Agency. [274409]

Paul Clark: Having searched the Department for Transport's records, one representation was found from Torbay council. This representation was an objection raised during the franchise replacement consultation in 2006, prior to the re-letting of the franchise. The objection related to the proposal therein that the London Waterloo-Torbay service would terminate at Exeter.

A representation was found from the South West Regional Development Agency, also in response to this consultation, offering a number of comments, including an expression of concern at Paignton and Plymouth proposals and their possible impact upon both productivity improvements and economic and housing growth.

Rescue Services

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when the Search and Rescue Strategic Committee last met; and whether it discussed the level of search and rescue cover provided for the South Hams coastline. [274065]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The United Kingdom Search and Rescue Strategic Committee last met on 22 October 2008 but did not discuss the level of search and rescue cover provided for the South Hams coastline.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which (a) individuals and (b) organisations have participated in his Department's consultation exercise on the search and rescue requirements of the southern part of the South Hams coastline. [274064]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport has not yet started a consultation exercise on the maritime search and rescue provision in the southern part of the south-west peninsula.

Road Traffic: Torbay

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment he has made of congestion levels in the Torbay local authority area based on (a) reports from the Government Office South West and (b) the mid-term progress review of the local transport plan; and what support his Department is providing to Torbay local authority to (i) increase bus usage and (ii) reduce traffic congestion. [273974]

Paul Clark: I refer to my answer of 6 May 2009, Official Report, column 196W, regarding the progress review of Torbay council's local transport plan conducted with the Government Office for the South West. The progress review covers congestion levels in the area.

The Department for Transport is providing the following financial support to Torbay council to help improve their local transport infrastructure and public transport services. This funding will help the authority increase bus patronage and reduce traffic congestion.

Financial year 2008-09—DfT funding to Torbay council

Funding stream	Purpose	£000
Integrated Transport (IT) Block	Capital grant to support small transport projects.	1,707
Highways maintenance	Capital grant for road maintenance—e.g. resurfacing, repairs	966
Rural Bus Subsidy Grant[1]	Revenue grant allocation to support rural bus services	17
Concessionary travel	Support for concessionary fares	982

[1] Originally paid by DfT, but since 2008-09 has been paid as an area based grant by DCLG.

This funding is not ring-fenced and Torbay council has discretion to spend allocations in line with their priorities. Revenue expenditure on transport is generally supported through the Department for Communities and Local Government's formula grant.

The Department is also supporting Torbay council in the following ways:

£4.1 million will be provided in 2009-10 for improvements to the Tweenaway Cross junction; assessing a Major Scheme Business Case on funding for the proposed A380 South Devon Link Road, a scheme promoted jointly by Devon and Torbay councils; providing Torbay council with vehicle journey time data to inform their congestion policies;

£589,000 of funding over a number of years through the 2005 Kickstart bus competition to improve bus patronage and encourage modal shift through the South Devon College and Western corridor scheme.

Roads: Accidents

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many road closures due to road traffic accidents there were in each local authority area in the South West in each of the last five years; and for how long the road or roads affected were closed in each case. [273760]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information held by the Highways Agency relating to road closures due to road traffic accidents, is not in the form requested. The Highways Agency and the Department for Transport do not keep data relating to road closures due to road traffic accidents on local roads, and therefore this information will need to be obtained from the local highway authorities.

The first table provides information about closures by police force area, for the motorway network in the South West over a five year period. The second table lists information by route for the All Purpose Trunk Road network in the South West, also over a five year period.

From the data held, the duration of closures ranged from five minutes to 23 hours 58 minutes.

The information available is for road traffic accidents where the police have requested Highways Agency involvement. No data are held for those occurrences where the police have dealt with an accident alone. Also, the data available for All Purpose Trunk Roads west of Exeter are from autumn 2006 onwards, and from July 2005 for other Highways Agency roads in the south west network.

Roads: Repairs and Maintenance

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what procedures govern the retention by local authorities of unspent funds designated for highway and byway maintenance for use on highway and byway projects in subsequent financial years. [273262]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport provides funding to local authorities for highway maintenance by specific grant, contributions to Area Based Grant and through Supported Capital Expenditure Revenue (SCERs). Local authorities receive support for the borrowing costs of SCERs through formula grant. This is an unhypothecated block grant, not designated for any particular service, and can be used to fund highway maintenance projects or byways, for which the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs has policy responsibility. Local authorities also receive unhypothecated income through council tax and other sources such as fees and charges.

The amount of money allocated to highways and byways maintenance is for individual local authorities to decide. Where an authority has not fully claimed a specific grant allocation by the year end, they may apply to the Department for the remaining funding to be transferred to a later year. For other funding there are no central restrictions which govern the retention of funds held if authorities do not spend any budget which they set.

Roads: Safety

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment he has made of levels of road safety in the Torbay local authority area based on (a) reports from the Government office south-west and (b) the mid-term progress review of the local transport plan; and what assistance his Department is providing to Torbay local authority to reduce road casualties in the area. [274292]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I refer the hon. Member to the answer of 6 May 2009, Official Report, column 196W, regarding the progress review of Torbay council's local transport plan conducted with the Government office for the south-west. The progress review covers road safety.

The Department for Transport is providing the following financial support to Torbay council to help them improve their local transport infrastructure and public transport services. This funding will help the authority develop road safety schemes and thereby reduce road casualties.

Financial year 2008-09—DFT funding to Torbay council

Funding stream	Purpose	£000
Integrated Transport (IT) Block	Capital grant to support small transport projects.	1,707
Road safety—capital	Capital support for road safety	28
Road safety—revenue	Revenue support for road safety.	127
Total		1,862

This funding is not ring-fenced and Torbay council has discretion to spend allocations in line with their priorities. Revenue expenditure on transport is generally supported through the Department for Communities and Local Government's formula grant.

The Department also contributes to the sharing of information and good practice via a group of local authority officers in the south-west region. Nationally it is sponsoring a number of demonstration and partnership projects with other local authorities to assist local authorities as a whole in their continued work to reduce road casualties.

Schools: Transport

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the proportion of children travelling to school by car in each local authority area in the South West in the latest period for which figures are available. [274407]

Paul Clark: Data collected by schools in the South West area via the School Census in January 2008 showed the following percentage of children travelled to school by car in each local authority area:

Local authority	Travelling by car	Car sharing	Percentage Total trips by car[1]
Bath and North East Somerset	28.9	2.1	31.0
Bournemouth	39.0	1.6	40.6
Bristol City	25.5	3.9	29.4
Cornwall	36.3	2.0	38.2
Devon	26.2	2.5	28.8
Dorset	32.3	3.1	35.4
Gloucestershire	29.3	4.6	33.8
North Somerset	30.5	4.1	34.6
Plymouth	25.8	2.4	28.2
Poole	34.3	3.1	37.4
Somerset	27.2	3.0	30.2
South Gloucestershire	26.7	3.8	30.5
Swindon	24.1	2.6	26.7
Torbay	32.6	2.9	35.5
Wiltshire	28.4	4.0	32.4

[1] Total may not appear to be the sum of the component parts because percentages have been rounded to the nearest decimal place.

The Government want as many children as possible to walk, cycle or use public transport to travel to school, that is why, in 2003, it launched the Travelling to School project setting out how it wants all schools in England to develop a school travel plan in order to reduce car use for journey to school and allow many more children to take regular exercise. By 2010 more than £140 million will have been committed to support the project through local authority school travel advisers and capital grants to help schools implement their travel plans.

Speed Limits

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the likely effect on the number of road deaths and injuries of raising the speed limit for light goods vehicles on single carriageway A roads by 10 miles per hour. [274353]

Jim Fitzpatrick: No such estimate has been made. We have no plans to raise the national speed limits for light goods vehicles.

Transport: Coventry

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent representations he has received on (a) rail, (b) road and (c) bicycle transport in Coventry. [274378]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport received advice in February 2009 from the west midlands region on its transport priorities in the period up to 2018-19 as part of its regional funding advice to Government. This includes proposals for investment in Coventry through schemes such as a new public transport interchange at Coventry railway station (Connecting Coventry), a Bus Rapid Transit System (SPRINT) and a Nuneaton to Coventry rail line upgrade (NUCKLE). Furthermore, the Highways Agency has prioritised a scheme within the regional funding advice to improve the A45/A46 at Tollbar End, in Coventry.

We expect to be in a position to respond to this advice by the summer.

Also, departmental officials are due to meet with representatives from Coventry city council on their proposed NUCKLE rail upgrade scheme later this month.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Cabinet: Glasgow

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Leader of the House how many (a) special advisers and (b) officials accompanied her to Glasgow for the Cabinet meeting on 16 April 2009. [273901]

Chris Bryant: One official accompanied my right hon. and learned Friend to Glasgow for the Cabinet meeting on 16 April 2009.

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Leader of the House what car journeys she took in attending the Cabinet meeting in Glasgow on 16 April 2009. [273902]

Chris Bryant: A Government car was used by my right hon. and learned Friend to travel to and from the airport in both London and Glasgow.

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Leader of the House how much expenditure was incurred by her Office in respect of the Cabinet meeting in Glasgow on 16 April 2009. [273903]

Chris Bryant: The total expenditure incurred by the Office of the Leader of the House of Commons in respect of the Cabinet meeting in Glasgow on 16 April 2009 was £1,115.97.

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Leader of the House what expenditure on (a) travel, (b) accommodation and (c) food (i) she and (ii) officials in her Office incurred in connection with the Cabinet meeting in Glasgow on 16 April 2009. [273904]

Chris Bryant: The total cost of travel incurred by my right hon. and learned Friend and one official in connection with the Cabinet meeting in Glasgow on 16 April 2009 was £1,115.97. My right hon. Friend and the accompanying official incurred no expenditure on accommodation and food.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Anti-Semitism

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what records his Department holds on anti-Semitism in pre-war Nazi Germany which remain closed to the public; and if he will make a statement. [274026]

Caroline Flint: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office do not hold any records on anti-Semitism in Germany before World War II. We have released all such documents to the Public Records Office.

Burma: USA

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions his Department has had with the US Administration on its review of US policy on Burma. [275328]

Bill Rammell: I discussed Burma with US Administration officials and members of Congress when I visited Washington from 3-5 May 2009. We remain in close contact with our US colleagues about the situation in Burma at all levels. We are working with them to ensure that collective international pressure is brought onto the regime to engage with the UN Good Offices mission and to instigate genuine political reforms. We continue to share concerns for the prospects of inclusive elections in 2010 and the grave humanitarian situation. The US Administration have not as yet concluded the work that is under way.

China: Asylum

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has had recent discussions with his Chinese counterpart on the recent deportation from China of refugees from North Korea. [274321]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 11 May 2009]: We continue to urge China to observe its obligations under the 1951 convention on the status of refugees and to allow the UN High Commissioner for Refugees access to the China/Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK) border region. This subject was raised with the Chinese at the UK-China Human Rights Dialogue in January 2009. We urged China not to return those people crossing the border from DPRK to China. China continues to maintain the position that cases are dealt with in line with domestic and international law.

China: Human Rights

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will instruct diplomats from the UK mission in Beijing to visit in prison in China those Tibetans sentenced to death for alleged arson attacks in Lhasa in March 2008. [273789]

Bill Rammell: We do not intend to make a request to visit these prisoners, however we do remain concerned about their convictions. The UK is opposed to the death penalty in principle, and as a consequence, working closely with our EU counterparts, we are urging the Chinese authorities not to carry out the sentences imposed on those convicted.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the Government of China during the EU-China Human Rights Dialogue in mid-May on the recent death sentencing of six Tibetans for alleged arson attacks in Lhasa in March 2008. [273790]

Bill Rammell: The cases of the Tibetans facing the death penalty will be raised at the EU-China Human Rights Dialogue.

Council of Europe

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what directions he gave to the UK Permanent Representative to the Council of Europe on voting in the meeting of Ministers' Deputies on the transmission to the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe of the list of candidates for the post of Secretary General of the Council of Europe. [273137]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 7 May 2009]: In line with our objectives on international institutional reform we have consistently supported a robust, fair and open selection process for the next Secretary General of the Council of Europe. The UK Permanent Representative was therefore instructed to support the shortlisting of candidates on the basis of a rigorous assessment against the agreed list of criteria and competences for the post.

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the UK Permanent Representative to the Council of Europe on the short-listing of candidates for the post of Secretary General of the Council of Europe since the resolution of the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe on the electoral process for the Secretary General adopted on 29 April 2009; what the UK's position at the meeting of the Committee of Ministers in Madrid on 12 May 2009 will be; and if he will make a statement. [273138]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 7 May 2009]: We have considered carefully Resolution 1665 (2009) of the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe (PACE) adopted on 29 April 2009. The UK stands by the draft resolution agreed by Ministers' Deputies on 23 April 2009 which will be formally adopted at the ministerial meeting in Madrid on 12 May 2009 nominating two of the four proposed candidates to PACE for election of the next Secretary General.

Mr. Walter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he had with the right hon. Member for Kingston upon Hull East (Mr. Prescott) in his capacity as leader of the UK delegation to the Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe, before directing the UK Permanent Representative to the Council of Europe on the position to be taken in the meeting of Ministers' Deputies on the transmission to the Parliamentary Assembly of the list of candidates for the post of Secretary General of the Council of Europe. [273140]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 7 May 2009]: A planned consultation on this issue between the Parliamentary Assembly and the Committee of Ministers took place in Strasbourg on 29 April 2009. My right hon. Friend the Member for Kingston upon Hull, East (Mr. Prescott) and the UK Permanent Representative participated actively.

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he instructed the UK Permanent Representative to the Council of Europe to vote for a particular candidate for the post of Secretary-General of the Council of Europe. [273681]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 7 May 2009]: Following a rigorous assessment of the candidates against the agreed list of criteria and competences the UK Permanent Representation was instructed on how to vote on each of the four proposed candidates.

EU Battlegroups

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made on implementation of the EU Atalanta mission; and if he will make a statement. [273843]

Caroline Flint: Operation Atalanta is achieving highly positive results in providing protection to World Food Programme and other vulnerable shipping. It has delivered a significant reduction in the number of successful attacks in the Internationally Recognised Transit Corridor in the Gulf of Aden through close co-operation with the shipping industry and close co-ordination with other military operations in the region. While successful pirate attacks continue, these are either overwhelmingly against shipping which is not following the EU's operations advice and agreed best practice, or is in the Somali Basin further south where shipping is much more at risk given the size of the area for the military operations to cover: the military operations are rightly concentrated further north, given the much greater importance of the Gulf of Aden trade artery.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much has been spent on UK involvement in the EU Atalanta mission. [273845]

Caroline Flint: The estimated common cost of the EU operation is €8.3 million, 17 per cent. of which is met by the UK. This amounts to £1.26 million. Other costs which include running costs of ships and aircraft are met by the contributing countries nationally.

European External Action Service

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he plans to second any staff of his Department to the proposed European external action service. [273298]

Caroline Flint: Were the Lisbon Treaty to enter into force, and EU member states to take a decision to establish the European external action service, then we would plan to second Foreign and Commonwealth Office staff to it.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his European counterparts on the proposed European external action service. [273321]

Caroline Flint: I have had no recent discussions with my EU counterparts about the proposed European external action service (EEAS). This service could only be established were the Lisbon treaty to come into force and after a unanimous decision by EU member states to do so.

European Union

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what dates he had (a) discussions and (b) meetings with the European Union Special Representative for the South Caucasus on the situation in the region in the last 12 months. [274804]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 12 May 2009]: There has been no ministerial contact with the EU Special Representative for the South Caucasus (EUSR) in the last 12 months. However, senior officials have continued to meet the EUSR on a regular basis.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what dates he had (a) discussions and (b) meetings with the European Union Special Representative for the Middle East peace process on the status of the process in the last 12 months. [274807]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 12 May 2009]: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and the EU Special Representative for the Middle East peace process have shared their views on a number of occasions in the last 12 months. This includes at General Affairs and External Relations Council (GAERC) and Gymnich meetings.

India: Religious Freedom

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will encourage the Indian Government to implement the recommendations of UN Special Rapporteur on freedom of religion or belief in her report of her 2008 mission to India. [274096]

Bill Rammell: The UK continues to work through the EU on a number of human rights issues as part of a continuing EU-India Human Rights Dialogue. The recommendations of the UN Special Rapporteur on freedom of religion or belief were identified by EU colleagues as a subject for discussion at the EU-India Human Rights Dialogue meeting in February 2009. It was agreed by both sides that there would be continued exchanges about discrimination, including on religious grounds. The recommendations will be a useful point of reference for future engagement with India on human rights issues.

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on levels of religiously-motivated violence in India in 2008; and if he will make a statement. [274097]

Bill Rammell: We have received reports of communal violence in Orissa and Karnataka where Hindu extremists waged a campaign of violence against Christians in August and September 2008. At about the same time in Assam, violent clashes occurred between Bodo tribes and Muslims; in Maharastra, between Hindus and Muslims and in Andra Pradesh, between Hindus and Muslims.

We have raised the issue of freedom of religion with the Indian authorities on several occasions, most recently at the EU-India Human Rights Dialogue which took place on 27 February 2009 in New Delhi.

Mauritania: Elections

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs for what reasons the (a) EU and (b) UK decided not to send observers to the presidential elections in Mauritania. [275098]

Bill Rammell: The EU was invited by the Mauritanian junta to send an Election Observation Mission (EOM) to monitor the proposed 6 June 2009 elections in Mauritania. The EU agreed to suspend non-humanitarian assistance to Mauritania under Article 96 of the Cotonou Agreement on 2 April 2009 because of insufficient progress towards the restoration of democratic rule, following the 6 August 2008 coup. The request by the Mauritanian coup leaders for an EU EOM was declined on the grounds that the elections are currently envisaged not to be representative, free or fair. There are a number of political parties boycotting the elections on this basis.

The UK has not been invited to send any observers to the presidential elections.

Mikhail Khodorkovsky

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with (a) his Russian counterpart and (b) HM Ambassador in Moscow on the imprisonment of Mikhail Khodorkovsky. [274676]

Caroline Flint: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not specifically raised Mikhail Khodorkovsky's situation in his recent conversations with Foreign Minister Lavrov. However, we have made clear our concerns about the treatment of Mr. Khodorkovsky, and others who have been arrested or prosecuted in the Yukos affair, both bilaterally and through the EU. The issue was raised bilaterally at the UK-Russia human rights consultations in January 2009 in Moscow. Our concerns relate to due process and fair treatment in the Yukos cases, and they include the arbitrary application of the rule of law, access to lawyers and medical care, conditions of detention and the alleged harassment of defence teams and witnesses.

Our embassy in Moscow is watching current developments in Mr. Khodorkovsky's case closely, and is participating in trial monitoring with EU partners and the US. We will continue to follow the progress of Mr. Khodorkovsky's case.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions (a) he and (b) his officials have had with their counterparts in the (i) European Union and (ii) UN Security Council on efforts to secure the release of kidnapped Israeli soldier Corporal Shalit. [275402]

Bill Rammell: We along with the EU have made our position clear ever since the kidnapping of Gilad Shalit, and we continue to call for his immediate, unconditional, and safe release. The EU High Representative for the Common Foreign and Security Policy, Javier Solana, made this clear in his press statement on the Gaza crisis in January 2009, and my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary last reiterated this message during his intervention at the UN Security Council on 11 May 2009.

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with representatives of the Israeli government on the kidnapped Israeli soldier, Corporal Shalit. [275403]

Bill Rammell: The UK continues to call for the immediate, unconditional, and safe release of Gilad Shalit, in public and in private, including in our discussions with the Israeli Government. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary reiterated this most recently in his statement to the UN Security Council on 11 May 2009.

Papua: Human Rights

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Indonesian authorities on allegations of human rights abuses in West Papua. [275130]

Bill Rammell: I raised UK concerns with the situation in Papua and West Papua provinces in discussions with the Indonesian Foreign Minister, Hassan Wirajuda, on 10 February 2009. I stressed that greater transparency was an important element to building trust and ensuring greater peace and prosperity for the region. Embassy officials continue to monitor the situation closely and to discuss the human rights situation with Indonesian Government officials—most recently on 6 May 2009—as well as civil society and community representatives from the Papuan provinces.

Papua: International Red Cross

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the government of Indonesia on its recent decision to expel the International Committee of the Red Cross from West Papua. [275129]

Bill Rammell: We have sought clarification of the reports regarding the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and their presence in West Papua from the Government of Indonesia. Our embassy have been told that the ICRC field office in Papua has been closed and that the status agreements governing the ICRC's activities in Indonesia need to be renegotiated. We hope that this can be concluded speedily. The government of Indonesia told us that ICRC officials may still visit Papua. Our embassy are also in touch with ICRC officials in Indonesia and will continue to monitor the situation closely. We are meeting with the Indonesian ambassador in London to register our concerns. I discussed access to Papua and West Papua provinces with Indonesia's Foreign Minister, Hassan Wirajuda, most recently on 10 February 2009 in Jakarta.

Rizana Nafeek

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the answer of 14 January 2008, Official Report, column 1855W, on Rizana Nafeek, if he will direct HM Ambassador to Saudi Arabia to report on Rizana Nafeek; and if he will make a statement. [273766]

Bill Rammell: Ms Nafeek is currently held in a prison north, of Riyadh. The appeal against her conviction is outstanding. The Sri Lankan embassy in Riyadh have regular consular access. The Saudi Human Rights Commission are aware of Ms Nafeek's case. The Government oppose the death penalty in all cases. We are particularly opposed to the execution of people who are convicted of crimes committed when they were minors. In February 2009 the UK recommended that Saudi Arabia set an age of legal majority at 18 during the Universal Periodic Review of Saudi Arabia in Geneva. This recommendation was repeated by my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary to the Saudi Foreign Minister during his visit to Riyadh in April 2009.

Russia: Nuclear Power Stations

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of proposals by the Russian Government to build and operate nuclear power stations in Arctic waters. [274776]

Caroline Flint: We have received no formal approach by the Russian Government about proposals to build and operate nuclear power stations in Arctic Waters.

Sri Lanka: Armed Conflict

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the Government of Sri Lanka on allegations of human rights abuses in the conflict in that country. [275081]

Bill Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary visited Sri Lanka on 29 April 2009. Most recently he spoke to Sri Lankan Foreign Minister Bogllogama on 10 May 2009 to express our concerns about the situation in Sri Lanka.

The Foreign Secretary has consistently pressed the Sri Lankan Government to abide by its obligations under international humanitarian law and to take all possible steps to safeguard civilian lives, including allowing UN and international aid agencies to deliver food, water and medicine into the conflict zone and to allow civilians allowed to move to safety. It is vital that the conditions for those civilians in the IDP camps meet international standards.

We have made clear to the Sri Lankan Government the need to guarantee press freedoms. Given the restrictions placed on the media and non-governmental organisations, it has been difficult to verify reports and accusations by both sides of the conflict. The Foreign Secretary has also expressed the need for transparency.

Tibet: Human Rights

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the Government of China on human rights in Tibet. [273423]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 7 May 2009]: We continue to have concerns about the human rights of Tibetans both in Tibet and the surrounding regions. Most recently my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister raised our concerns on the situation in Tibet with both Chinese President Hu Jintao and Premier Wen Jiabao, urging the Chinese authorities to resume their discussions with the Dalai Lama's envoys without delay.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary also raised Tibet with Foreign Minister Yang Jiechi at the UK-China Summit in February 2009.

I made the same points to the Chinese ambassador when we met on 25 March 2009. The UK also raised concerns about human rights of Tibetans during China's appearance before the Universal Periodic Review in Geneva on 9 February 2009.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Carbon Sequestration

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent assessment he has made of progress in the development of the technology to enable the burial of carbon captured from coal-fired power stations under the North Sea; and what his most recent estimate is of the cost of such operations. [273199]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State made an oral statement to the House on proposals for carbon, capture and storage (CCS) policy on 23 April 2009, Official Report, column 345. These proposals build on previous policy statements and are underpinned by a number of studies and reports, including assessments of development status of CCS:

Review on Carbon Dioxide Capture and Storage (CCS), 2003:

http://www.berr.gov.uk/files/file21887.pdf

http://www.berr.gov.uk/files/file35684.pdf

IEA Energy Technologies Perspectives:

http://www.iea.org/Textbase/techno/etp/index.asp

European Technology Platform for Zero Emission Fossil Fuel Plans - CO_2 Capture and Storage (CCS) Matrix of Technologies

Most recently, DECC's Advisory Committee on Carbon Abatement Technologies (ACCAT) has set out its views in its advisory document on 'Accelerating the Deployment of Carbon Abatement Technologies with special focus on Carbon Capture and Storage, 2009':

These reports all indicate that CCS has reached the stage of development at which it needs to be demonstrated at full-scale. It is for this reason that the Government have decided to support up to four such demonstration projects in the UK.

The CAT strategy (2005) compared estimates of the cost of carbon abated with CCS and alternative low carbon power generation technologies. This showed a wide possible range because the cost of CCS is sensitive to the cost of building CCS, its operational performance and the relative cost of coal compared to other fuels. It would not be fruitful to produce new estimates until these uncertainties have been reduced by full-scale CCS demonstration projects.

Departmental ICT

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the level of carbon dioxide emissions from ICT systems operated by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [273549]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department currently uses IT systems provided by the Department of Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform and Department for the Environment Food and Rural Affairs under IT services contracts with Fujitsu and IBM respectively. No separate estimate has been made for the levels of carbon dioxide specific to my Department. However, my Department is engaging with the Carbon Trust to understand the emissions that will be generated by the single IT system my Department plans on adopting from the summer of this year.

Low Carbon Buildings Programme

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change pursuant to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Wealden (Charles Hendry), of 26 March 2009, Official Report, column 708W, on the Low Carbon Buildings Programme, what estimate he has made of the amount of funding requested through those eligible grant applications for solar photovoltaic technology under the Low Carbon Buildings Programme Phase 2 which have been put on hold. [270714]

Mr. Mike O'Brien [holding answer 27 April 2009]: The Low Carbon Buildings Programme has seen significant levels of applications for solar PV technology. Since December 2008, £9 million has been reallocated within the programme to support solar PV bringing the total grant commitment to £26.5 million.

Following the Budget announcement, we have allocated immediately an additional £5 million for solar PV Phase 2 to be able to deal with the majority of projects which were put on hold.

Nuclear Power: Safety

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what arrangements have been put in place for nuclear safety policy and its implementation at nuclear installations following the disbanding of the Nuclear Safety Advisory Committee. [273894]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: There has been no change to the arrangements for regulating nuclear safety at nuclear installations. The Health and Safety Executive (HSE) continues to regulate nuclear installations to the highest standards of safety and to provide expert advice on these matters to Government.

The Nuclear Safety Advisory Committee was one of several HSE advisory committees. It reached the end of its latest term of office in October 2008. The HSE Board decided to defer any decisions on reconstituting the Committee pending the outcome of various reviews. This included taking account of the recommendations, published in January 2009, of Dr. Tim Stone's review of nuclear regulatory arrangements.

One of Dr. Stone's recommendations accepted by the Government was to restructure the HSE's Nuclear Directorate through legislation. The future make up of any advisory body needs to follow decisions on these arrangements. Meanwhile, in addition to its own experts, the HSE is able to call on many external sources of advice on nuclear safety.

Sellafield: Safety

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what investigation his Department has undertaken of the coolant incident that occurred at the high-activity liquid radioactive waste storage tanks at Sellafield on 1-2 April; when he was first informed of the incident; and when notification of the incident was made to (a) Euratom safety authorities and (b) the International Atomic Energy Agency. [271813]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: This incident was notified to the Health and Safety Executive, the independent nuclear safety regulator, on 1 April and to officials in my Department on 2 April. The Executive is currently conducting a full and formal investigation to establish the facts of the incident, which will be used to inform the need for regulatory enforcement action. The incident was not notified to Euratom or to the International Atomic Energy Agency as there is no requirement to do so for incidents of this kind.

Wind Power

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what percentage of the electricity consumed in England and Wales was generated by wind farms in 2008; and if he will make a statement. [275032]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The latest available data for electricity consumption and wind generation in England and Wales are for 2007. Data for 2008 will be available in September 2009. As shown in the following table, wind generation accounted for 0.7 per cent. of electricity consumption in England and Wales in 2007.

	Electricity consumption (GWh)	Wind generation (GWh)	Wind generation as a percentage of electricity consumption
England	289,790	1,408.4	0.5
Wales	19,421	864.0	4.5
England and Wales	309,211	2,272.4	0.7

HEALTH

Care Homes

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent from the public purse on the (a) operation and (b) refurbishment of care homes in the latest period for which figures are available. [273695]

Phil Hope: The information is not collected centrally in the format requested. No estimate has been made.

Compulsorily Detained Mental Patients

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many people diagnosed with schizophrenia are being held in detention in secure hospitals (a) nationally and (b) in Leicester; [275125]

(2) how many people were diagnosed with schizophrenia (a) nationally and (b) in Leicester in each of the last three years; [275135]

(3) how many people are being held in detention in secure hospitals for mental health reasons (a) nationally and (b) in Leicester. [275136]

Phil Hope: Information on the number of people held in secure hospitals due to a diagnosis of schizophrenia, or for other mental health reasons is not collected centrally.

Information is collected on the average daily number of psychiatric beds in national health service units in England in 2007-08 within high, medium and some low secure units and of the average daily occupancy level and is shown in the table.

Secure services in Leicester are provided by Leicestershire Partnerships NHS Trust. Information is also available on the number of secure service beds within Leicestershire Partnerships NHS Trust, but not occupancy levels, and this is also shown in the table. These figures show only NHS beds and not those commissioned by the NHS from independent sector providers.

2007-08: Average daily number of mental health secure unit beds in NHS units in England; national average daily occupancy levels in secure unit beds; and average daily number of mental health secure unit beds in NHS units in Leicestershire Partnerships NHS Trust: data on average daily occupancy levels in secure unit beds is not collected at trust level

Average daily number of Secure Unit beds in England	3,159
Average daily Secure Unit beds occupancy in England	2,885
Average daily number of Secure Unit beds in Leicestershire Partnerships NHS Trust	6
Average daily Secure Unit beds occupancy in Leicestershire Partnerships NHS Trust	n/a

Departmental Complaints

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what procedure his Department follows for dealing with complaints received (a) by e-mail, (b) by post, (c) by telephone and (d) via his Department's website. [274523]

Mr. Bradshaw: Individuals who wish to make a complaint about the Department or its members of staff may contact the Department in any form they wish. However all complaints are treated the same way, no matter how they are received.

Should an individual wish to make a formal complaint, he or she may do so to the Department's Customer Service Centre. Each complaint is investigated thoroughly, and if upheld, recommendations are made internally to ensure that future service is improved. Wherever possible, the Department aims to respond to complainants within 20 working days.

Details of how to make a complaint to the Department can be found on the Department's website.

If a complainant is unhappy with the Department's response they may ask their Member of Parliament to request that the Parliamentary and Health Service Ombudsman investigates the complaint and the way it was handled. The Ombudsman carries out independent investigations into complaints about Government Departments.

Departmental Pay

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much members of his departmental board claimed in expenses in each financial year between 2004-05 and 2007-08. [272779]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department is committed to being open about its use of expenses. Recent answers to parliamentary questions and freedom of information requests have not only covered the expenses directly claimed but also expenses covered by centrally managed contracts, for example train and hotel bookings. These answers have included expenses data at an aggregate level or for a handful of individuals based on recent data. To ensure consistency we would need to approach several suppliers, some who no longer hold the contracts to provide the data and have no obligation to provide the information.

There is no statutory requirement to collect and report on this data in the format requested and to provide an answer to this question would require manual interrogation of a finance system, which was replaced in July 2008 by a new departmental accounting system. Since 2004-05, there have been 33 members of the board. Therefore, the Department cannot provide an answer as to do so would be at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reason the NHS capital budget for 2009-10 has been reduced by £100 million from the plans set out in the 2008 pre-Budget report. [273623]

Mr. Bradshaw: The NHS capital budget in 2009-10 is unchanged between pre-Budget report 2008 (£5.4 billion, Table B18, page 214), and Budget 2009 (£5.4 billion, Table C11, page 241).

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to Table 6.1 of the Budget Report 2009, (1) how much each organisation for which his Department has responsibility will contribute to the £10.5 billion in savings proposed in relation to the new 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review target; [273625]

(2) how his Department plans to release (a) £500 million through reductions in average length of stay in hospitals and (b) £500 million through improved capability and planning capacity in commissioning; whether primary care trust allocations for 2009-10 and 2010-11 are to remain unchanged; and if he will make a statement; [273626]

(3) what (a) cashable and (b) non-cashable savings his Department plans to make to meet the £10.5 billion savings proposed over the period covered by the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review; and in which year each saving is to be made. [273627]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not set savings targets for individual national health service organisations. All organisations will be expected to contribute to the savings and, where appropriate, this is reflected when setting allocations from the Department to NHS and other organisations and when setting the payment by results tariff prices that NHS providers receive for providing NHS services.

Table 6.1 in the Budget report 2009 includes examples of how the Department intends to meet its new savings target of £10.5 billion per year by 2010-11. Further specific details are set out publicly in the Department's Value for Money Delivery Agreement and the Government's 2009 Value for Money Update.

There is scope for significant savings through reductions in average length of stay through movement towards the performance of the best organisations, including bearing down on clinical intervention thresholds that appear to be inappropriate when compared to clinical best practice.

The World Class Commissioning Programme has supported primary care trusts in focusing their energy towards commissioning for long-term health gain for their local communities. We will build on this by introducing a new efficiency competency into the assurance framework in 2009-10. This will ensure that commissioners are equipped with the capability and planning capacity to drive transformations in both the quality of care and the efficiency of services.

HM Treasury guidance requires that all value for money savings declared under the 2007 comprehensive spending review (CSR) programme are cash-releasing. There are no interim targets but the Department report publicly on progress towards the 2010-11 target in its annual autumn performance report and departmental report. The Department's approach to delivering savings in the 2007 CSR period is set out in its Value for Money Delivery Agreement and the Government's 2009 Value for Money Update.

Primary care trust allocations for 2009-10 and 2010-11, announced in December 2008, are unchanged.

Departmental Training

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department has spent on IT training for its staff in each of the last five years. [274217]

Mr. Bradshaw: Spending on information technology (IT) training by the Department over the last five years is as follows:

2004-05	427,540
2005-06	435,712
2006-07	442,260
2007-08	456,300
2008-09	461,110

The information is based on the provision of IT training and guidance delivered by the in-house training team. It does not include information about courses run and paid for locally within Departmental directorates nor for training delivered during the implementation of new projects, neither of which is held centrally, and would incur disproportionate costs to establish.

Health Services: Crosby

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding his Department provided for (a) primary care and (b) other health services in Crosby constituency in each of the last five years; and what infrastructural improvements have been made to healthcare facilities in the constituency in that time. [273607]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information is not available in the format requested. However, the Crosby constituency is served by the Sefton Primary Care Trust (PCT). The following table shows the revenue allocations for Sefton PCT for each of the last five years.

	Sefton PCT revenue allocations (£ million)
2005-06	330.5
2006-07	389.7
2007-08	424.4
2008-09	447.6

Note:
Sefton PCT was formed on 1 October 2006 following the merger of South Sefton and Southport and Formby PCTs. Allocations in 2004-05 to 2007-08 were made to the former 303 PCTs. The table shows estimates for the current configuration of 152 PCTs. The scope of services covered by allocations has increased over time. In particular, before 2006-07 most primary medical services funding was not included in PCT allocations.

There is currently one general practitioner (GP)-led health centre open in Sefton PCT, as well as two additional GP practices commissioned as part of the Equitable Access to Primary Care initiative. These services opened to patients in April 2009.

It is the responsibility of PCTs to plan, develop and improve health services according to the needs of their local populations. The Department does not collect information on what infrastructural improvements have been made to health care facilities by particular PCTs. This information should be obtained from the PCT directly.

Hospitals: Mobile Telephones

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which 20 hospitals were asked to provide copies of their policies governing the use of mobile telephones in hospitals as part of the consultation on the liberalisation of mobile telephone use. [275503]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information was collected on mobile phone usage policies from national health service trusts. This information helped inform the Department's publication—Using mobile phones in NHS hospitals January 2009.

The information requested is as follows.

Barking, Havering and Redbridge Hospitals NHS Trust;
Cheshire and Wirral Partnership NHS Trust;
Dartford and Gravesham NHS Trust;
East Sussex hospitals NHS Trust;
Gloucestershire Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust;
Homerton University Hospital NHS Foundation Trust;
Mid Cheshire Hospitals NHS Trust;
Newcastle, North Tyneside and Northumberland Mental Health NHS Trust;
Norfolk and Norwich University Hospital NHS Trust;
North Tees and Hartlepool NHS Foundation Trust;
Northumbria Healthcare NHS Foundation Trust;
Poole Hospital NHS Trust;
Portsmouth City NHS Teaching Primary Care Trust;
Royal Free Hampstead NHS Trust;
South Tees Hospitals NHS Trust;
Sheffield Teaching Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust;
South London and Maudsley NHS Foundation Trust;
The Royal Surrey County Hospital NHS Trust; University Hospital Birmingham NHS Foundation Trust; and West Suffolk Hospitals NHS Trust.

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which organisations (a) were invited to participate in and (b) responded to the consultation on liberalisation of mobile telephone use in hospitals. [275504]

Mr. Bradshaw: A wide range of organisations was consulted to inform the Department's new mobile phone usage guidance. This was done in order to address the legal, safety, privacy and dignity issues arising from mobile phone use in hospitals. Each national health service trust has responsibility for formulating its own mobile phone usage policy, after conducting a full risk assessment, as stated in the Department's publication—Using mobile phones in NHS hospitals January 2009.

The information requested is as follows.

The Department of Health's Legal Services;
National Health Service Trusts;
Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency;
National Patient Safety Agency;
Chief Nursing Office;
European Healthcare Organisations; and Hospital Bedside Television and Telephones providers.

Industrial Health and Safety

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department spent on compliance with requirements of health and safety at work legislation in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274541]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department has a health and safety policy, which recognises its responsibilities, under the Health and Safety at Work etc. Act 1974. We also employ a health and safety policy manager and secure specialist advice through our facilities management supplier, which enables us to ensure compliance.

We cannot separately identify those costs associated solely with compliance in these roles nor for individual maintenance or improvement work as legislative compliance is an integral requirement.

We can separately identify the costs incurred in undertaking workstation assessments, fire warden and manual handling training for 2008-09, because we procured these separately, and those costs amounted to £17,598 in 2008-09.

Lincolnshire Teaching Primary Care Trust

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether Lincolnshire Primary Care Trust has made discretionary dispensations in the last 12 months. [274046]

Mr. Bradshaw: This information requested is not held centrally. The Department does not break down primary care trust (PCT) allocations by policies, at either national or local level. It is for PCTs to decide their priorities for investment taking into account both local priorities and the national health service operating framework. This information can be obtained by contacting Lincolnshire Teaching PCT directly.

Mental Health Services: Ex-servicemen

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the cost to the NHS of treatment of veterans with psychological wounding. [275183]

Phil Hope: It is not possible to quantify the costs of providing psychological help to veterans because they are not separately identified as such from the rest of the population, nor do they receive treatment in distinct facilities.

Mid Staffordshire NHS Foundation Trust

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent guidance his Department has issued to Mid-Staffordshire NHS Foundation Trust on the involvement of (a) patients and (b) the public in the preparation of its action plan; and if he will make a statement. [274914]

Mr. Bradshaw: The trust's board is responsible for developing and implementing an action plan to address the issues raised by the Healthcare Commission and subsequently in the reports from Professor Sir George Alberti and Doctor David Colin-Thome. In doing this, the board will work closely with the trust's members and governors, who represent the needs and wishes of their local communities.

NHS: Equality

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding his Department has allocated to Pacesetters programmes in each primary care trust for 2009-10; and if he will make a statement. [273386]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department runs the Pacesetters programme in conjunction with six strategic health authorities (SHAs). The programme is designed to improve the equality performance of the national health service through a range of innovative projects based within trusts located within these SHAs. In total 34 trusts are participating in Pacesetters. These projects are being evaluated independently, and good practice and learning will be disseminated widely throughout the NHS. The Department provides funding and other support to the SHAs, and intends to do so in 2009-10. Final levels of funding in the current financial year have yet to be determined. Once the funding is delivered to the SHAs, in large part it is the responsibility of the SHAs to determine the allocations to individual trusts.

Nutrition

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what measures are in place to ensure that the nutrition action plan is effectively communicated to (a) healthcare and (b) social care providers. [274362]

Phil Hope: The joint 'Nutrition Action Plan' from the Department of Health and Nutrition Summit stakeholders was published on 30 October 2007. A press release was issued giving details of the Plan and the Plan was placed on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_079931

A copy has been placed in the Library.

A delivery board of key stakeholders was set up to oversee implementation of the five priority areas identified in the nutrition action plan. The board are due to submit its final report in the summer, setting out the progress made and the issues that still need to be addressed.

The Department and 28 stakeholder organisations involved in developing the plan have pledged to use their own communications mechanisms, including conferences, events, newsletters and guidance to ensure that the messages and best practice reach the widest possible health and social care audiences.

Nutrition: Children

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health who is responsible for the development of policy on nutrition for children between the ages of one and three years; and what guidance on nutrition for such children the Government provide. [274592]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department is responsible for the development of policy on nutrition for children between the ages of one and three years. This is evidence based, drawing on the recommendations from the Committee on Medical Aspects of Food Policy (COMA). Also, the Scientific Advisory Committee on Nutrition (SACN) is currently reviewing evidence on the influence of maternal, foetal and child nutrition status, including growth and development in utero and early childhood, on the development of disease later in life. In taking this work forward, the Committee is considering the evidence around maternal, fetal and early life factors, including infant diet and growth. SACN aims to publish their final report later this year.

As part of its on going work, the Committee's Sub-group on Maternal and Child Nutrition is also planning to update the COMA report Weaning and The Weaning Diet.

Primary Healthcare: Finance

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of the primary care provided by the NHS in each of the last five years in England was publicly funded. [274367]

Mr. Bradshaw: All primary medical care provided by the national health service in the last five years is publicly funded.

While the major proportion of the cost of NHS primary dental care is publicly funded from resources allocated to the NHS, an element of gross costs is also met from NHS dental charges by patients who are not otherwise eligible for free treatment or remission of charges. The proportion of gross costs met from dental charges is set out in the following table:

	Percentage proportion of gross cost of NHS primary dental services met from NHS dental charges
2004-05	23.9
2005-06	18.6
2007-08	22.6

All NHS primary eye services are publicly funded from NHS resources; eligibility for NHS sight tests and optical vouchers is restricted to certain population groups, mainly children, adults on low incomes and, in the case of sight tests, those aged 60 and over.

Publications

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much (a) his Department and (b) its Executive agencies spent on the preparation of articles for submission to healthcare publications and journals in the last six months. [272406]

Mr. Bradshaw: To identify expenditure on the preparation of all articles for submission to health care publications and journals in the last six months would incur disproportionate costs.

There have been 19 advertorials (paid-for articles) in health care publications and journals funded in whole or in part by the Department's Communications Directorate in the last six months.

This corrects the answer given to the hon. Member on 29 April 2009, Official Report, column 1314W, which stated that 19 advertorials had been funded in whole or in part by the Department's Communications Directorate over a two-year period.

£19,500 was spent on preparation of these 19 advertorials. Additional associated expenditure was included within agency fees spanning publicity activity for the related publicity campaigns, and to extract this information would incur disproportionate costs.

WALES

Armed Forces Day

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what steps his Department plans to take to mark Armed Forces Day on 27 June 2009. [271077]

Mr. David: The Secretary of State and I strongly support Armed Forces Day and efforts made to recognise the contribution of our service men and women. We will be marking the day by events in Wales.

In addition to this I have written to the chief executives of all councils in Wales to encourage them to take part in the raising of the special Armed Forces Day flags on 22 June.

Cardiff

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many concerts he has attended at the Millennium Stadium in an official capacity. [274265]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I have attended one event at the Millennium Stadium, which included live music. I have also attended a number of Wales Rugby Union matches at this iconic Welsh venue.

Coal Mining

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales whether he has visited coal mines in Wales on official business in the last 12 months. [274267]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I am pleased to say that the Big Pit mining museum is in my constituency and I am a regular visitor.

Departmental Buildings

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much his Department spent on building maintenance in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274566]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Figures for the maintenance (including electrical and mechanical engineering and plumbing works) of the Wales Office's London and Cardiff offices:

2004-05	87,388
2005-06	42,972
2006-07	59,707
2007-08	35,843

Figures prior to 2004-05 are not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Complaints

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what procedure his Department follows for dealing with complaints received (a) by e-mail, (b) by post, (c) by telephone and (d) via his Department's website. [274515]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office complaints procedure and contact details are published on the Wales Office website at:

http://www.walesoffice.gov.uk/about/wales-office-charter/

Departmental Dismissal

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many members of staff in his Department were dismissed (a) for under-performance and (b) in total in each of the last 10 years. [274314]

Mr. Paul Murphy: One person has been dismissed on grounds of inefficiency since 2006. Records prior to this are not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Drinking Water

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much his Department has spent on bottled water in each of the last five years. [274380]

Mr. Paul Murphy: My Department has spent the following amounts on bottled water, mostly on 18.5 ltr bottles for office water coolers:

2005-06	1,405
2006-07	1,556
2007-08	1,429
2008-09	1,559

The Wales Office stopped buying bottled water in February 2009 when water coolers connected to the mains water supply were introduced.

Departmental Furniture

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much his Department spent on furniture in (a) 2004-05 and (b) 2008-09. [273749]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office did not buy any furniture in 2008-09 and figures for 2004-05 could not be obtained without incurring disproportionate cost.

Departmental ICT

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what steps he has taken to reduce the level of carbon dioxide emissions arising from the operation of ICT systems in his Department under the Greening Government ICT Strategy. [273550]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office has in place a number of steps to reduce carbon dioxide emissions, including requiring staff to switch off office equipment at night and a forthcoming programme to reduce the number of printers in the Department and encourage more double-sided printing.

Departmental Manpower

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many members of staff his Department employs who are over (a) 55 and (b) 65 years old. [274266]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Eight staff in the Wales Office are aged between 55 and 64. A small number of staff are aged over 65 years old.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much his Department has spent on (a) conference services and (b) banqueting services in each of the last five years. [274495]

Mr. Paul Murphy: My Department has not spent anything on conference or banqueting services in the last five years.

Departmental Stationery

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much his Department has spent on branded stationery and gifts for (a) internal and (b) external promotional use in each of the last five years. [273774]

Mr. Paul Murphy: My Department spent £83 on Wales Office pens in 2006 to promote the Government of Wales Act 2006.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much his Department spent on the purchase of (a) recycled office supplies in the last 12 months and (b) printer ink cartridges in each of the last five years. [274569]

Mr. Paul Murphy: We do not separate out the cost of recycled supplies and print cartridges from our stationery orders and this could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. We do however use 100 per cent. recycled paper for photocopying and printing and all our old print cartridges are recycled.

Departmental Training

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much his Department has spent on IT training for its staff in each of the last five years. [274226]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office spent the following on IT training:

2006-07	900.00
2007-08	264.38
2008-09	2978.69

Figures before 2006-07 are not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much his Department spent on health and safety training for its staff in each of the last five years. [274268]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The health and safety of staff and visitors is taken very seriously in the Wales Office. When they join the Department, all staff undertake training to give them an basic understanding of their responsibilities. This is provided by the Ministry of Justice and does not incur a direct cost to the Wales Office.

Corporate support staff who are responsible for health and safety issues require a significantly higher degree of knowledge and expertise, and this training is given by specialist organisations at a cost of £1,672 in 2007-08, and £7,631.00 in 2008-09.

Departmental Work Experience

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many work placements his Department offered to (a) school pupils, (b) university students and (c) graduates in each of the last five years. [274476]

Mr. Paul Murphy: There have been two work placements both undertaken by pupils before they entered university: one in 2008 and one in 2005.

Digital Broadcasting

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what steps have been taken to ensure that Wales is ready for the digital switchover. [274270]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Wales is well prepared for the digital switchover which starts in Swansea in August 2009 and completes by the end March 2010. Digital UK, the independent non-profit organisation will issue a 100-day countdown.

As part of Digital UK's national information campaign, leaflets explaining switchover and the options available for going digital will be sent to every home in Wales, backed up by both national and local radio and television advertising.

Letters will also be sent to every household for people aged 75 or over, registered blind or partially sighted, on disability benefits or living in a care home for six months or more. Stakeholder meetings and roadshows across Wales have also been held.

Digital Technology

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had on implementation of his digital inclusion responsibilities; and if he will make a statement. [274271]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I have had a range of meetings with stakeholders from the public, private and third sectors concerning digital inclusion. I launched "Delivering Digital Inclusion—An Action Plan for Consultation" in October 2008 and have held two events with stakeholders in Birmingham and London to hear their views. An analysis of the responses to this consultation process has recently been published.

This analysis indicated strong support for the appointment of an independent Champion for Digital Inclusion, aided by an expert taskforce. I will be making an announcement regarding the champion in the near future.

Economic Situation

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had with the First Minister on the impact of the recession on Wales. [274316]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I have regular meetings with the First Minister to discuss the global recession and its impact on Wales.

The fifth All Wales Economic Summit, recently held in Swansea, shows the Welsh Assembly Government's commitment in supporting and guiding Wales through the recession. These summits are an excellent opportunity for businesses to discuss the challenges they are facing and the assistance they require, enabling me to feed in their comments to the National Economic Council, informing and directing what action is required.

In addition, the UK Government have taken prompt and decisive action to prevent the collapse of the banking system, to support the economy, and to ensure that we get lending going again. This will benefit all of Wales, as it will the UK.

Energy: Cross-border Cooperation

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had with (a) Cabinet colleagues and (b) the Welsh Assembly Government on the security of energy supply across the England/Wales border. [273474]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I have regular discussions with colleagues in Wales and London on a range of cross border issues.

The security of energy supply is a key priority of both the Government and the Welsh Assembly Government. The 2007 Energy White Paper set out the UK's commitment to a rich mix supply of energy through a wide range of generating technologies including renewables.

Fossil Fuels

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had with the First Minister on the development of small and technically-challenging oil and gas fields in Wales. [274379]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I have regular discussions with the First Minister on a range of issues including energy matters in Wales.

I understand that no proposals for development of any oil or gas field in Wales have to date been submitted for license with the Department for Energy and Climate Change.

Industrial Health and Safety

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much his Department spent on compliance with requirements of health and safety at work legislation in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274533]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office has health and safety compliance audits conducted annually by the Ministry of Justice and separately by the trade unions at no cost to my Department. The cost of health and safety works is not recorded separately and can be calculated only at disproportionate cost.

Tourism

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what recent discussions he has had with the Welsh Assembly Government on policy to encourage tourism to Wales. [274269]

Mr. Paul Murphy: I have regular discussions with the Welsh Assembly Government on a range of issues including tourism.

The Welsh Assembly Government is investing £2.2 million in UK-wide campaign to promote Wales as a top quality tourist destination. Earlier this month £19 million was secured to develop Heritage Tourism in Wales. The project, largely funded by the Welsh Assembly Government and EU Convergence Funds will maximise the economic value of heritage through increasing the volume, length and value of visits to Wales. The project will also ensure that Wales' outstanding heritage is more accessible and enjoyable to visit—both for visitors and people who live in Wales.

Latest available data show that for 2008 (January to December), Wales' market share of all staying trips in UK by UK residents was 7.2 per cent. (UK Tourism Survey).

HOME DEPARTMENT

Homicide: Children

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many children under the age of 10 years were murdered in each police force area in 2007-08. [274073]

Mr. Coaker: Available information is given in the following table.

[1] As at 4 November 2008; figures are revised as cases are dealt with by the police and by the courts, or as further information becomes available.
[2] Offences are shown according to the year in which the police initially recorded the offence as homicide. This is not necessarily the year in which the incident took place or the year in which any court decision was made.

Ketamine: Theft

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many thefts of ketamine have been recorded from (a) veterinary premises and (b) hospitals in each of the last five years. [274988]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information requested is not collected centrally. In the Home Office police recorded crime statistics, thefts of ketamine would be recorded under the 'Other theft' offence classification and cannot be separately identified from other thefts recorded within that category.

Metals: Theft

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will discuss with the British Metal Recycling Association its proposals for restricting the activities of illegal scrap operators. [273660]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 8 May 2009]: The Association of Chief Police Officers organises a Conductive Metals Working Group which meets every two months. The working group consists of a wide range of representatives from police, industry and Government, including officials from the Home Office and BERR and members from the British Metal Recycling Association. The working group discusses the most effective ways of working in partnership to tackle metal theft. This includes measures to restrict the activities of illegal scrap operators through police activity with help from the industry. Potential legislation that would aim to further restrict the activities of illegal scrap operators is also discussed in this forum.

Police: Complaints

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment she has made of the effectiveness of procedures in place for the investigation of alleged misconduct by the police; what recent representations she has received on this issue; and if she will make a statement. [273872]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office took part in the stocktake of the police complaints system last year led by the Independent Police Complaints Commission to assess how well the current system is operating and how it could be further improved in the light of experience of its operation since April 2004. The IPCC worked very closely with its stakeholders in identifying areas for potential change and also carried out a public confidence survey to hear what the wider public think and expect from the police complaints system. The process resulted in 10 proposals for change, which centred on the following themes:

shifting the focus from identifying blame to putting things right;

resolving the complaint at a local level;

emphasis on quality assurance rather than bureaucratic checks;

providing information more quickly.

The proposals also tie into the recent reform of the police misconduct system and together will have significant impact on investigations into complaints against the police, and how these complaints are resolved.

The proposals for change were published in an IPCC consultation document 'Building on Experience—taking stock of the new police complaints system after four years operational experience', which ran from 23 June and ran until 12 September 2008. In general there was strong support for the proposals, and in light of the responses the IPCC have started to implement those proposals not requiring legislative change.

Police: Finance

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the Band A council tax police precept after capping was in each police authority in England and Wales in each year since 1997-98. [273107]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is set out in the following tables:

[1] In 2008-09, seven police authorities were proposed with capping action:
Lincolnshire—in year designated (capped). Required to reduce budget from £116.6 million to £100.6 million.
Bedfordshire—Nominated. Will be measured against a notional budget of £95.8 million in 2009-10 and 2010-11.
Norfolk—Nominated. Will be measured against a notional budget of £137.9 million in 2009-10 and 2010-11.
Surrey—Nominated. Will be measured against a notional budget of £189.6 million in 2009-10 and 2010-11.
Cheshire, Leicestershire and Warwickshire—Nominated with future designation. Budget increases restricted at a level equivalent to a maximum council tax increase of 3 per cent. in 2009-10 and 2010-11.
[2] In 2009-10, two police authorities are currently being considered for capping action, Derbyshire and Surrey.

Proof of Identity: EU Nationals

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many identity papers of those claiming to be citizens of A8 countries were later found to be false in each year since 2004; and in which countries the false papers purported to be issued. [264733]

Mr. Woolas: The information requested which does not include pre entry detections or detections at ports of entry is as follows:

Retail Trade: Crime

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many meetings of the National Retail Crime Steering Group there have been since February 2008. [275078]

Mr. Coaker: There have been two meetings held on 12 November 2008 and 4 March 2009 making a total of four since its inception in 2007.

The Government emphasised their commitment to supporting businesses and local crime fighting partnerships in tackling retail crime locally, in an update to the 2008-11 Crime Strategy, which was published today. The updated strategy sets securing homes and protecting property as a key objective, including a commitment to develop a Retail Crime Action Plan. This objective sits alongside tackling not tolerating antisocial behaviour; saving lives through tackling violent crime; and countering organised crime. The revised strategy refocuses the priority approaches to tackling crime, to ensure that we meet new challenges and continue to have a tough and proactive approach to all crime.

United Kingdom Human Trafficking Centre

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) full-time, (b) part-time and (c) seconded staff work at the UK Human Trafficking Centre (UKHTC); what their individual roles are; how staff are recruited to the UKHTC; and what steps are taken to ensure that staff of the UKHTC are qualified to provide assistance to victims of human trafficking. [272047]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 30 April 2009]: As of 31 March 2009 there were 35 permanent staff working at the UKHTC of which 10 are secondees from other organisations. All these staff are either recruited to the UKHTC through the agreed recruitment process of the legal entity or through the recruitment processes of partner agencies from which they have been seconded.

All posts are designed to take forward the work outlined in the UKHTC Business Plan and Control Strategy which has a victim centred approach in line with the UK Action Plan. The centre staff have huge experience in dealing with victims of crime including human trafficking. This is further reinforced by the placement of staff from the Poppy Project within the centre and the work of the UKHTC Victim Care Group.

In addition all staff members learning and development needs are assessed through the internal UKHTC reporting system and where applicable appropriate training is provided.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what activities have been undertaken as part of the UK Human Trafficking Centre's Blue Blindfold Campaign; and what the running costs of the campaign (a) were in 2008-09 and (b) are expected to be in 2009-10. [272049]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 30 April 2009]: Blue Blindfold is a brand under which it is planned for all publicity material on anti-human trafficking campaigns to be produced. Negotiations are taking place between the UKHTC and UNODC to ensure a future strategic partnership with the latter organisation's Blue Heart campaign.

Approximately, £130,000 was spent in 2008-09 on Blue Blindfold material as part of the "Walk in a Punter" campaign and the more recent awareness raising campaign in Bristol and Leeds.

There is no estimate of running costs for 2009-10.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Care Homes: Finance

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the proportion of local authority expenditure allocated to care home maintenance in (a) the last 12 months and (b) the last five years. [273699]

Phil Hope: I have been asked to reply.

The information is not collected centrally in the format requested. No estimate has been made.

Council Housing: Sales

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the maximum right to buy discount was in the local authorities covered by the Housing (Right to Buy) (Limits on Discount) (Amendment) Order 2003 in each year since 1997; and what plans she has to review the limits in (a) these and (b) other local authorities. [275579]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information requested is in the following table. The Government have no plans to change the maximum discounts available to qualifying tenants under the right to buy scheme.

Departmental Offices

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which of her Department's (a) Executive agencies and (b) non-departmental public bodies have regional offices; and where each such office is located. [274906]

Mr. Khan: Several of the Department's Executive public bodies have regional office structures.

The Audit Commission, classified as a public corporation, has regional offices in Leicester, Solihull, Cambourne and London for central region; Bolton, Gateshead and Leeds for northern region; and Bristol and Exeter for southern region.

The Homes and Communities Agency (HCA) was established on 1 December 2008, and currently has regional offices in the following locations: Ashford, Birmingham, Bracknell, Bristol, Cambridge, Croydon, Exeter, Gateshead, Leeds, Leicester, London, Manchester, Milton Keynes, Nottingham, Telford, Warrington and Wolverhampton. Its offices in Birmingham, Leeds and Nottingham are co-located with Government offices for the regions. The HCA is undertaking a review of the office accommodation it inherited from its predecessor bodies.

The Valuation Tribunal Service (VTS) currently has 11 regional offices in the following locations: Werrington, Peterborough; Whitechapel, London; Witham, Essex; Bolton; Doncaster; Preston; Leamington Spa; Nottingham; Stafford; Horsham, Surrey; and Plymouth. Under the VTS's current estates' review, the offices at Leamington Spa, Nottingham and Horsham are due to close by the end of June 2009.

None of the Department's Executive agencies has regional office structures.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department has spent on hospitality and entertainment in each of the last five years. [273886]

Mr. Khan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Hazel Grove (Andrew Stunell) on 10 October 2007, Official Report, column 662W, and the answer given to the right hon. and learned Member for Devizes (Mr. Ancram) on 27 October 2008, Official Report, column 717W.

The Department has spent £240,931 on hospitality in the last financial year 2008-09. The Department does not record expenditure for entertainment on its finance system and the figures in this reply relate to the broader category of hospitality. All expenditure on hospitality is made in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety, based on principles set out in Government Accounting and the Treasury handbook on Regularity and Propriety.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reasons information on the expenditure of Executive agencies is not included in her Department's proposals for local spending reports under the Sustainable Communities Act 2007. [273570]

Mr. Khan: Taking responses to the first phase of consultation on this subject into consideration, the first arrangements for the production of the first local spending report were made using information which is currently available to the Government and which do not impose significant costs on other bodies. We are still consulting on how the reports should develop over time through the second phase of the consultation which closes on 15 May 2009. We will publish a response to the second phase later in the summer when we will outline our plans for the longer term development of the local spending reports including the scope for extending the reports to include other agencies. This will enable the Government to develop local spending reports which are useful and whose cost is likely to justify their benefit.

Departmental Training

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department and its predecessor has spent on IT training for its staff in each of the last five years. [274236]

Mr. Khan: The Department does not hold data on IT training on its corporate accounting system and such data could be generated only at disproportionate cost.

Empty Property

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what statistics (a) her Department and (b) its agencies collect on the level of vacant (i) commercial and (ii) industrial property. [273602]

Mr. Iain Wright: Data collection on vacant properties was reinstated recently on the national non-domestic rates (NNDR1) Supplementary form. Data from this are being validated and are intended to be published shortly.

None of the four Department's agencies collects data in this respect.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what her latest estimate is of the number of empty dwellings in England; [273750]

(2) how many dwellings in each region were empty for a period of longer than six months in each of the last five years. [273764]

Mr. Iain Wright: Details of the number of dwellings in each region in England that were empty for a period of longer than six months on specific dates in 2004 and 2005, are given in the following table. For details of long term vacant dwellings in 2006, 2007 and 2008, and the latest estimate of the number empty dwellings, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 27 April 2009, Official Report, column 1107W.

Long term empty properties by regions

	1 November2004	10 October 2005
North East	21,599	21,473
North West	68,594	68,275
Yorkshire and the Humber	36,550	35,715

London	42,600	40,081
South East	35,459	36,022
South West	22,434	23,247
Total England	318,642	313,616

The data are from snapshots taken in the autumn of each year and are as reported to communities and local Government by all billing authorities in England on their annual council taxbase (CTB) and CTB (Supplementary) returns.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many empty dwelling management orders have been enforced in each local authority area since the inception of such orders. [273765]

Mr. Iain Wright: To date, 24 Interim Empty Dwelling Management Orders (EDMOs) have been approved by the Residential Property Tribunal Service (RPTS) since the legislation came into effect in April 2006. However, local authorities claim that in many cases the threat of an EDMO has been sufficient to make owners take action to bring long-term empty homes back into use.

We always intended that the legislation should be used only as a last resort where other measures have proved unsuccessful. We want to encourage voluntary re-occupation of empty homes but this can only work well where there is realistic compulsion to back them up. EDMOs provide this compulsion and should therefore be a key component of a comprehensive empty property strategy.

First Time Buyers

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Answer of 5 May 2009, Official Report, column 137W, on housing: sales, what the average contribution made from the public purse to a home purchased under the First-Time Buyers Initiative was in each of the last three years; and what percentage of the average cost of a home purchased under the initiative this represented in each such year. [274891]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following table sets out the average contribution from the public purse, and what that represented as a percentage of the average cost, of a home purchased under the First Time Buyers Initiative.

2006-07	91,801	47
2007-08	91,080	47
2008-09	77,969	44

Housing Associations: Finance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps) of 30 March 2009, Official Report, column 972W, on housing associations: finance, which six associations are graded at three. [272334]

Mr. Iain Wright: The six associations graded as 'of concern' can be found in on the TSA's website at:

http://www.tenantservicesauthority.org/server/show/nav.13843

The assessment of the financial position of an association is an ongoing process. Consequently, the six associations graded as 'of concern' have been working with the TSA to resolve their issues.

Housing: Finance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to page 130 of Budget 2009, in what manner Housing and Planning Delivery Grant has been amended to provide a £20 million efficiency saving. [273361]

Mr. Iain Wright: In our November 2008 allocation announcement and in the supporting papers to the Local Government Settlement which was laid before Parliament in January 2009, we set out our intention to review options for the Housing and Planning Delivery Grant in light of changing economic circumstances.

We will shortly be publishing a consultation document which outlines our conclusions and the proposed reforms for year two and three of the scheme.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much housing and planning delivery grant funding has been allocated to the London Borough of (a) Redbridge and (b) Waltham Forest for 2009-10. [274775]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department will be consulting on the formula for HPDG and undertaking a data collection exercise to establish the number of authorities who qualify for each element of grant. We will publish provisional allocations in July 2009 and final allocations of grant will be published and paid in the autumn.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department and its agencies have issued to local authorities on (a) interest rates on home appreciation loans, (b) repayment terms and equity charges relating to home appreciation loans and (c) the use of contractors for works funded by home appreciation loans. [274787]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department does not issue guidance to local authorities on interest rates for home appreciation loans.

The Regulatory Reform (Housing Assistance) (England and Wales) Order 2002 gives local authorities wide powers to provide assistance for repairs, improvements, adaptations and to demolish and re-construct homes. This assistance may take the form of a grant, loan, equity release, or more practical assistance such as home surveys or small repairs services. Local authorities must have policies in place setting out how they will use these powers and they must make summaries of their policy available. ODPM Circular 05/2003 explains the purpose and content of the regulatory reform order.

The Department published 'Mortgage Sales Guidance for Local Authorities and Registered Social Landlords' in November 2005 which sets out the procedures that both registered social landlords and local authorities must follow when providing mortgage finance under the regulatory reform order.

Housing: Low Incomes

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average construction cost of a home built (a) for social rent and (b) for affordable housing with support from the Homes and Communities Agency and its predecessors was in each year since 1997. [272577]

Margaret Beckett: The national average total cost of providing homes for social rent and intermediate affordable housing through the Homes and Communities Affordable Housing Programme is as follows:

Allocation year	Intermediate	Rent
1998-99	73,111	65,571
1999-2000	81,394	72,262
2000-01	99,898	84,917
2001-02	103,004	97,359
2002-03	110,553	108,348
2003-04	122,566	118,538
2006-07	155,786	136,839
2007-08	165,116	153,025
2008-09	165,683	149,591

Information is not available for the years 1997-98, 2004-05 and 2005-06.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the timetable for the national roll-out of the National Register for Social Housing is. [274817]

Mr. Iain Wright: The National Register of Social Housing (NROSH) data collection was rolled out in 2006.

Housing: Merseyside

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many home repossessions initiated by (a) building societies and (b) banks there were in (i) Crosby constituency and (ii) Merseyside in each of the last five years. [273611]

Mr. Iain Wright: There are two independent sources of data on actual numbers of mortgage possessions: The Council of Mortgage Lenders (CML) and the Financial Services Authority (FSA). However both are only available for the United Kingdom as a whole.

The Council of Mortgage Lenders latest press release on this is on their website at:

http://www.cml.org.uk/cml/media/press/2108

The CML data on repossessions are no longer freely available from their website. For detailed time series information members of the public can request to subscribe to CML to obtain access to a restricted website.

The Financial Services Authority data is available on their website at http://www.fsa.gov.uk/pages/Doing/Regulated/Returns/IRR/statistics/

The CML and FSA release slightly different figures. The CML data is for repossessions on first-charge mortgages only, including Buy-to-Let mortgages, as issued by their members. CML estimate that their lenders currently account for 95 per cent. of mortgage lending. The FSA data, as well as covering possessions on first-charge mortgages, covers possessions on second-charge loans by regulated firms (many second charge lenders are not regulated) but doesn't cover possessions as comprehensively on Buy-to-Let mortgages, as some of these are from unregulated firms. The overall effect of the differences is that the FSA's statistics on possessions are slightly higher.

Infrastructure Planning Commission

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) of 20 March 2009, Official Report, columns 1409-10W, on the Infrastructure Planning Commission (IPC), if she will make it her policy to ensure that the IPC's (a) staff, (b) chief executive officer, (c) commissioners and (d) board members are appointed on terms which provide for a notice period of no more than three months. [274937]

Margaret Beckett: The notice to be given by the CEO, commissioners and board members will be agreed in the normal way when the terms of their specific contracts are agreed following a successful interview process. The notice period applying to other staff will be determined by IPC in the light of its business needs.

Local Government Finance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether local spending reports prepared under the Sustainable Communities Act 2007 will include information on budgets. [274764]

Mr. Khan: The first Local Spending Report, under section 6 of the Sustainable Communities Act 2007 was published on 29 April 2009 using outturn data from 2006-07. These are the latest available audited data and are not subject to change as budgeted data may be.

The consultation on Local Spending Reports, with a deadline of 15 May 2009, considers how the reports should develop over time. The Government will consider all the representations submitted and we will publish our response later this year.

Local Government: Cost Effectiveness

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans her Department has for implementation in local government of the recommendations of the Operational Efficiency programme. [273572]

John Healey: The local government sector has a strong track record of delivering substantial value for money savings. Both central and local government have identified more scope for increased efficiencies to be driven out in the current 2007 CSR period and beyond as supported by the findings of the Operational Efficiency Programme. Councils are raising their ambition for efficiency and the Government are working with the sector to help authorities deliver that ambition.

Local Government: Pensions

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what her latest estimate is of the size of the deficit of the Local Government Pension Scheme; [273569]

(2) what steps her Department plans to take to reduce the deficit in the Local Government Pension Scheme; [273599]

(3) what proportion of money in the Local Government Pension Scheme is invested in equities. [273601]

John Healey: When Local Government Pension Scheme funds in England and Wales were last valued on 31 March 2007, total assets of £132 billion represented some 83 per cent. of the scheme's liabilities of £159 billion. Equities totalled 67 per cent. of the scheme's assets with a market value of £88.4 billion. For the year ending 31 March 2008, expenditure on benefits totalled £5.2 billion compared with an income of £10 billion.

The next triennial valuation exercise takes place on 31 March 2010 to assess the scheme's funding position, including the effect of recent stock market conditions. Any funding deficit identified will be recovered through locally agreed recovery plans, typically over a 20 year period, and be reflected in contribution rates set for the period 2011-12 to 2013-14 and beyond.

Discussions continue with stakeholders to ensure that the scheme remains affordable, viable and fair to taxpayers.

Local Government: Standards

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many reports the monitoring officer in each local authority has made in each of the last five years; in respect of which authority each report was made, and on what date; and what steps her Department took in each case. [273795]

John Healey: This information is not held centrally.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what (a) support, (b) advice and (c) training her Department makes available to local authority monitoring officers on the discharge of their duties. [273796]

John Healey: My Department does not offer support, advice or training directly to local authority monitoring officers. Support is provided by the Standards Board for England through its statutory and non-statutory guidance on the code of conduct for members and the local standards framework; its dedicated monitoring officers' helpline; its seminars and annual assembly. The board is also developing a training manual which will assist monitoring officers when providing training to members on the code of conduct and the standards framework.

Mortgages: Government Assistance

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the cost of extending the Mortgage Rescue Scheme to households in negative equity; and if she will make a statement. [271371]

Margaret Beckett: The Mortgage Rescue Scheme was launched nationally on 1 January 2009. In the Budget 2009 it was announced that the scheme would be expanded to include some households in negative equity from 1 May. Following the Budget, an additional £80 million has been made available for the scheme, funded from the Department's end-year flexibility.

The main costs of including households in negative equity will usually be met by lenders who have agreed to write down levels of negative equity on a case-by-case basis. However, these cases will have a higher than average unit cost as they will be suitable for Government Mortgage to Rent rather than the Shared Equity option.

The extension of the scheme to include households in negative equity was made quickly in direct response to feedback on delivery of the scheme at local level, and will contribute to helping up to 6,000 households through the scheme.

We have also relaxed the regional property price caps for Mortgage Rescue, to enable more households to benefit from this form of support. This means for example in the South West the cap has increased from £195,000 to £205,000, thereby allowing more households to be considered for the scheme.

We have also announced a further £20 million funding for local authorities to enable them to offer households small loans or one off payment to help prevent repossession or eviction. Homelessness prevention work by local authorities is continuing to have a major impact—with the number of households being accepted homeless[1] being reduced by over 60 per cent. since 2003. The use of temporary accommodation also continues to fall—this is a remarkable achievement given the current economic climate.

We are committed to ensuring households at risk of repossession attending court receive support on the day. Court desks provide free, immediate legal advice and representation at County court hearings, and we have worked closely with the Legal Services Commission to review the provision of court desks across the country. During the current financial year we are providing increased funding through local authorities to provide court desk provision in up to 80 County courts—double our commitment in 2008-09.

Mortgages: Repossession Orders

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many home repossessions initiated by (a) building societies and (b) banks there were in (i) the London borough of Bexley and (ii) Greater London in each of the last five years. [273701]

Mr. Iain Wright: There are two independent sources of data on actual numbers of mortgage possessions: The Council of Mortgage Lenders (CML) and the Financial Services Authority (FSA). However both are only available for the United Kingdom as a whole.

The Council of Mortgage Lenders latest press release on this is on its website at:

http://www.cml.org.uk/cml/media/press/2108

The CML data on repossessions are no longer freely available from their website. For detailed time series information members of the public can request to subscribe to CML to obtain access to a restricted website.

The Financial Services Authority data are available on its website at http://www.fsa.gov.uk/pages/Doing/Regulated/Returns/IRR/statistics/

The CML and FSA release slightly different figures. The CML data are for repossessions on first-charge mortgages only, including Buy-to-Let mortgages, as issued by their members. CML estimate that their lenders currently account for 95 per cent. of mortgage lending. The FSA data, as well as covering possessions on first-charge mortgages, cover possessions on second-charge loans by regulated firms (many second charge lenders are not regulated) but do not cover possessions as comprehensively on Buy-to-Let mortgages, as some of these are from unregulated firms. The overall effect of the differences is that the FSA's statistics on possessions are slightly higher.

National Policy Statements

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the location-specific elements of national policy statements will include statements that development should not take place in specific areas. [274789]

Mr. Iain Wright: The majority of national policy statements (NPSs) are not expected to be locationally specific. Where they are, for example the airports and nuclear NPSs, the intention is primarily to identify suitable or potentially suitable locations for development, rather than to identify locations which are unsuitable for development.

Non-domestic Rates

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for how long transitional relief for the 2010 business rates revaluation will last; and what assessment has been made of the (a) effectiveness and (b) equity of the 2005 rates revaluation transitional relief scheme after its implementation. [273568]

John Healey: The 2010 business rates revaluation takes effect from 1 April 2010. We will introduce transitional arrangements to phase in changes in rate bills as a result of the revaluation. We will consult upon the details of the transitional arrangements, including the length of the scheme, later in the summer. The Government continue to keep the rating system under review, including the operation of transitional arrangements.

Property Development: Derelict Land

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many hectares of brown field land was developed in each year since 1997. [272637]

Mr. Iain Wright: The area of previously developed land that was developed in each year since 1997 is available in live table P261 on the Department's website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/planningandbuilding/xls/1133773.xls

JUSTICE

Antisocial Behaviour: Fixed Penalties

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what evaluation he has made of the effectiveness of use of penalty notices for disorder amongst 10 to 15-year-olds in the six pilot areas. [274153]

Mr. Straw: The evaluation report on penalty notices for disorder (PNDs) for 10 to 15-year-olds in the six pilot areas was published on 5 November 2008. Copies have been placed in the Library of the House. We are currently revising the Police Operational Guidance to take into account the recommendations of the evaluation in collaboration with interested groups.

Coroners

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many narrative reports he has received from HM coroners under Coroners Rule 43 since its revision in July 2008; which inquests gave rise to each such report; which coroner presided in each case; in which of those inquests the coroner sat without a jury; and to which Government Department each report was referred. [274095]

Bridget Prentice: Between 17 July 2008 and 7 May 2009 230 Rule 43 reports have been received from HM Coroners. Table A shows details of the coroners, deputy coroners and assistant deputy coroners who submitted the reports. 49 of the reports were directed at Government Departments and details are shown in table B. Information is not held centrally on the specific inquests which gave rise to each report or which of these inquests sat without a jury. The Lord Chancellor will be publishing a summary of rule 43 reports received since 17 July 2008 shortly.

Departmental Buildings

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much his Department and its predecessor spent on building maintenance in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274567]

Maria Eagle: The cost of building maintenance in each of the last five years is as follows:

2004-05	161,861,665
2005-06	160,616,396
2006-07	205,042,692
2007-08	289,179,963
2008-09	229,563,822
Total	1,046,264,538

Departmental Complaints

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what procedure his Department follows for dealing with complaints received (a) by e-mail, (b) by post, (c) by telephone and (d) via his Department's website. [274520]

Mr. Hanson: Complaints from these sources about individual members of staff are dealt with in accordance with the procedure outlined on the Ministry of Justice's website at www.justice.gov.uk/contactus

All other complaints from these sources about the Department's policies and procedures and the services it provides are referred to the appropriate officials for a response. Officials aim to respond to those complaints within 15 working days.

Departmental Contracts

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which services his Department and its predecessor have outsourced in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274445]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice does not hold centralised data on the services that the Department and its predecessors have outsourced in each of the last five years. This is because prior to 1 April 2009, procurement was undertaken in numerous parts of the Ministry of Justice and its predecessors and the information could be provided only at disproportionate costs.

A new procurement directorate for the whole of the Ministry of Justice was created on 1 April following an Office of Government Commerce procurement capability review recommendation. Part of the remit of the new directorate is to bring together information on all Ministry of Justice contracts.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to his letter of 27 April 2009 to the hon. Member for Torbay following the answer of 31 March 2009, Official Report, columns 1067-9W, on departmental surveys, whether the budget for catering of £100 per celebration lunch for his Department's staff is for each event or per head. [274591]

Mr. Straw: The £100 per celebration lunch is per event not per person. On average, 18 people attend each celebration lunch. The average cost per head for those in attendance at the lunch has been £5.55.

Departmental Stationery

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much his Department spent on the purchase of (a) recycled office supplies in the last 12 months and (b) printer ink cartridges in each of the last five years. [274575]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice is committed to reusing, recycling and reducing waste. Wherever possible, office supplies are from recycled sources and all white paper for printing and photocopying across the Ministry now contains a minimum of 80 per cent. recycled fibre. It is not possible, however, to determine what proportion of total expenditure on office supplies relates to recycled products. To do so would require a detailed analysis of an extremely large number of invoices which could be undertaken only at disproportionate cost.

The Ministry's financial systems do not record information at a level of detail that would enable it to identify expenditure specifically on ink cartridges. Some analysis was, however, undertaken for the financial year ending 31 March 2008. This identified expenditure of £1,346,248 from amounts separately identified on invoices.

Departmental Training

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much his Department and its predecessor has spent on IT training for its staff in each of the last five years. [274220]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice was created on 9 May 2007. Central spend on IT training in each of the last two years in the MOJ, excluding the National Offender Management Service (NOMS), is set out in the following table.

Responsibility for learning and development training is devolved to business groups within the MOJ. In the year 2006-07 the former Department for Constitutional Affairs spent £117,118 on centrally provided IT training. Comparative figures for the years 2005-06 and 2004-05 are not available. In NOMS, IT training spend has been devolved to local level and details are not held centrally. As such, the total spend on IT training across the MOJ could be established only at disproportionate cost.

Most IT training is provided by experienced members of staff or local business training teams. Spend on IT training has declined in recent years with less recruitment and a move to provide more learning through coaching rather than training courses. Training programmes, which support the introduction of new processes in business areas, can also include an element of IT training.

Departmental Work Experience

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many work placements his Department and its predecessor offered to (a) school pupils, (b) university students and (c) graduates in each of the last five years. [274481]

Mr. Wills: The Ministry of Justice does not hold all of this information centrally. Business groups including Prison Service establishments, Her Majesty's Courts Service, the National Offender Management Service headquarters, Corporate Performance Group and individual probation boards have accommodated placements mainly in conjunction with local universities, colleges and schools.

Additionally, the MOJ has provided paid work for interns through the ethnic minority summer development programme and the disability summer placement scheme as follows:

	Ethnic Minority Summer Development Programme interns in MOJ	Disability Summer Placement Scheme interns in MOJ
2005	10	3
2006	4	1

Participants are a mixture of undergraduates and graduates.

Family Courts: Greater London

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what discussions his Department (a) has had and (b) plans to have with magistrates in Waltham Forest and Redbridge on family court provision prior to the transfer of the family court to Stratford. [271843]

Bridget Prentice: There was full public consultation in 2006 on proposals to form a network of family courts in London. This consultation made specific reference to the transfer of Redbridge and Waltham Forest family proceedings court work to Stratford. During the consultation period, my right hon. and learned Friend the Member for Camberwell and Peckham (Ms Harman) and officials met with the local MP and representative JPs from Waltham Forest to discuss the proposals. The formal response to consultation was published in December 2006. Her Majesty's Courts Service is fully involving Waltham Forest magistrates as plans are implemented, through ongoing dialogue. Redbridge family hearings transferred to Stratford in August 2008.

Fines: Surcharges

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much was collected in victim surcharges in each Court Service area in February and March 2009. [274160]

Maria Eagle: The victims surcharge is a £15 charge imposed on offenders ordered to pay fines by magistrates or Crown courts in England and Wales in connection with offences committed on or after 1 April 2007.

Victim surcharges collected by each court service area for February and March 2009 were as follows:

Area	February 2009	March 2009
Avon and Somerset	16,417	19,102
Bedfordshire, Essex and Hertfordshire	44,159	50,787

Industrial Health and Safety

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much his Department and its predecessor spent on compliance with requirements of health and safety at work legislation in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274538]

Mr. Wills: The MOJ does not compile health and safety spend across its agencies and other bodies centrally and could do so only at disproportionate cost. However, spend for the Department headquarters on health and safety measures is:

2005-06	54,300
2006-07	106,700
2007-08	123,100
2008-09	122,800

The MOJ corporate health and safety branch provides a professional health and safety advisory and technical service, including assistance and information to all levels of management to enable compliance with relevant Health and Safety legislation. This includes auditing of health and safety management systems and reviewing performance across the MOJ.

The MOJ annual report provides an assurance on health and safety performance on how the MOJ plans to discharge its legal responsibility in order to comply with the Health and Safety at Work etc. Act 1974 and associated relevant statutory provisions.

National Offender Management Service

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what estimate he has made of the cost of the Managing Surplus Employees scheme in the National Offender Management Service in financial year 2009-10; [273537]

(2) what support his Department provides for employees of the National Offender Management Service redeployed under the terms of the Managing Surplus Employees scheme; [273538]

(3) how many surplus employees as defined under the Managing Surplus Employees scheme of the National Offender Management Service (a) have been redeployed, (b) have been made redundant and (c) have left the Service for another reason in the last 12 months. [273539]

Mr. Hanson: As a result of changes being made within the National Offender Management Service (NOMS) staff are being redeployed either within the agency or to roles elsewhere within the Ministry of Justice.

The additional costs for managing the surplus employee system within NOMS in the financial year 2009-10 is estimated to be in the region of £55,000. Costs are relatively small, because the service is able to use new technology to manage these process.

Staff who are made surplus are subject to redeployment procedures but remain the responsibility of an identified line manager who is required to maintain support, identify any temporary work and assist the employee to find a new role. A range of support arrangements is currently being implemented, including retraining where this is appropriate. Staff who need to relocate to find a new post are able to apply for assistance with additional travel or relocation under existing NOMS arrangements for staff transfer.

Information on the outcome of the redeployment arrangements are as yet unavailable until the new IT is fully functional at the end of May. It is NOMS policy to avoid redundancies and to date no member of staff has been made redundant as a result of the redeployment arrangements.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many National Offender Management Service employees are registered as surplus under the terms of the Managing Surplus Employees scheme. [273540]

Mr. Hanson: We have currently got 184 employees registered as surplus under the terms of the Managing Surplus Employees scheme.

Staff are supported while on this list to assist them in finding a new posting. No staff are being made compulsorily redundant as a direct result of this scheme.

National Offender Management Service: Recruitment

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will make an assessment of the merits of ensuring that persons with a probation service employment background can apply for arising vacancies within the interventions and substance misuse group of the National Offender Management Service. [274277]

Mr. Hanson: The National Offender Management Service fully recognises the benefits of utilising the specialist skills of probation staff in appropriate posts. Where there is a business need for a particular post to be filled by someone with a probation service employment background, groups may second or advertise externally in accordance with National Offender Management Service and civil service recruitment policy.

National Offender Management Service: Secondment

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether he plans to extend the two-year term of probation service secondees in the National Offender Management Service. [274276]

Mr. Hanson: All secondments into the civil service are limited to a two-year term in line with the civil service commission's recruitment principles. Extension of this period can exceptionally be sought from the civil service commissioners if required.

Offences Against Children

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what proportion of offenders aged 21 years or over convicted of offences related to sexual activity with a child under 13 received (a) immediate custody, (b) a suspended sentence, (c) a community sentence, (d) a fine, (e) a conditional or absolute discharge and (f) other treatment in the last year for which figures are available. [274151]

Mr. Straw: The available figures are shown in the following table. The proportion of those given various disposals is shown as a percentage of those sentenced. Lags in time between conviction and sentencing may mean that the total numbers convicted and sentenced in a year may not match. Data held by the Ministry of Justice record the age of the offender at the time of sentencing, and the figures show all offenders aged 21 and over at that point.

Percentage[1] of offenders sentenced to disposals for sexual activity with a child under 13, 2003-07

	Percentage discharged	Percentage fined	Percentage given community sentence	Percentage given suspended sentence	Percentage given immediate custody	Percentage otherwise dealt with	Total persons sentenced

Notes:

1. These data are based on the principle offence. Where an offender has been sentenced for more than one offence the principal offence is the one for which the heaviest sentence was imposed; where the same sentence has been imposed for two or more offences the principal offence is the one for which the statutory maximum is most severe.
2. These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large recording system.

Prisons: Complaints

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many complaints the prison service internal complaints process received from prisoners in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [272827]

Mr. Hanson: The number of internal complaints submitted by prisoners between the fiscal years 2000-01 and 2007-08 is shown in the table. Data for prisoner complaints was not centrally recorded before the fiscal year 2000-01 and to obtain it would incur disproportionate costs.

	Total number of complaints	Average prison population
2000-01	33,529	64,680
2001-02	36,752	67,633
2002-03	70,053	71,498
2003-04	120,701	73,658
2004-05	132,083	74,808
2005-06	159,467	76,564
2006-07	186,028	78,880
2007-08	192,431	80,676

A revised complaints procedure was introduced in February 2002, which, among other improvements, gave prisoners greater access to complaint forms.

An effective complaints system underpins much of prison life. An efficient system for dealing with prisoners' requests and complaints aims to given prisoners confidence in the integrity of the system and so helps to ensure that the prison service meets its obligation of dealing fairly, openly and humanely with prisoners.

Ranby Prison: Explosives

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what reports he has received on a controlled explosion at HMP Ranby on 1 May 2009; and if he will make a statement. [275143]

Mr. Hanson: I received a report on 5 May summarising the operational incidents which had taken place from 1 May to 4 May. The incident at Ranby appeared on this report. This is now the subject of a police investigation.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Census: Databases

Mr. Todd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what arrangements have been made for the (a) retention and (b) maintenance of the address database compiled for the 2011 census once the census has been completed. [274197]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated May 2009:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking what arrangements have been made for the (a) retention and (b) maintenance of the address database compiled for the 2011 Census once the Census has been completed. (274197)

Although the Address Register strategy takes account of other national addressing initiatives it is only being developed for the 2011 Census. Subject to having appropriate data sharing agreements in place, it should provide a one-off quality improvement to each of the main address sources. The database developed for the Census will be retained by the Office for National Statistics. No plans are in place at present for the maintenance of the database.

Addresses returned on census forms as verified addresses are addresses that belong to the ONS to use for statistical purposes only, and will be kept by ONS.

Departmental Billing

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much (a) the Cabinet Office and (b) its agency paid in interest to suppliers under the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998 in the last three years for which figures are available. [275209]

Kevin Brennan: The amount of interest paid to suppliers in 2006-07 and 2007-08 for late payment can be found in the Cabinet Office annual report and resources accounts 2006-07 and 2007-08, copies of which are available in the Libraries of the House. No interest has been paid to suppliers for late payment in 2008-09. The Cabinet Office does not have any agencies.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answers to the hon. Member for Ruislip-Northwood of 13 March 2009, Official Report, columns 800-1W, on departmental buildings, and of 27 January 2009, Official Report, column 467W, on 10 Downing Street: repairs and maintenance, how much was spent on the renovation of lavatories in Downing Street properties in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07 and (c) 2007-08. [274142]

Kevin Brennan: The information is not available in the format requested. I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Billericay (Mr. Baron) on 13 March 2009, Official Report, column 801W.

Departmental Training

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much his Department has spent on IT training for its staff in each of the last five years. [274213]

Kevin Brennan: Information relating to spend on IT training for staff is not held centrally and therefore is available only at disproportionate cost.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Cabinet: Glasgow

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much expenditure was incurred by his Department in respect of the Cabinet meeting in Glasgow on 16 April 2009. [273943]

Mr. Simon: The total expenditure incurred by the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills in respect of the Cabinet meeting in Glasgow on 16 April 2009 was £1,708.23.

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what expenditure on (a) travel, (b) accommodation and (c) food (i) he and (ii) officials in his Department incurred in connection with the Cabinet meeting in Glasgow on 16 April 2009. [273944]

Mr. Simon: The following expenditure has been incurred by DIUS in connection with the Cabinet meeting in Glasgow on 16 April 2009 by (i) the Secretary of State, (ii) Lord Drayson and (iii) officials. Costs for car hire, which officials will also in part have utilised, is placed under the relevant Minister.

(a) (i) £642.30
(ii) £502.43
(iii) £497.50
(b) (i) Zero
(ii) Zero
(iii) £66.00
(c) (i) Zero
(ii) Zero
(iii) Zero

Departmental Assets

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assets his Department shares with the Department for Children, Schools and Families. [274065]

Mr. Simon: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS) has a separate asset register from the Department for Children, Schools and Families' (DCSF). No assets are shared. However, DCSF provides DIUS with a wide range of corporate shared services. These include elements of information technology infrastructure and the provision of office space, building services and furniture at three DCSF sites: Moorfoot in Sheffield, Castle View house in Runcorn and Mowden hall in Darlington.

Departmental Buildings

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much his Department spent on building maintenance in each year since its creation; and if he will make a statement. [274561]

Mr. Simon: The Department's building services are provided through the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) and the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF), which manage and maintain the buildings that DIUS occupies.

BERR charges DIUS for maintenance costs at Kingsgate house, London. These charges are as follows:

January 2008-March 2008	27,089
April 2008-March 2009	82,810

Maintenance costs cannot be separately identified in the amount that DIUS has paid to DCSF for office space and building services.

The Department has a contract for an integrated facilities management service for the buildings in Teddington occupied by the National Physical Laboratory and the National Measurement Office (formerly the National Weights and Measures Laboratory).

The cost of maintenance is not paid separately but the amount of the facilities management payment which relates to maintenance equated to approximately:

July 2007 to March 2008	1,125,000
April 2008 to March 2009	1,550,000

The cost of facilities management on the site (including maintenance) was recovered from the occupiers of the buildings: NPL Management Ltd. and the National Weights and Measures Laboratory (an executive agency of DIUS).

Industrial Health and Safety

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much his Department spent on compliance with requirements of health and safety at work legislation in each year since its creation; and if he will make a statement. [274539]

Mr. Simon: It is not possible to identify separately all of the Department's expenditure on health and safety compliance. The management of health and safety involves a combination of elements, each of which is part of a wider role or service. The amounts spent on special furniture to meet the health and safety needs of particular members of staff are as follows:

June 2007 to March 2008: At least £4,037. Full amount identifiable only at disproportionate cost, because records were not kept separately for DIUS in all buildings.

April 2008 to March 2009: £2,944.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Discrimination: Religion

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what assessment has been made of the likely effect of the provisions of the European Commission's Draft Discrimination Directive on (a) faith schools and (b) public authorities procuring services from faith groups. [273393]

Maria Eagle: EU competence in relation to education is restricted to contributing to the development of quality education and encouraging member states in their responsibility for their own educational systems and content of teaching. The draft directive cannot therefore affect faith schools in the UK. We are seeking to make this clear in the text during negotiations on the directive.

The draft directive proposes to prohibit discrimination in the provision of services on the grounds of religion or belief, disability, age and sexual orientation. It applies to those who are providing the service and not those who are procuring the service. Any organisation that is delivering a service, whether a faith group or not, will have to deliver that service in a non-discriminatory way. This is already a requirement in UK law on three of the grounds covered by the draft directive (religion or belief, disability and sexual orientation) and we are introducing protection from discrimination on the remaining ground (age) in the Equality Bill. The directive will not therefore affect public authorities procuring services from faith groups.

Equality and Human Rights Commission: Operating Costs

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what the cost to the public purse of the Equality and Human Rights Commission has been in each year since its establishment. [274138]

Maria Eagle: The costs of the Equality and Human Rights Commission are shown in the annex A: core tables of the Government Equalities Office's annual report and Accounts. More recent forecast outturn data are now available and are shown in the following table.

Financial year	Resource	£000 Capital
2008-09	59,000	1,000

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what the cost to the public purse of (a) the Commission for Racial Equality, (b) the Equal Opportunities Commission and (c) the Disability Rights Commission was in each of the three years up to October 2007. [274139]

Maria Eagle: Outturn for the Commission for Racial Equality (CRE), the Equal Opportunities Commission (EOC) and the Disability Rights Commission (DRC) for the three years up to October 2007 is published in Annex A: core tables of the Government Equalities Office's annual report and accounts 2007-08.

Final figures for CRE, EOC and DRC are now available for the period 1 April 2007 to 30 September 2007 and are as follows:

1 April 2007 to 30 September 2007

Commissions	Resource	£000 Capital
Disability Rights Commission	10,575	-61
Commission for Racial Equality	9,847	0
Equal Opportunities Commission	3,945	-282

Equality Bill

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what assessment has been made of the effect of implementation of the provisions of the Equality Bill on the expenditure of local authorities. [273394]

Maria Eagle: The Equality Bill will strengthen and streamline discrimination law. These measures will result in both costs (such as those arising from organisations familiarising themselves with the new legislation) and savings (such as those resulting from the simplification of the legislation).

The impact of the Equality Bill is set out in the impact assessment published alongside the Bill on 27 April. The impact on the expenditure of local authorities has not been identified separately. For the 22,000 public authorities (which includes the 420 or so local authorities) the impact assessment identifies the following costs and benefits:

Costs in the first year—£18.6 million to £ 52.1 million

Benefits in the first year—£12.2 million to £41.4 million

Recurring costs from year two onwards—£5.5 million to £39.0 million

Recurring benefits from year two onwards—£12.6 million to £42.9 million

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Big Lottery Fund: Empty Property

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the cost to the Big Lottery Fund of empty property business rates on its empty properties recorded on the Government's e-PIMS database was in 2008-09. [274082]

Barbara Follett: The Big Lottery Fund has advised that it did not pay empty property business rates on empty properties during 2008-09.

Big Lottery Fund: Travelling People

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 4 March 2008, Official Report, column 1587W, on the Big Lottery Fund: travelling people, what the purpose of each grant to each organisation was. [274140]

Barbara Follett: Pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) of 4 May 2009, Official Report, column 1587W, the Big Lottery Fund have advised what the purpose of each grant to support travelling people was. I am arranging for this information to be deposited in the House Library.

BMRB Social Research

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department has paid BMRB Social Research in respect of its work in the Taking Part survey in each of the last three years. [274729]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 12 May 2009]: The Taking Part survey collects data about people's engagement and non-engagement in culture, leisure and sport, and is a national statistic.

Taking Part was commissioned in 2005 and is jointly funded (approximately 50:50) by DCMS and four partner bodies—Arts Council England, English Heritage, Sport England and the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council. BMRB Social Research is contracted to conduct the survey fieldwork. Between 2006-07 and 2008-09, DCMS contributed the following levels towards the cost of BMRB Social Research's work:

2008-09	1.2

In addition to supporting core running costs of the survey, these figures include other expenses such as additional analysis, piloting and questionnaire reviews.

Departmental Complaints

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what procedure his Department follows for dealing with complaints received (a) by e-mail, (b) by post, (c) by telephone and (d) via his Department's website. [274528]

Mr. Sutcliffe: For each of the items above, in most circumstances the team that handled the original issue will review the complaint.

Many communications into the Department, including complaints, are managed by the Department's public engagement and recognition unit. If a complaint is serious in nature the request will be drawn to the attention of a relevant senior civil servant, up to and including the permanent secretary.

There are also formal procedures in place within the Department for issues such as the internal review of Freedom of Information requests and the public appointments process, besides the usual array of external complaints and review procedures available via the courts and the parliamentary ombudsman.

Further details on complaints processes can be found on the DCMS website at:

www.culture.gov.uk

Departmental Consultants

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what contracts were awarded by his Department to (a) KPMG, (b) PricewaterhouseCoopers, (c) Ernst and Young, (d) McKinsey, (e) Deloitte and (f) other consultancy firms in each of the last 12 months; and what the (i) purpose and (ii) monetary value of the contract was in each case. [273064]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Consultancy contracts awarded by the Department (excluding Non-departmental public bodies that we sponsor) in the last 12 months are as follows:

Departmental Costs

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much staff at Senior Civil Service grades in (a) his Department and (b) its agency claimed in reimbursable expenses in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [272810]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 6 May 2009]: The reimbursable expenses claimed by senior civil service staff in the last 12 months to March 2009 were as listed:

The Royal Parks Agency	1,456.11

The expenses were reimbursed in accordance with the civil service management code and the Department's guidance on travel and subsistence.

Departmental Furniture

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much (a) Arts Council England, (b) the Big Lottery Fund, (c) the Heritage Lottery Fund, (d) English Heritage, (e) the Museums and Libraries Archive Council, (f) Sport England and (g) UK Sport spent on furniture in each of the last five years. [273737]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested is as follows:

	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08	2008-09
Arts Council England[1]	42,603.00	119,595.00	4,358.00	10,007.00	148,923.78
Big Lottery Fund[2]	n/a	n/a	101,589.00	39,034.00	34,134.00

English Heritage[3]	351,000	189,000	1,030,000	834,000	795,000
UK Sport[4]	n/a	n/a	1,666.15	46,297.95	130,374.83

n/a = Not available.

[1] Arts Council England advise that their 2005-06 data reflects relocation of their South West office, and refurbishment of part of the National Office. Their 2008-09 spend reflects refurbishment of the National Office.

[2] The Big Lottery Fund was legally created from the merger of the Community Fund, New Opportunities Fund and Millennium Commission on 1 December 2006, so no data is available prior to 2006-07, which reflects initial spend on existing regional offices, as well as new Birmingham and Newcastle centres.

[3] English Heritage advise that 2004-05 spend includes replacing furniture which no longer met Health and Safety requirements, and from 2006-07 onwards includes costs incurred from a programme of relocating posts out of London (responding to Lyons and Gershon reviews), funded by the surrender of their central London lease.

[4] UK Sport has advised that data for 2004-05 and 2005-06 is not available (without accessing archived material at disproportionate cost). Their data from 2007-08 and 2008-09 reflects office refurbishment to accommodate additional staff pressure and meet OGC targets for space per person.

The Museums and Libraries Archive Council advise they have no furniture spend for the last five years.

Sport England advise that their accounting policy does not record assets purchased under £1,000, and have no furniture spend of over £1,000 recorded for the last five years.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many (a) BlackBerry devices and (b) mobile telephones have been lost by (i) Ministers, (ii) special advisers and (iii) civil servants in his Department in each year since 2005. [274464]

Mr. Sutcliffe: My Department has lost the following since 2005.

2009	0	1

No device has been lost by a Minister, One BlackBerry was lost by a special adviser and the remaining 11 items have been lost by civil servants.

Departmental Pay

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many members of staff of (a) the Big Lottery Fund, (b) the Heritage Lottery Fund, (c) English Heritage, (d) Arts Council England, (e) UK Sport, (f) the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council and (g) Sport England received a bonus in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [268428]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 2 April 2009]: The organisations listed have provided the data included in the tables. These figures represent bonuses paid in the financial years provided, rather than the year in which the bonuses were earned.

Domestic Violence

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what contribution his Department has made to the cross-Government consultation, "Together We Can End Violence Against Women and Children", and to the development of Government policy in this area. [274229]

Mr. Sutcliffe: DCMS officials worked closely with the Home Office officials responsible for drafting the consultation document "Together We Can End Violence Against Women and Children". DCMS officials will continue to support the development of policy in this area, in particular by participating as members of sexualisation review steering group, which will be established later this month.

Gambling

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding his Department provided for problem gambling services in each of the last five years; what estimate he has made of the funding provided for problem gambling services by the gambling industry in each such year; what recent assessment he has made of the adequacy of such services; if he will use his powers under the Gambling Act 2005 to ensure that the Responsibility in Gambling Trust receives additional funding to treat adequately any increase in levels of problem gambling; and if he will make a statement. [273198]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Problem gambling services in Great Britain are mainly funded by the gambling industry, principally through the Responsibility in Gambling Trust (RIGT). The Government do not fund dedicated problem gambling services, but anybody with a gambling problem who seeks help from the NHS will be offered support and, if necessary, treatment. In the past five years, the industry has contributed the following amounts to RIGT:

	Amount (£)
2008-09	3,556,783
2007-08	3,512,009
2006-07	3,032,689
2005-06	2,274,567

I have accepted the recommendations set out in the Gambling Commission's final report on its review of research, education and treatment, published last October, and the industry have made good progress in meeting the minimum £5 million per annum commitments needed to fund three year research, education and treatment programmes. However, I want to make absolutely sure that the right levels of funding have been made available and there is also agreement to the improved voluntary arrangements before I make a formal statement.

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will request that the Gambling Commission publish its (a) assessment of the regulatory risks relevant to each sector of the gambling industry and (b) methodology for (i) analysis of regulatory risk and (ii) prioritising its allocation of resources to gambling activities in relation to the level of regulatory risk posed by each such activity. [274293]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Gambling Commission has advised that details of its approach to risk have already been published. The Gambling Commission is currently consulting on revisions of its statement of principles and its licensing, compliance and enforcement policy statement. Details of the approach to risk and the consultation are available at:

www.gamblingcommission.gov.uk

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) which of the recommendations of the Hampton implementation review of the Gambling Commission he plans to accept; and what steps he plans to take to implement those recommendations; [274294]

(2) what discussions has he had with the Gambling Commission on the implementation of recommendations of the Hampton implementation review of the commission. [274295]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Gambling Commission has welcomed the final report and accepted its recommendations. My Department will work with the Gambling Commission on these recommendations, where appropriate, and will monitor its progress as part of the usual process of non-departmental public bodies sponsorship.

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will take steps to ensure that the Gambling Commission (a) takes further steps to prioritise its activity according to the regulatory risks relevant to the gambling sector and (b) adjusts the level of fees it obtains through licensing and certification of the gambling industry to take account of regulatory risks. [274296]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Gambling Commission keeps the regulatory risks related to each gambling sector under regular review in order to assess and update its regulatory priorities. The Secretary of State sets licence fees in order to reflect the regulatory costs of different gambling activities to the Commission and issued a consultation on 7 April 2009, seeking views on proposed changes to the regime which reflect the Gambling Commission's latest assessment of regulatory risks and costs.

Gaming Machines

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the effect on the gaming machine industry of (a) the proposed increase in stakes and prizes for category C and D machines and (b) the increase in amusement machine licence duty in the 2009 Budget. [274763]

Mr. Sutcliffe: As part of the second public consultation on proposed increases in stake and prizes for category C and D gaming machines, an impact assessment was published on the DCMS website on 22 December 2008. The Department has not made any assessment of the effect on the gaming machine industry of the increase in amusement machine licence duty in the 2009 budget.

Sports: Equality

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many sporting organisations have applied for recognition under the equality standard for sport since November 2004. [272943]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Sport England has supported 26 English national governing bodies, all 49 of the county sports partnerships and five national sport organisations including itself to achieve a level of the equality standard since 2004.

Sports: Young People

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps he is taking to increase access to sport for young people in (a) Warrington and (b) the north-west; and if he will make a statement. [272884]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 6 May 2009]: The PE and School Sport Strategy for Young People (PESSYP) has seen 90 per cent. of children and young people do at least two hours of sport a week. By 2011 it is the aim to offer five hours of PE and sport for five to 16-year-olds and three hours for those 16-19.

One of the strategy's workstrands, Sport Unlimited, aims to increase the variety of sporting opportunities for 900,000 semi sporty young people. It is delivered through the network of county sports partnerships and aims to reach 124,350 young people in the north- west, including Warrington, by 2011.

In addition Sport England has a target of getting one million people doing more sport by 2012-13, which includes those aged 16-25.

National governing bodies of sport (NGBs) are placed at the heart of Sport England's strategy as it is their networks of community clubs, coaches, officials and volunteers that will drive delivery. The NGBs will define what they need for their sport at a national, regional and sub-regional level to ensure more people play and enjoy their sport. NGBs are currently planning and taking decisions on where best to invest their money, and this includes the north-west.

In addition to investing in NGBs and other key partners, Sport England has other open funding programmes, worth a maximum of £45 million, to which a wide range of organisations from across England are able to apply. Some of this investment will address particular areas of need; for example the first of a series of themed funding rounds is targeted at rural communities.

Tourism

Richard Younger-Ross: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans he has to meet boards of regional development agencies to discuss his Department's joint working with Visit England. [271319]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 27 April 2009]: On 29 April 2009 I chaired the inaugural meeting of the Regional Development Agency tourism leads group and discussed regional tourism strategies and economic conditions; sub-regional engagement; skills development; sustainable tourism; and cross-regional policy and resource co-ordination, as well as the role of VisitEngland in co-ordinating and driving progress on tourism development and promotion with them.

Tourism: Standards

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will assess the (a) case for and (b) merits of a standardised national classification system for tourist accommodation providers. [274410]

Barbara Follett: VisitEngland have advised that research in the enjoy England brand tracking study 2007 showed that over three quarters of consumers (77 per cent.) believe quality schemes are important when choosing accommodation. The established visitor accommodation grading schemes (the "star rating schemes") are therefore central to improving the quality of England's tourism product.

The Department for Culture, Media and Sport supported work by the cross-Britain quality review group, which included VisitBritain , the Automobile Association, and the devolved national tourist boards, VisitScotland and VisitWales. This review group agreed to adopt uniform common inspection standards across Great Britain in May 2005.

Implementation of this work began in January 2006 and was completed in 2008. A range of tourist accommodation is assessed and marketed under the national quality accreditation schemes. Since April 2009 VisitEngland have been responsible for this work.

TREASURY

Banks: Finance

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to his Department's press notice of 19 January 2009, on the asset protection scheme, (1) what progress has been made on selecting eligible securities; and what amount of guarantees has been issued; [274281]

(2) what criteria will be used to determine what proportion of the value of the security will be guaranteed. [274282]

Ian Pearson: As announced on 26 February, the Royal Bank of Scotland Group (RBS) agreed in principle to protect £325 billion of assets in the asset protection scheme; and on 7 March Lloyds banking group (Lloyds) agreed in principle to protect £260 billion of assets in the scheme. After the deduction of the first loss (£42.2 billion and £35.2 billion respectively) that falls to the participating banks, the Treasury will guarantee 90 per cent. of the remaining value (at 31 December 2008) of the covered assets.

The Treasury and its advisers are continuing to work with participating banks to conduct due diligence on the assets intended for inclusion in the scheme.

Further detailed information will be provided after the final contracts are signed.

Business: Finance

Jo Swinson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what steps the Government has taken to encourage banks recapitalised from the public purse to pass on recent reductions in the Bank of England base rate when lending to small and medium-sized businesses; [275240]

(2) what recent steps the Government has taken to ensure that the terms and conditions placed on loans to small and medium-sized businesses by banks recapitalised from the public purse are reasonable. [275241]

Ian Pearson: Decisions concerning products and pricing remain commercial decisions for firms. Where there is public sector investment in financial institutions these stakes are being managed on an arm's length and independent basis.

The Government are taking action to ensure competitively priced loans continue to be available. On 19 January, the Government announced measures to reinforce the stability of the financial system, increase confidence and capacity to lend, and support the recovery of the economy. These measures build on those announced on 8 October 2008. The Government have agreed lending commitments with Lloyds and RBS that will see Lloyds lend an additional £14 billion, and RBS an additional £25 billion, on commercial terms and subject to market demand, over the 12 months from March 2009. The commitments are specific, quantified and legally binding. HM Treasury will report annually to Parliament on the delivery of these agreements.

Council Tax: Valuation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 1072, on council tax: valuation, when the sub-locations were last updated by the Valuation Office Agency. [274713]

Mr. Timms: Sub-location codes were last reviewed between April and December 2007, in preparation for the 2010 revaluation of non-domestic properties. Otherwise routine updates are made on a continuing basis.

Departmental Buildings

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much his Department spent on building maintenance in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274565]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the reply my hon. Friend gave to the hon. Member for Ilford, North (Mr. Scott) on 20 January 2009, Official Report, column 1292W.

Departmental Dismissal

Chris Huhne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many members of staff in his Department and its agencies were dismissed (a) for under-performance and (b) in total in each of the last 10 years. [274312]

Mr. Timms: Treasury systems do not record the reasons for dismissals centrally. It is the Treasury's policy not to release data on staff where to do so could lead to the identification of individuals, including aggregated data relating to fewer than five staff members. Data for HM Treasury is not available for years prior to 2000.

HM Treasury has a policy in place to manage under-performance and, where necessary, take disciplinary action, which can lead to dismissal.

In each of the years for which data is available:

HM Treasury dismissed fewer than five staff;

The Office of Government Commerce (including Buying Solutions) dismissed fewer than five staff;

The UK Debt Management Office did not dismiss any staff.

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what estimate he has made of the (a) energy consumed by, (b) energy cost of and (c) carbon dioxide emissions from each category of IT device in each division of his Department in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement; [269545]

(2) what steps his Department has taken to address the effect on levels of carbon dioxide emissions from his Department of its ICT purchases since the publication of the Greening Government ICT strategy; and if he will make a statement; [269560]

(3) what the average server capacity utilisation by each division of his Department was in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement; [269591]

(4) how many (a) printers and (b) multi-function devices with printing functions were in use in each division of his Department in each of the last five years; how many such devices had a function enabling two-sided printing; and if he will make a statement; [269614]

(5) how many and what proportion of IT products in each category procured for each division of his Department were compliant with the Government's Buy Sustainable-Quick Win standard in the latest year for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [269638]

John Thurso: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he has taken to reduce the levels of carbon dioxide emissions arising from the operation of ICT systems in his Department under the Greening Government ICT strategy. [273358]

Angela Eagle: HM Treasury is committed to reducing emissions arising from operations and aims to deliver year-on-year reductions. Its chief information officer (CIO), in line with all other members of the CIO Council, has produced a "CIO Green ICT Roadmap" which the Treasury will be following to deliver against the 18 target improvement areas outlined in the "Greening Government ICT" strategy in July 2008.

A full report of the CIO Council Green ICT Roadmaps will be made available shortly featuring the action plans of all Departments involved in the Council against the 18 steps. A final "one year on" report will be issued by the Cabinet Office in July. The CIO/CTO Council Green ICT delivery unit will refresh its annual CIO key objectives against the latest developments in technology and advances in carbon measurement which will be circulated for comment to all CIOs and relevant Departments this summer.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) BlackBerry devices and (b) mobile telephones have been lost by (i) Ministers, (ii) special advisers and (iii) civil servants in his Department in each year since 2005. [274459]

Ian Pearson: For the data on lost BlackBerry devices and mobile telephones, I refer the hon. Member to some previous answers provided as follows:

17 March 2009, Official Report, column 984W, to the hon. Member for Glasgow, East (John Mason).

5 March 2008, Official Report, column 2580W, to the Hon. Member for Angus (Mr. Weir).

5 March 2008, Official Report, column 2578W, to the hon. Member for Brent, East (Sarah Teather).

Disaggregated information relating to Ministers, special advisers and civil servants is not available.

Prior to 2008, data for BlackBerry devices were included within the data shown as "PDAs" or "Personal Organisers", and cannot now be identified separately other than at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Stationery

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how much his Department spent on the purchase of (a) recycled office supplies in the last 12 months and (b) printer ink cartridges in each of the last five years; [274570]

(2) what proportion of office supplies purchased by his Department were recycled products in the latest period for which figures are available. [275337]

Ian Pearson: The Treasury is fully committed to making procurement sustainable and has a policy of using the Sustainable procurement quick wins wherever possible. However:

(a) It is not possible to identify how much the Treasury has spent on, or what proportion were, specifically recycled office supplies from other "green" products.

(b) The Treasury pays for a fully managed printer service, which includes the provision of printer ink cartridges. It is not possible to separate the amount spent on ink cartridges from the total cost of the managed service.

Departmental Training

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much his Department has spent on IT training for its staff in each of the last five years. [274222]

Mr. Timms: HM Treasury systems do not record centrally all details of IT training attended by staff, as this is delegated to individual teams. The following data on the cost of centrally organised training since 2005-06 is available. 2007-08 HM Treasury revised its contracts for the external provision of IT training to ensure better value for money.

2005-06	27,695
2006-07	28,153
2007-08	12,855
2008-09	8,600

In addition, HM Treasury has an in-house IT trainer who delivers induction for internal computer systems to all new starters.

Gaming

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much revenue was generated from remote gaming duty in 2008-09. [274584]

Angela Eagle: HM Revenue and Customs is not currently able to publish a breakdown of remote gaming duty while maintaining taxpayer confidentiality.

Kaupthing Singer and Friedlander: Isle of Man

Sir Alan Beith: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he has discussed with the Isle of Man Government the provision of a Treasury loan secured against the assets of Kaupthing, Singer and Friedlander frozen by the Government in order to enable UK depositors in Kaupthing, Singer and Friedlander (Isle of Man) to access their deposited funds. [269083]

Ian Pearson: On 8 October, the Treasury made Landsbanki Freezing Order 2008 in order to freeze funds and financial assets relating to Landsbanki. Landsbanki is the only Icelandic bank which has been made the subject of a freezing order. Assets in Kaupthing, Singer and Friedlander have not been frozen by the UK Government.

Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings and discussions with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings and discussions.

Arrangements for depositors in banks in the Isle of Man are a matter for the Government of the Isle of Man. Deposits with Kaupthing, Singer and Friedlander, Isle of Man, will be subject to the Isle of Man deposit compensation scheme. This matter was discussed at the Treasury Select Committee on 3 February with representatives of the Isle of Man Government.

Landsbanki: Guernsey

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he has made representations to the Guernsey authorities with a view to providing a loan to progress payments to depositors affected by the collapse of Landsbanki Guernsey. [271805]

Ian Pearson: Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings and discussions with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings and discussions.

Arrangements for depositors in banks in Guernsey are a matter for the Government of Guernsey.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 19 February 2009, on company directors (PO Ref: 1/67667/2009). [274436]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 11 May 2009]: A reply has been sent to the hon. Member.

Mr. Steen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects to reply to the hon. Member for Totnes' letters of 3 March and 21 April 2009 on Mr. Ian Bramble of Kingsbridge, regarding Mr Bramble's concerns as a financial adviser. [274691]

Ian Pearson: A reply has been sent to the hon. Member.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 7 May 2009, Official Report, column 420W, on hon. Members: correspondence, what the reasons are for the time taken to respond to the correspondence; and if he will make a statement. [275174]

Ian Pearson: The volume of correspondence has risen significantly over the last 12 months and it is regretted that this has resulted in replies to some correspondence being delayed. HM Treasury is taking action to help minimise the effects on service delivery times.

Public Expenditure

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he proposes to publish his Department's factual paper on the operation of the Barnett formula. [274359]

Yvette Cooper: No date has yet been decided for the publication of the factual paper on the Barnett formula.

Taxation: Housing

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much revenue accrued to the Exchequer from (a) stamp duty land tax and (b) housing sector corporation tax in each year since 1997. [273632]

Ian Pearson: Exchequer receipts from stamp duty land tax between 2001-02 and 2007-08, the latest year for which figures are available, are given at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/stamp_duty/table05-1.xls

Figures for earlier years up to 1999-2000 are given in the publication Inland Revenue Statistics 2000, which is available in the House of Commons Library.

Receipts for 2000-01 are not available from either of these sources. Receipts from stamp duty land tax in 2000-01 amounted to £4.1 billion.

It is not possible to estimate corporation tax receipts for the housing sector.

Taxation: Self-assessment

Janet Anderson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps HM Revenue and Customs is taking to rectify the system fault which has affected its on-line tax return system; for how long he expects the system to be unavailable; what estimate he has made of the number of applications for tax rebates which will take longer to process as a result of the fault; and if he will make a statement. [274802]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 12 May 2009]: In April 2009 HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) identified an accounting issue which affected some customers who had submitted 2008-09 self-assessment tax returns (paper as well as online). As a consequence, from 20 April to 2 May 2009 HMRC suspended processing all Tax Returns onto their back-end systems to ensure customers did not receive incorrect calculations and statements. The issue was rectified on 1 May 2009 and HMRC resumed processing on 2 May 2009. Any resulting repayments have been made in accordance with normal processes.

During this period customers were still able to file their online and paper tax returns. Between 20 April 2009 and 2 May 2009 the self-assessment online service was fully available apart for a period of 10 hours of planned downtime on 29 April 2009.

Valuation Office: Equality

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the Valuation Office Agency has spent on diversity and equality courses for its staff at the National School of Government in the last 12 months; and how many staff have attended such courses in that period. [258397]

Mr. Timms: No Valuation Office Agency staff have attended such courses at the National School of Government in the last 12 months.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Overseas Aid

6. Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent audit he has made of the value for money being achieved by his Department's expenditure on overseas aid. [274663]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Government are committed to maximising the impact of UK aid. DFID assesses the value for money of its projects and programmes each quarter and aims to improve value for money of its projects by £66 million over the comprehensive spending review period.

DFID has a rigorous system of evaluation and makes full use of value for money audits carried out by National Audit Office.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) how much his Department allocated to civilian aid to Afghanistan between 1997 and 2008; [273850]

(2) how much his Department allocated to civilian aid to Iraq between 1997 and 2008; [273851]

(3) how much his Department allocated to civilian aid to (a) Israel and (b) Palestine between 1997 and 2008. [273852]

Mr. Michael Foster: All of the Department for International Development's (DFID) development assistance has the purpose of reducing poverty in the civilian populations of the countries in which it is provided.

Details of the UK's bilateral expenditure and imputed share of multilateral official development assistance (ODA) are contained in the DFID publication "Statistics on International Development". This publication is available in the Library of the House and online at www.dfid.gov.uk.

Afghanistan

7. Sir Robert Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his most recent assessment is of the humanitarian situation in Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [274664]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The UK Government have committed £22.5 million since January 2008 to support those in Afghanistan worst affected by the high food prices and drought.

£17 million of this was channelled through emergency appeals led by the UN World Food Programme (WFP). These reach 8.7 million people, and the WFP assess that there is sufficient food to stabilise supply from the current harvest onwards.

9. Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of his Department's spending through the UN Development Programme in Afghanistan. [274666]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The UNDP is an important partner for the Department for International Development in Afghanistan, providing expertise in areas such as voter registration and support for the democratic elections. The Department's funding has helped to ensure the success of the voter registration process. It also helped to launch the Afghanistan national development strategy, which unites the Governments of Afghanistan and the UK, and other partner Governments, behind a common vision to help to build a new Afghanistan.

Gaza

8. Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent support his Department has provided to charities and other non-governmental organisations working in Gaza. [274665]

Mr. Michael Foster: In response to the recent Gaza crisis, my Department has pledged close to £47 million to assist with humanitarian relief and early recovery. Of this, nearly £7 million has already been allocated to non-governmental organisations. A further £12.8 million has been allocated to United Nations agencies and the International Committee of the Red Cross.

10. Tony Lloyd: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress has been made on the delivery of assistance for reconstruction in Gaza; and if he will make a statement. [274667]

Mr. Michael Foster: In response to the recent Gaza crisis, the UK Government have committed nearly £20 million to United Nations agencies, the International Committee of the Red Cross and a number of non-governmental organisations to address urgent humanitarian and early recovery activities. This has included removing rubble, clearing unexploded ordnance and supporting cash for work schemes.

However, meaningful progress on reconstruction will not be possible without the opening of the crossings into Gaza to allow materials and personnel to enter. The UK Government are continuing to press the Government of Israel on this issue.

12. Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his most recent assessment is of the humanitarian situation in Gaza. [274669]

Mr. Michael Foster: The humanitarian situation in Gaza has stabilised since the ceasefire. However, the situation remains extremely concerning. Over 15,000 homes were destroyed or badly damaged during the crisis and over 30,000 homes sustained some damage. Approximately 32,000 people are without piped water, and a further 100,000 only receive water supplies every 2-3 days.

Success of the response effort will be dependent upon opening of the crossings in order to allow movement of materials and personnel into Gaza. The UK Government are continuing to press the Government of Israel on this issue.

Algeria

11. Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance his Department is providing to refugees from the Western Sahara in refugee camps in Algeria. [274668]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) supports Western Saharan refugees through its 17 per cent. share of the budget of the European Community Humanitarian Aid Office (ECHO) and its £19 million core contributions to the UN Refugee Agency (UNHCR), for its work with refugees across the world. In 2008, ECHO committed to provide €10 million to support Western Saharan refugees, while UNHCR spent $3.1 million in their support.

Development Aid

13. Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether he takes into account the level of military spending by a country in assessing its eligibility for development aid from his Department. [274670]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development's (DFID) policy is to give funding only to those Governments who share our commitment to (i) poverty reduction and achieving the millennium development goals, (ii) human rights and other international obligations and (iii) improving public financial management and accountability. Our assessment of each Government's commitment is country-specific and covers a wide range of issues. Where relevant, the level of military spending may be one factor. In countries where we decide not to provide funding to the Government, we may provide aid through other channels such as multilateral donors or non-governmental organisations.

St. Helena Airport

14. Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what estimate he has made of the effect on his Department's aid budget in the long term of the construction of an airport on St. Helena. [274671]

Mr. Michael Foster: The 2005 atkins feasibility study concluded that, without an airport, St. Helena will remain dependent on UK budgetary aid indefinitely. The study predicted that with the introduction of air access and development of the island's tourism industry, the need for financial support would reduce progressively with the increasing potential for St. Helena to become self sufficient in the long term.

Good Governance

15. Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what percentage of his Department's budget for 2009-10 is planned to be spent on promoting good governance in the developing world. [274672]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Support for good governance is central to the work of the Department for International Development (DFID). Twenty two per cent. of DFID's total spend in 2007-08, including that provided through multilateral partners such as the World Bank, the European Union and the United Nations Development Programme, was aimed at improving governance in developing countries. This included developing the capacity and accountability of institutions, such as parliaments and bureaucracies, to function and deliver effectively, as well as supporting civil society to hold governments to account and voice its concerns. We estimate that 23 per cent. of total spend in 2008-09 was similarly aimed and we expect this trend to continue.

Departmental Furniture

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department spent on furniture in each of the last five years. [273722]

Mr. Michael Foster: It is not possible to provide expenditure figures for furniture without incurring disproportionate cost. All furniture expenditure is incurred in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety, based on the principles of managing public money and the Treasury handbook on regularity and propriety.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department has spent on hospitality and entertainment in each of the last five years. [273889]

Mr. Michael Foster: It is not possible to provide expenditure figures for hospitality and entertainment without incurring disproportionate cost. All such costs are made in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety, based on the principles of managing public money and the Treasury handbook on regularity and propriety.

Departmental Stationery

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department has spent on branded stationery and gifts for (a) internal and (b) external promotional use in each of the last five years. [273785]

Mr. Michael Foster: This information is not held centrally, and would incur disproportionate costs to disaggregate from overall programme costs.

Yemen: Asylum

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what humanitarian aid his Department is providing to Somali and Ethiopian refugees in Yemen. [273619]

Mr. Michael Foster: The United Nations Refugee Agency (UNHCR) is the lead agency in Yemen for supporting Somali and Ethiopian refugees. UNHCR reports that 2008 saw a significant rise in the annual number of refugees arriving in Yemen: up by 70 per cent. to 50,091 during the year. DFID provides core funding of £19 million per year to UNHCR to assist refugees and internally displaced people. Some of that funding will have an impact on UNHCR's activities in Yemen to support Somali and Ethiopian refugees, as well as vulnerable Yemeni internally displaced persons.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Children: Maintenance

Mr. Denis Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many (a) complaints and (b) other representations his Department has received on the actions of bailiffs in the pursuit of child support arrears in the last 12 months; [271844]

(2) how much has been paid to bailiffs in fees and charges by the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission and its predecessor for the pursuit of child support arrears in the last 12 months; [271845]

(3) how many licensed bailiffs are engaged by the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission for the pursuit of child support arrears. [271846]

Kitty Ussher: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have therefore asked the Child Maintenance Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about child maintenance, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner as child support is now the responsibility of the Child Maintenance Enforcement Commission.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) complaints and (b) other representations his Department has received on the actions of bailiffs in the pursuit of child support arrears in the last 12 months. [271844];

How much has been paid to bailiffs in fees and charges by the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission and its predecessor for the pursuit of child support arrears in the last 12 months. [271845]; and

How many licensed bailiffs are engaged by the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission for the pursuit of child support arrears. [271846]

The Commission currently has contractual arrangements with three bailiff companies. In the 12 months to the end of March 2009, bailiff action resulted in the collection of over £8.9 million in child maintenance arrears, and the Commission paid a total of £1.4 million for this service.

All bailiff firms, including those contracted to the Agency, must comply with the National Standards for Enforcement Agents, a set of common standards produced by the Government as a code of practice. The licensed bailiffs, who work specifically on Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission cases, fall under the management of the bailiff companies who will deal with any complaints made to them. Information on the number of complaints made to the Commission about the action of bailiffs in collecting child support arrears is not available.

I am sorry on this occasion I could not be more helpful.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many staff work in the System Information and Assurance Group in his Department. [275171]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department's information security committee (a sub-committee of the Department's executive Team) is responsible for information security issues across the Department. Operational responsibility for security is assigned to respective chief executives and heads of businesses within the Department. Other senior staff in the Department's agencies have specific responsibilities for promoting data and IT system security and report to their respective chief executives. The Department does not have a system information and assurance group.

Following the publication of the Cabinet Office's review of data handling procedures in Government, specific senior civil servants across the Department have been designated as information asset owners who provide assurance to the Department's senior information risk owner that data assets are properly protected.

The Department also deploys a range of internal and external professional security resources and suppliers to both deliver and assure its IT Infrastructure and systems.

The Department does not publish details of the resources used to provide assurance over IT system security, staff or otherwise, as this could potentially threaten the security of information.

Departmental Telephone Services

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average time was for which telephone callers to his Department's helplines spent in a queue in the latest period for which information is available. [271118]

Mr. McNulty: Waiting time will vary significantly between days of the week and across the day depending on the type of benefit and query. Complex calls involving the longest handling times will usually incur the longest wait time at busiest periods.

Housing Benefit: Fraud

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many completed cases in which the defendant or defendants were accused of housing benefit fraud were brought to court in each of the last three years; how many prosecutions were successful; and what the average fine paid by a guilty party was in each such year. [274822]

Kitty Ussher: Information available for Great Britain for the last three years for which data are available is provided in the table.

	Number of prosecutions	Number of guilty verdicts
2005-06	7,717	6,234
2006-07	6,028	5,860
2007-08	6,611	6,493

The Department does not hold the information requested on fines paid by guilty parties following a prosecution for housing benefit.

Jobcentre Plus: English Language

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department is taking to offer translations of job vacancies advertised at Jobcentre Plus offices which are written in European languages other than English; and if he will make a statement. [271792]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 28 April 2009]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the right hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Ruth Owen:

The Secretary of State has asked Mel Groves to reply direct to your question asking what steps his Department is taking to offer translations of job vacancies advertised at Jobcentre Plus offices which are written in European languages other than English. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to Mel Groves as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus. As Mel Groves is currently unavailable, I am replying in his absence.

Jobcentre Plus is a member of the European Employment Services (EURES) network, which means that we are notified of vacancies across the European Economic Area (EEA). These vacancies can be searched and viewed in Jobcentre Plus offices because of the link between the Jobcentre Plus and EURES websites. The purpose of the link is to give Jobcentre Plus customers a wider pool of vacancies to search from and to help address areas of skill shortage across the EEA.

The vacancies have been notified to the public employment services of the individual countries in the EEA and Jobcentre Plus is not responsible for their content. This is clearly stated on the vacancies in a disclaimer which reads as follows: "This vacancy has been notified by a public employment service outside Great Britain. You should carefully check the terms and conditions of employment before taking up any job offer. Jobcentre Plus is not responsible for the content of this vacancy."

Employers in other EEA countries expect applicants for their vacancies to be able to speak and understand their language. Similarly Jobcentre Plus vacancies appear in the English language when viewed in other EEA countries. As a result, there are no plans to translate these vacancies.

Jobcentre Plus: Pay

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what (a) salaries, (b) pension benefits and (c) bonuses have been received by each member of the Jobcentre Plus board of management in each year since 2002. [264270]

Mr. McNulty: The available information can be obtained from the Jobcentre Plus annual report and accounts for each year, copies of which have been placed in the Library.

Jobcentre Plus: Vocational Training

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many customers were referred for skills training by Jobcentre Plus (a) in each year since 2002 and (b) each of the last 24 months in each (i) region and (ii) Jobcentre Plus district. [264266]

Mr. McNulty: The information is not collated centrally due to the extensive range of training, both in-house and delivered by external partners.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people he forecasts will be claiming contribution-based jobseeker's allowance in each of the next three years. [265572]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 23 March 2009]: The Government set out their assessment of prospects for the economy in the Financial Statement and Budget Report. As has been the practice of previous Governments, we do not publish an official forecast for claimant unemployment, whether in total or separately for the contributory, income-based and credits-only sections of the caseload.

For the purposes of the public finance projections the Treasury uses a planning assumption for the level of the UK claimant count in each year. This assumption is based on independent forecasts, and is audited by the independent National Audit Office. The numbers within this assumption which are assumed to be contributory cases are shown in the following table:

	Number of claimants to contributory jobseeker's allowance
2009-10	304,000
2010-11	378,000

Notes:
1. The figures quoted above relate to JSA claimants in Great Britain. They are rounded to the nearest thousand claimants.
2. These figures are the average number of claimants over the financial years shown.
3. The figures quoted in the Budget and pre-Budget reports are for seasonally adjusted claimant unemployment in the UK. This is a cautious assumption based on the average of external forecasts and is not the Treasury's economic forecast.
4. The Budget report 2009 can be found at:
http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/bud_bud09_repindex.htm
The latest assumption can be found on page 221 (box C1).

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of the population is claiming jobseeker's allowance in (a) the UK and (b) Romford constituency. [272483]

Mr. McNulty: Latest figures show that 4.0 per cent. of the UK working age population and 3.7 per cent. of the Romford working age population are claiming jobseeker's allowance.

Notes:

1. Percentages are rounded to one decimal place.

2. Data is published at:

https://www.nomisweb.co.uk

3. Data includes clerical cases.

4. The percentage of the population is calculated using the latest ONS mid-year population estimates. These are from 2007 for the UK and 2006 for Romford parliamentary constituency.

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of the working age population in (a) the UK, (b) Northampton and (c) Kettering constituency is claiming jobseeker's allowance. [273804]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 8 May 2009]: The information requested is shown in the following table.

Jobseeker's allowance claimants in the UK, Northampton local authority and Kettering parliamentary constituency as a proportion of the working age population, March 2009

	Percentage
United Kingdom	4.0
Northampton local authority	4.9
Kettering parliamentary constituency	3.8

Notes:
1. UK and local authority population estimates are taken from the ONS 2007 mid-year population statistics.
2. Parliamentary constituency population figures are ONS experimental mid-2007 population estimates. (The methodology used to produce these parliamentary constituency estimates is subject to further review).
3. Working age is classified as females aged 16 to 59 and males aged 16 to 64.
4. Figures include clerically held cases.
5. Percentages are rounded to the nearest one decimal place.

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of young people in (a) West Chelmsford constituency and (b) Chelmsford local authority area claimed jobseeker's allowance in each of the last 10 years. [271986]

Mr. McNulty: Information for West Chelmsford parliamentary constituency is not available.

Information for Chelmsford local authority is shown in the following table.

Proportion of young people aged 18-24 in Chelmsford local authority area claiming jobseeker's allowance

As at March each year	Percentage
2002	2.1

Local Housing Allowance

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what expenditure his Department incurred on the local housing allowance pilot scheme in each of the years in which it was operational. [266286]

Kitty Ussher: The local housing allowance was tested in pilot local authorities prior to national roll-out. There were nine pilot authorities in 2004-05, and 18 from 2005-06.

The total benefit expenditure (AME) on the local housing allowance pilot scheme in each of the years in which it was operational are in the table.

Total benefit expenditure on the local housing allowance pilots per year

2004-05	199

Data obtained from audited final subsidy claims, with the exception of Norwich's 2007-08 data, which is obtained from the pre-audit claim (the audited claim has not yet been submitted).

Information on the total administration costs (DEL) of each of the pilot areas is not available. Pilot local authorities received funding based on what it was reasonably expected to cost them in administering the local housing allowance.

All pilot areas received additional funding to implement the local housing allowance, run the pilot project, contribute to the evaluation activity and procure the necessary software. Information on the level of this additional funding for each year the pilot was in operation is in the table.

National Insurance: EU Nationals

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many national insurance numbers were issued in Peterborough to citizens of EU member states other than the UK in each month since May 2004; and if he will make a statement. [269009]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 20 April 2009]: The available information regarding the number of national insurance numbers issued to adult citizens of other EU member states in Peterborough is in the following table.

Registrations for national insurance numbers to citizens of the European Union—other than the UK (Includes EU Accession States) in the Peterborough parliamentary constituency

Year of registration	Number of registrations
2004-05	2,350
2005-06	3,630
2006-07	3,460
2007-08	3,520

Notes:
1. Figures are displayed in thousands. Some additional disclosure control has been applied.
2. Registration date is derived from the date at which a national insurance number is maintained on the National Insurance Recording System.
3. Improvements have been made to the allocation of migrants whose residential address is incomplete. Figures reflect the best estimate of an overseas national's locality at the time of registering for a NINO.
4. Data for 2008-09 is incomplete and shows that in the six months April to September 2008 there were 1,680 NINO registrations issued to citizens of EU member states living in Peterborough.
5. This data is published at:

Pension Credit: Hendon

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many pensioners in Hendon constituency receive (a) pension credit and (b) guarantee credit; and what the average amount paid to such individuals under each scheme has been to date in 2009. [272302]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The answer is in the following table:

Household recipients and average weekly amounts of pension credit by type—November 2003 to August 2008 in Hendon

November 2003	3,430	62.38	1,990	84.42	1,250	35.30	180	9.08
November 2004	4,150	61.35	2,150	89.71	1,470	38.56	530	9.58
November 2005	4,360	64.98	2,330	93.37	1,470	40.93	560	10.51
November 2006	4,380	69.40	2,370	98.04	1,480	44.05	530	12.06
November 2007	4,350	73.13	2,420	101.51	1,430	46.15	500	13.10
August 2008	4,330	77.22	2,520	104.94	1,330	47.75	480	13.33

1. The number of households in receipt are rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Household recipients are those people who claim pension credit either for themselves only or on behalf of a household.
3. People can receive guarantee credit only, guarantee credit and savings credit, or savings credit only.
4. Totals may not sum due to rounding.

Rover Group: Pensions

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will meet a delegation of ex-Rover employees to discuss the Rover pension scheme. [272361]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I met the hon. Member in March to discuss the position of a number of individuals, including members of the Rover pension schemes, who took early retirement before the relevant scheme entered the pension protection fund (PPF).

PPF compensation payable to scheme members who are under the scheme's normal pension age when the sponsoring employer becomes insolvent is subject to the compensation cap. The compensation cap affects compensation payable to active and deferred members and those who take early retirement and remain under normal pension age at the point of insolvency unless that early retirement was on the grounds of ill health.

The cap ensures consistent treatment, based on age, relative to the trigger point for entry to the PPF. It also ensures that people who are able to take early retirement before the insolvency event are not placed in a more beneficial position than people who stay in employment.

A person who takes early retirement before the PPF becomes involved with the scheme is not treated any less favourably than a person under normal pension age who did not take early retirement. Both are eligible for the 90 per cent. level of compensation and both are subject to the compensation cap. While both will have the cap actuarially reduced if they draw compensation before age 65 the person who took early retirement before the PPF became involved could have had a number of years where they were in receipt of their pension at full rate and the PPF does not recover those amounts.

After careful consideration the Government has decided not to make any changes. We realise that this decision will be a disappointment for some people. Any change could impose extra costs and we need to bear in mind not only those people who receive PPF compensation but also those people who pay the PPF levy to enable that compensation to be paid.

Social Security Benefits: Disqualification

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate the level of savings to the public purse which would result from the compulsory treatment of drug addicts and alcoholics in each of the next six financial years. [272257]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not currently available. We will pilot the new approach in a limited number of districts and evaluate carefully. This process will then inform future plans.

Social Security Benefits: Eligibility

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment his Department has made of the effects of payments received by individuals as the result of successful claims on (a) income protection insurance policies, (b) standalone payment protection insurance policies and (c) accident, sickness or unemployment policies on the entitlement of those individuals to a means-tested state benefit; and if he will make a statement. [272627]

Mr. McNulty: Monies received from income protection, standalone payment protection and accident, sickness or unemployment policies are taken into account when calculating entitlement to the working age means tested benefits. In certain circumstances payments intended to cover housing costs, credit or hire-purchase agreements may be disregarded.

State pension credit, which is for a different type of client group, allows these types of payments to be disregarded.

State Retirement Pensions

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was spent on state retirement pensions in each year since 1997. [272568]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The information is in the table. Total state pensions expenditure figures include contributory basic state pension, non-contributory basic state pension and additional state pension.

Total expenditure on state pensions

		£ million
	Nominal terms	2009-10 prices
1997-98	33,586	44,069

2007-08	57,593	59,623
2008-09	61,632	62,249

Notes:
1. All figures to 2007-08 are out-turn, figures for 2008-09 are our latest estimates
2. Figures are consistent with the Budget 2009 report and have been rounded to the nearest £ million.
3. Basic state pension expenditure includes graduated retirement pension. Additional state pension expenditure relates to the SERPS (state earnings-related pension scheme and the state second pension and includes lump sum payments made to pensioners who have deferred claiming their state pension. The state second pension began on 6 April 2002.
4. Real terms expenditure figures have been calculated using gross domestic product deflators updated after the 2009 Budget report on 22 April 2009 and published on the HM Treasury website.

Winter Fuel Payments

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many cold weather payments were made to households in West Chelmsford constituency in each of the last five years. [254755]

Kitty Ussher: In each of the years 2004-05 to 2007-08, no cold weather payments were made to households in West Chelmsford constituency. In 2008-09, cold weather payments were triggered three times for West Chelmsford constituency, but an estimate of the total number of payments made is not available, by constituency, only by weather station.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Departmental Buildings

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department and its predecessors spent on building maintenance in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274553]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Since April 2004, the Department for Children, Schools and Families and its predecessor has spent the following amounts on building maintenance on our four headquarter sites in London, Sheffield, Darlington and Runcorn:

2004-05	2,254,511
2005-06	2,031,004
2006-07	1,788,435
2007-08	1,903,001
2008-09	1,876,348
Total	9,853,299

Education: Assessments

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if his Department will bring forward plans to create a single unified examination board. [274088]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: There are no plans to create a single awarding body. Ofqual recognises a number of different awarding bodies which offer GCSEs, A-levels, diplomas and other qualifications. This ensures teachers have choice and flexibility about the qualifications that are most suitable for their students.

Qualifications offered by independent organisations with, for example, links to universities are more likely to be credible and respected. The Apprenticeships, Skills, Children and Learners Bill currently before Parliament would ensure that Ofqual has the powers to ensure maintenance of standards by and between the different awarding bodies.

Education: Expenditure

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of gross domestic product the Government have spent on education in each of the last 15 years. [273794]

Jim Knight: Details of expenditure as a proportion of GDP for the financial year 2008/09 are not yet available. Figures for the financial years 1993/94 to 2007/08, as published in the Public Expenditure Statistical Analyses 2008 are provided in the following table.

	Percentage of GDP
1993/94	5.1
1994/95	5.0
1995/96	4.9
1996/97	4.7
1997/98	4.5
1998/99	4.4

GCE A-level

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils were entered for A-level examinations (a) including equivalents and (b) excluding equivalents in each (i) local authority, (ii) constituency and (iii) area classified by decile of deprivation in the last year for which figures are available. [274588]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The requested information will be placed in the House Libraries. Further information by local authority and income deprivation affecting children index decile is published by the Department in table 9 and 13 of the Statistical First Release 'GCEA/CE/Applied A/AS and Equivalent Results in England, 2007/08 (Revised)':

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000827/index.shtml

GCSE: Disadvantaged

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of pupils receiving free school meals gained five A* to C grade GCSEs including English and mathematics but excluding equivalents in each of the last 10 years. [244286]

Jim Knight: The information available is given in the following table. Figures for those achieving five A*-C grades including English and mathematics and including equivalents are also presented.

Percentage

Proportion eligible for FSM gaining 5+ A-C GCSEs including English and mathematics*

	Excluding equivalents	Including equivalents
2008	21.3	23.5
2007	19.7	21.1
2006	18.4	19.5
2005	17.3	18.0
2004	15.7	16.1
2003	15.5	16.0

Notes:
1. Figures relate to pupils in maintained schools only.
2. Figures for 2003 and 2004 relate to pupils aged 15. Figures from 2005 to 2008 relate to pupils at the end of Key Stage 4.
3. Figures prior to 2003 are not available.
4. Only achievements in full GCSEs are counted in the 'excluding equivalents' column.

Pupils: Absenteeism

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many days of unauthorised absence were recorded in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in West Chelmsford constituency in each of the last five years. [271983]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Information is not available in the form requested. The available information on the number of days of unauthorised absence in Essex local authority for the last five years is shown in the table. To provide data at constituency level would incur disproportionate cost.

Absence data are normally reported in terms of sessions. There are two sessions per day.

School Milk

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will make dairy products other than milk eligible for distribution under the school milk scheme. [274171]

Jane Kennedy: I have been asked to reply.

We have recently consulted on this matter and are currently considering possible options.

Schools: Bullying

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what guidance his Department provides to schools on dealing with racist bullying. [273577]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Schools have a duty to promote race equality and it is compulsory for schools to have measures in place to prevent and tackle bullying, whatever the motivation. In March 2006 we published specialist guidance on bullying around race, religion and culture which focused on preventing and tackling racist bullying in schools. We are funding the Anti-Bullying Alliance and the national strategies to ensure this work is embedded in schools.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of his Department's steps to tackle racist bullying in schools; and if he will make a statement. [273578]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: We have introduced an indicator on bullying that underpins the child safety public service agreement (PSA 13, NI69), and made it clear that we expect the proportion of children and young people who experience bullying to go down over the spending review period. We have made clear that we will monitor progress on this indicator using the annual TellUs survey. The Department has also set up a board to monitor progress against the PSA. The board will look at a range of evidence and data to ensure that we are making satisfactory progress against this indicator including evidence in respect of bullying related to race. We will seek to ensure that the level of racist bullying goes down in line with any general reduction.

We are funding the Anti-Bullying Alliance and national strategies to help drive improvements in anti-bullying practice on the ground. Both organisations are working with local authorities and schools to ensure the Department's "Safe to Learn" guidance, including the guidance on 'Bullying Related to Race "Religion and Culture", is effectively implemented on the ground.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with which external organisations his Department works to assist schools in countering racist bullying. [273579]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department works with the Anti-Bullying Alliance and the National Strategies to help schools counter racist bullying, and we have sought advice from the Runnymede Trust on our new and emerging policy initiatives. In addition, many of our other external partners, including ChildLine in Partnership with Schools and Beatbullying, have taken forward various programmes and initiatives with a specific focus on racist bullying.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the availability of professional development opportunities for teachers in relation to prevention of racist bullying. [273580]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department's anti-bullying guidance recommends that schools review general and specific staff induction and continuing professional development and identify how to ensure staff training reflects the anti-bullying policy and practice of the school. Funding for teachers' professional development is included within schools' delegated budgets which enables them to take decisions about what professional development best meets their and their teachers' needs.

The national strategies work closely with behaviour and attendance consultants in local authorities to identify staff training needs. They look at whether this should include staff training in tackling racist bullying, as part of their work.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many racist incidents were recorded in schools in (a) Leicester City local education authority and (b) England in each of the last five years. [273581]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: We are unable to provide figures for the number of racist bullying incidents in schools as this information is not collected centrally. Our bullying guidance recommends currently that schools record incidents of bullying and use the data to monitor their anti-bullying policies, and that local authorities use the data to identify trends and to evaluate area-wide initiatives. The Race Relations (Amendment) Act 2000 places a general, enforceable duty on all schools (and other public bodies) to: eliminate unlawful racial discrimination; promote equality of opportunity; and promote good relations between people of different racial groups.

We intend to introduce a new statutory duty on schools to record all incidents of bullying between pupils early next year, and will specifically consult on whether schools should be obliged to record racist bullying incidents and report these incidents to their local authority.

Schools: Ceramics

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will meet representatives of the British Ceramics Confederation to discuss the contribution of ceramic table and catering ware to the Healthy Schools Programme. [272365]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: I shall ask my officials from the National Healthy Schools programme to arrange a meeting with members of the British Ceramics Confederation to explore this proposal in more detail.

Schools: Crosby

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much funding his Department provided for schools in Crosby constituency in the last five years; and what building projects relating to schools have been undertaken in Crosby constituency in each of those years. [273609]

Jim Knight: Capital funding for schools is allocated on a local authority rather than on a constituency basis. Accordingly, records are kept on a local authority basis. Funding allocated to Sefton local authority in the past five years is set out in the following table.

	£ million
2004-05	12.1
2005-06	13.3
2006-07	17.0
2008-09	13.3

Sefton was also allocated £23.7 million in 2007-08 to rebuild one of its secondary schools, through the Building School for the Future one-school pathfinder programme.

The Department does not keep records of individual projects, as local authorities decide priorities in their commissioning role.

Schools: Information and Communications Technology

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number of computers per child in primary schools in (a) Crosby constituency, (b) Merseyside and (c) England. [273613]

Jim Knight: In 2008 there was an average of 27 computers per primary school in England. This is equivalent to one computer for every 6.25 pupils. We do not have localised figures for the constituency of Crosby or for Merseyside.

Schools: Knives

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent steps his Department has taken to prevent the carrying of knives by pupils in schools. [272956]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Although the illegal use of knives on school premises is not widespread, in May 2007 we introduced a power for head teachers in England to search, without consent, any pupil they suspected of carrying a weapon, the purpose being to help reduce the number of knives carried on the streets. Schools also have the powers to screen pupils at random using electronic screens or arches. Most recently, we have been encouraging schools to engage with local police in safer school partnerships in order to arrange the screening of pupils in more troubled locations.

Schools: Leyton

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much funding has been provided for schools in Leyton and Wanstead constituency in the last five years; and what building projects relating to schools have been undertaken in that constituency in each of those years. [273337]

Jim Knight: Allocations are made and records maintained on a local authority basis. Those made to Redbridge and Waltham Forest in the last five years are set out in the following table:

	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2007-08	2008-09	£ million Total
Redbridge	16.8	20.9	17.2	17.8	15.5	88.2
Waltham Forest	10.3	10.8	7.0	7.2	18.9	54.2
Total	27.1	31.7	24.2	25.0	34.4	142.4

Waltham Forest is also benefiting from Building Schools for the Future investment. It is currently estimated that this investment will total around £250 million. In addition, Redbridge was allocated a BSF One School Pathfinder project in 2007-08, to a value of £40 million.

As it is local authorities' responsibility to plan and commission building work, the Department does not maintain records centrally of individual projects relating to schools.

Schools: Security

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) on how many occasions schools have exercised the power to screen randomly pupils using metal detectors in arches or hand-held wands since October 2006; and how many weapons have been recovered as a result of such searches; [274076]

(2) how many searches without consent have been conducted by schools of pupils suspected of carrying a weapon since May 2007; and how many weapons have been recovered as a result of such searches. [274077]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department does not collect figures on searching. Our inquiries over time suggest that few head teachers are utilising the power to search any pupil they suspect of carrying a weapon but the power is available should they decide such action is appropriate for their school. We have encouraged schools, through directors of children's services, to liaise with the police in safer school partnerships over random screening but we believe such screenings remain low in number, although figures are not collected.

Science: GCSE

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if his Department will bring forward proposals to make GCSE science courses more interesting and challenging for pupils. [274090]

Jim Knight: A new programme of study for science at Key Stage 4 was introduced into schools for first teaching from September 2006. The new curriculum maintains the breadth, depth and challenge of the previous curriculum, but has a better balance between knowledge and understanding. Pupils now learn more about the applications and implications of science (for example, global warming and genetic screening).

GCSE specifications were also revised from September 2006 to reflect the new programme of study. The Qualification and Curriculum Authority is currently reviewing the GCSE science criteria again with a view to revised specifications being taught from September 2011: these changes will ensure that the content remains up to date and engaging, and will address concerns about the level of challenge in some assessments identified in the recent Ofqual review of the 2006 specifications. Awarding bodies have also made changes to this summer's assessments in response to the Ofqual report.

Secondary Education

Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many maintained secondary schools of each type there are in England. [274287]

Jim Knight: The information is as follows:

Type of education	Middle deemed secondary schools	Secondary schools	Grand total
Community	160	1,706	1,866
Foundation	21	690	711
Voluntary aided	28	516	544
Voluntary controlled	22	81	103
Grand Total	231	2,993	3,224

Specialised Diplomas

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools in areas in each decile of deprivation are (a) offering at least one diploma course to pupils and (b) part of a consortium offering at least one such course. [274377]

Jim Knight: We do not hold information on the decile of deprivation of consortia members.

Truancy: Havering

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the truancy rate for (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in the London borough of Havering was in the latest period for which figures are available. [272864]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Information is collected on authorised and unauthorised absence.

Unauthorised absence is absence without leave from a teacher or other authorised representative of the school. This includes all unexplained or unjustified absences such as lateness, holidays during term time not authorised by the school, absence for which reason is not yet established, and truancy. Information collected by my Department on absence is a more comprehensive measure of children's missed schooling. Our focus is on reducing all forms of absence, not just a small subset. The issue is not whether the pupil had permission to be absent; it is how much absence the pupil has.

Primary and secondary schools[1,2] absence rate[3,4] 2007/08—Havering local authority

	2007/08
	Primary[1]	Secondary[1,2]
Authorised absence rate	4.86	6.23
Unauthorised absence rate	0.47	1.07
Overall absence rate	5.33	7.30

[1] Includes middle schools as deemed.
[2] Excludes city technology colleges and academies.
[3] Includes pupils age five to 15 who were on roll for at least one session from the start of the school year up until 23 May 2008, excluding boarders.
[4] The total number of half day sessions lost to authorised/unauthorised/overall absence, as a percentage of the total number of possible sessions.
Note:
Figures have been rounded to the nearest 10.

SCOTLAND

Business: Government Assistance

Mr. Donohoe: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent discussions he has had with the Scottish Executive on assistance for small businesses in Scotland. [275271]

Ann McKechin: My right hon. Friend continues to have constructive and helpful meetings on the economy and support for business with the First Minister, CBI Scotland and STUC.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Information and Communications Technology

Tim Loughton: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how many and what proportion of computers on the House of Commons part of parliamentary estate have been found to be infected with malware in the last 12 months. [275670]

Nick Harvey: In the past 12 months 86 per cent. of computers on the estate have been attacked by malware, 78 per cent. of which were cleaned automatically by Parliament's anti-virus software, with 8 per cent. needing a visit by an engineer. There are 4,991 computers on the estate.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Bloody Sunday Tribunal of Inquiry

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland pursuant to the answers of 24 April 2009, Official Report, column 974W, on the Bloody Sunday Tribunal of Inquiry: legal costs, and 30 March 2009, Official Report, columns 851-2W, on the Bloody Sunday Tribunal of Inquiry, in which financial year the legal costs paid in relation to the inquiry in each month since August 2008 were incurred. [274154]

Mr. Woodward: In relation to the lawyers working for the inquiry, I am advised that the costs paid in each month since August 2008 were paid in the same financial year as they were incurred. In relation to the lawyers representing interested parties and witnesses before the inquiry, I am advised that one payment was made in February 2009 to cover costs incurred from July 2001 to December 2004. The payment of these retrospective costs was delayed as they were the subject of lengthy negotiations on the final settlement.

Departmental Dismissal

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many members of staff in his Department and its agencies were dismissed (a) for under-performance and (b) in total in each of the last 10 years. [274309]

Paul Goggins: In the Northern Ireland Office, one member of staff has been dismissed for under-performance and 25 members of staff in total have been dismissed from 2002 to date. The following table shows a breakdown of dismissals since 2002.

	Number of staff dismissed
2003	0
2004	4
2005	1
2006	5
2007	8
2008	4

Departmental Work Experience

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many work placements his Department offered to (a) school pupils, (b) university students and (c) graduates in each of the last five years. [274480]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Office facilitates week-long unpaid work experience placements for GCSE students, as well as year-long paid placements for university students as part of their IT degree courses. In addition, the Department offers paid summer placements to undergraduates and graduates with disabilities or from ethnic minorities under a Cabinet Office programme to increase diversity in the civil service fast stream.

The following table gives details of placements offered in the last five years.

GCSE students	6	2	3	1	5
IT sandwich students	4	3	3	0	0
Summer placements	1	2	1	2	0

Security

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessment he has made of the security situation in Northern Ireland; and if he will make a statement. [274613]

Paul Goggins: The 21st Report of the Independent Monitoring Commission, published on 7 May, made clear that dissident activity in the period under review had been at its highest level since they started to report. The continuing high level of violent activity, often with the intention to kill members of the Police Service of Northern Ireland or other security force personnel, is an attempt to destroy the peace process.

The completion of devolution will do more than anything to undermine the dissidents.

I welcome the IMC's comments that both the UDA and UVF are beginning to address the issue of decommissioning. The Government's position is very clear. When the Secretary of State renewed the decommissioning amnesty for the final time in February, he asked the Independent International Commission on Decommissioning for a further report on progress in August. If there has not been substantial progress the decommissioning legislation will be brought to an end.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Local Government: Reorganisation

Jo Swinson: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what criteria govern the (a) definition and (b) review of local authority boundaries by the Boundary Committee for England; what guidance the Commission has issued to the Committee on (i) the conduct of its work, (ii) whom to consult in defining local authority boundaries and (iii) the account to be taken in future reviews of new housing developments built close to existing local authority boundaries. [275674]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that when conducting reviews of local authority boundaries, the Boundary Committee for England can recommend to the Secretary of State the alteration of a local government boundary; the abolition of a local government area; or the constitution of a new local government area.

The Committee must have regard to the need to secure effective and convenient local government; and the need to reflect the identities and interests of local communities.

The Electoral Commission's role in relation to boundary reviews is limited to ensuring that the Boundary Committee has sufficient resources to carry out its programme of work. It has not provided the Boundary Committee with guidance or otherwise on the conduct of such reviews, who should be consulted or the matters that should be taken into account.

Local Government: Suffolk

Mr. Spring: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what data on the views of the general public were used by the Boundary Committee for England in formulating its options for consultation on the future structure of local government in Suffolk. [275178]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that in formulating its further draft proposals for public consultation, the Boundary Committee had regard to the representations made to it during its July 2008 consultations. All of these representations are available to view on the Electoral Commission's website.

Mr. Spring: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission how much funding from the public purse had been spent by the Boundary Committee for England on the structural review of Suffolk local government on the latest date for which figures are available; and how much such funding is available for that review for the remainder of the 2009-10 financial year. [275190]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that the total costs of the Suffolk structural review to 25 March 2009 are £282,535.

For the financial year 2009-10, £269,782 has been allocated for the structural reviews of Devon, Norfolk and Suffolk. Costs for 2009-10 have not been broken down by individual review.

Mr. Spring: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what proportion of town and parish councils which expressed a view on the Boundary Committee for England's structural review of Suffolk local government expressed support for one of its preferred patterns without modification. [275221]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that an analysis by the Boundary Committee of the level of support, or otherwise, from parish and town councils for patterns of unitary local government is not yet complete. Consultation on the Committee's further draft proposals for Suffolk ends on 14 May. After that date, the Committee will consider all representations received in deciding, what, if any, advice to provide to the Secretary of State. An analysis of the representations received will be published at the end of the review.

Mr. Spring: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what ratio of residents to councillors is used in the business case for the pattern (a) A and (b) B option under consideration in the Boundary Committee for England's structural review of Suffolk local government. [275222]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that the ratio of residents to councillors is not among the criteria that the Boundary Committee has used to identify its further draft proposals.

Mr. Spring: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission how many of the responses to the Boundary Committee for England's July 2008 consultation on the structure of local government in Suffolk expressed the view that Lowestoft should remain part of Suffolk. [275223]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that of the 1,585 respondents who expressed a view on whether Lowestoft should be included in a Norfolk based authority, 1,326 respondents specifically stated that they considered it should be retained in a Suffolk based authority.

OLYMPICS

Departmental Stationery

Bob Spink: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much (a) her Office and (b) the Government Olympic Executive spent on the purchase of (i) recycled office supplies in the last 12 months and (ii) printer ink cartridges in each year since her Office was established. [274573]

Tessa Jowell: My Office has been part of the Cabinet Office since July 2007, while the Government Olympic Executive (GOE) is part of the Department for Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS).

The Cabinet Office and the DCMS purchase recycled office supplies and printer ink cartridges in bulk, and it is not possible to apportion costs for my Office and for the GOE respectively.

The Cabinet Office cost and DCMS costs will be outlined in the answers provided by the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster and the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport respectively.

Departmental Training

Bob Spink: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much her Office has spent on IT training for (a) its staff and (b) staff of the Government Olympic Executive in each year since her Office was established. [274237]

Tessa Jowell: My Office has been part of the Cabinet Office since July 2007, while the Government Olympic Executive (GOE) is part of the Department for Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS).

The Cabinet Office and the DCMS have provided IT training for all staff who need it, but it is not possible to apportion costs for my Office and for the GOE respectively.

The Cabinet Office costs and DCMS costs will be outlined in the answers provided by the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster and the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport respectively.

TREASURY

Banks: Ireland

James Brokenshire: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the value of deposits held by UK citizens in banks in the Republic of Ireland. [270939]

Ian Pearson: As a matter of course, HM Treasury does not comment on individual financial institutions.

Individual Savings Accounts

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the likely effect on the number of people using Individual Savings Accounts of the measures announced in the Budget 2009. [275237]

Ian Pearson: ISAs are extremely popular, with over 18 million people now holding an account. The higher ISA limits announced at Budget for people aged 50 and over from 6 October 2009 and from 6 April 2010 for all savers, will allow all adults to save more tax-free, and could directly benefit over five million individuals who make full use of either their cash or overall ISA allowance.

International Monetary Fund

Mr. Francois: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his policy is on the representation of EU member states by one voice at the International Monetary Fund; and if he will make a statement. [268603]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 2 April 2009]: Representation in international fora is a matter for individual member states. EU member states are individually members of the International Monetary Fund and are not represented by the EU or by a single voice. Co-ordination procedures between EU member states on international financial issues were agreed upon at the Vienna European Council of 1998 and developed subsequently in discussions among Finance Ministers in Oviedo and Copenhagen in 2002. The Government continue to support these procedural agreements.

Stamp Duty Land Tax

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his most recent estimate is of the effect on house prices of the stamp duty land tax holiday for properties costing up to £175,000. [275236]

Ian Pearson: As a result of the holiday over 60 per cent. of UK housing is exempt from stamp duty land tax.

No estimate has been made on the effect on house prices of the stamp duty land tax holiday for properties costing up to £175,000.

Taxation: Bingo

Mr. Betts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the implications of the ruling by the VAT and Duties Tribunal in 2008 that the application of value added tax to bingo interval games breached the EU principle of fiscal neutrality for the application of VAT to bingo interval games. [274766]

Mr. Timms: No recent assessment has been made. HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) disagreed with the decision of the Tribunal in the case in question and has appealed to the High Court. This appeal was heard in March this year. HMRC is awaiting the Court's decision.

TRANSPORT

Rolling Stock

7. Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his most recent estimate is of levels of requirement for new rolling stock for the railways; and if he will make a statement. [275297]

12. James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his most recent assessment is of the level of requirement for new rolling stock for the railways; and if he will make a statement. [275303]

Paul Clark: The Government are committed to the delivery of 1,300 additional carriages on the network by 2014 to provide additional capacity in our busiest cities. The Thameslink Programme will provide up to 1,200 new carriages for services in London and the South East and the Intercity Express Programme will provide up to 1,400 new carriages for use on long distance routes across the country.

Street Works: Permit Schemes

8. Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the implementation of permit schemes for street works; and if he will make a statement. [275299]

Paul Clark: The permit scheme regulations were made on 28 November and came into force 1 April 2008. The Department is currently considering applications from Kent and from Transport for London and 13 London boroughs for permit scheme powers.

Permit scheme applications are assessed against statutory criteria and the Secretary of State cannot announce approval unless applicants have demonstrated compliance with those criteria.

We have undertaken to report to Parliament on the evaluation of the first implemented permit schemes, following their first year of operation.

Stations' Champions

9. Michael Fabricant: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the remit of stations' champions is; and if he will make a statement. [275300]

Paul Clark: The two station champions, Sir Peter Hall and Chris Green, have been asked to advise on ways to improve stations, considering the broader role of stations in the future and the minimum levels of service and facilities that should be offered, as well as identifying improvements that can be made in the shorter term.

London-Scotland High-speed Rail Link

10. John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions he has had with the Scottish Executive on proposals for a high-speed rail link between London and Scotland. [275301]

Mr. Hoon: My noble Friend the Minister of State for Transport, Lord Adonis, last met the Scottish Executive Minister for Transport, Infrastructure and Climate Change, the Cabinet Secretary for Finance and Sustainable Growth, and Transport Scotland officials on 24 April 2009, to discuss high speed rail.

Road Maintenance Standards

11. Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what role his Department has in setting standards for maintenance on local authority-maintained roads; and if he will make a statement. [275302]

Paul Clark: The maintenance of local roads in England is the responsibility of local highway authorities. It is for the local highway authority to assess which parts of the network are in need of repair, and what standards should be applied based upon their local knowledge and experience.

Speed Limits

Mr. Mackay: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent representations he has received on proposed changes to speed limits; and if he will make a statement. [275293]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Our consultation "A Safer Way" on road safety published on 21 April, aims to reduce road deaths by a third by 2020. We make a range of proposals and there are two carefully targeted to reduce speeds:

(1) That local authorities reduce limits to 20 mph on roads of a primarily residential nature and around schools; and

(2) That highway authorities reduce limits on the more dangerous rural single carriageways from 60 mph, where the evidence supports it.

We have started receiving representations and the closing date is 14 July 2009.

A38: Cornwall

Mr. Breed: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans he has to improve road safety on the A38 between Saltash and Liskeard; and if he will make a statement. [275284]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Highways Agency has undertaken seven safety improvement schemes on this length of the A38 in the last seven years, improving highway infrastructure and increasing driver awareness of the varied characteristics of this route. A further nine schemes are presently being considered for taking forward subject to funding availability.

Aerotoxic Syndrome

Ms Gisela Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether his Department is conducting research into a condition referred to as aerotoxic syndrome. [274679]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport is conducting research into cabin air fume events which involves capturing samples of cabin air during normal conditions and fume events and analysing them to see what substances they contain and in what concentrations. The independent Committee on Toxicity (a panel including toxicologists from various universities) completed a substantial review of evidence in September 2007 and concluded that the evidence available did not establish a link between cabin air and pilot ill health, but nor did it rule one out.

Air Routes

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether his Department plans to restrict aircraft leased to fly UK routes to those of UK carriers; and if he will make a statement. [274280]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport has no such plans.

Aviation: Redundancy

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) whether he has had recent discussions with (a) the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions and (b) representatives of the British Airline Pilots Association on the development of a customised redundancy package for airline pilots; and if he will make a statement; [274228]

(2) what recent assessment he has made of the effects of the operation of age discrimination legislation on airline employers' selection of pilots for redundancy; and if he will make a statement. [274299]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The pilots' trade union BALPA has written to me about the impact of the current economic situation on pilots, and I have offered to meet them.

Departmental Buildings

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department spent on building maintenance in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274564]

Mr. Hoon: The information requested is provided in the following table.

2004-05	5,116,291
2005-06	6,044,746
2006-07	5,988,013
2007-08	6,560,895
2008-09	6,951,467

Note:
Above excludes:
a. Contractual fixed costs at our main London HQ as the data is not recorded in the format requested.
b. Spend at the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency as the requested data is not separately recorded

All costs relate to routine repair and/or replacement of existing facilities.

Departmental Contracts

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which services his Department has outsourced in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274443]

Mr. Hoon: The following contracts have been outsourced by the Department for Transport since April 2004.

Department/Executive agency	Details of outsourced contact	Contract start date
Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA)	Estates PFI (Private Finance Initiative) providing FM (Facilities Management) Services to the DVLA Main Sites including the following services:	February 2005

The method of service delivery is kept under regular review with the objective of securing best value for money.

Departmental Furniture

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department spent on furniture in 2008-09; and how much each of his Department's agencies pent on furniture in each of the last five years. [273791]

Mr. Hoon: The requested information is provided in the following table:

Central Department	301,143	—	—	—	—

[2] Minimal expenditure incurred. Data not separately recorded.
[4] 2008-09 data is a draft figure not yet audited. Information on spend prior to 2005-06 not separately recorded.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 23 April 2009, Official Report, column 799W, on departmental manpower, whether his Department's practice of not keeping records of time spent by individual civil servants on the flexible benefits project is compatible with (a) Government accounting rules and (b) Government project management guidance. [274907]

Mr. Hoon: There is no requirement under HM Treasury's financial reporting manual to record details of the time spent by individual civil servants on individual pieces of work. The project is being run in accordance with project management methodologies.

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 23 April 2009, Official Report, column 799W, on departmental manpower, what methodology his Department plans to use to calculate the cost of the flexible benefits project. [274908]

Mr. Hoon: The cost of the flexible benefits project is calculated by reference to the engagement of contractors, the purchase of licences, hardware and software and technology design configurations.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) BlackBerry devices and (b) mobile telephones have been lost by (i) Ministers, (ii) special advisers and (iii) civil servants in his Department in each year since 2005. [274470]

Mr. Hoon: The Department for Transport was formed in 2002 and includes seven agencies, a shared service centre and the central Department, with a total staff of over 18,000. The figures provided here are for lost and stolen mobile telephones and BlackBerrys for the entire Department including its Agencies and shared service centre. The figures provided do not include losses or thefts where records are not available, where equipment has not been procured centrally, or where such losses or thefts were not reported.

The number of mobile telephones and BlackBerrys used by Ministers, special advisers and civil servants lost and stolen from the Department in each year since 2005 are as follows:

	2005	2006	2007	2008	2009
Mobile Telephones lost by:

Departmental Official Hospitality

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department has spent on hospitality and entertainment in each of the last five years. [273890]

Mr. Hoon: Expenditure by the Department for Transport on hospitality and entertainment in the most recent three years is as follows:

2006-07	648,657
2007-08	737,971
2008-09	694,991

Due to a major restructuring of accounting records, expenditure in years prior to 2006-07 cannot be provided on a comparable basis without incurring disproportionate costs.

The Department adheres to the principles on the management of public money as set out in HM Treasury's handbook on Regularity and Propriety and has strict rules and cost limits on such expenditure, which in the main consists of refreshments at meetings with external stakeholders.

Departmental Stationery

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department has spent on branded stationery and gifts for (a) internal and (b) external promotional use in each of the last five years. [273772]

Mr. Hoon: Expenditure by the Department of Transport and its executive agencies on corporate branded stationery and gifts in each of the last five years is shown in the following table.

These costs include a range of materials bearing the Department's or agencies' corporate branding, including letterhead, envelopes, pens and items for exhibitions or conferences.

Department for Transport	Financial year 2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08	2008-09
DfT central	59,066	17,067	13,870	13,938	19,203
Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency	[1]—	[1]—	96,741.64	109,980.06	124,228.70

Vehicle Certification Agency	2,758.92	7,824.05	7,130.69	10,238	8,266.57
Total	284,009.92	197,981.05	582,306.33	574,361.06	621,853.27

[1] No records available.
[2] Disproportionate cost.

The terms "stationery" and "gifts" are very broad. For the purpose of providing this answer they have been interpreted as any DfT or any agency corporate branded stationery such as letterhead, compliment slips or pens, or any piece of corporate merchandise that is corporate branded (e.g. slap wraps, pens, lanyards etc). Costs have also been limited to the production of materials and do not include storage or distribution costs.

The Department also produces a range of materials under non-corporate brands in support of its objectives, such as the THINK! road safety brand, Act on CO2 brand and Transport Direct. These have not been included as the costs for materials using these brands are not held centrally, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department spent on the purchase of (a) recycled office supplies in the last 12 months and (b) printer ink cartridges in each of the last five years. [274571]

Mr. Hoon: The information for both (a) and (b) is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of office supplies purchased by his Department were recycled products in the latest period for which figures are available. [275338]

Mr. Hoon: The information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Training

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department has spent on IT training for its staff in each of the last five years. [274221]

Mr. Hoon: The IT training expenditure for the Department for Transport (central) and some of the agencies (i.e. the Driving Standards Agency (DSA), the Highways Agency (HA), the Vehicle Certification Agency (VCA), the Government Car and Despatch Agency (GCDA) and part of the Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA) can be provided only at disproportionate cost. The figures for the other agencies are as follows:

	Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA)	Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA)	Maritime and Coastguard Agency (MCA)
2004-05	253,200	7,010	n/a
2005-06	321,600	2,726	n/a
2006-07	163,800	7,845	n/a
2007-08	91,800	21,057	37,714
2008-09	70,200	28,100	29,808

Driving Offences

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what sanctions will apply to motorists who drive in lanes reserved for authorised persons on the Olympic Route Network without authorisation. [272843]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The sanctions for contravention of Traffic Regulation Orders to be made in relation to the Olympic Route Network under the provisions of the London Olympic Games and Paralympic Games Act 2006 are set out in section 15 of that Act. The Olympic Delivery Authority will aim to secure maximum compliance with the various traffic management measures in those orders through widespread publicity and communication in advance of the games.

East London Line

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what funds were offered by his Department to Transport for London towards the costs of building the proposed Surrey Canal Road station on the East London Line extension; what progress has been made on that offer; and if he will make a statement. [274350]

Jim Fitzpatrick: A station at Surrey Canal Road is part of the Transport for London (TfL) sponsored East London Line extension project. The Department for Transport offered Transport for London and the Mayor of London an additional £7 million in the last financial year to take forward a new station at Surrey Canal Road. This offer was not accepted at the time, but I understand that Transport for London is carrying out further business case and regeneration studies associated with the scheme, working with the relevant local authorities in the areas.

Food

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make an estimate of the (a) monetary value and (b) quantity of waste food disposed of from his Department's premises in the last 12 months. [273438]

Mr. Hoon: Within the Department for Transport, on-site catering services are only available at the Department's main headquarters building in London, the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) sites in Swansea; the Driving Standards Agency (DSA) residential training facility in Bedfordshire and at the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) HQ in Bristol.

The requested information is not recorded at our London HQ nor is it recorded at the VOSA HQ in Bristol or at the DVLA sites in Swansea. The DSA estimates that in the last 12 months it has disposed of 1,200 kg of waste food.

Holidays

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what data sets his Department collects in respect of the ATOL-protected holiday scheme; and if he will make a statement. [274392]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport is not involved in the management of the Air Travel Organiser's Licence (ATOL) scheme and therefore does not collect any datasets in this regard.

The ATOL scheme is managed by the Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) and protects those consumers who book an ATOL-protected holiday from losing their money or being stranded abroad as a result of travel company insolvency. I would refer the hon. Member to the CAA's website for more details:

http://www.caa.co.uk/default.aspx?catid=27

Landing Rights

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether he has had recent discussions with representatives of the airline industry on the alleviation of the 80 per cent. use it or lose it practice regarding landing slots at UK airports; and if he will make a statement. [274155]

Jim Fitzpatrick: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport and a number of officials from the Department for Transport have had discussions with representatives of the airline industry regarding the European Commission's proposal to suspend the 'use it or lose it' (UIOLI) rule under the EC Airports Slot Allocation Regulation.

While we recognise the value of the UIOLI rule, we support the Commission's proposal to suspend it on a temporary basis to help airlines through the current economic downturn and prevent unnecessary flights.

Light Dues

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much total revenue was received by (a) Trinity House, (b) the Northern Lighthouse Board and (c) the Commissioners of Irish Lights in each of the last three years for which figures are available; and what proportion of this related to ships moving between UK ports. [275664]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Light dues are collected by Trinity House on behalf of the Secretary of State for Transport who administers the General Lighthouse Fund. The published annual accounts of the General Lighthouse Fund set out all other sources of income from the three General Lighthouse Authorities that is paid into the fund.

The table shows the gross light dues collected in the last three financial years within the operational areas of each of the authorities.

	2006-07	2007-08	2008-09
England and Wales (£)	61,293,332.54	58,007,105.46	60,579,057.92
Scotland and Isle of Man (£)	5,242,269.55	5,523,631.75	5,123,619.65
Northern Ireland (£)	539,408.70	568,376.25	568,838.50
Total (£)	67,075,010.79	64,099,113.46	66,271,516.07
Republic of Ireland (€)	4,613,978.64	4,764,691.47	4,122,936.68

Information on the destination or port of departure of vessels is not collected when light dues are paid so it is not possible to show what proportion of dues collected related to ships moving between UK ports.

Motor Vehicles: Excise Duties

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many duplicate copies of road tax discs have been issued due to processing errors (a) to the hon. Member for Scarborough and Whitby and (b) other vehicle keepers in 2009 to date. [275495]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Two duplicate tax discs were sent to the hon. Member because of an error. The same error resulted in 62,255 other tax discs being sent to vehicle keepers in error. Since the Electronic Vehicle Licence application system went live in February 2004 it has issued over 35 million tax discs. This is the only occasion on which an error like this has occurred.

Pedestrian Crossings

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the merits of pedestrian crossing lights having an option for a longer crossing time for disabled pedestrians. [274355]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport (DfT) has made no specific assessment of the merits of pedestrian crossing lights having an option for a longer crossing time for disabled pedestrians. Local authorities are responsible for setting appropriate crossing times on their crossings, reflecting local conditions.

The relevant guidance issued by DfT, Local Transport Note 2/95—'Design of Pedestrian Crossings', states that it may be desirable to extend the green man period if there will be considerable use by disabled pedestrians.

The DfT also recommends the use of 'Puffin' (pedestrian user friendly intelligent) crossings that use detection technology to adjust the crossing period, depending on walking speed.

Railways

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many passenger miles have been travelled on railways in Great Britain in each year since 1979. [274399]

Paul Clark: Table 1.1 of the 2008 edition of Transport Statistics Great Britain shows the following levels of passenger kilometres travelled by rail in each year since 1979:

Year[1]	Billion passenger kilometres[2]
1979	35

Railways: Electrification

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the reason is for the time taken to publish the findings of the cross-industry working group assessing the case for electrification of rail lines. [274412]

Paul Clark: Network Rail is co-ordinating the work of the cross-industry electrification group and has agreed an extension in the publication timetable with the Office of Rail Regulation.

The hon. Member should contact Network Rail's chief executive at the following address for a response to his question:

Iain Coucher
Chief Executive Network Rail Kings Place
90 York Way
London, N1 9AG

Railways: Expenditure

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much capital expenditure (a) his Department and (b) others incurred on railways in each year since 1997. [274354]

Paul Clark: Details of historic expenditure on the railways is set out in "National Rail Trends" which is published by the Office of Rail Regulation. Copies are available in the Library of the House and online at www.rail-reg.gov.uk

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the scope of his Department's powers is to alter the level of Control Period 4 funding; and if he will make a statement. [274391]

Paul Clark: The Periodic Review settlement may be revised by means of an interim review. The Office of Rail Regulation may trigger an interim review if it believes that the settlement can no longer be funded as agreed. In forming its view, the Office of Rail Regulation is required to take account of any representations from the Department for Transport.

Roads: Devon

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps his Department is able to take to expedite the approval process for the South Devon Link Road; and if he will make a statement. [275483]

Paul Clark: It is important that public funds are used as effectively as possible. Our local major scheme approval process is therefore designed to ensure that a scheme offers value for money for the taxpayer.

The Department for Transport is liaising closely with Devon county council as we continue to assess the major scheme business case for the proposed South Devon Link Road. Further information has been requested from the promoters on sections of the Business Case that required clarification. Once the value for money assessment is completed, consideration will be given to granting initial funding approval for the scheme.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his most recent assessment is of the effects of the construction of the South Devon Link Road on the South Devon economy. [275523]

Paul Clark: The major scheme business case for the proposed South Devon Link Road submitted to the Department for Transport by Devon county council and Torbay council included an economic impact study report which considered the potential economic impact of the proposed Kingskerswell bypass between Newton Abbot and Torquay in South Devon.

This report concluded that the proposed bypass could generate a range of benefits for the economic and wider development of Teignbridge, Torbay, South Hams and the surrounding areas of South Devon.

The Department is liaising closely with Devon county council as we continue to assess the major scheme business case for the proposed South Devon Link Road.

Roads: Safety

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what requirements there are upon (a) the Highways Agency and (b) local authorities to conduct safety impact assessments prior to the installation of Trief kerbs; [273519]

(2) what guidance applies to the width of roads on which Trief kerbs are installed. [273521]

Paul Clark: The Highways Agency's requirements for Road Safety Audits on trunk road schemes are set out in HD19/03 of the Design Manual for Roads and Bridges. This document prescribes the requirements for undertaking safety assessments for scheme inception, design development, construction, opening to traffic and monitoring. The safety implications of road restraint systems would form part of this assessment.

There is no centrally determined requirement on English local authorities to conduct safety assessments prior to the installation of Trief kerbs on the roads they manage. This is a matter for individual authorities. There is no centrally produced guidance on the width of roads on which Trief kerbs are installed.

Rushenden Link Road

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the reasons are for the time taken to construct the Rushenden Link Road; what recent reports he has received on progress in construction; what steps he is taking to ensure the timely completion of the project; and what recent discussions he has had with the project funders on funding commitments to the project. [275417]

Paul Clark: Kent county council are the commissioning body for the Rushenden Link Road and as such have responsibility for overseeing progress on delivery of the scheme.

The Department for Transport is not providing any funding and no discussions have been held with the project funders in relation to their funding requirements.

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what budget has been agreed for the construction of the Rushenden Link Road; from what sources such funding is expected to be drawn; and if he will make a statement. [275418]

Paul Clark: The Homes and Communities Agency (HCA) and the South East England Development Agency (SEEDA) have jointly committed a total of £12 million to the Rushenden Link Road. As the Department of Transport is not providing any funding, further details on the breakdown of funding sources would need to be sought from the funding stakeholders, HCA and SEEDA.

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much each funding partner has committed to the construction of the Rushenden Link Road. [275419]

Paul Clark: I refer my hon. Friend to my answer of 12 May 2009, Official Report, column 647W.

Speed Limits: Cameras

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what data his Department collects on the use of cameras which measure average speed in order to monitor the performance of individual local partnerships; and if he will make a statement. [275638]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport does not routinely collect or require data to be submitted on the use of speed cameras, although the Department's guidance does recommend that speed and collision data are collected by partnerships. However, the Department has an interest in the effectiveness of all road safety interventions and so from time to time requests evaluation work from delivery partners. For example, as part of two wider rural demonstration projects supported financially by the Department, Norfolk and Lincolnshire county councils are proposing to install permanent average speed enforcement cameras during the next year. Because these are demonstration projects the Department will receive information about the impact of these cameras alongside the other road safety measures being implemented locally.

Animal Welfare Act 2006

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what (a) statutory instruments, (b) departmental circulars and (c) other documents he has issued since July 2008 consequent on the provisions of the Animal Welfare Act 2006; and if he will make a statement. [273875]

Jane Kennedy: The following documents have been issued since July 2008 in relation to the Animal Welfare Act 2006:

(a) Statutory instruments made by the Secretary of State:

None.

(b) Guidance:

None.

(c) Other documents:

Consultation on the Code of Practice for the Welfare of Cats (November 2008);

Consultation on the Code of Practice for the Welfare of Dogs (November 2008);

Consultation on the Code of Practice for the Welfare of Equines (November 2008);

Consultation on new Regulations and Code for Meat Chicken Welfare (January 2009); and Consultation on proposals for Welfare of Racing Greyhounds Regulations (April 2009).

Animals: Exports

Gwyn Prosser: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many live (a) calves, (b) adult cattle and (c) lambs and sheep were exported to each country of destination for (i) slaughter and (ii) further fattening in 2008. [273094]

Jane Kennedy: Table 1 as follows gives the number of live sheep recorded as exported from the UK in 2008 as recorded in HMRC official overseas trade statistics. These are provisional figures and subject to amendments.

Please note these figures are obtained using VAT records and will exclude some EU trade for businesses which are below the VAT threshold. As a result, actual trade levels may be higher than those given, particularly for trade with mainland Europe.

Table 2 gives information on GB exports in cattle from the GB Cattle Tracing System. The Cattle Tracing System is updated on a daily basis and hence these figures can be subject to amendments.

It is not possible to identify those animals which are for slaughter or further fattening from either data source.

Bluetongue Disease: Vaccination

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department has taken to stockpile vaccines against bluetongue serotypes (a) 1 and (b) 6; what recent assessment he has made of the level of risk for such serotypes to reach domestic livestock; and if he will make a statement. [274931]

Jane Kennedy: Vaccines for bluetongue serotypes 1 and 6 are not currently licensed for use in the UK. DEFRA is in discussion with potential vaccine providers, the veterinary profession and industry stakeholders about plans for 2009 and beyond.

Meanwhile, DEFRA continues to work with other European member states for strict control measures to contain the threat of other BTV serotypes in Europe, and will continue to conduct double post-import tests on all imported animals for all bluetongue serotypes. We also have an agreed policy for controlling incursions of any new serotypes under the existing UK-wide bluetongue control strategy.

DEFRA remains alert to the spread of these, and other serotypes, through Europe, and monitors the risk carefully. Experts at the Institute of Animal Health, Pirbright, and meteorologists at the Meteorological Office provide advice on incursion scenarios which DEFRA uses to inform and revise policy as appropriate.

Nevertheless, the UK remains at risk from bluetongue, whether from re-emergence of domestic disease, from wind-borne spread from the continent, or through animal imports. This risk is likely to remain for some time, depending on the success of control measures in other countries.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Disease Control

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many cattle were slaughtered after testing positive for bovine TB in each of the last three years; what estimate he has made of the number to be so slaughtered in 2009; and if he will make a statement. [274927]

Jane Kennedy: The information is as follows:

Bovine TB cattle[1] slaughtered in England between 2006 and 2008

	Number
2006	16,007
2007	19,827
2008	27,455

Source:
Provisional data, as downloaded from the Vetnet TBiC system on 2 March 2009. All data has been taken from TB Programme Statistical Notice December 2008.

Due to the unpredictable nature of bovine tuberculosis, it is not possible to estimate the number of cattle that are likely to be slaughtered in England throughout 2009.

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many routine tests for bovine TB were undertaken in each of the last three years; how many of these tests indicated reactors; and if he will make a statement. [274928]

Jane Kennedy: The number of bovine cattle tests for England for the last three years, compared to the total number of cattle slaughtered as indicated reactors can be seen in the following table:

Number of cattle tests[1]	4,131,821	4,326,989	4,637,294
Number of cattle slaughtered as reactors[2]	14,587	18,570	26,038

[1] Includes animals testing positive to gamma interferon testing.
[2] Includes IRx3 and gamma interferon positives.
Notes:
1. Provisional data as downloaded from Vetnet TBiC system on 2 March 2009.
2. All data has been taken from TB Programme Statistical Notice December 2008.

Cattle: Disease Control

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many cattle were slaughtered as (a) reactors and (b) dangerous contacts in connection with the randomised badger culling trial in the last 12 months. [274375]

Jane Kennedy: The design of the Randomised Badger Culling Trial (RBCT) considered the number of TB breakdowns within trial areas at the herd level and not at the individual level. Data on the number of individual reactors and dangerous contacts slaughtered in connection with the RBCT can be obtained from VetNet, DEFRA's bTB control and surveillance system. However, this would be the subject of a separate data analysis exercise, which would be available only at disproportionate cost.

Common Agricultural Policy

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions his Department has had with the European Commission on reform of the Common Agricultural Policy. [274610]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA Ministers and officials have held regular discussions with the European Commission on reform of the Common Agricultural Policy (CAP), in particular during the CAP Health Check and in relation to presidency agriculture agendas. We are continuing to seek far reaching reform of the CAP, working with stakeholders, the Commission and other member states.

Dangerous Wild Animals Act 1976

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for what reasons he has decided to bring forward proposals to amend the Dangerous Wild Animals Act 1976 as it applies to private animal keepers in relation to the keeping of exotic pets; and what timetable he has set for bringing forward such proposals. [274793]

Jane Kennedy: In response to long-standing demand for reform of the Dangerous Wild Animals Act 1976, DEFRA has substantively reviewed the Act. The most recent public consultation on proposals to amend the main body of the Act, to make it less burdensome on local authorities and keepers, was undertaken last year.

The proposals are intended to provide an improved and better focused licensing and enforcement regime in line with the "Hampton principles" of better regulation. Current public safety benefits will be retained while reducing the level of burden on keepers and local authorities, who administer and enforce the Act.

The amendments are being progressed via a Legislative Reform Order and the intention is that the changes will come into force in October 2009. New guidance for keepers and local authorities will be published to assist implementation of the Act.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with (a) the Local Government Association and (b) local authorities on his Department's proposals to amend the Dangerous Wild Animals Act 1976. [274794]

Jane Kennedy: All local authorities in England and Wales, together with the Local Government Association, have been fully consulted with regard to the proposed amendments to the Dangerous Wild Animals Act 1976, most recently during the last public consultation in 2008.

Departmental Buildings

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department spent on building maintenance in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274558]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Expenditure incurred by the Department of Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on building maintenance is as follows:

2004-05	8,261,466
2005-06	9,624,001
2006-07	9,403,900
2007-08	10,702,929
2008-09	11,362,235

Domestic Waste: Waste Disposal

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what (a) assessment and (b) research has been undertaken by (i) his Department, (ii) its agencies and (iii) the Waste and Resources Action Programme on the accuracy of bin weighing technology in relation to the collection of household waste. [274081]

Jane Kennedy: No such assessment or research has been undertaken by DEFRA, its agencies, or the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) on the accuracy of bin weighing technology.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Peterborough of 27 March 2009, Official Report, column 789W, on domestic waste: waste disposal, whether the role of the Waste Improvement Network extends to providing information to local authorities outside the South East. [274707]

Jane Kennedy: The Waste Improvement Network (WIN) is targeted at local authorities throughout England and registered users are spread across all nine regions, including the South East. Anyone is welcome to register (including non-local authority users) and there are also a number of registered users from authorities outside England.

Flooding Lessons Learned Review

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent representations he has received on the resilience procedures recommended in the Pitt Report on flooding; and if he will make a statement. [274614]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA Ministers and officials maintain regular contact with Regional Resilience teams in the Government offices on a range of issues concerning the recommendations set out in the Pitt report, in particular to maintain a dialogue on progress against the action plan that the Government have set out. This includes regular contact with Local Resilience Forums concerning multi-agency flood planning and preparedness.

Inland Waterways: Olympic Games 2012

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the dredging of Prescott Lock is due to be completed. [275667]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Dredging a route for freight barges entering the Olympic Park via Prescott Channel off the tidal River Lea will be completed by 31 May 2009.

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate his Department has made of the proportion of the weight of site material for the construction of the Olympic stadium, associated buildings and infrastructure which has been delivered to the site via Prescott Lock. [275668]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The new lock on Prescott Channel does not formally open until 5 June 2009. Responsibility for traffic to and from the site lies with the Olympic Delivery Authority, which has a publicly stated aspiration of moving 50 per cent. of materials by weight by sustainable means (i.e. rail and river). An award of Freight Facility Grant made to British Waterways by the Department for Transport was based upon 1.01 million tonnes of materials being delivered to the site via Prescott Lock for a minimum period of three years beginning from 31 August 2008.[1]

[1] Figures supplied by British Waterways.

Litter

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) prosecutions have been made and (b) fixed penalty notices issued by each local authority in England for (i) dropping of litter and (ii) dog fouling in each of the last five years. [274580]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Tables showing the data (covering those periods in which latest statistics are available) for litter and dog fouling offences have been placed in the Library of the House.

Livestock: Disease Control

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with representatives of the veterinary profession on cost sharing for the eradication of animal diseases. [275107]

Jane Kennedy: Departmental Ministers meet regularly with representatives of the veterinary profession to discuss a wide range of animal health and welfare issues, including responsibility and cost sharing for animal health.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he plans to reply to the letters of 9 February and 1 April 2009 from the hon. Member for Billericay on a constituent, Mr G Lane. [275439]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I replied to the letter of 9 February and follow up letter of 1 April from the hon. Member for Billericay on 5 May.

Milk: Imports

Albert Owen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many litres of liquid milk were imported into the UK from (a) Ireland, (b) EU member states and (c) other countries in the latest period for which figures are available. [274622]

Jane Kennedy: Liquid milk imports are shown in the following tables. Liquid milk is imported into the UK in two forms, as raw milk for processing by dairies in the UK, or as liquid drinking milk (e.g. pasteurised or UHT milk).

Imports of raw milk come from the Republic of Ireland for processing by dairies in Northern Ireland.

Pig Industry Task Force

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to announce the appointment of members of the Pig Industry Task Force; and what its objectives will be. [273769]

Jane Kennedy: Members of the Pig Meat Supply Chain Task Force were appointed prior to its first meeting on 18 March and announced in a DEFRA news release on 19 March. The membership is as follows:

Stewart Houston: NPA/BPEX
Barney Kay: NPA
Mick Sloyan: BPEX
Richard Lister: Industry
John Hughes: Tulip
Bill Thurston: Vion
Adrian Dowling: Bowes of Norfolk
Bernard Hoggarth: Cranswick
Simon Galkoff: Whitbreads
Nick Scrase: ASDA
Simon Twigger: Sainsburys
Colin Holmes: Tesco
Andrew Thornber: Morrisons
Jan Anderson: Yorkshire Forward
Tricia Henton: Environment Agency
Susan Knox: Consumer bodies
Ian Platt: Baxter Storey

The consumer and the supply chain will benefit from the work of the taskforce on issues such as clearer labelling, better pig herd health, greater public sector procurement of higher welfare products and environmental requirements. The principle aim is that the taskforce will significantly contribute to the long-term resilience and profitability of the supply chain.

Further information on the Pig Meat Supply Chain Task Force can be found on the DEFRA website.

Protection Against Cruel Tethering Act 1988

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps the Government have (a) taken in the last 12 months and (b) plan to take in the next two years to protect (i) horses, (ii) ponies and (iii) donkeys from the effects of cruel tethering; who his Department consulted prior to seeking the repeal of the Protection Against Cruel Tethering Act 1988; and if he will make a statement. [273892]

Jane Kennedy: The Protection of Cruel Tethering Act 1988 was repealed under the Animal Welfare Act 2006 as part of the Government's policy to consolidate and modernise a number of pieces of animal welfare legislation. My Department consulted all the main animal welfare and equine groups as part of the consultation we held on the Animal Welfare Bill in January 2002. An analysis of the replies to that consultation can be found on the DEFRA website.

At the end of last year, DEFRA completed a public consultation exercise on a code of practice for the welfare of equines. All the main equine animal welfare groups were consulted on the code. The draft code covers all domestic horses, ponies, donkeys, and hybrids (including mules), and includes specific guidance on tethering. Once we have considered the responses to the consultation, we will then ask Parliament to approve a revised code.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received since 2006 on the repeal of the Protection Against Cruel Tethering Act 1988; and if he will make a statement. [273893]

Jane Kennedy: We have received no such representations.

Renewable Energy: Waste

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the provisions of the Environmental Permitting (England and Wales) Regulations 2007 Schedule 1, Part 2, Section 1.1 apply to products that have satisfied the end of waste criteria and are used to generate electricity; and if he will make a statement. [275109]

Jane Kennedy: The question of whether any particular waste has been fully recovered and has ceased to be waste must be determined on the facts of the case and taking into account relevant case law on the definition of waste. The Environment Agency is responsible for the implementation of waste management controls in England and Wales.

However, DEFRA has made funding available to enable the Environment Agency to develop end-of-waste protocols, which help determine the point at which certain waste streams have been fully recovered and have ceased to be waste. One such protocol has been developed for waste cooking oil, and its practical effect is that waste cooking oil treated to the standards set out in the protocol may be burned without being subject to waste management controls.

Rivers: Pollution

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many incidences of river pollution were reported in each of the last five years. [274956]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Incidences of reported water pollution are detailed in the following table. The incident data held on the Environment Agency's National Incident Recording System do not specify whether the pollution was to rivers or other watercourses. The following data are therefore for all pollution incidents which had an impact on water.

Pollution incidents with an impact on water

	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008
Category 1 (major impact)	115	100	88	68	74
Category 2 (significant impact)	595	566	520	458	359
Category 3 (minor impact)	10,916	10,222	9,488	8,878	8,184
Total	11,626	10,888	10,096	9,404	8,617

Swine Flu

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with the World Organisation for Animal Health on the effect of strain H1N1 of influenza on the animal kingdom. [275108]

Jane Kennedy: We have been closely monitoring the statements of the World Organisation for Animal Health (the OIE) on the new variant Influenza A/H1N1. Contacts with the OIE are normally made though the offices of the European Commission. We have maintained close contact with the European Commission and other member states on this subject since the situation began.

To date the information available from all sources indicates that infection with the new variant Influenza A/H1N1 has occurred primarily in humans. The Canadian authorities reported on 2 May 2009 that this infection was also identified in a herd of pigs in Alberta, Canada. This single report from Canada indicates that this strain readily infects pigs and is of low pathogenicity to pigs. It is not possible to be certain that this virus will infect and affect other pigs in the same way, nor any other animal or bird species. To date there are no other reports of infection in pigs (or other animals). We understand that a joint OIE/FAO mission has taken place in Mexico where areas of further co-operation with Mexican authorities have been discussed. We would expect to see a report of this mission in due course.

Apart from this information from Canada, the possible effect of this strain of H1N1 influenza on the animal kingdom is unknown.

The OIE is collaborating with the EU, WHO, UN FAO and a network of reference laboratories and collaborating centres (including Veterinary Laboratories Agency, Weybridge) in scientific investigations on the current situation and whether this strain of H1N1 is capable of infecting other animal and bird species.

The issues of novel influenza A/H1N1 virus will also be on the agenda at the EU member states Chief Veterinary Officer's Council meeting in Brussels on 12 May, 2009.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent guidance his Department has issued to keepers of pigs on swine influenza; and what restrictions there are on the importation of (a) pigs and (b) pig meat in respect of swine influenza. [275117]

Jane Kennedy: We have not found the new variant Influenza A/H1N1 in pigs in the UK and continue to maintain our surveillance. The Food Standards Agency's advice is that the novel influenza A H1N1 virus does not pose a food safety risk to consumers. It has not been shown to be transmissible to people through eating pork and pork products.

Our advice to pig keepers is that they should stay out of contact with pigs if they have influenza signs. We also continue to advise pig keepers to ensure they have good biosecurity procedures in place, something which is important at all times. Our information to pig keepers also includes details of the surveillance programme for swine influenza which DEFRA has been funding since 1991.

European Community rules only permit imports of live swine from approved third countries and pig meat products from approved plants in those countries that have agreed animal and public health certification in place. Countries such as Mexico, which are not able to meet the certification requirements, are not permitted to export live swine and pig meat products to the European community.

All animals and meat, which can only be imported to the European Community from approved third countries, must be accompanied by veterinary certification which must confirm, among other things, that live animals have been examined by an official veterinarian within 24 hours of loading and showed no clinical signs of disease.

Meat must have been derived from animals which have been subjected to a veterinary inspection during the 24 hours prior to slaughter.

Animals and meat imported into the European Community from approved third countries must enter at designated Border Inspection Posts (BIPs) where they are subject to veterinary inspections.

Waste Management

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) of 23 April 2009, Official Report, column 826W, on waste management, if he will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of each meeting of the stakeholder group. [274340]

Jane Kennedy: The minutes of each meeting of the Waste Stakeholder Group have been placed in the Library.

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of his Department's Waste Strategy in reducing levels of waste; and if he will make a statement. [274929]

Jane Kennedy: The Waste Strategy Annual Progress Report 2007-08 provides an assessment of the impact of the waste strategy, including on waste arisings and waste sent to landfill. It was published on 10 July 2008, and can be downloaded from the DEFRA website:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/waste/strategy/strategy07/index.htm

The next Annual Progress Report update on the impact of the Waste Strategy for England 2007 is due to be published later this year. This will be available via the same web link.

Water

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what research his Department has conducted on the effect of projected population changes on water usage; [275665]

(2) what recent estimate he has made of the likely effect of projected increases in the population on levels of consumption of water in (a) England, (b) the South East and (c) each Government Office administrative region. [275691]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Water companies have statutory duties to maintain adequate supplies of water.

In April 2007, it became a statutory requirement for water companies to prepare and maintain water resources management plans. These plans look ahead 25 years and include projections of current and future demands for water. They describe how the companies will meet this demand in order to meet their supply obligations.

These plans are regularly updated. They must take account of relevant factors, such as climate change and the most up-to-date information available on housing numbers and population forecasts for their water supply area, provided in the Government's Regional Spatial Strategies and the relevant local authority's Local Development Plan.

Water resources management plans were subject to public consultation for the first time in 2008.

PRIME MINISTER

Chequers

Norman Lamb: To ask the Prime Minister when he plans to publish the list of guests who have attended Chequers since the date of the last publication. [275671]

The Prime Minister: A list of guests who have received official hospitality at Chequers is published on an annual basis. Information for the financial year 2008-09 will be published in the usual manner.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Prime Minister when he plans to reply to the letter of 26 February 2009 from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire on multinational companies. [275679]

The Prime Minister: A reply has been sent to the hon. Member.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Departmental Pay

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport with reference to the Answer to the hon. Member for Fareham of 2 April 2008, Official Report, column 903W, on departmental pay, what the hourly rates of pay of non-permanent members of staff working in (a) his Department and (b) its agencies were in each of the last 12 months; and how many staff were receiving each rate in each such month. [275448]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Training

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department has spent on IT training for its staff in each of the last five years. [274212]

Mr. Sutcliffe: In the last five years DCMS has spent the following on IT training for its staff:

2004-05	11,115
2005-06	15,351
2006-07	14,400
2007-08	43,549
2008-09	40,383

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the results were of the Gambling Commission's mystery shopping exercises for 2008. [274775]

Mr. Sutcliffe: To ensure that all remote gambling operators take steps to prevent under 18s from gambling via the internet, the Gambling Commission undertakes a rolling programme of mystery shopping exercises. While their initial focus was on UK-licensed operators, the Commission has recently extended these exercises to look at a number of websites licensed overseas but accessible to UK residents, including those in EEA states and Gibraltar as well as those on the 'whitelist'. Further details of those exercises will be published as soon as practicable, and in the Commission's annual report.

Gambling: Advertising

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what differences there are in the legislative requirements relating to white list approval for advertising gambling services in the UK between online gambling companies based in (a) Alderney and (b) Antigua and Barbuda. [275426]

Mr. Sutcliffe: All applications for the white list were carefully considered against the Government's published criteria in consultation with the Gambling Commission, HM Treasury and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. Though there will inevitably be differences in legislative requirements between jurisdictions, the overriding consideration for the Government are to ensure that each jurisdiction is able to meet the standards we require.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether officials of his Department visited Antigua and Barbuda prior to its inclusion on the white list. [275428]

Mr. Sutcliffe: No officials from my Department visited Antigua and Barbuda prior to their inclusion on the white list.

Mass Media

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps he is taking to monitor the effects on the media industry of patterns of ownership in that industry; and what recent discussions he has had with the (a) Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform and (b) the Office of Fair Trading on the effects of patterns of ownership on the newspaper and broadcast media industry. [275104]

Andy Burnham: We are examining the media industry as a whole, including the current ownership structures, in the lead up to the Final Digital Britain Report, which will be published in the summer. In the Interim Digital Britain Report we invited the Office of Fair Trading, with Ofcom and other interested parties, to undertake an exploratory review across the local and regional media sector and make appropriate recommendations. We expect the results of that review to be available alongside the Digital Britain Report, which is a joint project between my Department and the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

In addition, Ofcom are conducting a statutory review of ownership rules and should report back to me by the end of the year.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he plans to reply to the letter of 29 January 2009 from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire transferred from the Secretary of State for the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on 17 March, reference: 123460/SW on the future of motorsport at Croft motor-racing circuit. [276670]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I apologise for the delay in responding to the letter of 29 January 2009 from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire transferred from the Secretary of State for the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on 17 March. I shall reply shortly.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Children: Maintenance

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions in how many and what proportion of child maintenance cases in North East Fife constituency payments were made (a) for the correct amount and (b) on time in each of the last five years. [270857]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 22 April 2009]: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have therefore asked the Child Maintenance Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about child maintenance, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner as child maintenance is now the responsibility of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, in how many and what proportion of child maintenance cases in North East Fife constituency payments were made (a) for the correct amount and (b) on time in each of the last five years [270857].

The information required to answer your question on the accuracy of maintenance payments collected from non-resident parents and issued to parents with care is not available. However the Child Support Agency Quarterly Summary of Statistics (QSS) contains the latest available information at a national level on the accuracy of maintenance assessments carried out by the Child Support Agency. The latest version of the QSS is available in the House of Commons library or online at:

http://www.childmaintenance.org/publications/statistics.html

It shows that in the 12 months to March 2009, 84% of current scheme assessments and 91% of old scheme calculations were accurate to the nearest penny.

The Agency aims to make maintenance payments to the parent with care within a week of receiving money from the non-resident parent. The latest information available for North East Fife constituency is set out in the attached table which shows the number and percentage of payments made to parents with care for each of the last five years and the time taken to make the payment. Over the last year, 97% of payments were made to parents with care within 7 days of the money arriving in the Agency's bank account compared to 90% in 2004/5.

Number and percentage of payments made to parents with care in the North East Fife constituency, for each of the last five years, and the time taken to make the payment

	Payments made within April to March each year:

7 days and under	1,800	90	1,800	94	1,800	90	4,400	92	5,600	97
Over 7 days	200		200		400		400		200

Notes:

1. Only includes receipts and payments for cases held on the current computer system (CS2) and represents 70 per cent. of the Agency caseload. Management information is not available for the 30% of cases held on the old computer system (CSCS).
2. Information provided calculates time between receipt arriving in Agency's bank account and the Agency forwarding payment to the parent with care.
3. Payments allocated to parents with care in North East Fife by matching the residential postcode of the parent with care against the Office for National Statistics Postcode Directory.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Departmental Manpower

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many staff of the (a) Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission and (b) Child Support Agency have been transferred to his Department in the last 12 months; and to which areas of his Department such staff have been transferred. [274415]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 11 May 2009]: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have therefore asked the Child Maintenance Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about child maintenance, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner as child maintenance is now the responsibility of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many staff of the (a) Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission and (b) Child Support Agency have been transferred to his Department in the last year; and to which areas of his Department such staff have been transferred. [274415]

In January of this year and in consultation with Jobcentre Plus the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission brought forward a reorganisation of its people and estates to enable the transfer of staff and estate to Jobcentre Plus. It is currently planned around 630 people and 8 sites will be transferred to Jobcentre Plus by the end of June 2009. This transfer of people and estates contributed to the Department's plans to increase Jobcentre Plus staffing to maintain service to the increasing numbers of clients coming to Jobcentre Plus as a result of the economic downturn.

The Commission's business plan, published on 7 May 2009 anticipates reducing resources over 2009/10 to reflect the changes in legislation, and efficiencies in how we administer the current statutory maintenance scheme. This planned transfer of staff in effect brings forward the reduction in headcount and facilitates a strategically desirable reduction in the number of small 'satellite' offices the Commission needs to manage. The Commission will continue to recruit as necessary into its major sites to maintain staffing levels.

I can confirm that to date the Commission had transferred a total of 475 people and five sites to Jobcentre Plus with around 155 people and the remaining 3 sites due to be transferred by the end of June 2009. I can confirm that in the preceding months from April 2008 to November 2008 when the Commission took responsibility for the Agency, there were no compulsory transfers of people to the Department or its agencies.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much his Department has spent on hospitality and entertainment in each of the last five years. [273887]

Jonathan Shaw: All expenditure on entertainment (also known within the Department as hospitality) is made in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety, based on principles set out in Managing Public Money and the Treasury Handbook on Regularity and Propriety.

2003-04	135,567
2004-05	91,259
2005-06	133,979
2006-07	196,892
2007-08	50,267

Note:
The figures for 2008-09 are not yet available.
Source:
General Ledger

Departmental Training

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much his Department has spent on IT training for its staff in each of the last five years. [274223]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department does not hold records on the information requested centrally; individual business units retain records locally and as such this information could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Employment and Support Allowance: Lone Parents

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost of transferring all lone parents whose children are under seven years from income support to employment and support allowance would be in 2009-10. [270357]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 23 April 2009]: There are approximately 460,000 lone parents on income support with a youngest child under the age of seven. Assuming that this remains constant:

the additional cost of paying all lone parents with a child under seven the Employment and Support Allowance (ESA) work-related activity component (£25.50 per week) is estimated to be £610 million per annum;

the additional cost of paying all lone parents with a child under seven the ESA support component (£30.85 per week) is estimated to be £740 million per annum.

As this is not Government policy these costs assume that:

there is no assessment phase for lone parents, and the components will be paid for lone parents at the start of their claim;

the conditionality regime for lone parents on ESA would be the same as under income support for lone parents.

Notes:

1. Costs are rounded to the nearest £5 million, and reflect only the extra cost of paying the additional amount of benefit.

2. Costs depend upon caseloads. The average number of lone parents on income support over the last year was 460,000, but higher numbers would mean higher costs, and vice versa.

Food

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make an estimate of the (a) monetary value and (b) quantity of waste food disposed of from his Department's premises in the last 12 months. [273437]

Jonathan Shaw: In the 2008-09 financial year, the total food waste disposed of by the Department's suppliers was 39,755 kg. This covers both waste from the preparation of food, waste from service counters and customer plate waste.

The monetary value of this is not held centrally and collating it would incur disproportionate cost.

Health Hazards: Retail Trade

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make it his policy to assess the implications for optical health of the positioning at child's eye height of class 1 laser scanners in shops and supermarkets; and if he will make a statement. [273369]

Jonathan Shaw: The Health and Safety at Work etc Act 1974 already requires those responsible for shops and supermarkets to make such assessments and to ensure that any risks identified to employees and the public (including children) are properly controlled. Class 1 laser devices are in the safest class under the UK safety standard BS EN 60825-1:2007 - "Safety of Laser Products; Part 1: Equipment Classification and Requirements"

Jobcentre Plus

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many branches of Jobcentre Plus there are in (a) England and (b) the East Midlands; and how many of these are in (i) urban, (ii) semi-rural and (iii) rural areas. [269998]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked the acting chief executive to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question on how many branches of Jobcentre Plus there are in (a) England and (b) the East Midlands; and how many of these are in (i) urban, (ii) semi-rural and (iii) rural areas. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

There are 579 Jobcentre Plus offices open to the public in England of which 53 are within the East Midlands region. We do not separately categorise Jobcentre Plus offices open to the public by urban, semi-rural or rural areas but our public facing network is designed to provide reasonable access to our services throughout England.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) if he will estimate the annual cost to his Department of allowing jobseeker's allowance claimants to train full-time for 13 weeks at the beginning of their claim period; and if he will make a statement; [255665]

(2) if he will estimate the annual cost to his Department of allowing jobseeker's allowance claimants under 24 to train full-time for (a) 13 and (b) 26 weeks at the beginning of their claim period; and if he will make a statement. [255666]

Mr. McNulty: Even in the current economic climate, we would expect most customers to move into work relatively quickly without the need to re-train in new skills. Our policies will continue to help them to do that to avoid the costs, both to individuals and to Government, of delaying a return to work and keeping people on benefits for longer than necessary. There is therefore no current basis on which to make estimates of the costs of extending the training opportunities described to customers from the start of a claim.

Jobseeker's allowance (JSA) recipients can train for up to 16 hours per week alongside active job search.

They may also undertake up to two weeks of full-time training in any 12-month period, without jeopardising their benefit entitlements. Additionally, from 6 April anyone who has been unemployed more than six months can study full time for up to eight weeks on a job related training course approved by an employment adviser (operationally we do this by transferring the customer to a training allowance).

People from disadvantaged groups, or those for whom lack of basic skills is a barrier to employment, are eligible for training support from day one of unemployment. Jobcentre Plus Personal Advisers are also able to agree early access to the job-search and training support offered by the New Deal for people whose circumstances may make it particularly hard to find work.

In addition, the Government announced last autumn that additional funding of £158 million has been made available through the European Social Fund for the Learning and Skills Council's Train to Gain programme for people who are newly unemployed or facing redundancy to undertake training linked to opportunities in the local labour market for up to two weeks full time and up to eight weeks part time.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when the Minister of State for Pensions plans to reply to the email of 13 March from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire on the winter fuel allowance and a constituent. [274637]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 12 May 2009]: I replied to the hon. Member on 12 May 2009.

Pension Credit

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many households receive pension credit; and what the average weekly amount paid in pension credit to such households is. [272298]

Ms Rosie Winterton: As at August 2008, there were 2,723,530 households in receipt of pension credit, with an average weekly award of £52.80.

Notes:

1. The number of households in receipt are rounded to the nearest 10.

2. Household recipients are those people who claim pension credit either for themselves only or on behalf of a household.

Pension Credit: Essex

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many pension credit recipients live in (a) Essex and (b) Castle Point constituency. [273208]

Ms Rosie Winterton: As at August 2008, there were 55,680 households in receipt of pension credit in Essex and 4,190 households in receipt in Castle Point.

Notes:

1. The number of households in receipt are rounded to the nearest 10.

2. Household recipients are those people who claim pension credit either for themselves only or on behalf of a household.

Pensioners

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent changes there have been to the financial support provided by his Department to those aged over 65 years. [273662]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Government are spending £13 billion more on pensioners this year than if we had continued the policies of the previous Government.

Between 1997-98 and 2008-09 pensioners benefited from above-inflation increases in the basic state pension, with pensioners better off by 7 per cent. in real terms than if the basic state pension had been increased only by prices over the same period. From 6 April 2009, the basic state pension increased by 5 per cent.—this is the highest percentage increase since 2001.

From 6 April 2009 the pension credit standard minimum guarantee increased to £130 a week for single customers and £198.45 a week for couples—this above-earnings increase was the highest since pension credit was introduced in 2003.

In 2007-08, winter fuel payments were paid to over 12 million people and have helped over 8.8 million households. Winter fuel payments are worth £200 for those aged between 60 and 79 and £300 for those aged 80 and over. For winter 2008-09, the Chancellor announced an additional payment of £50 for those aged between 60 and 79 and £100 for those aged 80 and over resulting in payments per household of £250 and £400 respectively. This increase will be repeated for winter 2009-10.

The Government have also announced that the capital threshold for pension credit (and housing benefit and council tax benefit for those who have attained the qualifying age for pension credit) will be increased from £6,000 to £10,000, bringing it into line with the threshold for those living permanently in care homes. This change will take effect from November 2009 and will allow these customers to retain up to £10,000 of capital before it affects their benefit. This change represents a generous increase in the capital thresholds for pension credit recipients and a significant simplification to the benefit. Half a million pensioners stand to gain from this change, with an average weekly gain across all benefits of £4.

The Government have also committed to maintain the standard interest rate applied in the support for mortgage interest scheme at 6.08 per cent. for a further six months until the end of December 2009; this will help those on pension credit who receive help with their mortgage.

The higher amounts of income tax personal allowances for those aged over 65 are substantially higher than the personal allowance for those aged under 65. For the tax year starting on 6 April 2009, the personal allowance for people aged 65 to 74 has been increased to £9,490 and the personal allowance for people aged 75 and over has been increased to £9,640. For the tax year starting on 6 April 2011, pensioners aged 75 and over will not pay tax on incomes under £10,000.

Council tax benefit makes an important contribution to the financial security of around 2.6 million pensioner households. The Government have already simplified the claims process to make income-related benefits easier to claim. Since November 2008, pensioners can claim housing benefit and council tax benefit with pension credit, entirely over the phone without having to fill in and sign a claim form.

In addition, we are writing to over 200,000 pension credit recipients in May to encourage them to contact their local council to check if they are entitled to council tax benefit or housing benefit.

Last winter the Government also increased the Christmas bonus to £70 for all those who meet the eligibility criteria with £10 being paid before Christmas and the remainder in the new year.

Pensioners: Standard of Living

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will commission research on the quality of life of pensioners in receipt of pension credit; and if he will make a statement. [274621]

Ms Rosie Winterton: We are currently undertaking research on this issue. We have developed new survey questions about pensioners' living standards and these are currently being asked on DWP's Family Resources Survey. These questions will provide information on the quality of life of a range of pensioners, including those in receipt of pension credit. The information will be available in spring 2010.

Social Security Benefits: Eligibility

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) whether people remaining on incapacity benefit are to be reassessed by the eligibility criteria used for those seeking to claim the employment and support allowance; [274615]

(2) what eligibility criteria apply to those claiming employment and support allowance which do not apply to those claiming incapacity benefit. [274616]

Jonathan Shaw: Individuals who apply for employment and support allowance will be asked to undertake a work capability assessment which will be used in determining their eligibility for the benefit. This differs from those currently claiming incapacity benefits, who will have undertaken a personal capability assessment. The work capability assesment follows a similar format to the personal capability assessment, as a points based assessment, but has been developed to provide a more accurate assessment of an individual's limited capability for work in the modern workplace.

The new assessment is more positive than its predecessor, focusing on what an individual can do as well as what they cannot. It includes a work focused health related assessment which helps individual's identify and consider ways to overcome their specific challenges to work. The mental function aspect of the assessment has also been expanded and developed to take better account of cognitive and intellectual function.

We have announced that we plan to migrate existing recipients of incapacity benefits to employment and support allowance. Recipients will have to undertake this same work capability assessment.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Drugs

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much funding has been allocated from the Strategic Programme Fund to assist (a) the Afghanistan counter-narcotic strategic priority and (b) other projects involving Afghanistan. [274942]

Bill Rammell: [holding answer 12 May 2009]: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has allocated £21.9 million from the Strategic Programme Fund (SPF) in support of counter-narcotics work in Afghanistan in 2009-10. In addition to this the Counter Terrorism and Radicalisation Programme of the SPF has allocated £5.4 million for projects in Afghanistan for 2009-10.

British Council: Finance

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to page 131 of the 2009 Budget Red Book, what changes will be made to the (a) activities, (b) staffing and (c) priorities of the British Council to achieve the proposed £18 million of savings. [271451]

David Miliband: The British Council committed to £18.2 million of efficiency savings between 2007-08 and 2010-11 as part of its comprehensive spending review settlement. As agreed with the British Council, these savings will be realised by:

A 30 per cent. grant reduction in its European operations and reductions in its physical overseas network to reflect the move to web-based service provision;

Further rollout and exploitation of the global System Analysis and Programme Development finance and business system. This is widely used by companies to track their finances and organise their business systems including concentrating support services into regional or global support centres;

An extensive review and re-structuring of support services (human resources, information technology, finance and facilities management) organisation-wide. This will involve post reductions, process improvement and use of global centres/outsourcing; and

A reduction in capital works on its estates.

The British Council is on track to meet these efficiency savings.

Cabinet: Glasgow

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many (a) special advisers and (b) officials of his Department accompanied him to Glasgow for the Cabinet meeting on 16 April 2009. [273949]

Gillian Merron: No Special Advisers or Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) officials accompanied my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary to the Cabinet meeting in Glasgow on 16 April 2009. FCO officials did accompany the Foreign Secretary to stakeholder engagement events before and after the Cabinet meeting. These events had been scheduled for an earlier date but were rearranged to coincide with the Cabinet meeting in order to reduce costs.

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what car journeys he undertook in attending the Cabinet meeting in Glasgow on 16 April 2009. [273950]

Gillian Merron: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary attended a number of official engagements in Glasgow on 16 April 2009. He travelled by official car throughout the day, including to the Cabinet meeting.

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much expenditure was incurred by his Department in respect of the Cabinet meeting in Glasgow on 16 April 2009. [273951]

Gillian Merron: A cost of £234.40 was incurred by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in respect of the Cabinet meeting in Glasgow on 16 April 2009.

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what expenditure on (a) travel, (b) accommodation and (c) food (i) he and (ii) officials in his Department incurred in connection with the Cabinet meeting in Glasgow on 16 April 2009. [273952]

Gillian Merron: Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) officials did not attend the Cabinet meeting in Glasgow on 16 April 2009. A total of £234.40 was spent on travel for my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary. No expenditure was incurred on accommodation or food. While in Glasgow, the Foreign Secretary attended a number of stakeholder engagement events at which he was accompanied by FCO officials. These events had been scheduled for an earlier date but were rearranged to coincide with the Cabinet meeting in order to reduce costs.

Conflict Prevention

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 2 April 2009, Official Report, column 1311W, on conflict prevention, how much of the increase of £152.7 million in the UK's assessed peacekeeping costs for 2009-10 is to be spent (a) in each country and (b) on each mission; and what the reasons are for the increase. [270551]

David Miliband: We have earmarked £456 million for assessed costs in 2009-10. This remains a projection as, in particular, UN peacekeeping costs are still to be negotiated by the UN General Assembly for 2009-10, and future UN peacekeeping activity remains subject to decisions by the UN Security Council. We cannot provide an accurate figure for the additional costs broken down by mission until the budgets for each of the missions are agreed and payments made.

The UN publishes budget proposals for each mission on its official document system on the UN website. These can be accessed by searching for the relevant mission at:

http://documents.un.org/welcome.asp?language=E

We expect UN Fifth Committee negotiations to be completed by early to mid June 2009.

Departmental Billing

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies paid in interest to suppliers under the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998 in the last three years for which figures are available. [275202]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and its agencies have paid the following amounts in interest to suppliers in the last three years.

2006-07	486.64
2007-08	1,882.60
2008-09	No payments

The FCO is committed to paying all of its suppliers as quickly as possible following receipt of a valid invoice.

Departmental Finance

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to page 131 of the 2009 Budget Red Book, what (a) improvement in procurement and (b) reductions in the cost of goods and services there will be to achieve the proposed £12.5 million of efficiency during the 2007 comprehensive spending review period; and if he will make a statement. [271456]

David Miliband: The improved procurement project is generating value for money savings from reductions in the costs of goods and services purchased by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) during the Comprehensive Spending Review period. The savings are achieved through better management of our expenditure by utilising the following techniques:

Collaboration with other Government Departments (OGDs) and the Office of Government Commerce (OGC) Buying Solutions

Mandatory use of corporate FCO contracts to achieve better value for money

Benchmarking

Better market analysis and a more strategic approach to procurement overseas

Benefits will be realised in the main through utilising OGD and OGC contracts and re-tendering processes for major contracts and commodities which assess value for money and efficiency as part of the process. This is based on a number of factors including unit prices and balancing quality measures to ensure that service levels are maintained or improved. In addition costs savings will be realised through improvements in the on-going contract management.

Departmental Stationery

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much his Department spent on the purchase of (a) recycled office supplies in the last 12 months and (b) printer ink cartridges in each of the last five years. [274201]

Gillian Merron: This information is not held centrally, and to provide it would incur disproportionate cost.

Diplomatic Service: Allowances

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the elements of the Diplomatic Service Compensation Allowance are. [275459]

Gillian Merron: The elements are Mobility, Hardship, Representation and Spouse Compensation.

The Mobility element is paid to all Diplomatic Service (DS) staff serving overseas at Grade C4 (HEO) and above. Home Civil Service staff at grade C4 and above receive Mobility at half the Diplomatic Service rate. It compensates staff for the additional costs incurred as a result of their obligation to serve wherever in the world and whenever required (e.g. the inability to buy/sell property when conditions are favourable, the need to sell cars before normal replacement cycles and maintaining contact with family and friends).

The Hardship element is paid to all staff at difficult, hazardous or isolated Posts to compensate them for the additional costs of maintaining a UK quality of life in those conditions (e.g. additional breaks from the country, security, the need for specialist four wheel drive vehicles and importing books/DVDs).

The Representation element is paid to all staff in representational grades for the indirect costs of entertaining/networking such as depreciation in clothing, household goods and official use of private vehicle.

Spouse Compensation is paid to Diplomatic Service staff, whose spouse/registered partner has spent at least three years accompanying them overseas. It is to compensate the spouse/partner who, if they had not been following and supporting their partner overseas, would have been working and contributing towards a state and/or private pension in the UK.

Eastern Europe

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the implications for his Department's policies on Eastern Europe of the outcomes of the recent Eastern Partnership summit; and if he will make a statement. [275147]

Caroline Flint: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary attended the launch summit of the Eastern Partnership in Prague on 7 May 2009 where we strongly supported this EU initiative to step up our relations with our six Eastern European neighbours—Armenia, Azerbaijan, Belarus, Georgia, Moldova and Ukraine.

The Eastern Partnership will add value in a number of ways, including:

enabling the EU to deepen relations with each of the partners through New Association Agreements and deep free trade agreements when partners are ready; setting up a framework for multilateral discussion and cooperation between member states and partners on issues including democracy, economic reform, energy and people-to-people contacts.

The UK will continue to support the development of the Eastern Partnership. We believe that a strong partnership with the region is in the interests of the UK and can help us work effectively together to strengthen democracy, reduce the risk of conflict, and create the conditions for sustainable economic growth.

European Court of Human Rights

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what occasions an interpretation of the provisions of the Human Rights Act 1998 by UK courts has been challenged at the European Court of Human Rights; and what the cost to the public purse was in each case. [274036]

Caroline Flint: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not compile statistics of the kind sought. Given the requirement for applicants to exhaust their domestic remedies before taking a case to the European Court of Human Rights, many cases against the United Kingdom in that Court since the entry into force of the Human Rights Act have involved issues that have already been considered in the context of the Act. Where the application has resulted in an admissibility decision or judgment by the Court, these are available publicly on the Court's website at http://www.echr.coe.int

India: Terrorism

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to hold discussions with the Indian Government on bilateral counter-terrorism activity. [273145]

Bill Rammell: [holding answer 7 May 2009]: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary visited India on 13-15 January 2009. During his visit he met with his Indian counterpart, External Affairs Minister Pranab Mukherjee. They discussed the challenge which both the UK and India face from international terrorism, and the importance of strengthening bilateral counter terrorism cooperation.

We expect to further strengthen this co-operation through the second meeting of the Indo-UK Joint Working Group on Counter-Terrorism, due at the end of 2009. This group is the result of a Prime Ministerial agreement at the UK-India Summit held in January 2008.

Iran: Nuclear Power

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when inspectors from the International Atomic Energy Agency were last able to visit the Iranian nuclear sites at (a) Arak, (b) Natanz and (c) Bushehr; and if he will make a statement. [273730]

David Miliband: According to the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) Board Report of 19 February 2009, agency inspectors last visited the Heavy Water Research Reactor at Arak in August 2008 and the Bushehr Nuclear Power Plant in December 2008.

The same report says that at Natanz the agency conducted a physical inventory verification at the Pilot Fuel Enrichment Plant on 29 September 2008 and at the Fuel Enrichment Plant on 24-26 November 2008. It also states that since March 2007 the IAEA has carried out 21 unannounced inspections at the latter plant.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 5 May 2009, Official Report, columns 4-7WS, on General Affairs and External Relations Council, what reports he has received on (a) the recent contacts between High Representative Solana and Iranian representatives and (b) the outcome of those discussions. [273895]

David Miliband: Following the meeting of officials from the E3+3 on 8 April, High Representative Solana spoke to Saeed Jalili, Iran's Chief Nuclear Negotiator, regarding further talks with the E3+3.

In a statement on 22 April 2009, Iran announced its "readiness for talks and constructive interaction." No date has yet been fixed and we urge Iran to act in this window of opportunity to rebuild the confidence of the international community and enter into negotiations with the E3+3.

Iraq

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the mission statement for employees of his Department in Iraq is. [275454]

Bill Rammell: Employees of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) working in Iraq and in the Iraq Group in London work to the objective laid out in the FCO's middle east and North Africa Directorate's business plan:

"to support the continued development of a strong, stable, non-hostile and broadly democratic Iraq, which respects international law, denies terrorists a safe haven and contributes to stable world energy markets; and to deliver transition to a normalised, substantive bilateral relationship which advances UK commercial, consular, migration, energy and CT (Counter Terrorism) interests."

Kenya: Piracy

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on how many occasions representatives of (a) the EU and the European Union-led naval force and (b) international humanitarian agencies have requested access to individuals transferred to custody in Kenya in connection with alleged acts of piracy; and whether each such request was granted. [273354]

David Miliband: The German ambassador to Kenya recently visited the suspected pirates who Germany had previously transferred (on 10 March 2009 and 8 April 2009) into Kenyan custody. We are not aware of any other EU representatives or any international humanitarian agency having requested access to suspected pirates who have been transferred to Kenyan custody.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 29 April 2009, Official Report, column 1335W, on Kenya, what undertakings the UK has made under the December 2008 Memorandum of Understanding with Kenya on the transfer of persons suspected of committing acts of piracy. [273357]

David Miliband: The Kenyan Government do not wish to make public the detail of the December 2008 Memorandum of Understanding with the UK on the transfer of persons suspected of having committed acts of piracy. We can say in broad terms that the UK has undertaken to co-operate with the Kenyan authorities in relation to the preparation and presentation of evidence to assist the Kenyan authorities to prosecute any pirates handed over to them.

Russia: BBC External Services

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received on threats made against Oleg Gordievsky on the BBC Russia online forum. [273603]

Caroline Flint: We have received no representations about this matter. The British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC) has robust independent processes for dealing with complaints, and we understand that a complaint about this matter was made in 2007, and subsequently dealt with. However, this is an editorial matter for the BBC.

Somalia: Armed Conflict

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate he has made of the amount of Somali territory controlled by al-Shabaab and allied insurgent factions; and if he will make a statement. [273729]

David Miliband: Given the security situation in Somalia, the UK has no presence on the ground and so it is difficult to make an accurate assessment of the territorial controls of the various clans and groups in Somalia. However, we are aware that the Al-Shabaab group has footholds in several areas across Somalia, including strategic southern towns and ports. We continue to work with the Somali Government to eradicate the threat insurgents groups pose to peace and reconciliation efforts in Somalia.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to paragraph 7 of the report of the UN Secretary-General on Somalia of 16 April 2009, whether his Department has made an estimate of the number of foreign fighters to have entered Somalia in support of the al-Shabaab group. [273731]

David Miliband: We do not have the capacity on the ground to monitor the flow of people in or out of Somalia in terms of either numbers or purpose.

However, the UK is aware of the threat posed by the Al-Shabaab group to the peace and reconciliation efforts of the new Transitional Federal Government (TFG). We believe that the current inclusive approach of the TFG is the best way to isolate the more extreme individuals and prevent the Al-Shabaab group from undermining the process.

Somalia: Fisheries

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of (a) illegal fishing and (b) depositing of toxic waste by international vessels in Somali waters; and what recent discussions he has had with his EU counterparts on these matters. [273356]

David Miliband: We are aware of reports of illegal fishing, although we have been unable to substantiate them. The current security situation in the region does not permit access to allow an assessment of these allegations or those of toxic waste dumping.

At the April meeting of EU Foreign Ministers, Somali piracy was discussed, but this did not include discussion of either illegal fishing or toxic waste dumping. Somali fishery issues were discussed during the last meeting of the EU Agricultural and Fisheries Ministers on 23 April 2009.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether the International Contact Group for Piracy off the coast of Somalia has taken steps to investigate allegations of illegal fishing in Somali waters; and if he will make a statement. [273358]

David Miliband: The purpose of the International Contact Group for Piracy off the coast of Somalia is to create a co-ordinated international approach to Somali piracy. Illegal fishing has been raised as an issue during Contact Group meetings, and is recognised as a factor which needs to be taken into account when constructing a forward strategy for Somalia.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has commissioned research into the potential effects of illegal fishing in Somali waters on levels of piracy in that region. [273461]

David Miliband: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has not commissioned any research to assess the potential effects of illegal fishing in Somali waters on levels of piracy in the region. We are aware that illegal fishing is a concern to many Somalis and that this has also been highlighted as a contributory factor to why some Somalis choose to become involved in piracy. However, the causes of piracy in Somalia are complex. It should be noted that pirates are not specifically targeting fishing vessels.

The Government continue to work with the international community to tackle the root causes of piracy through the provision of humanitarian and development assistance and support for alternative livelihoods.

Somalia: Piracy

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the feasibility of (a) tracking and (b) freezing the assets of pirates operating in Somali waters; and what the Government's policy on such steps is. [273727]

David Miliband: Due to the security and governance situation in Somalia, the Somali authorities do not have the capacity to either track or freeze the assets of pirates operating in Somali waters within Somalia.

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office and HM Treasury are working with international institutions and partners to analyse the possible financial measures that could be used to combat the problem. A key part of this work consists of identifying the points at which the proceeds of acts of piracy are laundered through the international financial system, and what the most appropriate steps are for tackling this. Given that Somalia lacks a well-established banking system, this is likely to require the co-operation of regional partners.

Once the new Transitional Federal Government has further established itself in Somalia, the UK and international partners will work with them to address this issue along with wider counter piracy action.

Somalia: Politics and Government

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assistance the Government is providing to UN efforts to build national security institutions in Somalia; and if he will make a statement. [273728]

David Miliband: The international community pledged over US $53 million to the UN Trust Fund in support of Somali security institutions at the UN-organised pledging conference in Brussels on 23 April 2009. We have indicated our desire to work with the Somali authorities, the UN and the African Union Mission in Somalia to develop an accountable security sector, subject to a coherent plan being in place. We have offered to help develop such a plan, including through technical assistance to support oversight bodies.

Sudan: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his Egyptian counterpart on the Comprehensive Peace Agreement signed between north and south Sudan in 2005. [275319]

Gillian Merron: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not had recent discussions with his Egyptian counterpart on the Comprehensive Peace Agreement (CPA). My noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch-Brown, discussed these issues with the Egyptian ambassador in London on 28 April 2009. There are ongoing discussions at official level on the CPA and other matters relating to Sudan.

Sudan: USA

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the US President's Special Envoy for Sudan. [275323]

Gillian Merron: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not yet met the new US Special Envoy for Sudan. My noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch Brown, has talked with the US Special Envoy by telephone, and the UK Special Representative for Sudan has had detailed discussions with General Gration on several occasions.

Syrian Arab Republic: Human Rights

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the human rights situation in Syria; and what discussions the UK and Syria have had on the issue. [273726]

David Miliband: I remain concerned about the human rights situation in Syria. As detailed in the 2008 Foreign and Commonwealth Office's 2008 Annual Human Rights report, the UK is particularly concerned with the deterioration in the situation for opposition politicians and Syria's Kurdish population, and the restrictions of basic civil rights and freedom of the media.

I raised these concerns with President Assad during my November 2008 visit to Syria. My hon. Friend the Minister of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (Bill Rammell) raised human rights with Foreign Minister Muallem during his April 2009 visit to Syria.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Experiments: Imports

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 12 January 2009, Official Report, column 268W, what recent representations she has received on breeding of long-tailed macaques for research in Cambodia, with particular reference to the Vanny Bio-Research Centre. [274143]

Mr. Malik: We received representations from the British Union for the Abolition of Vivisection (BUAV) on the 24 November 2008 and responded on 16 December 2008. We have received no requests from establishments licensed under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 to acquire animals from the centre or to accept it as a source of non-human primates. Should we receive such a request, we would need to be satisfied that conditions at the centre were acceptable before giving approval.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent representations she has received on breeding of long-tailed macaques in Indonesia for animal research in the UK; and what her Department's policy on the matter is. [274386]

Mr. Malik: We have received no formal representations relating to the breeding of long-tailed macaques in Indonesia for animal research in the UK. The acquisition of non-human primates from overseas sources for use in procedures authorised under the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 requires prior approval which is only given if the conditions at the breeding centre are acceptable to the Home Office at the time. Any request to acquire non-human primates from Indonesia would have to satisfy these requirements.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether her Department has (a) approved and (b) inspected primate supply centres in Indonesia as overseas primate supply and breeding facilities to export primates to the UK for the purposes of scientific research in the last 12 months. [274387]

Mr. Malik: No.

Borders: Personal Records

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the effect on airlines of having to implement the delayed e-Borders requirements during the start of peak travel season. [260363]

Jacqui Smith: Progress on the e-Borders Programme over the last few months has been very positive with the resolution of some complex technical issues. The ramp up to 100 million passenger movements commenced in mid-March and we will confirm the achievement of the 100 million by the end of June. This important capacity increase has been managed in close collaboration with the aviation industry.

e-Borders continues to work with the industry to ensure that the burden and pressures are minimised. The roll out programme is, by agreement, country based. This permits flexibility in meeting carrier calls for relief on implementation. The transitional arrangements created by the programme to alleviate carrier implementation issues also relieve them from some critical system changes during this busy period.

Criminal Investigation: Costs

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average total (a) direct staff cost, (b) operational support cost, (c) business support cost and (d) cost excluding sustaining overheads under activity-based costing analysis was for a police investigation relating to (i) a violence against the person offence, (ii) a sexual offence, (iii) robbery, (iv) deception or fraud, (v) a drugs offence, (vi) a criminal damage offence and (vii) other crimes in 2007-08. [273526]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The data requested are given in the table.

Average cost per incident, by incident type

	Direct staff costs	Operational support costs	Business support costs	Total cost excluding overheads
Violence against the person—S20 and more serious	9,376.64	5,140.30	3,730.44	18,247.39
Violence against the person—S47 and less serious	216.43	151.19	93.75	461.37
Sexual offences	2,396.34	1,608.59	1,007.81	5,012.74
Robbery	1,198.15	824.08	518.36	2,540.59
Deception/fraud	508.23	302.35	229.34	1,039.92
Drugs offences	722.77	461.08	319.02	1,502.84
Criminal damage	103.65	74.91	45.12	223.68
Crimes other than those specified above	301.57	233.85	137.49	672.92
Crimes other than those specified in ABC data collection[1]	3,670.65	2,837.99	1,620.70	8,129.34
Total crime	359.00	250.25	157.32	766.57

[1] Crimes specified in ABC data collection are: violence against the person, sexual offences, burglary (dwelling), burglary (commercial and other), robbery, theft of or from a motor vehicle, theft of or from a motor vehicle, deception/fraud, theft (other), drugs offences, criminal damage.

Criminal Records: Slovakia

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what arrangements her Department has with the authorities in the Slovak Republic to obtain checks on the criminal records of Slovakian nationals (a) entering and (b) resident in the UK. [273616]

Mr. Malik: The United Kingdom is able to obtain checks, through the UK Central Authority for the Exchange of Criminal Records, of previous convictions of Slovakian nationals subject to criminal proceedings in the UK using the terms of Council Decision 2005/876/JHA. If police officers in the United Kingdom are investigating a Slovakian national they can also make a request through Interpol channels for information held on the individual, including criminal record information.

There is no formal arrangement for sharing criminal records of people seeking entry to the UK. Under the Free Movement Directive 2004/38 EC nationals of the European Economic Area (EEA) can move freely within member states; they do not require leave to enter or leave to remain.

Slovakian nationals will come to the attention of UKBA officials (and may be refused entry at port) if there was an outstanding European arrest warrant for them or if they had been deported from the UK or if they had been on the UK watch list because they constitute a threat to public security.

Cybercrime: EU Action

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions she has had with her European Union counterparts on the European Convention on Cybercrime; and if she will make a statement. [274245]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government are committed to ratifying the Council of Europe Cybercrime Convention. We are currently working through the formal UK process of ratification, during which we will lay the required explanatory memorandum before Parliament to obtain approval for ratification. If Parliament agrees to ratification, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office will then commence the formal ratification process with the Council of Europe.

We hope to complete the parliamentary process by the summer recess and the Council of Europe process within two months of that.

We are pleased that all of the EU member states have signed the convention and that a number have completed ratification. We work closely with our EU partners to tackle cybercrime, at ministerial, official and law enforcement levels.

Departmental Sick Leave

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many staff in her Department and its agencies took long-term sick leave in each year since 1997; [272020]

(2) what the (a) total and (b) average number of days of sick leave taken by employees in her Department and its agencies was in each year since 1997. [272021]

Jacqui Smith: Sick absence data for 2003 though to the end of March 2007 are available from sick absence reports published on the Cabinet Office website. The reports can be found on the following Cabinet Office webpage:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/who/statistics/sickness.aspx

Sick absence data prior to 2002 are not available without incurring a disproportionate cost owing to several changes of HR databases in use over the last 12 years which would necessitate an investigation of individual staff records.

Table 1 provides the number of staff who took long-term sick leave in 2008-09. Data on long-term sickness are not held for 2007-08 and cannot be gathered without incurring a disproportionate cost.

Table 1: Number of staff who took long-term sick absence 2008-09

Notes:
1. 2007-08 data have been taken from sickness data produced for the permanent secretary management group.
2. 2008-09 data have been answered using DataView, the single source for all Home Office HR data. DataView uses data extracted as soon as possible after the last day of the calendar month from the Home Office's four employee records systems: Adelphi for headquarters and the UK Border Agency (UKBA); Snowdrop for the Identity and Passport Service (IPS); IRIS for the Criminal Records Bureau; and ePayFact for pay and pensions purposes. UKVisas (previously FCO) and HMRC Detection staff who have transferred to UKBA will be added during 2009-10 as part of an ongoing improvement programme.

Immigration

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been granted indefinite leave to remain in the UK in each of the last 15 years. [254498]

Jacqui Smith: Statistics on grants of settlement (indefinite leave to enter or remain) are provided in the table.

Data for 1994 to 2007 are from Table 5.7 published in the Home Office publication "Control of Immigration: Statistics United Kingdom 2007". This publication may be obtained from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/hosb1008.pdf

The 2008 edition is due to be published in August this year.

The provisional grants of settlement total for 2008 is from Table 12 published in the "Control of Immigration: Quarterly Statistical Summary, United Kingdom—Fourth Quarter 2008" also available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she plans to reply to the letter of 19 March 2009 from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Sandra Vuso. [273752]

Jacqui Smith: I wrote to my right hon. Friend on 12 May 2009.

Offences Against Children: Internet

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff of the Child Exploitation and Online Protection Centre work on tasks related to e-crime. [272741]

Jacqui Smith: As of 30 April 2009, and including permanent, seconded, individuals 'on loan' and temporary personnel, the Child Exploitation and Online Protection Centre (CEOP) has a total of 105 staff who work to tackle the sexual abuse and exploitation of children and young people. Some of this work will involve abuse and exploitation where the use of technology may be a factor and other areas will focus on offender management, behavioural analysis, financial investigation and child trafficking.

Parliament Square: Access

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will commission research on the effects on the public of the closure of Parliament Square and surrounding roads by demonstrators on 20 April 2009; and if she will make a statement. [274028]

Mr. Coaker: The decision to close roads around Parliament Square is an operational one for the police. Clearly any demonstration has the ability to cause disruption and inconvenience to those going about their lawful business and police tactics will be to minimise such disruption while facilitating the rights of protestors to protest lawfully.

Police

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress has been made by her Department's programme on collaborative working between police forces to deliver protective services in regions identified as high priority; and what improvements she expects will have been made in such services in these regions by the end of 2009. [273023]

Jacqui Smith: The Protective Services and Collaboration Programme led by the Home Office and involving all the key stakeholders in policing has seen a significant increase in collaborative working over recent years.

Her Majesty's Inspectorate's recent review into protective services planning found that the majority of forces and authorities that have high need protective services now have good plans in place that, once delivered, will make the necessary improvements.

Police: Complaints

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many complaints were recorded against the police in (a) Essex and (b) England and Wales in each of the last 10 years; what the rate of complaints per 1,000 of population was in each such year; and if she will make a statement; [273865]

(2) what complaints to the Independent Police Complaints Commission have been upheld in each year since its inception; what (a) response was made and (b) steps were taken by the relevant police force to implement the recommendations; and if she will make a statement; [274008]

(3) how many complaints from (a) England and Wales, (b) Essex and (c) Southend were (i) made to the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC), (ii) upheld and (iii) investigated by (A) the IPCC, (B) another police force and (C) another independent organisation since the IPCC's inception; [274015]

(4) how much has been spent on (a) office accommodation, (b) staff costs, (c) staff travel and subsistence and (d) staff bonuses at the Independent Police Complaints Commission in each year since its inception; and if she will make a statement; [274024]

(5) how many staff employed by the Independent Police Complaints Commission have been made redundant in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [274021]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office does not hold the information requested as these are matters primarily for the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) in fulfilling its statutory functions under the Police Reform Act 2002. The IPCC will respond to you direct. Copies of the letter containing the IPCC's response will be placed in the Library.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what written (a) advice and (b) guidance is provided by (i) her Department and (ii) the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) to members of the public wishing to make a complaint about the police; if she will place in the Library a copy of each such document; what recent representations she has received from (A) members of the public, (B) hon. Members and (C) police forces about the adequacy of the powers of the IPCC to investigate the police; and if she will make a statement. [273866]

Mr. Coaker: The IPCC publishes a wide range of information to inform the public about its work and to support them through the complaints process. This includes web based information and a number of information leaflets covering different areas of the process including making a complaint and the rights of appeal. These leaflets are produced in a variety of languages and are available in hard copy through a number of outlets including Citizens Advice Bureau offices and police stations. They are also available from the IPCC on request.

The IPCC has a team of staff who deal with calls, letters and emails from members of the public requesting information about the police complaints system and how to make a complaint.

I regularly receive a number of representations from different sources on various issues relating to the IPCC. The IPCC continues to carry out an important role. The IPCC works with its stakeholders to continue to improve the police complaints system, for example, by taking forward work on its stock-take of the system following public consultation on a number of proposals for changes to the system.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many requests for information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 the Independent Police Complaints Commission has received since 2005; how many such requests were (a) agreed to and (b) refused in each of those years; how many refusals were subject to appeal to the Information Commissioner in each of those years; how many such appeals were successful; if she will place in the Library copies of the material subsequently provided in each case; and if she will make a statement. [273870]

Mr. Coaker: Since 2005 the Home Office has received the following Freedom of Information Act requests relating to the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC).

Freedom of Information Act requests

	Number
Total number of requests received until 1 May 2008	19
Total number of cases of where information released	2
Total number of case where information was not released	16
Total appealed to the Information Commissioner	0
Cases currently on-going	1

For those cases where information was not released, in nine cases collating the information would have exceeded the cost limit; in three cases the information was already in the public domain; and in six cases the information was not held.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many reports the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) has made to her Department on matters which it considers should be drawn to her attention by reason of their gravity or of other exceptional circumstances; how many were laid before Parliament; what discussions she has had with the IPCC on such matters since June 2007; if she will place in the Library copies of each such report produced by the IPCC which has not been previously laid before Parliament; and if she will make a statement. [273873]

Mr. Coaker: The Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) has made one report to the Home Office by reason of the gravity or of other exceptional circumstances. That report ('Police Road Traffic Incidents: a study of cases involving serious and fatal injuries') was published and laid before Parliament on 18 September 2007.

Following the report, ACPO set up a working party to produce new guidance for the police on the management of police pursuits. The IPCC was involved in this work and in subsequent discussions on how to take matters forward. We are currently working with Association of Chief Police Officer and the National Policing Improvement Agency on how best to ensure general compliance with the best practice set out in the guidance.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which police forces have awarded compensation to complainants whose complaints have been upheld by the Independent Police Complaints Commission in each year since its creation; how much was awarded in each case; what guidance her Department has issued on the level of compensation to be awarded; and if she will make a statement. [273884]

Mr. Coaker: The information sought is not collected or held by the Home Office.

Under section 88 of the Police Act 1996, any decision to award compensation following inappropriate police conduct, including following a complaint upheld by the Independent Police Complaints Commission, is a matter for the chief officer of the force.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what legislation currently regulates the Independent Police Complaints Commission; what amendments have been made to such legislation since its entry into force; what recent representations she has received on the operation of this legislation; which (a) statutory instruments, (b) departmental circulars, (c) consultation documents and (d) other documents she (i) has issued since February 2008 and (ii) plans to issue in the next two years consequent on the provisions of this legislation; and if she will make a statement. [273977]

Mr. Coaker: The Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) was established under the Police Reform Act 2002, with a remit covering complaints and conduct matters involving persons serving with the police service in England and Wales. The IPCC came into operation on 1 April 2004.

IPCC (Investigatory Powers) Order 2004 S.I. 2004/815 modifies, in relation to the functions of the IPCC:

Part 3 of the Police Act 1997 (authorisations to interfere with property); and Parts 2 (intrusive surveillance) and 4 (Tribunal) of the Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000.

Schedule 12 to the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 amended the Police Reform Act 2002, extending the IPCC's remit to cover death and serious injury matters, and to cover complaints against the Serious and Organised Crime Agency.

The Commissioners of Revenue and Customs Act 2005 and the Revenue and Customs (Complaints and Misconduct) Regulations 2005 (S.I. 2005/3311) as amended by S.I. 2006/1748 made under the 2005 Act extended the IPCC's remit in relation to the commissioners and officers of HM Revenue and Customs.

The Police and Justice Act 2006 extended the IPCC's jurisdiction to cover specified enforcement functions of immigration officers.

A statutory order was laid before Parliament on 5 June 2007 for the purpose of applying the Official Secrets Act to IPCC commissioners and staff.

The Criminal Justice and Immigration Act 2008 made further amendments to the Police Reform Act 2002 aimed at simplifying and modernising the police conduct system.

As part of these reforms to the police disciplinary system in which the IPCC plays a part, the following statutory instruments were laid before Parliament and came into force on 1 December 2008:

The Police (Conduct) Regulations 2008 (S.I. 2008/2864);

The Police (Performance) Regulations 2008 (S.I. 2008/2862);

The Police Appeals Tribunals Rules 2008 (S.I. 2008/2863);

The Police (Amendment) Regulations 2008 (S.I. 2008/2865);

Home Office Circular 025/2008 was issued to inform all Chief Officers of these new regulations. Guidance was also produced entitled 'Police Officer Misconduct, Unsatisfactory Performance and Attendance Management procedures' explaining the new system.

The IPCC has recently conducted a stock take of its operation and we are working with the IPCC to consider what further guidance, circulars or legislation may be required as a result.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on what occasions (a) evidence, (b) findings and (c) recommendations from investigations from the Independent Police Complaints Commission have been included in police performance and conduct systems; and what the outcome was of each case where proceedings have been completed. [274009]

Mr. Coaker: The IPCC's Learning the Lessons Committee, which includes representatives from the Home Office, Association of Police Authorities, HM Inspectorate of Constabulary and the National Police Improvement Agency, issues regular bulletins covering lessons learnt from IPCC investigations which are fed into the police service to improve its policies and practices. The IPCC is also developing a performance framework to improve the effectiveness and efficiency of the police complaints system.

A copy of the hon. Member's question has been sent to the IPCC and they will also respond to the hon. Member directly. Copies of the letter containing the IPCC's response will be placed in the Library.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions she has had with the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) on (a) its target for conclusion of a complaint against the police from the date of registration of the complaint and (b) the average time taken per case; what representations she has received from (i) hon. Members and (ii) members of the public about the time taken by the IPCC to investigate a complaint against a police force; what response she gave; and if she will make a statement. [274011]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office is working with the IPCC, the Association of Chief Police Officers and the Association of Police Authorities to help it develop a performance framework to help assess and improve the performance of the complaints system as a whole, including the work of the IPCC.

The IPCC monitors timescales of the complaints which it carries out, manages or supervises but there is no single overarching target for concluding consideration of a complaint against the police as the time will vary depending on the particular circumstances of each case.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many officials in her Department at each pay band have responsibility for the (a) formulation and (b) implementation of policy on the Independent Police Complaints Commission; what other posts in her Department each such official has held; and if she will make a statement. [274017]

Mr. Cooker: In line with standard non-departmental public body (NDPB) sponsorship arrangements, the IPCC sponsor team is led by a member of the senior civil service (SCS) who is supported by a team of appropriate grades with suitable skills and experience.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will bring forward proposals to establish an appeal mechanism for circumstances in which the Independent Police Complaints Commission decides not to uphold a complaint made against a police force; what recent representations she has received about this issue; and if she will make a statement. [274013]

Mr. Cooker: Complainants have a right of appeal following an IPCC supervised investigation. While there is no right of appeal following an IPCC managed or independent investigation, any decisions not to uphold a complaint following a managed or independent investigation can be challenged through the courts by seeking a judicial review.

Police: Essex

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions there have been between representatives of her Department and the Chief Constable of Essex Police on the amount spent by (a) Essex and (b) Southend Police on (i) own force investigations, (ii) supervised investigations, (iii) managed investigations and (iv) independent investigations in each of the last three years; what representations she has received since December 2008 on this issue; and if she will make a statement. [273193]

Mr. Cooker: Any visits that are made by Home Office representatives are not recorded centrally, nor have I received any representations on this issue from Essex police since December 2008. The amount Essex police spent on investigations in each of the last three years is a matter for Essex police authority and the chief officer of Essex police.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions she has had with Essex Police Authority on (a) overspend and (b) underspend by the Authority since July 2008; and if she will make a statement. [273667]

Mr. Cooker: No Home Office Minister has held any discussions with Essex police authority on overspends and underspends since July 2008.

Decisions on the distribution of resources are matters for the chief constable of Essex and the police authority. It is a legal requirement for the police authority to set balanced budgets taking into account any use of reserves.

Police: Standards

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps are being taken to refocus the National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA) on its extended role in (a) supporting forces to respond to inspections and (b) assisting forces to improve their performance; and what the timetable for full transition of the NPIA to this new role is. [273034]

Jacqui Smith: The National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA) is putting in place a new team that will, by June 2009, be able to provide assistance to police forces and authorities that wish to have the agency's help to improve their performance. This unit will comprise of five elements: a core team, a centre of excellence in performance management, peer teams, existing NPIA expertise and a knowledge resource.

Terrorism

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will hold discussions with representatives of police forces on the application of section 12 of the Terrorism Act 2000 to persons arranging or managing a meeting to be addressed via a video link by a person who belongs or professes to belong to an organisation listed in the Terrorism Act 2000 (Proscribed Organisations) (Amendment) Order 2001; and if she will make a statement. [274020]

Mr. Cooker: There are no current plans for discussions with police forces on this subject.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the role of the British military is in effecting reconciliation in Afghanistan. [273713]

Mr. Hutton [holding answer 8 May 2009]: As the Prime Minister reiterated in his statement of 29 April 2009, Official Report, column 871, a key element of UK strategy in Afghanistan is to support the Afghan Government as they take forward the process of reconciliation.

International forces are in Afghanistan to create the security environment required for a successful Afghan-led political settlement.

Aircraft Carriers

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate his Department has made of the annual cost to the public purse (a) in total and (b) in interest incurred of the period between the originally announced completion date for the Royal Navy aircraft carriers and the most recent estimate of the completion date. [275188]

Mr. Quentin Davies: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the right hon. Member for Devizes (Mr. Ancram) on 11 May 2009, Official Report, column 1015W.

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence where refits of the new aircraft carriers will be carried out. [275493]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The in-service support solution for the Queen Elizabeth aircraft carriers has yet to reach its main investment decision point, and so no decision has yet been taken on this issue.

Armed Forces: Empty Property

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what percentage of (a) service family accommodation and (b) single living accommodation (i) in the UK and (ii) overseas are void properties. [275013]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The table provided shows the number of void service family accommodation properties held in the UK and Overseas as at 1 May 2009:

		Total void SFA
Location	Total number of SFA	Number	Percentage
UK	49,884	8,390	17
Overseas and Europe	15,430	3,062	20

It is not possible to provide the number of void single living accommodation properties as the information is currently being verified.

Service accommodation is held void for various reasons such as it is awaiting moves of service personnel, improvement or modernisation, demolition or disposal. The Department is making vigorous efforts to reduce the percentage of voids, but there will always need to be a management margin to allow properties to be available for eligible service personnel when required.

Armed Forces: Housing

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will list the defects at the service family accommodation at Jubilee Buildings, Queens Terrace, St. John's Wood; what his Department's remedial plan for this accommodation is; and what the (a) timetable and (b) budget is for its repair. [274748]

Mr. Kevan Jones: As might be expected after decades of underinvestment there are many issues arising from these properties and the accommodation is not of the high standard to which we aspire.

Although essential maintenance and repairs continue to be carried out and issues raised by occupants are addressed, these properties are not required beyond 2011 and accordingly no major modernisation or improvement works are planned.

I have also asked for an update on these buildings and will write following this.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reasons permission for hon. Members to visit service family accommodation at Jubilee Buildings, Queen's Terrace, St. John's Wood has been refused. [274749]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I wrote to the hon. Member on 25 April 2009 stating that there were some issues with the accommodation and that I would write to him again shortly with details of these and our steps to resolve them.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many complaints Modern Housing Solutions received about accommodation maintenance in each of the last 12 months. [274982]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The number of complaints received by Modern Housing Solutions (MHS) in each of the last 12 months is provided in the following table.

	Total number of complaints received	Number of complaints regarding maintenance[1]
May 2008	622	397
June 2008	626	379
July 2008	656	458
August 2008	625	398
September 2008	727	479
October 2008	618	509
November 2008	674	407
December 2008	684	390
January 2009	909	534
February 2009	788	465
March 2009	937	497
April 2009	1,049	532

[1] Total complaints less those about missed appointments.

The figures have been broken down to separate cases where MHS have paid compensation to service family accommodation (SFA) occupants for missed appointments.

MHS are responsible for the maintenance and repair of approximately 45,000 SFA properties in England and Wales and carry out over 200,000 response repair jobs each year.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what percentage of units of (a) single living accommodation and (b) service family accommodation at each location in England there are at each grade. [274983]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The table provided as follows shows, as of December 2008, the number and percentage of single living accommodation (SLA) broken down by grade. Grade is an assessment of the size, amenities and condition of the SLA.

	Grade 1		Grade 2		Grade 3		Grade 4
Region	Number	Percentage	Number	Percentage	Number	Percentage	Number	Percentage	Grand total
East Midlands	1,488	25	809	14	265	4	3,464	57	6,026

Grand total	31,249	25	18,047	14	21,104	17	56,431	44	126,831

Further details on this breakdown are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

It is not possible to provide a breakdown of service family accommodation as the information is not held in the form requested and will take more time to collate and verify. I will therefore write to the hon. Member with the requested information.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many reported break-ins to service personnel accommodation there have been in each year since 2005. [275009]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The number of reported break-ins to service personnel accommodation reported in each year since 2005 is provided in the following table.

	Incidents
2005	1,143
2006	1,074
2007	1,017
2008	923
2009 (as at 11 May)	228

Armed Forces: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people were enrolled in a (a) gap year commission and (b) short service engagement in each year since 2000. [274897]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The short service commission is the normal first commission for those who become an officer in the armed forces and requires a minimum engagement of three years. Certain corps and regiments may have longer minimum engagements. It is a commission for those who do not wish to commit to a long career but would like to benefit from the high quality training and exceptional opportunities available to young officers. The gap year commission is open to people who have a firm place at a UK university for a first degree. It involves a year's commission in the Army, at the end of which, personnel can decide either to join the Army or go to university.

The following tables show an intake by financial year of gap year commissions and short service commissions for each of the Services:

Intake to the Regular Naval Service

Financial year	Gap year commission	Short service commission
2000-01	—	50
2001-02	—	60
2002-03	—	10

Intake to the Regular Army

Financial year	Gap year commission[1]	Short service commission
2000-01	60	160
2001-02	70	160
2002-03	80	140
2003-04	70	120
2004-05	30	120
2005-06	40	50
2006-07	50	40

[1] Gap year commissions are only utilised by the Army.

Intake to the Regular Air Force

Financial year	Gap year commission	Short service commission
2000-01	—	160
2001-02	—	150
2002-03	—	140
2003-04	—	130
2004-05	—	80
2005-06	—	80

As shown in the tables, no information is available for more recent years as it is not held in a format that is easily extractible. As such, information can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) recruitment target and (b) recruitment level achieved for each pinch point trade for the (i) Army, (ii) Royal Navy and (iii) Royal Air Force was in each year since 2001. [275047]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 26 March 2009, Official Report, column 565W. The position remains the same and there is nothing further I can add.

Armed Forces: Mental Health Services

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with his US counterpart on the Battlemind programme; and what assessment he has made of the merits of introducing it for the UK armed forces. [275186]

Mr. Kevan Jones: There is extensive liaison at official level between UK and US colleagues on the Battlemind programme. Battlemind is a military skills training programme, developed in the US by the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research, to prepare service personnel for the demands and challenges of operational deployment, and to enable them to adjust successfully to the peacetime environment when they return home. A version of the programme, modified for the UK, is currently being trialled by the Academic Centre for Defence Mental Health, King's College London (ACDMH). The results of this trial are due early 2010.

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the merits of introducing psychometric testing for the armed forces in order (a) to assess each serviceman or woman's vulnerability to psychological wounding from exposure to combat and (b) to screen servicemen after combat operations for changes in their personality which may be attributed to psychological wounding. [275187]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Research undertaken at the King's Centre for Military Health Research (KCMHR) has produced evidence which strongly suggests that such processes are ineffective and may indeed be counter-productive.

Recent research is summarised in the KCMHR "Ten Year Report" published in 2006 by the University of London and covering a decade's worth of research concerning the health of UK service personnel and veterans. This explains that selecting out individuals who might be at increased risk of developing mental health difficulties prior to deployment is a flawed strategy because, whether one uses clinical interviews or questionnaire-based methods, it is impossible to distinguish reliably between those who will go on to experience psychological difficulties and those who will not.

Furthermore there is evidence of a detrimental effect on those screened out, even though they may, in reality, be suitable for deployment.

Similarly, although mental health screening after deployment is practised by other countries, the Department is not aware of any evidence which demonstrates that formal mental health interviews or the use of questionnaires on return from deployment are able to distinguish effectively between those who might benefit from further intervention and those who might not. The MOD does, however, strongly support the notion that the psychological welfare of troops is primarily a chain of command responsibility. We place great emphasis on ensuring that those in positions of command remain vigilant for signs of any mental health difficulties and support these aims through our post-operational stress management protocols which include, but are not limited to, the use of decompression and of Trauma Risk Management (TRiM).

The MOD also funds six mental health pilot projects for veterans, has dedicated psychiatric nurses in Afghanistan and funds the Medical Assessment Programme at St. Thomas Hospital.

Armed Forces: Parachuting

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many soldiers in 3 Para are not (a) authorised, (b) trained and (c) certified to parachute. [274821]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: 500 personnel out of 594 posts in 3 PARA are trained as paratroopers. Of those, 327 personnel are currently certified to parachute.

Armed Forces: Swine Flu

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what preparations his Department is making to ensure that military bases (a) in the UK and (b) overseas are stocked with sufficient (i) antivirals, (ii) facemasks and (iii) gloves in relation to the swine influenza outbreak. [275049]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 11 May 2009, Official Report, columns 617-618W, to the hon. Member for Westbury (Dr. Murrison).

Armed Forces: Telecommunications

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the forecast cost of the Falcon programme from his Department's (a) direct resource departmental expenditure limit (DEL), (b) indirect resource DEL and (c) capital DEL was on 31 March (i) 2001, (ii) 2002, (iii) 2003, (iv) 2004, (v) 2005, (vi) 2006, (vii) 2007, (viii) 2008 and (ix) 2009. [275024]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Prior to 31 March 2007 the information is not held in the format requested and therefore could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

For 31 March 2007 to 31 March 2009 I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 27 February 2009, Official Report, column 1144W.

Armed Forces: Training

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much ammunition was allocated on all courses involved in the training of artillery personnel and forward observation officers to call in fire in each year since 2003; and what the cost of this ammunition was. [275018]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The quantity and cost of the 105 mm and 155 mm artillery ammunition allocated and fired at the Royal School of Artillery, Larkhill in support of phase 3 individual training is as follows:

Financial year	Quantity	Cost (£ million)
2003-04	20,541	16.5
2004-05	19,268	16.5
2005-06	19,169	16.1
2006-07	19,979	14.0
2007-08	10,950	15.0
2008-09	10,854	13.2

During 2007-08, RSA implemented changes to training course schedules that made more efficient use of ammunition. This dramatically reduces the amount of ammunition required, without impacting the quality of training provided, at a time when the cost of ammunition has risen sharply.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans his Department has for the disposal of its stock of Vector armoured vehicles; and how many vehicles he expects to donate to Iraq following the withdrawal of British forces from that country. [274743]

Mr. Quentin Davies: There are no plans to gift any Vector vehicles to Iraq. The future role of the Vector Light Protected Patrol Vehicle when it is withdrawn from operations in Afghanistan is under review.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many undelivered Vector armoured vehicles his Department is contractually obliged to purchase; at what cost such purchases will be made; and what plans his Department has for the deployment or disposal of those vehicles. [274747]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The Ministry of Defence is contracted to procure an additional 20 Vector, at a total cost of £4.43 million, excluding VAT. At present the planned Out of Service date for Vector is 2015, and plans for the future role of Vector following its withdrawal from Afghanistan are still under review.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many (a) Mastiff and (b) Ridgback armoured vehicles have been (i) ordered for and (ii) delivered to UK Land Command; [274970]

(2) when he expects the order for the additional tranche of Mastiff vehicles announced by the Prime Minister on 7 October 2007 to be completed. [274971]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The first tranche of 108 Mastiff Protected Patrol Vehicles (PPVs) were delivered to HQ Land Forces by the end of 2007. A second tranche of 174 Mastiff PPVs have been ordered and to date 82 have been issued to HQ Land Forces. It is anticipated that this order will be completed by the end of September 2009.

In addition, 24 Mastiff PPVs have been ordered as part of the Talisman project. It is currently planned that they will be delivered by the end of this year.

157 Ridgback Urban Protected Patrol Vehicles have been ordered and to date, 37 have been issued to HQ Land Forces.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his most recent assessment is of the performance of Vector armoured vehicles in Afghanistan; and what assessment he has made of the future status of the Vector fleet. [274984]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The evolving nature of the threat means that, following delivery of Mastiff 2, Ridgback and vehicles from the Protected Mobility package announced by the Secretary of State for Defence on 29 October 2008, Official Report, columns 28-30WS, we intend to withdraw the Vector Light Protected Patrol Vehicle from operations in Afghanistan. Vector, which has also faced some reliability issues, will have a phased withdrawal once the better protected vehicles from the Protected Mobility package have been deployed.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the total cost to his Department has been of (a) procuring and (b) maintaining the Vector fleet to date. [274986]

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much the Vector armoured vehicle programme has cost to date. [274742]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The current cost estimate for the Vector vehicle procurement programme is £44.43 million. This excludes costs for trials, MOD manpower costs, and additional items such as ancillaries, fuel, transport costs, ammunition, training and maintenance costs, which are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many armoured vehicles of each type are (a) available to be deployed immediately, (b) undergoing repair, (c) undergoing Bowman conversion, (d) in storage, (e) being used for training purposes and (f) otherwise assigned. [275042]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The figures requested are provided in the following table as at 8 May 2009:

Vehicle Type	Undergoing repair	Undergoing Bowman conversion	In storage[1]	Used for training purposes	Other[2]
AS90	1	3	44	32	3
Challenger 2	11	0	125	93	6
CRAARV	9	0	15	23	2
CVR(T)	295	0	83	153	16
FV430 (Mk2 + Bulldog)	117	0	339	141	26
Saxon	17	0	24	14	2
Shielder	2	5	14	5	4
Stormer	4	0	52	3	0
Titan	3	0	0	12	6
Trojan	0	0	0	13	5
Warrior	158	16	83	103	14
Mastiff	17	0	0	34	0
Panther	2	0	163	86	2
Ridgback	0	0	0	9	0

Vehicle Type	Undergoing repair	Undergoing Bowman conversion	In storage[1]	Used for training purposes	Other[2]
Snatch 2a and Snatch VIXEN	19	0	0	142	0
Vector	40	0	0	28	0
Viking (all variants)	13	0	16	64	2

[1] 'In storage' has been taken to mean those vehicles in controlled humidity environment as part of the whole fleet management programme
[2] 'Other' has been taken to mean those vehicles retained by the manufacturers for research and testing purposes.

I am withholding the information requested on the numbers of vehicles available for deployment for operational security reasons.

Army: Parachuting

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of (a) 2 Para, (b) 3 Para, (c) 7 Para and (d) 9 Para are out-of-date parachutists under the two-year military parachutist in-date rule. [275232]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The percentage of parachutists within 2, 3, 7 and 9 PARA that are out-of-date in accordance with the two-year military in-date rule are provided in the following table:

Unit	Percentage of trained Parachutists out-of-date
2 PARA	27
3 PARA	35
7 PARA	32
9 PARA	7

Defence Medical Services: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) required and (b) actual strength of each (i) service and (ii) trade of the Defence Medical Services is. [275043]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Manning statistics for the Defence Medical Services (DMS) are updated twice a year, in April and October. The April 2009 data are currently being collated, but the following table summarises the October 2008 figures. This table provides the required manning level of the DMS, the additional requirement for a manning and training margin (MTM), and the total number of personnel, which has also been split between the trained strength and those in training.

	Requirement	MTM[1]	Personnel trained strength	Personnel in training[2]	Personnel total
Royal Navy	1,311	211	1,328	248	1,576
Army	4,521	437	3,779	591	4,370
Royal Air Force	1,743	155	1583	75	1,658
Tri-service total	7,575	803	6,690	914	7,604

[1] The MTM includes a margin of trained personnel to take account of non-effective trained personnel. Non effective personnel are those who are trained but on terminal leave, long term sickness or mid career training. It also includes personnel who are undergoing speciality training i.e. holding some qualifications but not yet fully accredited. Our manning figures do not separate these elements, and so the table simply details the total requirement and the two constituent groups of personnel into the categories trained and 'in training'.
[2] "Personnel in training" does not include personnel who are already trained in a medical speciality and who are in career directed professional training.

Tables providing the figures for each medical speciality, that show the requirement and the number of trained personnel, but not personnel in training, in each medical and dental personnel division of the armed forces as at October 2008, have been placed in the Library of the House.

Departmental Data Protection

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many incidents of data loss from his Department involving (a) personal computers, (b) laptops and (c) portable USB devices have been recorded in 2009. [275111]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The MOD takes any loss of information and associated media storage devices very seriously and has robust procedures in place to mitigate against such occurrences. New processes, instructions and technological aids are also being implemented to mitigate human errors and raise awareness of every individual in the Department. The following table shows the number of incidents of data losses from MOD involving (a) personal computers, (b) laptops and (c) portable USB flash memory devices that have been centrally recorded from 1 January to 11 May 2009.

	Total devices lost/stolen
Personal computers	4
Laptops	28
Portable USB flash memory devices	20

Departmental Housing

Mr. Neil Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many units of accommodation of (a) one, (b) two and (c) three or more bedrooms his Department retains for the purposes of accommodating serving (i) officers and (ii) officials on long-term secondment to his Department; and what his most recent estimate is of the average annual (A) gross and (B) net cost of each type of accommodation in each such category. [273432]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I will write to my hon. Friend.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) BlackBerry devices and (b) mobile telephones have been lost by (i) Ministers, (ii) special advisers and (iii) civil servants in his Department in each year since 2005. [274463]

Mr. Hutton: MOD branches are not required to report centrally incidents of loss or theft of mobile phones and Personal Digital Assistants (PDA) therefore this information could be provided only at disproportionate cost. As regards PDA BlackBerry devices, the following table shows losses by year since 2005. The PDA lost in 2009 is the only recorded incident involving a special adviser.

	PDAs lost
2006	1
2008	0
2009	1

Departmental Publications

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of each edition of his Department's in-house staff magazine. [274979]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The principal central MOD publication, Defence Focus is distributed to the Houses of Parliament via the House of Lords Library, who receive a number of copies. We are making arrangements for future editions of Defence Focus to be distributed to the House of Commons Library, and will ask that they hold a copy of each edition in their archive.

Departmental Redundancy

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people he expects to be made redundant from his Department in (a) 2009 and (b) 2010. [275123]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Every effort is made to avoid compulsory redundancies across the Department. A departmental early release scheme will result in 498 volunteers leaving the Department early in financial year 2009-10, but there are no plans for compulsory redundancies.

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many of his Department's staff have been made redundant in each of the last five years; and how much was paid in redundancy compensation in each such year. [275124]

Mr. Kevan Jones: To provide specific information would require a Department-wide trawl to ascertain total costs for all individuals who have left the Department on redundancy terms on local redundancy schemes. This could be done only at disproportionate cost.

We hold information centrally on Department-wide voluntary early release schemes launched in 2005 and 2008, in connection with the civil service-wide reductions required under the 2004 and 2007 spending reviews. The total liability cost to the Department of individuals who left or are expected to leave on voluntary terms under these schemes is as follows:

Financial year	£ million	Releases
2005-06	41	603
2006-07	51	636
2007-08	67	691
2008-09	21	344
2009-10	40	498

Ex-servicemen

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many military veterans there are resident in each local authority area in (a) England and Wales, (b) Scotland and (c) Northern Ireland. [275180]

Mr. Kevan Jones: This information is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Ex-servicemen: Vocational Guidance

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much has been spent on the Careers Transition Partnership scheme in each year since 1998. [274976]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I will write to the hon. Gentleman.

Future Large Aircraft

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the forecast cost of the A400M from his Department's (a) direct resource departmental expenditure limit (DEL), (b) indirect resource DEL and (c) capital DEL was on 31 March 2009. [275122]

Mr. Quentin Davies: I am withholding the forecast cost of the A400M programme for 31 March 2009 as this information will be published in the Major Projects Report 2009 later this year.

Guided Weapons

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessment he has made of the number of (a) air-launched and (b) submarine-launched cruise missiles required to constitute a deterrent threat comparable to that of a Vanguard-class submarine; and what recent assessment he has made of the vulnerability of cruise missiles to destruction prior to reaching their targets. [275084]

Mr. Hutton: Assessments of submarine and air launched cruise missile systems were made as part of the supporting evidence for the December 2006 White Paper "The Future of the UK's Nuclear Deterrent" (Cm6994). No cruise missile launched system was considered to be as capable as a ballistic missile based deterrent. Cruise missiles are more vulnerable to interception, largely because of their slower speed and lower trajectory.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the maximum range is of (a) the Trident D5 ballistic missile and (b) a submarine-launched cruise missile; and if he will make a statement; [275085]

(2) what the maximum number of nuclear warheads is which can be carried by a single (a) Trident and (b) cruise missile. [275086]

Mr. Hutton: The maximum range of a Trident D5 missile is approximately 6,000 nautical miles, and that of the UK's submarine launched Tomahawk cruise missile is approximately 1,000 nautical miles.

The maximum number of warheads that can be carried on a single Trident D5 missile is 12. The UK does not possess nuclear armed cruise missiles. The options described in the 2006 White Paper "The Future of the UK's Nuclear Deterrent" (Cm6994) assumed that if the UK procured a nuclear armed cruise missile, then one warhead would be carried on each missile.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessment he has made of the capability of a state under attack from cruise missiles to determine prior to impact such missiles are armed with (a) conventional and (b) nuclear warheads. [275087]

Mr. Hutton: The UK keeps the capabilities of cruise missiles from countries of concern, including the types of warhead, under continual review. We judge that to determine the type of warhead whilst the missile is in flight is not currently possible. However, if the state under attack has prior knowledge of the aggressors' cruise missile capabilities, the type of warhead may already be known.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether British personnel based in Kuwait will receive (a) the Operation Telic Medal and (b) a council tax rebate; and if he will make a statement. [274820]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Under the current arrangements armed forces personnel may only receive the Iraq Medal for service on the land and in the airspace of Iraq, as well as the waters of the Northern Gulf, Iraqi territorial seas and Iraqi internal waters. However, in common with all campaign medals the situation is kept under constant review, and continues to take into account the ongoing risks and rigours of the operations in which British troops are involved.

As announced on 7 September 2007, council tax relief is paid to Service personnel serving in Camp Buehring who are involved in Operation Telic (roulement) 11. Payment has been made since 1 April 2008 and, in line with the introduction of Operational Allowance payment for these personnel, it was backdated to 1 November 2007.

Kenley Common

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects the proposed temporary barriers at Kenley Common to be (a) erected and (b) removed. [275216]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Erection of the temporary safety barriers at Kenley airfield will take place during May 2009 at a date to be arranged with the supplier of the fencing. Removal of the safety barriers will depend on the results of the trial of this safety measure.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much funding he has allocated for the erection and removal of the temporary steel barriers proposed at Kenley Common; and whether provision has been made for such allocation in his Department's existing budget. [275217]

Mr. Kevan Jones: An allocation of £12,000 was made in the 2008-09 Air Cadets Organisations budget to cover the cost of purchase, delivery and siting of the temporary pedestrian safety barriers on the MOD airfield at Kenley. Removal of the barriers would incur no cost to the Department.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with (a) Croydon Council, (b) Tandridge District Council, (c) the City of London and (d) users of Kenley Common on his Department's plans to erect temporary fencing at the Common. [275218]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Department's proposal for the erection of temporary safety barriers around Kenley airfield was raised with Croydon council and the Corporation of London at a safety working group meeting on 9 December 2008.

In view of ongoing safety concerns and with the full endorsement of the Health and Safety Executive, the Department's intent to proceed with the erection of the safety barriers at the points from which gliders are launched was notified to Croydon council on 1 April 2009.

No discussions have been held with Tandridge district council since the planned location for the barriers does not fall within their boundaries.

No separate discussions have been held with users of Kenley Common.

Land Mines

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what training facilities for landmine detection and clearance are available to members of the armed forces (a) in the UK and (b) overseas. [275230]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Members of the UK armed forces can carry out explosive ordnance disposal (EOD) training in any exercise or operational area in the UK or overseas. In addition, there are purpose-built specialist facilities for mine detection and clearance training at: the Combat Engineer School at Minley; the Commando Training Centre Royal Marine in Lympstone; the Defence EOD Munitions and Search School at Lodge Hill in Kent; the Engineer Training and Advisory Team facility in Sennelager, Germany and Camp Bastion in Afghanistan.

A further purpose-built mine search and clearance facility is under construction at Carver Barracks in Wimbish.

Navy

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many hours sea time on average is made available to members of (a) university Royal Naval units and (b) the Royal Naval Reserve annually; [274334]

(2) if he will make it his policy to make sea time on patrol craft attached to university Royal Naval units available to members of the Royal Navy Reserve. [274335]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Approximately 33,600 hours of sea time is made available to University Royal Navy Units annually.

The figures regarding the number of hours sea time for Royal Navy Reserves are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, the Royal Navy Reserves are provided with the necessary opportunities at sea to achieve and maintain their operational effectiveness and this remains an essential part of their training.

The Royal Navy Reserves can request to use University Royal Navy Unit patrol craft for training purposes, which are made available where it is possible to do so without detriment to mandated University Royal Navy Unit roles.

Navy: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Royal Navy personnel were serving aboard ship away from home on average in each year since 1997; and what proportion of total naval personnel this represented in each year. [275053]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Navy: Military Bases

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what contingency plans his Department has for the continued functioning of the (a) frigate fleet and (b) submarine flotilla in the event of a naval base being put out of action following the implementation of the decision to allocate each type of warship to a single naval base. [274336]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Analysis conducted during the Naval Base Review confirmed a degree of excess capacity at the three Naval Bases; Devonport, Faslane and Portsmouth. This excess capacity deliberately provides a level of resilience for the Royal Navy Fleet which still exists today.

Decisions taken under the Maritime Change Programme, including the ongoing optimisation work, which I announced to the House on 6 May 2009, Official Report, column 16WS do not impact upon that resilience. The Ministry of Defence is, therefore, confident that sufficient contingency exists across the three Naval Bases.

Navy: Telecommunications

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the forecast cost of the Naval Extremely High/Super High Frequency Communications Terminals programme from his Department's (a) direct resource departmental expenditure limit (DEL), (b) indirect resource DEL and (c) capital DEL was on 31 March (i) 2001, (ii) 2002, (iii) 2003, (iv) 2004, (v) 2005, (vi) 2006, (vii) 2007, (viii) 2008 and (ix) 2009. [275023]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Prior to 31 March 2004 the information is not held in the format requested, and therefore could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

For the period 31 March 2004 to 31 March 2008 I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 27 February 2009, Official Report, column 1144W.

For 31 March 2009, the information requested is shown in the following table. The figures include the cost of the assessment, demonstration and manufacture phases.

	31 March 2009 (£ million)
Direct resource DEL	50
Indirect resource DEL	13
Capital DEL	123
Total	186

Nuclear Weapons

Mr. Godsiff: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his most recent estimate is of the cost to the public purse of the Trident replacement programme. [275708]

Mr. Hutton: Our current estimate, published in the December 2006 White Paper "The Future of the UK's Nuclear Deterrent" (Cm 6994), is that the total procurement costs of the successor deterrent capability will be in the region of £15-£20 billion, at 2006-07 prices, for a four-boat fleet. This comprises £11-14 billion for the submarines, £2-3 billion for the possible refurbishment or replacement of the warhead and £2-3 billion for infrastructure. These costs are being refined as experts continue to engage in detailed discussion with industry.

Piracy

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what guidance his Department has issued to the Royal Navy regarding the onward transfer of individuals captured in the course of committing acts of piracy on the high seas. [274333]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Royal Navy Commanding Officers will be aware of guidance on the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea, Law of Armed Conflict, and the requirements for Safety of Life at Sea (SOLAS), all of which are pertinent to counter piracy operations. Such internationally agreed conventions provide a framework for the way counter piracy operations are conducted.

Guidance has been issued to UK forces off the coast of Somalia regarding the legal and evidential consideration for the transfer and subsequent prosecution of suspected pirates, under our arrangement with Kenya. This includes specific advice on the handling and detention of suspects.

UK forces operate under Rules of Engagement and there is a specific profile for forces conducting counter piracy operations.

RAF Brize Norton

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the Chapel of Rest which is planned to accommodate repatriated bodies of fallen servicemen at RAF Brize Norton will have been completed; whether he plans to return repatriations to RAF Brize Norton from RAF Lyneham; and if he will make a statement. [274633]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: On current plans, repatriations will return to RAF Brize Norton in 2011. No decision has yet been made on when construction of a Chapel of Rest at the station might start. Appropriate facilities to support bereaved families and the dignity of the repatriation ceremony are to be provided as part of the overall development of the station.

RAF St. Athan

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date the contract for the St. Athan military training academy was signed. [275227]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The contract to deliver the proposed Defence Training College at St. Athan has not yet been signed. Contract signature is anticipated to take place in summer 2010.

Reserve Forces: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many volunteer reservists in each service have been committed to operations in each year since 2004. [274981]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 25 March 2009, Official Report, column 443W.

Information on volunteer reservists committed to operations is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Royal Regiment of Gibraltar

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has for the future of the Royal Regiment of Gibraltar; and when he next plans to review the number of troops stationed in that region. [274778]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Royal Gibraltar Regiment continues to perform its primary role of supporting the defence and security of the territory of Gibraltar.

As part of the routine annual planning round cycle the Ministry of Defence continually reviews its future plans across Defence including British Forces Gibraltar.

Somalia: Piracy

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what NATO assets will be used for Operation Atalanta under the (a) 2003 Berlin Plus arrangements and (b) 2002 NATO-EU Declaration on the European Security and Defence Policy; and if he will make a statement. [274819]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There are no plans to use NATO assets for Operation Atalanta.

Under the terms of the 2002 NATO-EU Declaration on ESDP, the EU has briefed non-EU European members of NATO on the operation.

Submarines: Decommissioning

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of the submarine dismantling project. [274697]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The project currently has approval to undertake a £14 million assessment phase due to complete in 2011. This will be followed by the demonstration phase which will run from 2011 to 2013; costs for this phase have not yet been approved. Whole life cost figures will be developed as part of the preparation of the main gate business case, which is planned to be submitted for approval in 2013.

Submarines: Radiation Exposure

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many instances there have been of radioactive leaks from (a) nuclear-armed and (b) conventionally-armed nuclear-powered submarines in each of the last 12 years. [274332]

Mr. Quentin Davies: There have been nine leaks that were potentially radioactive. All these instances involved Ship Submersible Nuclear submarines which are conventionally armed submarines.

The following table shows in which year each instance occurred.

	Number
1997	1
2000	1
2004	1
2006	1
2008	2

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

China and India: Greenhouse Gas Emissions

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what discussions he has had with the (a) Chinese and (b) Indian governments on the reduction of greenhouse emissions; and if he will make a statement. [249826]

Joan Ruddock: I apologise for the delay in replying to this question, which was inadvertently misplaced.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State regularly discusses climate change with key international partners, including China and India. Most recently he has met with Xie Zhenhua, Vice Chairman of the National Development and Reform Commission, on his visit to China 3-6 May.

In addition, the UK and China enjoy a positive dialogue at official level, which takes place through the UK-China Working Group on Climate Change, launched in September 2006. Key areas of focus include: progress towards an ambitious outcome at the climate change talks in Copenhagen; reviewing and developing ongoing climate science collaboration between the UK and China; and adaptation to climate change through phase two of the Climate Change Impacts on Agriculture project. The last meeting of the working group took place in London in August 2008 and the next meeting is scheduled to take place in Beijing later this year.

The UK-India Structured Dialogue on Climate Change took place between senior officials in September last year in Delhi. The Secretary of State is looking forward to expanding on these conversations during international meetings such as the Major Economies Forum and the UNFCCC, as well as the UK-India bilateral summit, scheduled to take place later this year.

Liquefied Petroleum Gas

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change pursuant to the Answer of 5 March 2009, Official Report, column 1806W, on liquefied petroleum gas, which trade groups he plans to meet; and when he plans to meet them. [272308]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I will be meeting with the UK Petroleum Industry Association (UK PIA) next month

Low Carbon Buildings Programme

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change pursuant to the Answer to the hon. Member for Stafford of 20 April 2009, Official Report, column 326W, on solar power, what information and guidance his Department has provided for applicants for grants for solar photovoltaic technology whose applications are being kept on hold. [272097]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Low Carbon Buildings Programme (LCBP) Phase 2 is managed by Building Research Establishment (BRE). BRE have taken a number of measures to ensure that all interested parties are kept fully informed about the current hold on solar PV funding. In particular, information is available on the LCBP website to keep applicants and framework suppliers up to date on grant commitments and developments in relation to the programme. BRE have also contacted applicants and a helpline service is available.

Department officials also hold regular meetings with LCBP Phase 2 framework suppliers to track the progress of projects and to manage the programme through to June 2009.

Power Stations: Protest

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what information held by his Department and its predecessors on plans relating to protests at (a) coal-fired and (b) nuclear power plants has been provided to (i) E.ON and (ii) other power generators in the last two years. [270771]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Contingency planning for protests at power stations is a matter for the owners, the local police force and in the case of nuclear plants, the Office for Civil Nuclear Security and the Civil Nuclear Constabulary. If it is aware of likely protests the Department may liaise with these parties to ensure contingency plans are in place to protect security of supply, although people also have rights to legally protest.

River Severn: Tidal Power

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change which seminars and public events on tidal power in the Severn he and his officials (a) have attended since 26 January 2009 and (b) propose to attend before the end of the Severn Tidal Power Feasibility Study Consultation. [271197]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The first Severn tidal power consultation has now closed. Since the launch of the consultation—which was attended by some 150 stakeholders—I have chaired several Severn tidal power parliamentary forums (for MPs, Lords, Welsh Assembly Members, and MEPs); a regional forum with senior representatives of local authorities, local business and environmental organisations; and launched the Severn Embryonic Technologies Scheme, to fund the development of new technology proposals. My hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State replied to the private Member's debate on the feasibility study in Westminster Hall.

DECC officials have (in addition to a large number of eral meetings with stakeholders) attended a wide of stakeholder and public meetings including those listed:

A meeting of the Steering Group for the Strategic Environmental Assessment of Severn tidal power.

Multiple meetings with local strategic partnerships, council members and officials.

Two public meetings (in Brean and Burnham-on-Sea) organised by the right hon. Member for Wells (Mr. Heathcoat-Amory).

Two public forums on tidal energy (in Bristol and Cardiff) organised by the Royal Society of Arts.

A public meeting in Penarth organised by Chris Franks AM and Leanne Wood AM.

A public meeting organised by the Stop Climate Chaos Coalition in Bristol.

National Council of Women Seminar 2009 at Minsterworth, Gloucester.

Frampton on Severn Sailing Club meeting.

The South West TUC Conference.

The Institute of Civil Engineers Severn Tidal Energy Conference.

The BERR and DECC Business Climate Change and Energy Group (for energy companies and users).

Renewable Energy Association Ocean Energy Group.

Citi Institutional Investors Group.

Several meetings with regional port authorities.

The Department's partners in the feasibility study (including Welsh Assembly Government, the South West Regional Development Agency, and Government Office South West) and consultants to the feasibility study have also attended a number of meetings and events to provide information about the study and consultation.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change by what means he has engaged with (a) the general public and (b) those likely to be affected by the Severn tidal power schemes shortlisted for further consideration consequent on consultation on the Severn Tidal Power Feasibility Study published on 26 January 2009. [271198]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The general public and those likely to be affected by the proposed shortlist of potential Severn tidal power schemes have been engaged in the feasibility study in the following ways:

A three month public consultation on the recommended short-list of schemes and the scope of the Strategic Environmental Assessment. The consultation, supporting documents and an accessible summary of information were all made available on our website.

The Severn Tidal Parliamentary Forum for MPs, Lords and AMs.

The Severn Tidal Regional Forum co-chaired by Jane Davidson AM, the hon. Member for Exeter (Mr. Bradshaw) and me for senior representatives of local authorities, local business and environmental organisations.

The Strategic Environmental Assessment Steering Group, which includes statutory advisers, environmental NGOs, business representatives and academics.

Numerous meetings with stakeholders.

Public meetings for local businesses, representatives and individuals as requested by the local MP.

Interviews with local and national media to raise the public profile of the consultation.

Encouraging stakeholders and third parties to hold events to inform their own constituencies and providing materials to aid their discussions.

Regular email updates to the over one thousand stakeholders and members of the public who have expressed an interest in receiving information on the feasibility study.

Nearly 10,000 unique visitors have visited our consultation website and around 700 consultation responses have been received.

Warm Front Scheme

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what support is available to Warm Front customers to replace faulty domestic boilers fitted under the scheme. [274365]

Joan Ruddock: Warm Front customers who have received a gas boiler have access to a 24 hour breakdown line, which operates seven days a week and 365 days a year. In the majority of cases this service provides either a same day or next day response. Temporary heaters will also be provided under certain circumstances.

The Warm Front Scheme will first try to repair a faulty boiler. If the installer cannot repair it, they will recommend replacing the boiler with a similar model, for example, a standard boiler will be replaced with another standard boiler which is just as (or more) efficient.

In addition gas boilers installed or repaired under Warm Front receive two annual service visits. These are carried out approximately 12 and 24 months after the date of installation.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Business: Government Assistance

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent support his Department has provided to (a) small, (b) medium and (c) large businesses in the West Midlands. [272857]

Ian Pearson: The Government are providing a range of support to businesses and industry. Information on the full range of national support available can be accessed at www.realhelpnow.gov.uk

The West Midlands Task Force set up by the Minister for the West Midlands, has established a 'one stop shop' website

www.supportwm.co.uk

dedicated to signposting businesses and individuals in the region to support available, including specialist regional support.

In addition to help sign post businesses to support available in the region, Advantage West Midlands (AWM) is preparing a document which maps out the current initiatives available for difference size businesses—micro/small, medium and large. The final document will describe the initiatives in more detail. AWM are in the process of finalising this document and it will be accessible via www.supportwm.co.uk.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when he plans to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 19 February 2009, transferred from the Department for International Development on 25 February 2009, on tax evasion by multinational companies. [274439]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 11 May 2009]: I replied to the hon. Member on 7 May 2009.

Ministers: Members Interests

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform who the trustee of the blind trust operated on behalf of the Secretary of State is; and on what basis that person was chosen. [272382]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 5 May 2009]: In accordance with the requirements of the ministerial code, my right hon. and noble Friend the Secretary of State declared this information to the permanent secretary and the independent adviser on Ministers' interests. However, it is personal information and disclosure is not required.

Press: Competition

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of likely levels of competition within the newspaper and magazine wholesale distribution market in the period up to autumn 2009. [273408]

Mr. Thomas: The Office of Fair Trading (OFT) has undertaken a detailed examination of newspaper and magazine distribution arrangements over a period of several years. In October 2008, the OFT issued a final opinion providing guidance to industry on the compatibility of those arrangements with competition law. At the same time, the OFT published for consultation its proposed decision not to refer the newspaper and magazine supply sector (which includes newspaper and magazine distribution) to the Competition Commission for a market investigation. The consultation closes on 19 May and the OFT plans to publish its decision by autumn 2009. BERR understands the OFT is monitoring recent market developments, and will carefully consider representations made by interested parties, including those on likely levels of competition, before taking a final decision on a referral.

Retail Trade: Cleveland

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent steps his Department has taken to assist the retail industry in Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency; and if he will make a statement. [274087]

Ian Pearson: The Government have launched the "Real Help Now" initiative to assist businesses through the downturn. This is a new service providing employers and individuals with easy access to free advice and support. In the North East the campaign "Real help for Businesses and People Now" aims to highlight the funds and finance made available by One North East, Business Link, Learning and Skills Council, Jobcentre Plus and the Government office for the North East.

The regional development agency, One North East is supporting businesses and business sectors across the region. Information and support on the Real Help Now initiative can be accessed in the Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland area via Business Link. Latest figures for 2008-09 show that 102 retails businesses were supported by Business Link across the NE region, unfortunately data is not available for individual constituencies.

Royal Mail

Frank Dobson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 5 May 2009, Official Report, column 56W, on Royal Mail, how much he estimates will be charged in fees by (a) UBS, (b) Freshfields and (c) Deloitte for advising on the proposed part-privatisation of Royal Mail. [275889]

Mr. McFadden: The work on the partnership deal for Royal Mail is ongoing. It would not be appropriate to give an estimate of the overall cost of advisers' fees at this stage, as this remains subject to a range of variable factors. These include the length of the process, number of interested parties and the final shape of any partnership agreement.

Government will, of course, make the overall expenditure on advisers available once the deal has been completed and the costs are known.

JUSTICE

Antisocial Behaviour: Fixed Penalties

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent representations he has received on proposals to increase the level of fines issued under the penalty notices for disorder system; and if he will make a statement. [274611]

Mr. Straw: Apart from those from the hon. Lady, no representations have been received on reported proposals to increase the fine levels for penalty notices for disorder. I will be writing to the hon. Lady shortly in response to her letter of 28 April.

Under the Penalty Notice for Disorder Scheme introduced under the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001, the penalty amounts are £80 for higher tier offences such as criminal damage and £50 for lower tier offences such as trespassing on a railway. If the recipient of a notice neither pays this penalty nor opts for a court hearing a fine of one and a half times the penalty amount is registered against him and enforced as any other fine. We have no plans to change these arrangements.

Ashwell Prison

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which (a) rooms and (b) other areas of HM Prison Ashwell are inoperable following the disturbance of 11 April 2009; and for how long he estimates the damaged areas will be inoperable. [272822]

Mr. Hanson: Following the disturbance A, B, C, and D wings, totalling 415 accommodation rooms, are out of use.

On the non-accommodation areas, the Potatopak workshop is out of use. It is not yet possible to say for how long the Plastics workshop will be out of use. The Paints CIT (Construction Industry Training) workshop is due to be ready for use on 11 May, and the Offender Management Unit (OMU) will be refurbished and is due for completion in September 2009.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of the disturbance at HMP Ashwell on 11 April 2009 arising from (a) damage to prison property, (b) deploying additional Prison Service staff and other emergency services personnel to deal with the disturbance, (c) transporting prisoners to other prisons and (d) conducting an investigation into the incident. [272821]

Mr. Hanson: The National Offender Management Service (NOMS)/Prison Service investigation which is due to be completed by 29 May will estimate the cost to NOMS of resolving the disturbance. I will make the findings of the investigation and our conclusions on it available to the House in due course.

The investigation will not cover damage to property as decisions which will determine the costs of damage have yet to be made, and are not within the scope of the investigation. I will write to the hon. Member when known.

The cost of the other emergency services is a matter for the individual emergency services.

Commonhold

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer of 13 February 2006, Official Report, column 1615, on commonhold tenure, what steps have been taken to promote the operation of shared ownership leases in residential commonhold units since 2006. [274712]

Mr. Hanson: No steps have been taken to promote the operation of shared ownership leases in residential commonhold. Long leases of more than seven years, including shared ownership leases, are not possible in commonhold.

Affordable housing can be provided in commonhold by means of shared ownership trusts. The Finance Act 2007 extended the same stamp duty land tax treatment available to shared ownership leases in leasehold to shared ownership trusts in commonhold.

Coroners: Complaints

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many complaints his Department has received on (a) coroner Dr. Paul Knapman and (b) deputy coroner Dr. William Dolman in the last five years; and what steps have been taken in response to such complaints. [272686]

Mr. Straw: The Lord Chief Justice and I have joint responsibility, through the Office for Judicial Complaints, for considering complaints against the judiciary, including coroners. However, those powers do not extend to deputy coroners.

We have recently announced that we will usually make public information about members of the judiciary who are removed from office as a result of the consideration of a complaint or conduct issue about them. We do not normally comment, however, on whether or not a complaint has been lodged against a named member of the judiciary until such time as any such matter is fully investigated and the Lord Chief Justice and I have decided that a disciplinary sanction is required. In exceptional circumstances, however, the Office for Judicial Complaints may confirm that an investigation is under way, where the matter is already in the public domain.

Departmental Databases

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what his most recent estimate is of the number of inaccurate records on the (a) National Offender Management Information System, (b) Offender Risk Assessment System, (c) Offender Management National Infrastructure and (d) Libra Case Management System. [274191]

Mr. Straw: NOMIS is currently operating solely as a pilot system in the Isle of Wight cluster. NOMIS holds 1,508 offender records, solely relating to offenders currently held within HMP Isle of Wight. There have been 31 instances of records being incomplete, six instances of inaccurate records due to user error and a further 22 records whose inaccuracy will be resolved by the system being upgraded to the latest version. Incomplete and inaccurate records are less than 4 per cent. of all NOMIS records. The number of inaccurate records is small. Any errors are corrected as soon as they are identified. All systems have processes in place to minimise data input errors.

No information is kept of the number of occasions it is necessary to amend records held on the Offender Assessment System (OASys), which are shared with the offender in order to maintain accuracy. If an inaccuracy is identified, it is corrected immediately.

The Offender Management National Infrastructure (OMNI) is the IT infrastructure used within the National Probation Service: it is not in itself a database and thus does not hold records.

Although there is no process for summarising the number of inaccurate records, HM Courts Service has systems in place to maximise the accuracy of the data held on the Libra system. Any inaccurate records that are found on the system are corrected as soon as they are identified.

Housing: Sales

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average price was of a property sold in each year since 1995, expressed in 2009 prices. [274070]

Mr. Wills: The information requested is shown in the following table.

	Annual average price	Annual average price at Q1 2009 prices
1995	60,079	96,297
1996	71,519	98,777
1997	78,226	104,749
1998	84,669	109,617
1999	94,846	120,936
2000	108,164	133,950
2001	119,275	145,153
2002	138,200	165,417
2003	156,154	181,649
2004	178,542	201,685
2005	189,500	208,241
2006	203,708	216,870
2007	219,468	223,975
2008	216,664	212,946

Note:
The third column of the table shows the average price of properties sold in each year, adjusted to Q1 (January-March) 2009 prices using the all-items non-seasonally adjusted retail prices index (RPI). The RPI has been used because it includes price changes to housing-related items such as mortgage interest payments, depreciation, council tax, dwelling insurance and ground rent, which are not included in the consumer prices index.

Knives: Convictions

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people aged under 21 years have been convicted for offences related to possession of a knife in each of the last five years; and how many received (a) a caution, (b) an absolute or conditional discharge, (c) a fine, (d) a community sentence, (e) a suspended custody, (f) immediate custody and (g) another disposal. [274192]

Mr. Straw: The information requested is contained in the following table.

Offences involving the possession of a knife or offensive weapon resulting in a caution or sentence[1], committed by offenders aged under 21, England and Wales, 2004-08

	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008

[2] The figures are a count of offences rather than offenders. Where an offender has been sentenced for several possession offences each sentence has been counted.

These figures have been drawn from the police's administrative IT system, the police national computer (PNC), which, as with any large scale recording system, is subject to possible errors with data entry and processing. The figures are provisional and subject to change as more information is recorded by the police.

PNC data has been used here rather than court data, which is the usual source of published sentencing statistics. The PNC data provides more up to date figures ahead of the finalised annual court data and was used for the Ministry of Justice's publication "Knife Crime Sentencing: Quarterly Brief" published on 12 March 2009 and available from:

Magistrates Courts: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much HM Courts Service spent on the maintenance of magistrates courts in each year since 1997. [274149]

Mr. Straw: Her Majesty's Courts Service was created on 1 April 2005. Prior to that date ownership and operation of magistrates courts was the responsibility of the forty two magistrates courts committees in England and Wales. No detailed consolidated financial information is available for that period.

HM Courts Service costs related to the maintenance of magistrates courts buildings for financial years 2005-06 to 2007-08 were as follows:

			£000
	Resource	Capital	Total
2005-06	22,941	--	22,941
2006-07	25,473	12,460	37,933
2007-08	22,403	14,900	37,303

Her Majesty's Courts Service is unable separately to identify the capital maintenance expenditure element of magistrates courts capital expenditure for 2005-06.

Offences against Children

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people aged 21 years or over have been (a) prosecuted and (b) convicted for offences related to sexual activity with a child under 13 in each year since 2004. [274150]

Mr. Straw: Information on the number of persons aged 21 years and over who were proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for sexual activity with a child under 13 in England and Wales 2004 to 2007 (latest available) is contained in the table.

Data for 2008 will be available in the autumn of 2009.

The Sexual Offences Act 2003 significantly modernised and strengthened the laws on sexual offences in England and Wales to provide extra protection to children from sexual exploitation. This makes direct comparisons with previous legislation very difficult. Many new offences created by the Act will not have a direct equivalent under the old legislation.

[1] Includes the following statutes under the Sexual Offences Act 2003:
Sections 5, 6, 7, 8 (1) (2) & (3), 9 (1)(a)(b)(c)(ii) & (2) & (3), 10 (1)(a)(b)(c)(ii) & (3), 11 (1)(a)(b)(c)(d)(ii) & (2), 12 (1)(a)(b)(c)(ii) & 2, 25 (1)(c)(ii) and (2)-(4)(a)(b).
S.47(1) (a), (b) & (c)(ii), (2), (3) & (6), 49 (1)(a)(b)(ii) & (2)

[2] The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

[3] The found guilty column may exceed those proceeded against, as it may be the case that the proceedings in the magistrates courts took place in the preceding year and they were found guilty at the Crown court in the following year.

[4] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when these data are used.

Prison Accommodation

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 27 April 2009, Official Report, column 569WS, on prisons and probation, how many prison places will be built in each of the next three years. [274193]

Mr. Straw: In total 1,785 new places are planned for delivery in 2009. The table shows the number of new places currently planned for delivery in each of the next three years:

	Prison places
2010	2,968
2011	1,200

Figures include new build places and those provided through conversions of existing buildings, for example the conversion to a new prison of former RAF accommodation at Coltishall, Norfolk. Places provided through other measures such as cell reclaims are excluded.

I announced on 27 April that we will provide 7,500 places through new 1,500 place prisons. The construction of the new prisons will allow for the closure of older less efficient places. We plan to begin the tendering process for the construction and operation of the first two 1,500 place prisons in the summer.

Prisoners Release

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether people sentenced to two months custody or less and then released on end of custody licence are entitled to receive a discharge grant; what proportion of such people received such a grant in the last period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [275491]

Mr. Hanson: Prisoners sentenced to two months or less in custody and released on End of Custody Licence (ECL) are not entitled to a discharge grant.

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people have been sentenced to two months custody or less and then released on end of custody licence before serving any part of the sentence since 1 July 2007. [275492]

Mr. Hanson: No prisoners sentenced to less than two months have been released on ECL without serving any part of their sentence.

Under the End of Custody Licence scheme eligible prisoners may be released up to 18 days earlier than the half-way point of their sentence subject to serving a minimum of seven days in custody after sentence.

Prisoners Release: Expenditure

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much expenditure has been incurred from the budgets of (a) prison governors and (b) his Department in subsistence payments to offenders in each of the last five years. [274152]

Mr. Straw: The expenditure paid by prisons on subsistence payments has been included in the recorded expenditure, for discharge grants. It would incur disproportionate costs to separate the expenditure on subsistence payments from discharge grants as we would need to survey all prison establishments.

Prisoners: Suicide

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many suicides within (a) adult prisons and (b) young offender institutions took place within the first seven days of custody in each year since 1997. [274147]

Mr. Straw: Any death in custody is a tragic event. The Government are committed to learning from such events and reducing the number of self-inflicted deaths in prison custody. The National Offender Management Service has a broad, integrated and evidence-based prisoner suicide prevention and self-harm management strategy that seeks to reduce the distress of all those in prison. This encompasses a wide spectrum of prison and Department of Health work around such issues as mental health, substance misuse and resettlement. Any prisoner identified as at risk of suicide or self-harm is cared for using the Assessment, Care in Custody and Teamwork (ACCT) procedures.

Research on prisons and prison deaths has highlighted the early period of custody as a particularly vulnerable period for self-inflicted deaths. A lot of work has been put into reducing the number of such deaths in general, as well as specifically, in early custody. The following table details the number of self-inflicted deaths that occurred within seven days of commencing custody. Some prisons hold both adults and young offenders; therefore the figures are broken down by the age profile of the prison.

Type of prison	1997	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008
Adult	14	19	22	20	6	20	18	23	13	6	10	9

The Prison Service definition of self-inflicted deaths is broader than the legal definition of suicide and includes all deaths where it appears that a prisoner has acted specifically to take their own life. This inclusive approach is used in part because inquest verdicts are often not available for some years after a death (some 20 per cent. of these deaths will not receive a suicide or open verdict at inquest). Annual numbers may change slightly from time to time as inquest verdicts and other information becomes available.

Prisons: Barking and Dagenham

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) who his Department consulted prior to the decision to secure the site at Beam Park West to build a prison; who will be responsible for making the decision on the planning application to construct a prison on that site; and whether his Department has contingency plans for circumstances in which planning permission for that site is refused; [275074]

(2) which (a) Ministerial colleagues and (b) government agencies he consulted prior to making the decision to build a prison on the Beam Park West site; [275113]

(3) who will be responsible for submitting the planning application for the construction of a prison on the Beam Park West site; [275114]

(4) what plans he has to consult (a) resident groups, (b) local councillors, (c) housing associations and (d) others in the local community on the proposed prison at Beam Park West; [275090]

(5) what mechanisms have been put in place to enable local residents' views to be taken into account in the process of construction of the proposed prison at Beam Park West. [275120]

Mr. Straw: My Department consulted both the London Development Agency and the Greater London Authority concerning the availability of sites in the London area.

The responsibility for submitting the planning application is with the head of site assessment and planning within NOMS. It will be submitted to the London borough of Barking and Dagenham and determined by the London Thames Gateway Development Corporation.

Prior to the submission of a planning application for the site, officials will hold a public exhibition of the proposals. A wide area surrounding the site will be leafleted, advising local people of the exhibition and our proposals for the prison. The local planning authority will be consulted about the scope, location, date and time of the exhibition and about specific groups of local people, councillors and others they feel we should make a special presentation to.

We will consider the options available to us should the application be refused.

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) when he expects the proposed prison on the Beam Park West site to reach its prisoner capacity; [275076]

(2) what timetable he has set for construction of the proposed prison on the Beam Park West site. [275091]

Mr. Straw: Construction activity at the Beam Park West site will commence once the contracts have been awarded and a successful bidder is in place. This timetable is therefore dependent on successful conclusion of the procurement and detailed planning processes, currently estimated to be mid-2011. Construction itself will take approximately two years.

It is intended that the proposed Beam Park West site will be populated in a phased manner taking into account wider population management issues across the estate. It is anticipated that within six months of opening, the site would be running at its intended capacity.

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) by what mechanisms the criteria for bids for (a) construction and (b) operation of the proposed prison on the Beam Park West site will be published; and when he expects such criteria to be published; [275092]

(2) what timetable he has established for private contractors to bid for the operating contract for Beam Park West Prison. [275119]

Mr. Straw: The tender criteria for Beam Park West will be published via an invitation to tender (ITT), and in line with the Official Journal of the European Union (OJEU) compliant EU procurement directives, during the main procurement later this year.

The timetable for bidder engagement is expected to commence at some stage this year with the publication of the relevant OJEU notice.

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what estimate he has made of the number of jobs which will be created by building a prison on the Beam Park West site; [275115]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effect on local transport infrastructure of the construction of a prison on the Beam Park West site. [275116]

Mr. Straw: Research indicates that the operation of a 1,500 place prison is likely to create around 800 jobs, many of which are likely to be held by local people.

It is not anticipated that the construction of a prison will have an adverse impact on local transport infrastructure. However, following discussions with the local planning and highways authorities, a transport assessment will be submitted in support of the planning application.

Prisons: Violence

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many violent incidents (a) requiring at least one of the parties to attend hospital and (b) resulting in a death there have been in prisons in each of the last five years. [274626]

Mr. Hanson: Every homicide in prison custody is a tragedy. Reducing violence, whatever the level of severity, in prisons is a priority. We are committed to working towards a zero tolerance approach to prison violence. Since 2004, a national strategy has directed every public sector prison to have in place a local violence reduction strategy and since mid 2007 this has been applied to both the public and contracted out estate. A whole prison approach is encouraged, engaging all staff, all disciplines and prisoners in challenging unacceptable behaviour, problem-solving and personal safety.

Data are not held centrally on the numbers attending hospital as a result of violent incidents. However, data are provided in the following table on assault incidents resulting in attendance at hospital as inpatients.

Apparent homicides and assault incidents resulting in attendance at hospital as inpatients

Measure	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008
(a) Assault incidents resulting in attendance at hospital as inpatient[1]	235	263	235	210	235
(b) Apparent homicides[2]	2	3	0	2	3

[1] Assault incidents resulting in attendance at hospital as an inpatient are as reported on IRS at 31 March 2009.
[2] Numbers of apparent homicides are subject to confirmation at inquest and should be interpreted as provisional.

Attendance at hospital is dependent, in part, on the availability of health care facilities within a prison. A large local prison with inpatient facilities may well care for injured prisoners "in house". A prison without such facilities would send the prisoner to an outside hospital.

Trade Unions

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what office facilities are provided for the exclusive use of each of the trade unions recognised by his Department in (a) departmental premises and (b) the premises of his Department's executive agencies; and what the notional monetary value of such provision was in 2008-09. [271951]

Mr. Straw: In departmental premises the Departmental Trade Union Side are currently provided with an office for their use in the MOJ headquarters building. The value of this facility is estimated at £40,000 p.a.

In relation to the Department's Executive Agencies: in Her Majesty's Prison Service the Prison Officers Association (POA) are provided with an office for their sole use in all establishments. The Public and Commercial Services Union (PCS) and Prospect share an office and Prison Governors Association (PGA) have sole use of an office within the National Offender Management Service Headquarters building in London, the value of which facility is approximately £50,000.00 per annum.

In addition and in all other Executive Agencies, trade unions are provided with varying type of facilities although none is for their exclusive use.

Due to the variability of such provision it is not possible to provide a notional monetary value.

Young Offenders

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people aged (a) under 16, (b) 16 or 17 and (c) between 18 to 21 years served custodial sentences of (i) less than three months and (ii) between three and six months in each year since 1997. [271982]

Mr. Hanson: The following table shows figures for how many people were detained in all prison establishments in England and Wales aged (a) under 16 (b) 16 or 17 and (c) between 18 and 21-years-old who were serving custodial sentences of (i) less than or equal to three months and (ii) between three and six months as at 30 June in each year since 1997:

The figures are a re-working of material published in the Prison Statistics of England and Wales, 1997-2002 and Offender Management Caseload Statistics, 2003-07, copies of which are available in the House of Commons Library.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Young Offenders: Reoffenders

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the re-offending rates of persons discharged from (a) young offender institutions, (b) secure training centres and (c) secure children's homes in each of the next 12 months. [274996]

Mr. Hanson: The Government have a target to achieve a 10 per cent. reduction in the frequency rate of reoffending by 2011 against the 2005 baseline. We do not forecast on a monthly basis.

The latest National Statistics on reoffending shows that there has been a 16.2 per cent. fall in the frequency rate of reoffending of juveniles (both male and female) released from custody between 2000 and 2006. Overall the frequency rate of juvenile reoffending has fallen by 18.7 per cent. between 2000 and 2006.

Youth Custody

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the size of the juvenile population in (a) young offender institutions,

(b) secure training centres and (c) secure children's homes in each of the next 12 months. [274997]

Mr. Hanson: The Youth Justice Board (YJB) is responsible for commissioning and purchasing places in the under-18 secure estate. It monitors the demand for places and adjusts capacity across the estate when necessary in response to changes in demand.

The YJB recently analysed the level of demand for secure training centre and secure children's home places in order to determine the optimum number of SCH beds to be commissioned in the recent contracting round. It looked at data relating to the last three years. The YJB is confident that the number of places being commissioned over the next 12 months in each sector of the under-18 secure estate will meet demand.

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many children were moved (a) from secure training centres to secure children's homes and (b) from secure children's homes to secure training centres in the last 12 months. [274998]

Mr. Hanson: The Youth Justice Board records individual movements between establishments but does not centrally collate the data in a format which would enable it to provide the information requested. To do that would require a review of each case over the past 12 months, which could not be undertaken without incurring disproportionate costs.

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many children from (a) London and (b) the South East outside London the Youth Justice Board were sent to (i) secure children's homes and (ii) secure training centres in the last 12 months. [274999]

Mr. Hanson: The following table sets out how many young people from London and the South East region have been remanded in, or sentenced to, custody by the courts and subsequently placed by the Youth Justice Board in secure training centres or secure children's homes in the period, 1 April 2008 to 31 March 2009.

Region	Secure children's home	Secure training centre	Total
London	77	293	370
South East	60	125	185
Total	137	418	555

These data have been supplied by the Youth Justice Board from administrative computer systems.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan: Overseas Aid

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent steps his Department has taken to provide humanitarian assistance in Afghanistan. [275065]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) contributed £17 million in 2008 to the UN World Food Programme (WFP) emergency appeals which respond to chronic food insecurity in Afghanistan. These appeals reached 8.7 million of Afghanistan's most vulnerable people. WFP assessments indicate that in-country stocks are now sufficient to meet needs until the next harvest.

DFID also allocated £10 million over five years (2008-13) to the HALO trust, in addition to £3 million this year of core funding, to help expand their de-mining operations in Afghanistan. £4 million was also provided (2007-08) to the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) to support enforcement of international humanitarian law and facilitate the supply of humanitarian assistance in Afghanistan.

In addition, DFID provides core funding to the UN Children's Fund (UNICEF), the World Food Programme (WFP), and the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), all of whom have operations in Afghanistan.

CDC

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will instruct CDC Group to publish a financial review for 2008. [273628]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: CDC published its annual report and accounts for 2008 on 30 April 2009. These are available from the CDC website at:

www.cdcgroup.com

and in the Library of the House.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Politics and Government

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his most recent assessment is of the humanitarian situation in the Democratic Republic of Congo. [275066]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I visited eastern Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC) from 26 to 29 April 2009 and was made acutely aware of the alarming humanitarian situation. The Lords Resistance Army (LRA), FDLR (ex-FAR Interhamwe) and other rebel groups, continue to prey on the civilian population, provoking displacement and untold suffering. The United Nations (UN) estimates some 1.7 million are displaced, with over 300,000 newly displaced in 2009. The humanitarian community is currently bracing itself for the humanitarian consequences of the joint FARDC and MONUC military operation against the FDLR (Operation Kimia II) in South Kivu and has, as a result, developed contingency plans. In meetings with MONUC, I pressed upon MONUC the importance of ensuring adequate steps are taken to mitigate the impact of military operations on civilians and to work closely with the humanitarian community.

The well-established humanitarian response to the ongoing crisis in eastern DRC is able to cope with current levels of displacement and existing need. DFID established Rapid Response Mechanism (RRM) in 2005, run by UNICEF with NGO partners, to provide water and sanitation, shelter, non-food items and education for conflict affected populations. Other DFID partners, including Oxfam, IRC, MERLIN and the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) provide food, nutrition and health assistance. However, DFID is constantly assessing the situation and is ready to provide additional support if necessary.

Developing Countries: Malaria

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to tackle malaria in the developing world. [275002]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The UK Government provide significant support for efforts to reduce malaria. We have committed £1 billion from 2008 to 2015 to the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, TB and Malaria, as well as directly supporting developing countries, research and other international organisations. To date we have provided £49 million in support to the Roll Back Malaria partnership. We are providing £40 million for the Affordable Medicines Facility for Malaria (AMFm)—a financing mechanism to make effective malaria drugs available and affordable through public, private and non-governmental channels. The UK is also providing 20 million extra bed nets towards achieving the goal of universal bed net coverage by 2010.

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what support his Department is giving to developing countries for measures to reduce the number of deaths from malaria. [275026]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The UK Government's support to reduce the number of deaths from malaria is provided through global partnerships; multilateral agencies; and bilateral country programmes. Most of these are for both the treatment of malaria and reduction of incidence, including through widespread use of insecticide treated mosquito nets (ITNs).

We have committed £1 billion from 2008 to 2015 to the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, TB and Malaria. The UK is also providing 20 million extra bed nets towards achieving the goal of universal bed net coverage by 2010. Our bilateral programmes focus on giving support to countries to develop strong and sustainable health systems that are able to scale-up the coverage of treatment including artemisinin combination therapy (ACT) and ITNs. In Kenya our support includes the purchase and distribution of 14 million ITNs and 5 million re-treatment kits. In Mozambique our support will help reach their Ministry of Health's target of 95 per cent. ITN coverage for pregnant women and children under five in at least one province and at least 60 per cent. in two other provinces.

Food Supply

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what additional resources his Department is providing for measures to combat world food shortages in the global economic downturn. [275029]

Mr. Michael Foster: To combat world food shortages the UK Government have announced a package of assistance worth over £908 million to tackle high food prices. This included both short and long-term measures:

- £400 million for agricultural research over five years
- £30 million to the World Food Programme
- £22 million extra for the Ethiopia safety net (July 08)
- £8 million for nutrition monitoring
- £76 million for road building in DRC
- £32 million for social protection in Mozambique and Bangladesh
- £6.5 million for food aid and agricultural inputs for Afghanistan
- £217 million in budget support for Ghana, Uganda and Malawi.

More information and analysis of progress towards meeting the MDG 1 Hunger target and what the UK is doing to achieve this target is available in the DFID Hunger Factsheet.

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of progress in ensuring global food security. [275030]

Mr. Michael Foster: Global food price rises at the end of 2007 and throughout 2008 have hit the poorest people in developing countries the hardest. While international prices for most food commodities have come down, they remain high, especially at country level, and over 900 million people cannot meet their food needs. Globally the number of hungry people is forecast to top one billion this year. Food security is now threatened by the global economic crisis. The problem continues not just because prices remain high in many developing countries, but also because recession is reducing people's incomes.

The UK has led the international response and has called for all donors, international organisations, private sector and civil society to double efforts to tackle global hunger and poverty. UK has announced a package of assistance worth over £908 million to tackle high food prices. The UK Prime Minister has emphasised it would be wrong to reduce support for poor countries at this time.

More information and analysis of progress towards meeting the MDG 1 Hunger target and what the UK is doing to achieve this target is available in the DFID Hunger Factsheet.

HIV Infection: International Co-operation

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what discussions he has had with his international counterparts on global efforts to address HIV/AIDS. [275006]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Department for International Development (DFID) Ministers and officials maintain an extensive dialogue with key international partners. I have recently discussed AIDS issues with senior figures at the Global Fund to fight AIDS, TB and Malaria, World Health Organisation, UN Population Fund and World Bank and with Ministers during recent country visits to Nigeria, South Africa, Uganda, Democratic Republic of Congo and Burundi.

There is regular ongoing UK/US dialogue between Ministers, and at official level between DFID and PEPFAR staff (The US President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief). These discussions will continue.

Overseas Aid

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of progress towards achieving the Millennium Development Goal of halving poverty and hunger by 2015; and if he will make a statement. [274933]

Mr. Michael Foster: Global food price rises at the end of 2007 and throughout 2008 have hit the poorest people in developing countries the hardest. Higher food prices have triggered an increase in hunger worldwide—last year 75 million more people have been pushed into hunger—making the task of reaching the MDG 1 target more difficult. Furthermore in many developing countries recession is reducing people's income, making it harder to buy food. While international prices for most food commodities have come down, they remain high, especially at country level, and over 900 million people cannot meet their food needs. However, hunger has been reduced in Eastern and South East Asia and these regions, along with Latin America and Caribbean, are expected to meet the target.

More information and analysis of progress towards meeting the MDG 1 Hunger target and what the UK is doing to achieve this target is available in the "DFID Hunger Factsheet".

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what percentage of his Department's aid to (a) Africa, (b) Asia and (c) the Americas was allocated to (i) agricultural support, (ii) education and (iii) health care in each of the last three years for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [274934]

Mr. Michael Foster: Details on the UK's bilateral expenditure are contained in the DFID publication "Statistics on International Development". This publication is available from in the Library and online at:

www.dfid.gov.uk

Relevant figures are produced in the following table.

Proportion of DFID bilateral expenditure to Africa, Asia and the Americas by broad sector, 2005-06 to 2007-08

Percentage

		2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Africa	Agriculture	0.6	1.0	1.1
	Education	11.7	15.9	15.5
	Health	17.5	18.3	20.0
Asia	Agriculture	3.9	5.0	3.0
	Education	17.0	15.2	12.2
	Health	19.3	20.5	20.8
Americas	Agriculture	-1.2	3.4	1.9
	Education	5.0	16.9	5.6
	Health	9.5	6.6	9.4

Note:
Negative figures represent accounting adjustments, not a net flow to the UK.

Palestinians: Overseas Aid

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department has taken to alleviate the humanitarian conditions of people in Gaza in the last 12 months. [275057]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) funds the United Nations Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA) to provide schooling for 200,000 children in Gaza, and health care for the 70 per cent. of Gazans who are refugees. Our funding for the Palestinian Authority also helps support delivery of essential services in Gaza.

Since December 2008 DFID pledged close to £47 million to assist with humanitarian relief and early recovery activities. Of this, nearly £7 million has already been allocated to non-governmental organisations. A further £12.8 million has been allocated to United Nations agencies and the International Committee of the Red Cross. Throughout this period we have also consistently lobbied the Israeli Government on the need to improve access for humanitarian supplies and personnel into Gaza.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much (a) financial aid and (b) building material his Department has provided to Gaza since November 2008; and how much such building material has been delivered into Gaza to date. [275519]

Mr. Michael Foster: Following the Gaza conflict which started in December 2008, the Department for International Development (DFID) has pledged £46.8 million to assist with humanitarian relief and early recovery activities. £19.8 million has already been allocated to United Nations (UN) agencies and non-governmental organisations. Since 2008, DFID has also funded the United Nations Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA) to provide schooling to 200,000 children in Gaza and healthcare to the 70 per cent. of Gazans who are refugees. DFID also provides funding to the Palestinian Authority (PA) to deliver essential services in Gaza.

DFID has not directly provided building materials in Gaza. However, a number of the projects we fund are helping to provide shelter, and rehabilitate schools and basic water infrastructure. Further details on these projects are available on the DFID website:

http://www.dfid.gov.uk/Media-Room/News-Stories/2009/DFID-UK-funding-to-2009-Gaza-Crisis/

We do not know exactly how much building material has been allowed into Gaza to date. Severe restrictions remain on the import of water and sanitation materials, cement and other reconstruction materials. Meaningful recovery and reconstruction of houses and infrastructure will be very difficult while these remain in place.

St. Helena: Overseas Aid

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the effect on the level of private funding for the island of St. Helena of the decision to delay the construction of an airport on the island. [274788]

Mr. Michael Foster: Our assessment of the effects on private sector investment following the pause in the negotiations on the St. Helena airport is that it is likely to be reduced in this financial year. This is because many current plans for investment by local businesses, which are modest in scale, have been put on hold pending a final decision following the consultation that is under way. In regard to foreign investment, the St. Helena Development Agency (SHDA) has received interest from five investors in a range of development projects, which are now on hold. The largest potential investor in the hotel resort sector has confirmed commitment to St. Helena while the prospect of air access remains.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development on what assumptions the reference to increased uncertainties in respect of funding for the proposed airport in St. Helena in the St. Helena Air Access Consultation document was based; and if he will make a statement. [274808]

Mr. Michael Foster: The St. Helena Air Access Consultation Document refers to uncertainties about the assumptions underlying the airport investment. Examples given in paragraph 36 are: uncertainties about the possibility of cost escalation, due to currency fluctuation for example; and uncertainty over the speed with which benefits can build up, for example the rate and level at which tourism projections would materialise. The document also refers to the worsening global economic conditions and uncertainty over predictions as to how long the current situation will last.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment has he made of the change to the annual level of subsidy for the Island of St. Helena following the decision to defer a decision on the construction of an airport on the Island. [274809]

Mr. Michael Foster: The decision to pause negotiations on the St. Helena airport contract has not affected the level of DFID financial assistance for the island in the current planning cycle. The present three-year assistance package, which was negotiated with the Government of St. Helena (SHG) in 2007 remains unchanged. Our next assessment of the annual level of subsidy for St. Helena will be carried out jointly with SHG in early 2010. This will take into account the decision on the airport following the conclusion of the consultation now under way.

Sudan: Overseas Aid

Mrs. Ellman: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what humanitarian assistance the Government has given to Darfur in the last two years; and if he will make a statement. [275620]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to the hon. Member for Buckingham (John Bercow) on 25 March 2009, Official Report, column 401W, and to my hon. Friend the Member for Coventry, South (Mr. Cunningham) on 23 April 2009, Official Report, column 849W.

World Bank: Health

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of the World Bank in delivering successful outcomes through its health programmes since 1997. [275004]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The World Bank has a key role to play in supporting countries develop and sustain strong health systems. The World Bank's role in health was recently evaluated by the bank's Independent Evaluation Group (IEG). We took a close interest in the evaluation and participated actively in discussions of the group's findings at the bank's board.

The bank is committed to improving its performance in health. We believe that the bank's Health, Nutrition and Population Strategy, which was launched in 2007, sets the right direction and is already helping to address several of the weaknesses identified by IEG's evaluation. The bank recognises that it needs to improve performance and to ensure that it has the capacity it needs to play an effective role, especially in Africa.

HEALTH

Accident and Emergency Departments: Mentally Ill

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department has issued guidance to NHS trusts on the treatment of mentally ill patients who attend accident and emergency departments in hospitals; and if he will make a statement. [275429]

Phil Hope: On 30 April 2004, a new checklist, "Improving the management of patients with mental ill health in emergency care settings", was published by the Department. A copy has been placed in the Library. The checklist is for accident and emergency staff to help them with their patients with mental health problems. The checklist outlines areas for action and includes examples of the ways in which some services are addressing some of these challenges.

Cancer

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cancer patients with each type of cancer there have been in each primary care trust area in each year since 1997. [274406]

Ann Keen: Information on the numbers of patients living with cancer in each primary care trust (prevalence) is not held centrally. However, the number of new cases of cancer diagnosed in each year (incidence) since 1997 by Government Office Region can be viewed on the Office for National Statistics' website at:

www.statistics.gov.uk/statbase/Product.asp?vlnk=8843

Cancer: Health Services

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much each primary care trust spent on cancer services for each type of cancer in each year since 1997. [274403]

Ann Keen: The information is not available in the format requested. The following table shows an estimate of the gross expenditure on cancers and tumours by the national health service in England for all cancer and tumour types, for the last four available financial years. This information was first collected in 2003-04 and is not available for any previous years.

Estimated gross expenditure on cancer and tumours (all types) from 2003-04 to 2006-07

	Gross expenditure on cancers and tumours—all types (£)
2003-04	3,385,750,000
2004-05	3,773,203,000
2005-06	4,302,656,000
2006-07	4,352,460,000

Source:
Department of Health Resource Accounts

A table showing the gross expenditure on cancer and tumours at sub-level for 2006-07, the first year that this data was collected at sub-category level for a number of cancer and tumour types, by each primary care trust (PCT), has been placed in the Library. This table shows expenditure on each PCT's own local population. The figures include primary prescribing but exclude general medical services and personal medical services expenditure and any prevention-related expenditure, such as screening.

Cardiovascular System: Medical Treatments

Ms Hewitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the effects of the use of polypills combining statins and other medicines on levels of circulatory disease-related (i) deaths and (ii) disability in people over the age of 55 years; [R] [274092]

(2) whether his Department plans to make available to people over the age of 55 years a polypill combining statins with other medicines to reduce the risk of circulatory diseases. [R] [274093]

Ann Keen: The Department has not commissioned and evaluated the effects of the use of polypills. However, there are at least three phase I or II studies under way:

At Imperial, Neil Poulter and Simone Thorn are already involved in a primary prevention trial of a Polypill (simvastatin 20 mg, hydrochlorothiazide 12.5 mg, lisinopril 10 mg, aspirin 75mg) cost ~ 1 dollar/month. The collaboration is being led by Anthony Rodgers in Auckland and includes centres in Brazil, United States of America, the Netherlands, India, Australia, United Kingdom (our centre here at St. Mary's-Imperial) and New Zealand. The pill has been made by Dr. Reddy's which is a big generic pharmaceutical company in India. The project is supported by the Wellcome Trust, the New Zealand medical research council and by other local organisations in the participating countries (for us the British Heart Foundation). The pilot phase has started-the first patient was evaluated here in London last week this is a 12-week pilot to test tolerability, safety and efficacy. Towards the end of next year they hope to proceed to the main morbidity and mortality trial that will include five-7,000 patients over three-five years. The project is quite well summarised in a recent Guardian article:

www.guardian.co.uk/society/2008/sep/29/health.medicalresearch

Dr. Rodgers has been working with Dr. Reddy since about 2000 and the technical problems of Galenic formulation for a four component cardiovascular Polypill (the Red Heart Pill) have been solved. This Polypill has been approved by several regulatory authorities (including the UK and the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency) hence the primary prevention trial described above.

The University of Birmingham and Tehran University of Medical Sciences have completed a randomised controlled trial of a four component polypill in approximately 500 men aged 50 to 79 and women aged 55 to 79. This is a pilot study, with the aim of starting a fully powered clinical trial if this is successful. The Polypill consists of aspirin, a statin, an angiotensin converting enzyme inhibitor, and a thiazide diuretic. The aim is essentially to look at compliance and determine the effects of treatment on blood pressure and lipid concentrations. Recruitment began in 2006 in Golestan (northeast Iran), and follow-up was completed earlier this year. They proposed to submit for publication soon. This is led by Tom Marshall, senior lecturer in public health University of Birmingham, on behalf of Fatemeh Malekzadeh Akram Pourshams, Mina Gharravi, Afshin Aslani, Alireza Nateghi, Mansoor Rastegarpanah, Masoud Khoshnia, G. Neil Thomas, Bagher Larijani, Reza Malekzadeh, K. K. Cheng.

Trial in Madrid, Spain—Secondary Prevention study—a three-component polypill, which comprises aspirin, a statin and an angiotensin converting enzyme (ACE) inhibitor (which helps lower blood pressure), for secondary prevention in patients who have already suffered an acute myocardial infarction. The project is a private-public venture with Ferrer-Internacional, which is a Spanish pharmaceutical company based in Barcelona with experience in the development and launching of international projects. The new formulation will be available in 2010.

The Department has met the original Polypill authors on a number of occasions. The initial conclusions were that this type of approach would be more suitable in developing countries rather than in more sophisticated healthcare systems such as ours where tailored therapy is more the norm.

The Department is currently exploring how to reassess this issue in the light of fresh interest in the topic.

Care Homes

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many care homes have transferred from local authority operation to private ownership in each of the last three years. [273694]

Phil Hope: We are informed by the Care Quality Commission that the information requested is not collected.

Cervical Cancer: Screening

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when all colposcopy patients will be able to choose between local and general anaesthesia for their treatments; [274401]

(2) which NHS hospitals have sufficient facilities to treat all colposcopy patients receiving (a) punch biopsy, (b) large-loop excision of the transformation zone and (c) other cervical treatments under local or general anaesthetic; and which such hospitals advertise both forms of anaesthesia in their patient literature. [274402]

Ann Keen: Data on the number and type of facilities within national health service hospitals providing colposcopy punch biopsy, large-loop excision of the transformation zone and other cervical treatments under local and general anaesthetic are not held centrally.

The choice between the most appropriate types of anaesthesia to use for such procedures is a clinical one and should be reached following discussion between the patient and the clinician, taking into account the patient's wishes and which is the most clinically appropriate type of anaesthesia for the individual patient.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) BlackBerry devices and (b) mobile telephones have been lost by (i) Ministers, (ii) special advisers and (iii) civil servants in his Department in each year since 2005. [274467]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not breakdown losses by the type of owner. While the BlackBerry is now the only supported personal digital assistant (PDA) the figures for PDAs, particularly in the early years include other makes like, Ipaq, Palm pilot, Psion etc.

PDA (including BlackBerry) and mobile phone losses April 2005 to March 2009

	Personal digital assistants	Mobile phones
2005-06	4	11
2006-07	5	18
2007-08	9	21
2008-09	22	18

Information contained on BlackBerry devices is protected by a strong password and can be remotely wiped once the loss has been reported. Mobile phones lost will contain contact details but are unlikely to contain more sensitive information.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department has spent on (a) conference services and (b) banqueting services in each of the last five years. [274504]

Mr. Bradshaw: Costs of conference and banqueting services are not easily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

All expenditure on conference and banqueting services has to be incurred in accordance with the principles of Managing Public Money and the Treasury handbook on Regularity and Propriety.

Diabetes: Health Services

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of the national clinical director for diabetes. [274182]

Ann Keen: Dr. Sue Roberts was appointed as the first national clinical director for diabetes in 2003. In 2008, Dr. Rowan Hillson was appointed to succeed her. The post of national clinical director has proved highly effective in promoting the implementation of the National Service Framework for Diabetes. The national clinical directors have provided expert advice to the Government on hospital and community services for diabetes and leadership for everybody in the national health service engaged in delivering and improving the quality of diabetes services.

General Practitioners: Finance

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the Pre-Budget Report of November 2008, Cm7484, what progress has been made in allocating the £100 million capital spending to upgrade GP surgeries advanced to 2009-10. [274189]

Mr. Bradshaw: The identification of suitable practices that require upgrading of accommodation to take additional general practitioner (GP) training places is under way. The initiative will involve close partnership working between strategic health authorities, their deanery GP directors and primary care trusts.

Health Professions: Locums

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the framework for the revalidation of health professionals will cover self-employed locums registered with the nine UK professional health regulators. [274346]

Mr. Bradshaw: Revalidation will apply to all health professionals registered with the UK health professions regulators. This will include any registered, self-employed locums.

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what obligations there are on (a) employers and (b) patients to report concerns over the quality of services provided by self-employed locums working as (i) doctors, (ii) nurses, (iii) pharmacists, (iv) dentists and (v) other health professionals in the NHS; [274360]

(2) what guidance is provided to (a) employers and (b) patients on the reporting of concerns over the quality of services provided by self-employed locums working as (i) doctors, (ii) nurses, (iii) pharmacists, (iv) dentists and (v) other health professionals in the NHS. [274361]

Mr. Bradshaw: Health care organisations should investigate all concerns about the quality of care given by a health care professional working for them, whether in a locum or substantive capacity. On 26 February 2009, the Department published "Listening, responding, improving: a guide to better customer care", aimed at health and social care staff involved in receiving feedback and resolving concerns and complaints. This is generic guidance to help local complaints managers to work with colleagues to make their organisations better at listening, responding and learning from people's experiences of care. Additionally, each national health service health care provider must make information available to the public regarding arrangements for dealing with complaints. The NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency is responsible for providing advice to agencies on complaints procedures and for monitoring complaints about agency workers.

The Department's advice to employers "Handling Concerns about the Performance of Healthcare Professionals: Principles of Good Practice" was published in September 2006. This document sets out the principles for effective systems for handling performance concerns and outlines good practice for managing concerns about individuals. "High professional standards in the modern NHS"; a framework for the initial handling of concerns about doctors and dentists in the NHS, was issued in 2005 and applies to the NHS in England. It sets out the procedures to be followed when the quality of services provided are called into question. Similar guidance is also issued by individual regulatory bodies, which can be accessed from their websites. Copies of the publications referred to in the reply have been placed in the Library.

Under the Health and Social Care (Community Health and Standards) Act 2003, it is the duty of each NHS body to put and keep in place arrangements for the purpose of monitoring and improving the quality of health care provided by and for that body. The Government have taken additional powers through the Health and Social Care Act 2008 which will enable the introduction of new regulations intended to strengthening local clinical governance arrangements. This includes the introduction of responsible officers, who will have statutory responsibility for ensuring that there are robust systems in place to monitor the conduct and performance of all doctors, including those working as locums. Health care organisations and designated bodies will also be subject to a new duty of co-operation, which will ensure that concerns about health care workers are shared and acted upon, to protect patients and ensure quality of care. The new regulations will be accompanied with guidance for employers and patients. A public consultation on the regulations will be undertaken later this year.

Health Professions: Regulation

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made through the revalidation process in identifying the measures required to regulate (a) doctors, (b) nurses, (c) pharmacists, (d) dentists and (e) other health professionals. [274344]

Mr. Bradshaw: Following publication of the White Paper, "Trust, Assurance and Safety: The Regulation of health professionals in the 21st Century" in 2007, seven working groups were established to develop profesional regulation reforms. Two groups worked on medical and non-medical revalidation. Both their reports have now been published and can be downloaded from the Department's website. Copies have been placed in the Library. The health care regulators are currently taking forward the proposals for revalidation.

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_091111

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what account is taken of (a) patient safety, (b) public protection and (c) standards of public service delivery in the framework for the revalidation of health professionals. [274345]

Mr. Bradshaw: The process of revalidation for health professionals sits within the wider reforms to profesional regulation as set out in the White Paper, "Trust, Assurance and Safety: The Regulation of Health Professionals in the 21st Century".

Revalidation is being built on the White Paper principles of public protection, patient safety and quality of care, with the recognition that revalidation is as much about sustaining, improving and assuring the professional standards of the overwhelming majority of health professionals as it is about identifying and addressing poor practice or bad behaviour.

Revalidation will provide a positive affirmation that practitioners meet the standards of competence, ethics, conduct, and are up to date and fit to practise.

Health Services: Coventry

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent steps have been taken to improve medical services for (a) children, (b) older people, (c) families, (d) disabled people and (e) people with diabetes in Coventry. [274702]

Ann Keen: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 27 April 2009, Official Report, column 1077W.

Health Services: East of England

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment he has made of the standard of out-of-hours primary care provision in (a) Peterborough and (b) Cambridgeshire; and if he will make a statement. [275265]

Mr. Bradshaw: In September 2008 the independent regulator, the Healthcare Commission, published its review of Urgent and Emergency Care which rated the Peterborough primary care trust (PCT) area as 3 or "better performing" and the Cambridgeshire PCT area as 4 or "best performing", of which performance on out-of-hours services contributed around 25 per cent. to this score.

More widely, the review found that the national health service has made significant progress on performance against the out-of-hours National Quality Requirements for the delivery of out-of-hours services compared to a similar survey carried out by the National Audit Office in 2005. In addition, the overall results of the review were positive, with 60 per cent. of PCTs scored as "better" or "best performing" and 82 per cent. rated as at least "fair performing".

PCTs have a responsibility to ensure they provide, or secure provision of, a high quality, sustainable service for their local population. Where a provider is failing to meet the National Quality Requirements, PCTs, as commissioners of the service, and strategic health authorities must act to support out-of-hours providers to improve their performance. It is vital that if the local NHS has concerns about the quality of out-of-hours provision in its area, it takes urgent and robust action to improve services.

Health Services: Leyton

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding has been provided for (a) Whipps Cross Hospital, (b) primary care services and (c) other health services in Leyton and Wanstead constituency in each of the last five years; what infrastructural changes have been made to health care facilities in the constituency; and if he will make a statement. [273338]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is not available by constituency. Hospital and community health services, such as Whipps Cross University Hospital NHS Trust, receive funding from primary care trusts (PCTs) largely through payment by results tariffs, primary care, the cost of drugs prescribed in primary care, and other services, such as public health, for their populations. The details are published in the trust's annual accounts, available from the trust itself.

Notes:
1. Allocations in 2004-05 to 2007-08 were made to the former 303 PCTs. The table shows estimates for the current configuration of 152 PCTs.
2. The scope of services covered by allocations has increased over time. In particular, before 2006-07 most primary medical services funding was not included in PCT allocations.

Hospital Wards

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 11 March 2009, Official Report, columns 510-11W, on hospital wards, if he will place in the Library a copy of the communications strategy produced in March 2009. [271169]

Ann Keen: The Department does not expect to place the communications strategy for the eliminating mixed sex accommodation programme of work in the Library. This is because the strategy (which is still evolving) plays a key role in the development and roll-out of policy relating to the elimination of mixed sex accommodation. Its placement in the Library would inhibit the free and frank discussions in which the Department needs to engage, in order that related policy options can be fully considered, and that its approach to the programme can be refined effectively.

Hospitals: Infectious Diseases

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 23 April 2009, Official Report, columns 834-35W, on hospitals: infectious diseases, if he will make it his policy to conduct research into the effectiveness of patient-centred technologies in preventing healthcare associated infections. [273524]

Ann Keen: If patient-centred technologies are taken to mean products selected and provided by patients it is not our policy to conduct research into the effectiveness of patient-centred technologies as we are not aware of any evidence that these products offer advantages over materials supplied to patients by the national health service. Our strategy 'Clean Safe Care' draws together the measures required to control infections. Generally, normal soap and toiletries are adequate for patients' personal hygiene during their hospital stay. If decolonisation of a patient is necessary, hospitals will provide specialist soap and shampoo.

However, the Department is continually investigating the potential impact new and novel technologies may have in preventing healthcare associated infections (HCAIs), including the development of prototypes of innovative designs for existing patient-centred hospital furniture and equipment, aimed at influencing patient and staff behaviour to help prevent HCAIs. The Department has established the HCAI technology innovation programme that provides support to emerging and established technologies.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what criteria are used to decide whether a product intended for use by the NHS will be reviewed by the Rapid Review Panel. [275476]

Ann Keen: It is the remit of the Rapid Review Panel (RRP) to review new and novel equipment, materials, and other products or protocols that may support the national health service in improving hospital infection control and reducing hospital acquired infections.

Manufacturers may contact the RRP through the RRP website or may be directed to the panel through one of the Healthcare Associated Infection Technology Innovation Programme's product surgeries. Manufacturers or authorised distributors must submit their product for review to the RRP.

Hospitals: Waiting Lists

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time was for Sheffield residents for admissions to hospital for treatment following GP referral (a) in 1997 and (b) at the latest date for which figures are available, by speciality. [274813]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information is not available in the format requested. Referral to treatment data is only available from January 2007 onwards. The following table shows the median waiting times for completed patient pathways for admitted patients in the Sheffield Primary Care Trust area, from January 2007 to February 2009.

Treatment function	January 2007	February 2009
General surgery	19.0	7.3
Urology	17.8	8.8
Trauma and orthopaedics	31.7	10.9
Ear, nose and throat	32.0	9.0
Ophthalmology	23.7	7.3
Oral surgery	23.0	10.0
Neurosurgery	n/a	9.8
Plastic surgery	16.8	8.0
Cardiothoracic surgery	n/a	8.8
General medicine	n/a	n/a
Gastroenterology	7.8	1.9
Cardiology	16.0	8.8
Dermatology	11.5	10.0
Thoracic medicine	n/a	n/a
Neurology	n/a	n/a
Rheumatology	n/a	n/a
Geriatric medicine	n/a	n/a
Gynaecology	25.0	6.0
Other	16.4	6.6
Total	21.9	7.8

Note:
Where there were fewer than 20 completed pathways for the given treatment function, a median has not been calculated. These cells have been marked with a value of not applicable (n/a). Data for January 2007 are given on an unadjusted basis, whereas data for February are given on an adjusted basis.

Maternity Services: East of England

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his most recent assessment is of the adequacy of maternity services in (a) Peterborough and (b) Cambridgeshire. [275264]

Ann Keen: It is for primary care trusts working with national health service trusts locally to decide how to configure maternity services.

Mental Health Services: Prisons

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what provision is made for the care and treatment of prisoners with (a) suspected and (b) diagnosed mental health disorders. [274624]

Phil Hope: The responsibility for prison mental health care transferred fully to primary care trusts in 2006. All prison mental health services are now mainstreamed within the national health service, where the reception screening tool can assess quickly all prisoners with health concerns, including mental illness, and, where appropriate, refer them to mental health in-reach teams.

NHS prison mental health services are provided through 102 in-reach teams, to which all prisons have access. Most mental health treatment and care is delivered in prison primary care settings, as is other NHS treatment (e.g. for prisoners with diabetes or heart disease) unless urgent treatment is needed, when prisoners can be transferred to secure NHS facilities outside of the prison service for treatment under the Mental Health Act.

Mid Staffordshire NHS Foundation Trust

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if his Department will provide funding for (a) voluntary and (b) faith counselling services to support relatives of patients of Mid-Staffordshire NHS Foundation Trust who have requested an independent review of case notes; and if he will make a statement. [274920]

Mr. Bradshaw: Counselling services will be offered to all those requesting an independent review of clinical records by the clinician leading the process.

Individuals will be signposted to the counselling services most appropriate to their needs. Where there is demand, these will include services provided by the voluntary sector and specialist faith counselling services.

All services will be provided by external counsellors at a location to suit the individual and will be funded by the trust.

A written ministerial statement on Mid-Staffordshire NHS Foundation Trust was issued on 30 April 2009, Official Report, columns 63-64WS, in response to the reports of the independent reviews undertaken by Professor Sir George Alberti and Dr. David Colin-Thomé.

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether appointments have been made to the position of (a) additional night matron and (b) professional development nurse at Stafford Hospital in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [274921]

Ann Keen: Appointments to individual national health service organisations are a local matter.

However, the West Midlands Strategic Health Authority has confirmed that the posts of night matron and professional development nurse at Stafford Hospital are being advertised in national nursing journals and on the NHS jobs website. The closing date for applications for the posts is 20 May 2009.

A written ministerial statement on Mid-Staffordshire NHS Foundation Trust was issued on 30 April 2009, Official Report, columns 63-64WS, in response to the reports of the independent reviews undertaken by Professor Sir George Alberti and Dr. David Colin-Thomé.

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many temporary nurses have been recruited to work at Stafford Hospital pending substantive appointments by Mid-Staffordshire NHS Foundation Trust in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [274922]

Mr. Bradshaw: Appointments to individual national health service organisations, whether temporary or substantive, are a local matter.

The West Midlands Strategic Health Authority (SHA) has advised that the number of temporary nurses being used at Stafford Hospital fluctuates in line with the requirements of the Trust. The SHA has confirmed that at the start of week commencing 11 March 2009, 74 per cent. of the 39 shift vacancies had been filled by agency nurses, with arrangements in place by the end of the week to bring this up to 92 per cent. The Trust is going to a wide range of agencies to ensure all remaining shifts are taken up and continues working to recruit to all vacant posts permanently.

A written ministerial statement on Mid-Staffordshire NHS Foundation Trust was issued on 30 April 2009, Official Report, columns 63-64WS, in response to the reports of the independent reviews undertaken by Professor Sir George Alberti and Dr. David Colin-Thomé.

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent guidance his Department has issued to the Mid-Staffordshire NHS Foundation Trust on (a) the implementation of the recommendations Lord Darzi's report, High Quality Care for All and (b) the preparation of quality accounts; and if he will make a statement. [274923]

Mr. Bradshaw: The implementation of High Quality Care for All (HQCfA) requires action at national, regional and local levels. Trusts have and will continue to receive a range of guidance on implementation of the report's recommendations. The operating framework for the NHS in England 2009-10 sets out the national priorities for the national health service, including the wide range of enablers to support the NHS in delivering HQCfA.

Quality Accounts will be produced in 2010, subject to the successful passage of the current Health Bill. Quality reporting is being tested by NHS Foundation trusts and by providers in the East of England in 2009. Guidance on this has been issued jointly by Monitor, the Department, the Care Quality Commission and NHS East of England, and is available on Monitor's website.

NHS Treatment Centres: Private Sector

Frank Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 6 May 2009, Official Report, column 208W, on NHS treatment centres: private sector, by what mechanisms his Department assesses the comparative cost-effectiveness of independent sector treatment centres. [275272]

Mr. Bradshaw: The mechanism used to assess the comparative cost-effectiveness of independent sector treatment centres (ISTCs) is a Value for Money analysis performed during the procurement of all Wave One and Phase Two ISTC contracts.

In evidence to the Health Select Committee in 2006, the Department stated that: Value for Money (VfM) in the ISTC programme comprises two key components: the cost of the programme compared to the "NHS equivalent cost"; and the value of the additional benefits brought by the IS programmes.

Frank Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what methodology his Department used to make the estimate that operations carried out by independent sector treatment centres cost on average 11 per cent. more than operations in NHS hospitals. [275273]

Mr. Bradshaw: The figure of 11.2 per cent., provided in evidence by the Department to the Health Select Committee in 2006, was a calculation of the average premium for operational Wave One schemes derived by comparing contracted independent sector treatment centre provider prices against an estimated national health service equivalent cost.

NHS: Negligence

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many completed cases have been brought against the NHS for incidents of negligence involving malnutrition and effects of hunger in each year since 1997; and at what cost to the public purse. [273546]

Ann Keen: We cannot provide the information requested because the number of incidents by year may result in identification of a patient. However, the NHS Litigation Authority has provided the following table, which covers claims made against national health service trusts, NHS foundation trusts and primary care trusts across the period since 1997:

Number of settled claims where the claim was made between 1997 and 2009 and where one of the injuries is recorded as malnutrition as at 30 April 2009

	Settled—nil damages	Settled with damages
Number of claims	1	5
Damages paid	—	118,019
Defence costs paid	—	29,019
Claimant costs paid	—	101,200
Total paid	—	248,237

Note:
The damages paid for these claims may include damages for other injuries within the claim, and not just damages for malnutrition.

NHS: Public Participation

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent additional financial support his Department has provided to Staffordshire local involvement network (LINk); whether his Department has plans for a national publicity campaign to promote awareness of LINks; and if he will make a statement. [274918]

Ann Keen: The Department has no current plans to allocate additional funding to Staffordshire local involvement network (LINk) although we are working to help the responsible local organisations to provide support for the LINk that is consistent with local authorities' duties in relation to LINks.

A written ministerial statement was issued on Mid Staffordshire NHS Foundation Trust on 30 April in response to the reports of the independent reviews undertaken by Professor Sir George Alberti and Dr. David Colin-Thomé. The statement sets out a commitment to give extra support to all LINks including a 'how to be heard' guide for the public, and a national publicity campaign to promote awareness of the role of LINks in influencing local decision making around national health service services.

Nurses: Foreign Workers

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what protocol governs the employment of foreign nationals by strategic health authorities and primary care trusts. [275132]

Ann Keen: "The Code of Practice for the International recruitment of healthcare professionals" (2004) is available to view on the Department's website and a copy has been placed in the Library. NHS Employers are responsible for the implementation of the code of practice and managing the list of commercial agencies that adhere to the code.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent discussions has he had with the Home Department on residency arrangements for foreign-born nurses. [275133]

Ann Keen: The Department continues to work closely with the UK Border Agency to ensure that a suitable route is available to allow international nurses to work in the United Kingdom when a suitable UK or European economic area candidate cannot be found.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent guidelines his Department has issued to (a) strategic health authorities and (b) primary care trusts on their employment of foreign nationals as nurses. [275134]

Ann Keen: NHS Employers is responsible for promotion, advice and guidance on international recruitment.

Palliative Care: Children

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many nurses working in the NHS are trained in the care of children on long-term ventilation. [272753]

Ann Keen: The Department does not collect information on the number of nurses trained in the care of children on long-term ventilation. The skills required within local services and the accompanying training is a matter for NHS organisations.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Apprentices

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills pursuant to the answer of 24 February 2009, Official Report, column 741W, on apprentices, how many people undertaking apprenticeship training as part of the Government Skills National Apprenticeship Pathfinder Scheme in 2008-09 are (a) new employees hired as apprentices and (b) existing employees converting to apprenticeships. [263889]

Mr. Simon: The Government Skills National Apprenticeship Pathfinder scheme brought 16 Government Departments together to increase the numbers of apprenticeships in the civil service starting in 2008-09. The original target of 500 apprenticeship starts has been more than doubled, with 1,395 starts to the period ending 31 March 2009.

Civil servant numbers have declined since 2004, so the Pathfinder scheme was designed to primarily focus on offering high quality apprenticeships to existing members of staff. It is a standard route for apprentices to be in a job before they begin their apprenticeship, in both the public and private sector. For 2008-09 the number of apprentices entering the Pathfinder scheme at the point of recruitment has been 30.

Many of those undertaking apprenticeships work in operational delivery roles in the Department for Work and Pensions, the UK Border Agency, HM Revenue and Customs, the Driving Standards Agency and the Ministry of Justice.

Government Skills is now working with Departments to help embed apprenticeships in their recruitment processes.

Basic Skills

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many Learning and Skills Council-funded adult learners aged over 16 years were eligible for inclusion in statistics used to measure progress against the Skills for Life Public Service Agreement target in (a) 2002-03, (b) 2003-04, (c) 2004-05, (d) 2005-06 and (e) 2006-07. [274010]

Mr. Simon: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 26 February 2009, Official Report, column 1015W.

Building Colleges for the Future Programme: Greater London

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many colleges in Greater London are awaiting a decision on an application for approval of schemes under the Building Colleges for the Future programme; and if he will make a statement. [275430]

Mr. Simon: Capital funding for further education colleges is administered by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC). As the information requested is with regard to an operational matter for the Council, I have asked Geoffrey Russell, the LSC acting chief executive, to write to the hon. Member with the further information requested. A copy of his letter will be placed in the Libraries.

Departmental Pay

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many staff employed in London on work contracted out by his Department earn less than £7.45 per hour. [275176]

Mr. Simon [holding answer 13 May 2009]: None. Contracts for facilities management at Kingsgate House in London are a matter for the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, which manages the building.

Employment Tribunals Service

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many actions under employment law were brought against the Department in each of the last three years, broken down by category of action; and how many were contested by the Department at an employment tribunal. [275624]

Mr. Simon: The Department was created in June 2007. There have been no cases brought against the Department since it was established.

Rotherham College of Arts and Technology

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills by what date he expects Rotherham College of Arts and Technology to have been allocated funding for its building programme. [275355]

Mr. Simon: Capital funding for Further Education colleges is administered by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC). As the information requested is with regard to an operational matter for the Council, I have asked Geoffrey Russell, the acting LSC Chief Executive, to write to the hon. Member with the further information requested. A copy of his letter will be placed in the Libraries.

Training: Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what training courses funded from the public purse are available to special advisers. [274062]

Mr. Simon: Special advisers are temporary civil servants appointed under Article 3 of the Civil Service Order in Council 1995, and are allowed the same training opportunities open to permanent civil servants, if there was a sufficient business case. As with all of their work, special advisers should not use official resources for party political activity. This would also include any training that they were allocated.

All training courses undertaken by the special advisers are linked to the Professional Skills for Government agenda and the Department's business and improvement objectives.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Council Housing: Sales

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was received by the Exchequer in right to buy social housing receipts in each year since 1997; and what use was made of the receipts in the most recent year for which figures are available. [275660]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 27 April 2009, Official Report, column 1118W.

Departmental Offices

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the address is of each site at which offices of her Department and its agencies are co-located with offices of the Homes and Communities Agency; and whether any further such co-location is planned. [273294]

Margaret Beckett: The following table identifies existing co-locations between the Homes and Communities Agency (HCA) and the Government Office Network (GON). The table also identifies where my Department and the HCA, in conjunction with GON colleagues, have identified the following buildings already within the CLG group estate where further co-locations would bring potential operational efficiencies.

Region	Building	Comments
Yorkshire and the Humber	Government office, 2nd floor, Lateral House, 8 City Walk, Leeds	Existing co-location with Government office
West Midlands	Government office, 5 St. Philips Place, Colmore Row, Birmingham	Co-location with Government office in progress
East Midlands	Government office, The Belgrave Centre, Talbot Street, Nottingham	Existing co-location with Government office
South West	Government office, 1st floor, Aztec Centre, Aztec West, Almondsbury, Bristol	Co-location with Government office staff being considered
North West	Government office, 4th floor, 1 Piccadilly Gardens, Manchester	Co-location with Government office staff being considered

While not strictly a co-location, the East of England HCA are proposing to occupy surplus Government office accommodation, which again makes efficient use of the CLG group estate.

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) whether her Department and its agencies have received recent representations from representatives of the Homes and Communities Agency on the co-location of staff; [273295]

(2) whether recent discussions have taken place between her Department and its agencies and representatives of the Homes and Communities Agency on the availability of office space leased or owned by her Department. [273296]

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions officials in her Department have had with the Homes and Communities Agency on the future location of its offices. [273409]

Margaret Beckett: The Homes and Communities Agency (HCA) property team actively participate in the quarterly Department for Communities and Local Government (CLG) Property Asset Management (PAM) Board meetings. The last PAM Board meeting took place on 21 April 2009. The Department's PAM policies can be accessed through the following link:

www.communities.gov.uk/publications/corporate/assetmanagementplan

In addition to the PAM process, as a consequence of the creation of the new non-departmental public body, officials from my Department have been meeting with representatives of the HCA to discuss estate and property matters on a monthly basis. There is an ongoing dialogue between officials from my department and the HCA on estates matters.

Eco-towns

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of each full assessment from which her Department's eco-towns assessment summaries published in June 2008 were made. [273597]

Margaret Beckett: Given the nature of the eco-towns assessment summaries there is not a full assessment document of each location that I am able to place in the House Library. The assessment summaries were working documents intended to give feedback to promoters where schemes were not selected for shortlisting. They identified in outline from a range of source material at that time, the issues arising from the initial scrutiny of the eco-town proposals.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer my hon. Friend the Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps) of 25 March 2009, Official Report, column 471W, on eco-towns, which external advisers conducted the eco-towns Financial Viability Study; and at what cost to the public purse. [273690]

Margaret Beckett: The assessments undertaken in the Financial Viability Study of the Eco-towns Programme were carried out by a team led by PricewaterhouseCoopers LLP (PwC). The team included: DTZ; Buro Happold; Davis Langdon: and DentonWildeSapte. Further details about the work carried out and our external advisors are set out in section 1.3 and Appendix A of the Study, which is available on my Department's website.

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/housing/pdf/1165892.pdf

As set out in my answer to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps) of 25 March 2009, Official Report, column 471W, we have spent £720,800 on stage one of this contract, and are in the process of completing stage two.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which of the proposed eco-towns could be established without public funding. [274816]

Margaret Beckett: I refer the hon. Member to the "Financial Viability Study of the Eco-towns Programme" (March 2009), which is available on the Department's website and provides an initial high level assessment of whether an eco-town could be economically viable in the locations that we have shortlisted. This includes conclusions on the outline financial assessment and whether the proposal has the potential to generate sufficient value to cover the direct and indirect costs of delivering the scheme without recourse to public subsidy beyond existing public sector funding sources:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/housing/financialviabilitystudy

Later in the year, following our consideration of the consultation responses and further assessment work, including the Financial Viability Study, I will announce which locations we are satisfied have the potential to be an eco-town. Individual schemes will then need to submit planning applications, which will be for local authorities to determine through the local planning process.

Emergency Calls

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what steps her Department plans to take to enable deaf, hard of hearing and speech-impaired people to make effective use of the 999/112 emergency numbers for the fire and rescue service; [275433]

(2) what steps her Department is taking to enable deaf and hard of hearing and speech-impaired people to communicate with the fire and rescue service using the short message text service. [275434]

Mr. Khan: The FiReControl Project is part of the Government's fire and rescue service modernisation agenda. Once implemented, it will provide the emergency call handling and mobilising function for the fire and rescue service in England.

Local arrangements exist for some fire services to receive emergency call via text message. Under the current planning assumptions, regional control centres will have access to existing local services until such a time as they are replaced by a national equivalent.

We are in the final stages of completing a comprehensive equality impact assessment which considers the implications for those who are deaf, hard of hearing or speech impaired. We aim to publish this assessment shortly.

Empty Homes Agency: Finance

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding the Empty Homes Agency will receive from (a) her Department and (b) the Homes and Communities Agency in (i) 2009-10, (ii) 2010-11 and (iii) 2011-12. [274007]

Margaret Beckett: The Department is not providing any direct funding to the Empty Homes Agency in the period 2009-12.

Decisions on allocations for the next three years will be made as part of the HCA's Corporate Planning process.

Empty Property: South West

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many empty dwellings there are in the South West region, broken down by local authority area. [275542]

Mr. Iain Wright: Details of the number of empty dwellings in each local authority area in the South West region are shown in the following table.

	Number of empty dwellings
Bath and North East Somerset	1,881
Bournemouth	3,538
Bristol	5,217
Caradon	1,588
Carrick	1,604
Cheltenham	2,072

West Wiltshire	1,489
Weymouth and Portland	820
Total South West	70,272

The data are as 6 October 2008 and are as reported to Communities and Local Government by all billing authorities in England on their annual Council Taxbase (CTB) and CTB (Supplementary) returns.

Energy Performance Certificates

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reasons an energy performance certificate purchased by a residential landlord to show to rental tenants may not subsequently be incorporated into a home information pack should the landlord wish to market his property for sale. [274782]

Margaret Beckett: An energy performance certificate purchased by a residential landlord for rental purposes may be used in a home information pack for a property sale, provided it is less than three years old at the first point of marketing.

Fire Services: Medals

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment her Department has made of the merits of providing funding for the award of fire service veterans badges; and if she will make a statement. [275600]

Mr. Khan: The Department has no plans to provide or fund a veterans badge for fire fighters. Some members of the National Fire services may be eligible for the Defence Medal. I understand that the British Fire Services Association designed and issued a lapel badge for veterans in the fire service. These are not funded by this Department.

First Time Buyers

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 5 May 2009, Official Report, columns 136-37W, on housing: sales, how many homes she expects to be sold under the First-Time Buyers Initiative in (a) 2009 and (b) 2010. [274892]

Mr. Iain Wright: The First Time Buyers' initiative is a demand led programme and therefore we have not made an estimate.

Home Information Packs

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effect on the availability of local search information provided for home information packs of recent unitary local government restructuring. [273688]

Margaret Beckett: No such specific assessment has been made. However, we understand from information collected by the Department that the nine new unitary authorities are providing access to property search information following the implementation of the Local Authorities (England) (Charges for Property Searches) Regulations 2008.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to review the operation, cost and effectiveness of the home information pack scheme. [274905]

Margaret Beckett: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for Winchester (Mr. Oaten) on 10 September 2008, Official Report, column 1989W.

Homes and Communities Agency

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what (a) studies and (b) reviews the Homes and Communities Agency and its predecessors commissioned, in which it engaged the services of the Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment in each of the last five years; [272558]

(2) how much (a) the Homes and Communities Agency and (b) its predecessors have paid to the Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment (CABE) in each of the last five years; how much she has allocated in each of the next three years; and what services have been received from CABE. [272511]

Margaret Beckett: The predecessor bodies for the Homes and Communities Agency (HCA) were English Partnerships (EP), the investment arm of the Housing Corporation (HC), and the Academy for Sustainable Communities. A range of departmental programmes also transferred to the Agency from Communities and Local Government.

The Academy, EP, HC and now the HCA have all worked with the Commission of Architecture and the Built Environment (CABE). The detail of all engagement, including studies and reviews and money paid to CABE in the last five years is given as follows:

The HCA has paid £134,590.64 to the Commission on Architecture and the Built Environment (CABE) for the following services since 1 December, 2008:

Delivery of the HCA Academy's 'Space Leaders' programme.

Work with growth locations to raise awareness about the value of design, and to help embed Building for Life standards within local planning policy documents.

CABE have a Memorandum of Understanding with ATLAS, the HCA's specialist advisory service.

English Partnerships paid CABE, £56,547.68 in 2004/05; £55,000 in 2005-06; £25,000 in 2006-07 and £25,000 in 2007-08 for the following services:

Together with the Housing Corporation, EP co-sponsored European International Design Competition, which CABE manage within the UK.

Work on the production of the Design Codes publication

Partnership working on initiatives such as Building for Life (BfL).

Sitting on the final assessment panel for Design for Manufacture, and the steering group for Urban Design Compendium.

Design reviews for a number of what were EP's direct and indirect projects such as Northstowe, Frickley and Corby station.

Production of the Allerton Bywater Design Code.

Contribution to 'Enquiry by Design' event for Whitefields borough council.

The Housing Corporation paid CABE[1], £40,000 in 2004-05; £80,[illegible] in 2005-06; £113,218.50 in 2006-07; £53,828.75 in 2[illegible]7-08 and £55,106.25 in 2008-09 for the following services:

[1] These payments include remunerations for both investment and regulatory work and therefore do not wholly reflect work now undertaken by the HCA.

2006-07

Provision of practical training to Housing Corporation and RSL staff throughout England.

Dissemination of best practice in the housing sector through the BfL Newsletter

Contribution to the work of the Housing Corporation Commission on Affordable Housing in the Thames Gateway.

2007-08

Setting up and running of a series of Focus group meetings with RSLs;

Dissemination of best practice through the BfL Newsletter

Contribution to the development of new Best Practice Guidance.

Europan 9 (see entry for EP above).

Project management of Affordable Housing Survey.

The Academy for Sustainable Communities paid CABE, £30,000 in 2006-07 and £15,000 in 2007-08 for the following services:

Delivery of 'Space Leaders' programme.

There is no overall allocation of funds for CABE within the HCA's planning. CABE's services may be used to provide design advice across the full range of the HCA's programmes over the next three years.

Homes and Communities Agency: Expenditure

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer my hon. Friend the Member for Welwyn Hatfield of 2 April 2009, Official Report, column 1505W, on the Homes and Communities Agency, on which projects the Homes and Communities Agency spent £54,000 on branding, broken down by category of expenditure. [273452]

Margaret Beckett: £54,000 was spent on the development of the HCA brand, delivered through the Central Office of Information.

The expenditure can be broken down as follows:

	£000
Stationery design for HCA and Milton Keynes Partnership	23
Brand guidelines development and CD production	20
Regional factsheet template	3
HCA brand induction flyer for staff	3
Design and production of HCA cardboard folders	5
Total[1]	54

[1] All costs exclude VAT.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer my hon. Friend the Member for Welwyn Hatfield of 2 April 2009, Official Report, column 1505W, on the Homes and Communities Agency, on what categories of stationery items (a) the Homes and Communities Agency spent £99,000 and (b) the Tenant Services Authority spent £17,000. [273453]

Margaret Beckett: The Homes and Communities Agency and the Tenant Services Authority's accounting systems cannot disaggregate expenditure by various categories of stationery item.

This information could therefore be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Housing

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) when she expects the Working Group on Condition Information in the Home Buying and Selling Process to (a) complete its work and (b) publish its report; [274856]

(2) on what dates phase (a) 1, (b) 2, (c) 3 and (d) 4 of the Working Group on Condition Information in the Home Buying and Selling Process was completed; what assessment she has made of the group's progress; and if she will make a statement; [274857]

(3) what phase of its work the Working Group on Condition Information in the Home Buying and Selling Process has reached; and on what date she expects it to complete this phase. [274858]

Margaret Beckett: The work of the Working Group on Condition Information in Home Buying and Selling process is ongoing and is due to report in September 2009. A copy of the final report will be placed in the Library of the House.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on what dates the Working Group on Condition Information in the Home Buying and Selling Process has met since its inception; where each meeting took place; which (a) Ministers, (b) senior civil servants and (c) other parties were present at each such meeting; and if she will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of each meeting. [274859]

Margaret Beckett: The Working Group on Condition Information in the Home Buying and Selling Process has met twice. The meetings took place on 4 March 2009 and 23 March 2009 in Eland House. No Ministers attended the meetings which were chaired by the Deputy Director of Sustainable Buildings and Climate Change Directorate. This work is ongoing and publication of the minutes could restrict the contribution of working group members to those discussions and limit their input. We will not therefore be publishing the minutes. My reply to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) 6 May 2009, Official Report, columns 240-41W, dealt with the membership of the working group.

Housing Revenue Accounts

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what housing revenue account pooling rate applies to the disposal of (a) dwellings and (b) land assets. [274842]

Mr. Iain Wright: After taking into account costs such as administration incidental to the disposal and improvements to the asset in the three years before the disposal, local authorities are required to pool 75 per cent. of receipts arising from the disposal of dwellings and 50 per cent. of receipts arising from the disposal of other housing assets. However, housing receipts arising from sales that are neither right to buy nor to any owner-occupier can be retained by local authorities provided they are used for affordable housing or regeneration projects. Furthermore, we have consulted on provisions which will effectively allow authorities to retain all RTB receipts, provided they are used for the same purposes, if they arise from newly-built or newly-acquired dwellings.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government at what rate local authorities are expected to include capital receipts relating to easements in their pooling amounts for their housing revenue accounts. [274843]

Mr. Iain Wright: Local authorities are required to pool receipts arising from the disposal of easements over land held in their housing revenue accounts, where such a disposal constitutes "the disposal of an interest in housing land" as defined in regulation 12(1)(a) of the Local Authorities (Capital Finance and Accounting) (England) Regulations 2003 (SI 2003/3146 (as amended)). Whether it is a disposal that falls within the regulations is a matter for the local authority to determine, subject to the scrutiny of its auditor. If the authority considers that the easement is an interest in housing land, then the receipt is poolable at a rate of 75 per cent. if the easement is over land that constitutes a dwelling. If the easement is over any other housing asset, then the receipt is poolable at 50 per cent.

In certain circumstances, it might be possible for an authority to retain all the receipt, provided the local authority uses the receipt for affordable housing or regeneration projects.

Housing: Low Incomes

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much (a) her Department and (b) the Homes and Communities Agency spent on the Affordable Housing Survey in each of the last three years; and how much she has allocated for expenditure on future such surveys. [272557]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 5 May 2009]: Responsibility for the Affordable Housing Survey rests with the Homes and Communities Agency (HCA) and as such, no funding was specifically allocated for the Affordable Housing Survey by my Department in the last three years, nor has any been specifically allocated for the next three.

The HCA, and previously the Housing Corporation, spent £25,000 in 2007-08 and £135,000 in 2008-09 on producing the Affordable Housing Survey. Nothing was spent on the survey in 2006-07. Decisions on allocations for the next three years will be made as apart of the agency's corporate planning process, which is currently under way.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department spent on publicising each HomeBuy scheme in each of the last three years; and what promotional activities such expenditure funded. [272977]

Margaret Beckett: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 23 March 2009, Official Report, column 68W.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many properties have been sold under the Homebuy scheme in each of the last five years. [273403]

Margaret Beckett: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 1282W, to the hon. Member for Brent, East (Sarah Teather).

The following table shows the provisional figures of homes provided under each of the HomeBuy schemes in 2008-09 through the Homes and Communities Agency's Affordable Housing Programme.

	Provisional figure
Open Market HomeBuy	6,216
New Build HomeBuy	10,647
Social HomeBuy	99
Rent to HomeBuy	1,173

Homes and Communities Agency Investment Management System

Provisional figures indicate that there have been no homes completed under the HomeBuy Direct scheme in 2008-09.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many social housing units have been (a) bought and (b) sold in (i) Essex and (ii) Castle Point in each of the last five years. [274242]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following table shows the number of units acquired for social rent by local authorities and registered social landlords in Essex and Castle Point in each of the last five years for which data are available.

Units acquired for social rent

Source:
Homes and Communities Agency Investment Management System (IMS), and local authority returns to CLG. Figures have been rounded to nearest 10 units.

Total social rented housing is provided by new build completions, as well as acquisitions. For example, in 2007-08, a total of 10 additional social rented homes were provided in Castle Point (through both new build and acquisitions), and 880 additional social rented homes were provided in Essex (new build and acquisitions).

The following table shows the number of social housing units sold by local authorities and registered social landlords in Essex and Castle Point in each of the last five years.

Units sold

	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08

Source:
Regulatory and Statistical Returns (RSR) from Registered Social Landlords to the Tenant Services Authority (TSA), Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix (HSSA) and PIB returns to CLG from local authorities. Figures have been rounded to nearest 10 units.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of shared ownership properties vacant at the latest date for which figures are available. [274710]

Mr. Iain Wright: The number of unsold housing association shared ownership properties for the period of January to March 2009 was 8,742. This is down 16 per cent. from the previous quarter where the figure was 10,359. As with all home purchases, transactions can take between three to six months to complete. The total number of homes unsold for more than six months dropped from 4,629 last quarter to 3,771, down 19 per cent.

Housing: Sales

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average income of first-time buyers taking part in the First-Time Buyers initiative has been in each year since the scheme's inception. [272103]

Margaret Beckett: The following table shows the average household income of purchasers through the First Time Buyers initiative for each year since the scheme's inception.

	Average household income (£)
2006	33,000
2007	29,213
2008	26,838
2009[1]	25,450

[1] Figures for 2009 only available until end of February 2009.

Housing: Sustainable Development

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homes with a sustainability code rating of (a) one star, (b) two stars, (c) three stars, (d) four stars, (e) five stars and (f) six stars have been completed in each of the last three years. [272219]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 12 May 2009, Official Report, columns 11-12MC.

Industrial Health and Safety

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department and its predecessor spent on compliance with requirements of health and safety at work legislation in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [274547]

Mr. Khan: The Department for Communities and Local Government and its predecessors have not specifically recorded expenditure incurred in maintaining ongoing compliance with health and safety at work legislation.

To disaggregate such costs would incur a disproportionate cost.

Land Use: Public Sector

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of minutes of each meeting of the surplus public sector land strategy group in the last 12 months. [272431]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Surplus Public Sector Land Strategy Group was a short-life group established to provide strategic guidance on the surplus public sector land programme. The Strategy Group met four times and considered commercially sensitive material and advised on the formulation and development of Government policy. On that basis we do not think it appropriate to place the minutes in the Library.

Local Development Frameworks

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what information her Department holds on local development schemes established by each local planning authority. [274757]

Mr. Iain Wright: Local Development Schemes are individual local planning authority timetables for producing core strategy and other development plan documents for its area, agreed with the Secretary of State through the Regional Government Office. The Department holds a record of Local Development Scheme timetables on a database and they are published on the Planning Portal website:

http://ldsdatabase.planningportal.gov.uk/ldfsearch.aspx

Mortgages: Government Assistance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer my hon. Friend the Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 4 February 2009, Official Report, column 1293W, on mortgages: Government assistance, what criteria her Department uses to define an ordinary hard-working household. [273596]

Margaret Beckett: The eligibility criteria for Homeowners Mortgage Support are designed to ensure that this scheme helps hard-working households who are having difficulties with their mortgage repayments to avoid the threat of repossession.

The eligibility criteria include households demonstrating that they have had a temporary loss of income from employment or self-employment of a scale which affects the household's ability to make full mortgage payments, but which is not expected to be a permanent loss of income. Households must also have no savings in excess of £16,000. Full eligibility criteria are available at http://www.direct.gov.uk/en/HomeAndCommunity/Keepingyourhomeevictionsandhomelessness/Mortgagesandrepossessions/DG_177639

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many housing associations are yet to receive Government funding in respect of the Mortgage Rescue Scheme. [273700]

Margaret Beckett: The Government's Mortgage Rescue Scheme has been operational since 1 January, supported by a network of 23 registered social landlord (RSL) mortgage rescue providers covering every local authority area in England. Further RSLs who wish to offer the scheme are being encouraged to do so in partnership with the lead provider for the area.

Under the scheme's financial framework there is absolute flexibility to direct the available resources to those areas with the greatest demand. This will be kept under review. Funding is drawn down once a rescue is complete and the RSL provider has submitted a grant claim to the Homes and Communities Agency (HCA).

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many eligible applications have been received under the Homeowner Mortgage Support Scheme. [274181]

Margaret Beckett: The scheme opened with the first group of lenders on 21 April. Borrowers apply to the Homeowners Mortgage Support scheme through their lender. Before being admitted to the scheme, they need to take money advice. We have worked with the participating lenders to produce a proportionate reporting system. This will provide statistics which will be published on a regular basis.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 5 May 2009, Official Report, column 139W, on mortgages: government assistance (1) what the terms of a typical loan offered under the Repossession and Eviction Prevention Fund will be; and by what date she expects the first household to be in receipt of such a loan; [274893]

(2) what steps she is taking to publicise the Repossession and Eviction Prevention Fund; and if she will make a statement; [274894]

(3) by what date she expects local authorities to be able to apply for funding under the Repossession and Eviction Prevention Fund. [274895]

Margaret Beckett: The Department will write shortly to all local authorities setting out further details about use of the Repossession and Eviction Prevention Fund. The funding, which is administered through the Homelessness Revenue Grant Programme, under Section 31 of the Local Government Act 2003, will be allocated to local authorities in June so that it is available to provide help to households as quickly as possible. Our advice to local authorities will set out that loans from the fund should not exceed a value of £5,000 per household and interest will not be charged. Information about the fund will be added to the range of support available to households and publicised for example through the DirectGov website.

Planning: Canvey Island

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much funding her Department plans to provide for work to be carried out by Building Design Partnership Ltd on a master plan for Canvey Island town centre; and if she will make a statement. [273522]

Margaret Beckett: The Homes and Communities Agency, funded by my Department, has approved a grant of £100,000 to Castle Point borough council over a two year period for a master planning project for Canvey Town Centre. Building Design Partnership Ltd has won a tender to carry out the work on their behalf.

Rented Housing

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 5 May 2009, Official Report, column 143W, on rented housing: what estimate she has made of the number of (a) registered social landlords and (b) local authority homes built since the data in Table 1 was compiled; and if she will make a statement. [274890]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 26 March 2009, Official Report, column 724W.

Repossession Orders

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of properties being purchased with a buy-to-let mortgage that have been repossessed in each of the last 10 quarters. [274711]

Margaret Beckett: The number of buy-to-let mortgage repossessions in the UK are published by the Council of Mortgage Lenders (CML). The following table shows the number of buy-to-let mortgage repossessions in each of the last 10 quarters as published by the CML.

Number of buy-to-let mortgage repossessions, UK

Shared Ownership Schemes: Mortgages

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of high street mortgage lenders which do not offer mortgage terms to buyers purchasing under shared ownership schemes. [275563]

Mr. Iain Wright: There are 17 lenders currently willing to offer mortgages under shared ownership schemes, an increase from 14 lenders in February 2009. The Government continue to work with the Council of Mortgage Lenders and individual lenders to encourage lender participation.

Social Rented Housing

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate has been made of the market value of homes owned by registered social landlords in each of the last three years. [270627]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 27 April 2009, Official Report, column 1113W.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many properties previously available for social rent from registered social landlords were sold in each local authority area in each year since 1997. [273646]

Mr. Iain Wright: A table showing the number of registered social landlord (RSL) properties sold in each local authority area in each year from 2001-02 to 2007-08 has been placed in the House Library.

These figures are taken from returns made by RSLs through the regulatory and statistical returns (RSR) to the Tenant Services Authority. The figures show RSL sales under the following schemes; right to buy, preserved right to buy, right to acquire, voluntary purchase grant, social homebuy and other shared equity homebuy schemes. It also includes other shared ownership sales (such as new build and open market homebuy), including sales of initial shares. Sales to other RSLs, and sales to the private sector for non-social housing use, cannot be broken down to LA level, but are included in the England total.

These figures are not available from RSR returns before 2001-02.

Tenant Services Authority: Finance

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the administration costs of the (a) Tenant Services Authority and (b) Homes and Communities Agency in each of the next three years; and what percentage of each organisation's estimated (i) income and (ii) grant in aid these sums represent in each such year. [274863]

Margaret Beckett: Decisions on allocations for the next three years will be made as part of the corporate planning process for both organisations.

Tenant Services Authority: Public Relations

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the Tenants Services Authority has commissioned any (a) public affairs and (b) public relations companies since its creation to date; and at what cost to the public purse. [274740]

Margaret Beckett: The TSA have commissioned the following to date:

Public Affairs consultancy—APCO: £1,200

Public Relations—Engage: £33,000.

Unitary Councils: Pay

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to publish details of the remuneration and redundancy packages for senior local authority staff arising from the recent unitary restructuring. [273211]

John Healey: Disclosure in each council's statement of accounts of the number of its staff whose remuneration (i.e. all amounts paid to or receivable by an employee) is in the band £50,000-£59,999, and the number in each subsequent £10,000 band, is currently required by the Accounts and Audit Regulations 2003.

In the recent local government reorganisation, the Local Government (Structural Changes) (Further Transitional and Supplementary Provision and Miscellaneous Amendments) Regulations 2009 require the 2008-09 accounts for those abolished councils to be finalised, and the annual statement of accounts to be published, by the relevant new unitary council. These accounts and the accompanying documentation, as for that of all local authorities, must be open for inspection by local electors for the area for 20 working days as part of the audit procedures, and the statement of accounts for the year must be published by the end of September.

The Department is currently consulting on proposals to amend the Accounts and Audit Regulations 2003 to improve transparency of reporting of remuneration of senior officers in public bodies. Further information is available at http://www.communities.gov.uk/corporate/publications/consultations/

Zero Carbon Hub

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the business plan for the Zero Carbon Hub. [270117]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Zero Carbon Hub's final business plan for 2008-09 to 2009-10 has been made available on the zero carbon hub's website:

www.zerocarbonhub.org

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies: Sponsorship

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which academy sponsors have withdrawn from the academy process (a) before and (b) after signing an expression of interest. [275173]

Jim Knight [holding answer 13 May 2009]: A sponsor's legal commitment to an academy project (as a member of the academy trust) occurs when a funding agreement is signed. Since the first academies opened in 2002, one lead sponsor (Chelsfield) and two co-sponsors (Intercity and Toc H) have withdrawn after signing funding agreements, but before the academies opened.

Records of academy sponsors that have withdrawn before and after signing an expression of interest, but before signing a legally binding funding agreement, are kept in individual project records and are not held centrally.

Children and Young People's Services Ministerial Group

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what mechanism exists for non-ministerial representation on the ministerial sub-group of the Cabinet sub-committee on children, young people and families in place of Ministers. [275704]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: A sub-set of the Cabinet Sub-Committee on Families, Children and Young People, chaired by the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families and including the Secretaries of State from the Home Office, the Department of Health and the Ministry of Justice will meet with Sir Roger Singleton, Chief Adviser on the Safety of Children, quarterly. Officials and experts may also be invited to attend this group to provide expert advice from time to time.

Children: Day Care

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of registered child minders were (a) male and (b) female in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [274288]

Beverley Hughes: The Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey collects information about the numbers and proportions of male and female staff in the child care and early years providers workforce. Table 1 shows the numbers of childminders that were male and female in 2005, 2006 and 2007. Data on numbers of childminders of each sex are not available prior to 2005, although the data on the proportions are available for 2003. Table 2 shows the proportions of childminders that were male and female in 2003, 2005, 2006 and 2007. No data are available on proportions or numbers prior to 2003.

Table 1: Numbers of male and female childminders in the child care and early years providers workforce

	Male	Female
2005	1,900	56,700
2006	1,200	56,700
2007	600	59,200

Table 2: Proportions of male and female childminders in the child care and early years providers workforce

	Percentage
	Male	Female
2003	1	99
2005	2	98
2006	2	98
2007	1	99

Children: Protection

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether staff of his Department made any representations in respect of Lord Laming's most recent report on safeguarding prior to its publication; and if he will make a statement. [275705]

Beverley Hughes: As is common practice, officials in this Department were kept informed about the development of Lord Laming's independent report and were given the opportunity to comment at key stages. We ensured that Lord Laming received the resources and support that he needed to complete his report which was independent and is based on the evidence provided to him from a wide range of sources.

Departmental ICT

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families on how many and what proportion of computers in his Department malware was detected in 2008. [275421]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: During 2008, 28,890 computer viruses were detected and blocked from a total of 4,600 DCSF computers. It is not possible to specify the number of computers affected, as the same computer could have been infected several times during the same year.

Integrated Children's System

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what timetable he has set for completion of the feasibility study on a revised Integrated Children's System. [274254]

Beverley Hughes: Lord Laming has recommended that the Department should complete such a study within six months of his progress report in March, and the Government have accepted this recommendation. In addition, the Social Work Task Force has already made a series of recommendations which, it believes, will improve frontline workers' experience of ICS. The Government have accepted the Task Force's advice in this area, and work to put this into effect will start without delay.

The Task Force will report fully to the Government in October and we are committed to bringing forward a comprehensive programme of reform for the profession at that time.

Schools: ICT

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of computers in (a) local authority children's services departments, (b) Children and Family Court Advisory Support Service and (c) schools were found to be infected with malware in 2008. [275420]

Beverley Hughes: Information on the number or proportion of computers infected with malware is not collected centrally from either local authority children's services or from schools. However many schools do employ a managed service for their ICT support and those organisations will normally maintain this information and report to schools.

The Children and Family Court Advisory Support Service (CAFCASS) computer network is supported by an outsourced IT service provider who do not routinely capture this information. However, the CAFCASS network and equipment is protected by anti-virus software and firewalls that prevent unauthorised access, so the potential for a malware infection is low. CAFCASS have no record of any infection by malware in 2008.

Schools: Standards

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families on how many occasions he and his predecessors have intervened in a school which is in special measures in each of the last five years; and what the name of each such school was. [275172]

Jim Knight [holding answer 13 May2009]: The Secretary of State has reserve intervention powers for schools in special measures which are currently contained in sections 67-69 of the Education and Inspections Act 2006. These powers have only been used once in the last five years, when the Secretary of State appointed an Interim Executive Board at Ettingshall Primary School in Wolverhampton in May 2007.

Secondary Education: Teachers

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what percentage of classes in (a) academy and (b) non-academy secondary schools were taken by unqualified teachers without assistance in academic year (i) 2003-04, (ii) 2004-05, (iii) 2005-06, (iv) 2006-07 and (v) 2007-08; [275681]

(2) what percentage of those teaching classes unassisted in (a) academy and (b) non-academy state secondary schools were qualified school teachers in academic year (i) 2003-04, (ii) 2004-05, (iii) 2005-06, (iv) 2006-07 and (v) 2007-08. [275682]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Tim Byles

Frank Dobson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the duties are of Mr. Tim Byles, Chief Executive of Partnerships for Schools. [275088]

Jim Knight: As Chief Executive of Partnerships for Schools, Tim Byles is responsible for delivering the Building Schools for the Future programme and the procurement of Academy schools, within the policy framework set by the Department for Children, Schools and Families. He is responsible for the day to day management of Partnerships for Schools' executive functions as set out in a number of formal documents, including a remit letter issued by the Department. The Chief Executive is also Partnerships for Schools' Accounting Officer and his responsibilities in that context are set out in the Treasury memorandum "The Responsibilities of a Non Department Public Body (NDPB) Accounting Officer".

Youth Inclusion Programme

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 23 February 2009 to question 256435, what high scores for both deprivation and crime were used to determine which estates were selected. [259305]

Beverley Hughes: The Youth Justice Board established the first 70 youth inclusion programmes in 2000. In England, the areas were identified using a combination of the (then) Department for Transport, Local Government and the Regions' "Index of Local Deprivation" and youth offending teams' own data and knowledge of local levels of crime. Youth offending teams will have also considered other factors, such as local levels of school attendance or unemployment. The Welsh Assembly Government selected the areas in Wales. Since 2005, youth offending teams have determined the areas themselves using the Youth Justice Board's guidance which advises them to consider a range of crime, economic and population data. Youth offending teams have the flexibility to change the areas over time in order to reflect changing local circumstances.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Community Learning

5. Angela Watkinson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what recent discussions she has had with ministerial colleagues on community learning opportunities for women during the recession. [275280]

Maria Eagle: We work closely with colleagues on issues affecting women during the recession, including training and skills. Community-based learning opportunities are important at any time but during an economic downturn they are essential. Our £20 million Neighbourhood Learning in Deprived Communities Fund continues to support opportunities for local adults to develop their skills for employment. We also recently announced a support package for Community Learning Champions, who will act as a vital link between learners and providers.

Minority Representation

6. John Barrett: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what recent assessment she has made of the adequacy of the representation of minorities in Parliament; and if she will make a statement. [275281]

Maria Eagle: We need Parliament to reflect all sections of society. Ethnic minorities and disabled people are grossly under-represented in Parliament. There are 15 ethnic minority MPs when proportionally there should be around 60. The imbalance is greater for ethnic minority women. There are only two. Action taken to redress this under-representation includes:

Using the Equality Bill to extend the time in which political parties can use women-only shortlists to 2030

Establishing a Speaker's Conference to consider the under representation of women, ethnic minorities and disabled people in the House of Commons.

Trafficked Women

7. Mr. Bone: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what recent discussions she has had with ministerial colleagues on levels of funding for non-governmental organisations working to assist trafficked women who have been raped and who are unable to obtain assistance from other sources. [275282]

Maria Eagle: The Inter-Departmental Ministerial Group on Human Trafficking, of which I am a member, regularly discusses this subject.

As part of the UK's commitment to implementing the Council of Europe Convention against Trafficking in Human Beings, the Government have awarded £3.7 million over the next two financial years to the POPPY Project. This grant will be used for national support services for victims of human trafficking for sexual exploitation and domestic servitude. The Government have also implemented a National Referral Mechanism to help facilitate victims of trafficking into the appropriate support and protection.

Equal Pay

8. Tony Lloyd: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what recent discussions she has had with representatives of the trade union movement on equal pay. [275283]

Maria Eagle: My colleagues and I have met many trade union representatives in the run up to launching of the Equality Bill. Our discussions have often included equal pay issues. The Government and the trade unions have a shared interest in promoting equality of pay between women and men.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Advantage West Midlands: Expenditure

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much Advantage West Midlands has disbursed in (a) revenue and (b) capital allocations in each financial year since 1998-99. [272063]

Mr. McFadden: The revenue and capital expenditure of Advantage West Midlands since 1998-99 has been as follows:

	Revenue	£ million Capital
1998-99[1]	0.4
1999-2000	57	47
2000-01	62	51

Community Investment Fund

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what Community Investment Fund projects each regional development agency carried out in each year since 2000. [265272]

Mr. McFadden: Tables showing the Community Investment Fund projects carried out by the RDAs since 2000 will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Departmental Databases

Jenny Willott: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what categories of personal information about members of the public are contained on each relevant database managed by his Department and its agencies; on what date each category of information began to be collected; and if he will make a statement; [274174]

(2) what databases managed by his Department and its agencies hold personal information on members of the public; on what date each such database became operational; and if he will make a statement. [274175]

Mr. McFadden: The Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform does not hold any protected personal information about members of the public in any of its databases.

I have asked the Chief Executives of Companies House and the Insolvency Service to respond to the hon. Member directly.

Letter from Stephen Speed, dated 15 May 2009:

The Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform has asked me to reply to you directly on behalf of The Insolvency Service on what categories of his personal information about members of the public are contained on each relevant database managed by his Department and its agencies; on what date each category of information began to be collected; and if he will make a statement.

Letter from Gareth Jones, dated 15 May 2009:

I am replying on behalf of Companies House to your Parliamentary Question tabled on 6 May 2009, UIN 274174, to the Minister of State for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

Companies House is required by legislation to hold the following personal information about members of the public:

Names, addresses and dates of birth of company directors.

Names and addresses of company secretaries.

Names and addresses of company shareholders.

This information has been collected under various Companies Acts since 1844 but has only been held on an electronic database since 1986.

Letter from Gareth Jones, dated 15 May 2009:

I am replying on behalf of Companies House to your Parliamentary Question tabled on 6 May 2009, UIN 274175, to the Minister of State for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

The current register of companies database (known as CHIPS) became operational on 25 February 2008, superseding the previous version of the database (known as STEM), which had been operational since 1986. There is also an image database, holding electronic images of documents filed, which became operational in 1995. All these databases hold personal information, most of which is publicly available.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many questions tabled to his Department for ordinary written answer in Session 2007-08 were (a) answered (i) in up to three days, (ii) in between four days and two weeks, (iii) in between two weeks and one month, (iv) in between one month and two months and (v) two months or more after tabling and (b) were not answered. [268661]

Mr. McFadden: The information requested is not available in a format to reply without incurring disproportionate cost. This applies equally to researching the House "Parliamentary Information Management System".

However, in the three-month period from December 2008 to February 2009, the Department received a total of 566 ordinary written parliamentary questions of which 225 were answered within five sitting days. Of the 566, a total of 20 remain to be answered.

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many questions tabled to his Department for named day written answer in Session 2007-08 (a) received a substantive answer (i) on the day named and (ii) (A) in up to three days, (B) in between four days and two weeks, (C) in between two weeks and one month, (D) in between one and two months and (E) more than two months after the day named and (b) were not answered. [268662]

Mr. McFadden: The information requested is not available in a format to reply without incurring disproportionate cost. This applies equally to researching the House "Parliamentary Information Management System".

However, in the three-month period from December 2008 to February 2009, the Department received a total of 188 named day parliamentary questions (including first order questions which could not be answered in the Chamber). Of the 188, a total of 52 were answered on the date specified. A total of five remain to be answered.

Motor Vehicles: Manufacturing Industries

Mr. Drew: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what his policy is on its payment of wage contributions to workers in the automotive industry on short-time working who are undertaking retraining in their own time. [275131]

Ian Pearson: The Government fully appreciate the difficulties that the automotive industry is experiencing during the current economic downturn.

While we are supporting a range of automotive support initiatives, we do not believe that introducing a general wage subsidy for all employers is a feasible, cost effective and sustainable option for the UK. Past experience in the UK when running a wage subsidy programme in the 1970s was that wage subsidies acted to create distortions and perverse incentives for other sectors and companies to bargain for subsidies.

We believe that the future success of British industry will be based on a highly skilled workforce, and where production is being reduced we are helping business train their workforces to ensure they emerge from the economic downturn in the best possible shape to compete in the future.

Automotive companies can access funding for training from Government and the Sector Skills Council for Science, Engineering and Manufacturing Technologies. Following demand from the automotive industry for this support, funding under the "Train To Gain" scheme for the sector has been increased substantially up to £100 million from the original budget of £65 million.

Tourism: Finance

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps his Department takes to monitor the effectiveness of spending by regional development agencies on the development of the tourism industry. [270403]

Mr. McFadden: BERR and other Government Departments are involved in development of each RDA's Regional Economic Strategy (RES) and in approving each region's Corporate Plan. The plans are reviewed to ensure that the RDAs deliver against ministerial priorities and priorities identified in the RES.

The RDAs took on strategic responsibility for tourism development in the regions in 2003, and have developed tourism strategies and delivery structures in line with their RES. DCMS works with the RDAs in advancing and assessing progress on key strategic objectives through:

the 2012 Ministerial Advisory Group, which guides the delivery of the national tourism strategy ("Winning: A tourism strategy for 2012 and beyond"); the Ministerial Monitoring and Implementation Group, which guides the delivery of the national skills strategy;

the Welcome to Britain Group, which is working to improve the overall visitor welcome and experience;

Partners for England, which focuses on improved resource and policy co-ordination at national, regional and local levels; the RDA Tourism Leads group, which provides a forum for cross-regional co-operation, collaboration and leadership.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Class Sizes

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the average (a) infant, (b) primary and (c) secondary class sizes in the 20 local authority areas of (i) highest and (ii) lowest deprivation in the last period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [262821]

Jim Knight: The requested information is shown in the table.

Education

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much funding his Department plans to allocate to each local authority for discharging responsibilities which were formerly those of the Learning and Skills Council in each of the next five years. [275072]

Jim Knight: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 5 May 2009, Official Report, columns 150-54W. This set out the number of posts we expect to transfer to each local authority from the Learning and Skills Council, subject to the passage of the Apprenticeships, Learning and Skills Bill. We are currently working with the LSC to determine how much funding will transfer to local authorities with each post from April 2010.

Education: Assessments

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the cost to his Department of examination fees for each type of examination in maintained schools was in each of the last 10 years. [274582]

Jim Knight: The Department began collecting information in sufficient detail to answer this question in 2002-03. No comparable data are available for previous years. The information in the table covers the combined costs of all relevant examination entry fees, including GCSEs, A/AS-levels and GNVQs, and any accreditation costs related to pupils. We do not collect separate data on each type of exam.

Financial year	Examination fees (E21)[1] (£)[2]
2002-03	155,611,000
2003-04	173,843,000
2004-05	198,227,000
2005-06	220,056,000
2006-07	240,861,000
2007-08[3]	265,305,000

[1] Includes expenditure by local authority maintained schools in England on the costs of examination entry fees, and costs of accreditation related to pupils (the payments centres make to awarding bodies to register with them to take their qualification). This includes GCSEs, A/AS-levels and GNVQs and covers administrative costs e.g. external marking; it excludes the cost of exam resources, such as the test papers themselves.
[2] Figures are rounded to the nearest £000.

Education: Finance

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills on the merits of transferring the multi-professional education and training budget from that Department to the Higher Education Funding Council for England. [275654]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

The Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) is the responsibility of the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills. As such it would be for this Department to discuss the transfer of this budget from the Department of Health. However, there have been no discussions on this subject in recent years.

Foster Care

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many foster parents have fostered (a) trafficked children, (b) unaccompanied asylum-seeking children and (c) children from other EU countries in each of the last three years. [275847]

Beverley Hughes: Information about the numbers of foster carers who have fostered children in the three categories listed is not collected centrally.

GCE A-Level

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils eligible for free school meals sat (a) mathematics and (b) further mathematics A-level in each of the last five years. [268490]

Jim Knight: The answer is provided in the following table:

Pupils eligible for free school meals who sat mathematics and further mathematics at A-level for the period 2004-08

	Number		Percentage
	Maths	F-Maths	Maths	F-Maths
2004	554	31	13.8	0.8
2005	567	31	13.2	0.7
2006	591	42	14.3	1.0
2007	686	56	16.4	1.3
2008	705	53	17.1	1.3

Notes: 1. The figures are based on pupils aged 16 to 18 years.
2. Percentages are based on the cohort of pupils eligible for free school meals who sat at least one GCE A-level. Source: National Pupil Database.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number of pupils in maintained schools who gained five or more GCSEs at grade A or A* in 2006 who gained three or more A-levels at Grade A in 2008. [260540]

Jim Knight: The most readily available analysis is given in the following table:

	Number
Number of pupils who achieved 3 A grades at A-level in 2008 and achieved 5 or more A* or A GCSE grades	13,660
did not achieve 5 or more A* or A GCSE grades	857
Prior attainment not available	147
Total	14,664

Notes:
1. Figures relate to 16 to 18-year-olds (age at start of academic year, i.e. 31 August 2007) in maintained schools (including academies and CTCs) in England. Figures relate to achievements in GCE/VCE/Applied A-level/Double Awards and full and vocational GCSEs only.
2. Not all of these pupils will have taken their GCSE examinations in 2006 or in maintained schools. Pupils who took their GCSE examinations in 2006 and achieved at least three As in their A-levels in a year other than 2008 are not included.

GCSE: Young Offender Institutions

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 29 April 2009, Official Report, column 1387W, on the General Certificate of Secondary Education: young offender institutions, how many young people housed in young offender institutions achieved (a) one A* to G grade, (b) five A* to G grades, (c) five A* to C grades and (d) five A* to C grades, including English and mathematics at GCSE in each year for which the Learning and Skills Council holds figures. [273426]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 7 May 2009]: The individualised learning record (ILR) data LSC collected for 2006/07 do not allow us to answer the specific questions on the range of grades achieved. However these data show that during the 2006/07 academic year there were a total of 68 GCSE achievements by 15 to 17-year-olds in Prison Service YOIs, of which:

19 people achieved one GCSE;

Five people achieved two GCSEs;

13 people achieved three GCSEs;

The LSC's young persons' learning 1 (YOL1) data show that during the 2007/08 academic year, for young people under the age of 18, there were 106 GCSE achievements between grades A and C, and 159 GCSE achievements below grade C. However the data set allowing us to break this down into the number of people achieving different numbers of GCSEs (i.e. ILR) is not yet available for the 2007/08 academic year.

Also, note that the figures quoted will not include all of the GCSEs achieved by young people in juvenile custody, as some young people in custody are still registered at schools and colleges and any GCSEs that they achieve while in custody will be reflected in achievement figures of schools and colleges, rather than the figures reported by the LSC in these statistics.

Also, many young people stay in custody only for a very short time, and therefore it is not realistic for them to achieve long-term qualifications while they are in custody, especially as GCSEs can only be taken at certain points of the year.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire dated 27 March 2009, transferred from the Home Office on 2 April 2009, reference: M7547/9, on a nationwide database of children. [275842]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: A response to the letter, from Baroness Delyth Morgan, was sent to the hon. Member on 5 May 2009.

National Curriculum Tests: Disadvantaged

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many pupils in receipt of free school meals achieved level (a) 7 and (b) 8 in Key Stage 3 examinations in (i) English, (ii) mathematics and (iii) science in (A) 1997, (B) 2002, (C) 2005 and (D) the latest year for which figures are available; [262262]

(2) how many and what percentage of pupils (a) eligible and (b) ineligible for free school meals achieved level 8 at Key Stage 3 in each of the last three years. [268489]

Jim Knight: The requested information is not available for 1997 as prior to 2002 individual pupil characteristic information was not collected. The introduction of the Pupil Level Annual School Census (PLASC) in January 2002, which collects such information, meant that from 2002, pupil characteristic data could be matched to attainment data, allowing analyses of different groups of pupils.

The 2002 information is shown as follows:

Physical Education: Facilities

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department spent on capital expenditure on physical educational facilities in schools in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09; and what recent estimate he has made of such capital expenditure in (i) 2009-10 and (ii) 2011-12. [275189]

Jim Knight: The Department relies on local authorities and schools to decide how much capital should be spent on physical educational facilities, and does not maintain central records of expenditure incurred or planned during the period 2007-08 to 2010-11. No financial commitment has been made by the Department beyond 31 March 2011.

In February 2008, the Secretary of State announced a capital programme to improve facilities for PE and sport at the most needy sports colleges. £10 million was allocated to sports colleges in 2008-09 and £21.5 million in 2009-10.

Pupils

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what guidance his Department provides to local authorities on the likely effects on school roll projections of changes in levels of immigration. [275999]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department does not provide guidance to local authorities on the likely effects on school roll projections of changes in levels of immigration. This is for authorities to determine, based on their knowledge of local demographics.

Schools: Closures

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) primary and (b) secondary schools he expects to close in each local authority area in each of the next three years; and if he will make a statement. [275095]

Jim Knight: School place planning is the statutory responsibility of individual local authorities (LAs). This includes making sure there are sufficient school places, and also removing surplus places when required. To facilitate this LAs have the power to propose the closure of maintained schools.

Where LAs propose to make any changes to local school provision, including closures, they must follow a statutory process, which is then decided under established local decision making arrangements. Ministers have no direct roll in the process.

Schools: Expenditure

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what individual programmes and corresponding allocations are aggregated as other miscellaneous programmes for the year 2010-11 in the Schools section of Table 8.3 of his Department's 2008 Annual Report. [274273]

Schools: Sports

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his Department's definition of community use in the Building Schools for the Future programme is in relation to sports facilities. [273470]

Jim Knight: There is no strict definition of "community use" in the Building Schools for the Future Programme. As set out in the Extended Schools prospectus, published in June 2005, the Government have encouraged all schools to offer a core set of extended services by 2010, including wider community access to sports facilities. However, it is up to individual governing bodies to decide the extent to which they do this, since they are responsible for controlling the occupation and use of school premises both during and out of school hours. Governing bodies are also best placed to define what the community is that each school serves.

Secondary schools built or upgraded under the Building Schools for the Future (BSF) programme must conform to the Department's Building Bulletin (BB) 98, "Briefing Framework for Secondary School Projects". This recommends that each school should have, as a minimum, a "four-court" sports hall designed to Sport England's specifications that cover community use. BB 98 also includes recommendations for outdoor sports pitches and games courts.

BSF investment is therefore ensuring that secondary schools will have sports facilities for use by the communities in which they are placed.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Rt Hon Jim Knight MP, Minister of State for Schools and Learners, and will be placed in the library of both Houses.

Schools: Transport

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number of children who (a) cycle and (b) walk to school. [272867]

Jim Knight: The requested information is shown in the table.

Maintained primary[1], state-funded secondary[1,2] and special schools[3]: mode of travel as at January 2008, England

	Number of pupils who walk to school	Percentage of pupils who walk to school	Number of pupils who cycle to school	Percentage of pupils who cycle to school	Total number of pupils for whom mode of travel was supplied[4]
Number/percentage of pupils[5]	3,148,390	49.9	123,010	1.9	6,312,120

[1] Includes middle schools as deemed.
[2] Includes CTCs and academies.
[3] Includes maintained and non-maintained special schools. Excludes General Hospital schools.
[4] The collection of mode of travel to school data is only mandatory at pupil level for schools with an approved school travel plan. Data were received for 6,312,120 of the total number of 7,461,230 pupils.
[5] Solely registered pupils. Excludes boarders.

Schools: Standards

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of schools received a rating of inadequate in their Ofsted report for behaviour in each of the last five years. [274607]

Jim Knight [holding answer 11 May 2009]: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply has been placed in the House Libraries.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 8 May 2009:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for reply.

The 'inadequate' inspection outcome was introduced in September 2005 as part of a four-point scale: outstanding, good, satisfactory, inadequate. Table A shows the outcome of the behaviour judgement for maintained schools inspected in each academic year since September 2005.

Table A: Behaviour in maintained schools inspected each year since 2005/06

Academic year	Number of school inspections which included a behaviour judgment	Number of school inspections where behaviour was judged inadequate	School inspections where behaviour was judged inadequate, as a percentage of all school inspections
2005/06	6,128	46	1
2006/07	[1]8,264	55	1
2007/08	[2]7,864	40	1

[1] Excludes 59 school inspections using a reduced set of judgments that did not include a judgment on behaviour.
[2] Excludes 2 school inspections of sixth form schools where only post-16 judgments were made. One of these inspections was judged to have good behaviour at the post-16 level, and the other had no behaviour judgment.

Teachers: Recruitment

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Teach Next programme; and if he will make a statement. [275056]

Jim Knight: We have more teachers in the classroom than in 1997. We have a range of routes for people who want to change career into teaching and these can be accessed direct or via transition to teaching. Most take up either postgraduate certificates in education (PGCE) or the employment-based Graduate Teacher programme.

The Becoming a Teacher evaluation (Hobson et al., 2006) found that 97 per cent. of survey respondents reported feeling 'very' or 'fairly' confident that their ITT programme had prepared them to be an effective teacher. However, a higher proportion of employment-based trainees, and a lower proportion of PGCE trainees, than those following other routes reported feeling 'very confident' that their ITT route had prepared them to be an effective teacher.

Teachers: Training

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what percentage of Graduate Teacher Programme places made available by the Training and Development Agency for Schools in 2008-09 were eligible for a salary grant. [274584]

Jim Knight: There were 4,335 salary and training grant places allocated by the Training and Development Agency for Schools and these represent 93 per cent. of all Graduate Teacher Programme places in academic year 2008/09.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many trainees have failed initial teacher training in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [275034]

Jim Knight: Information about trainees who did not gain Qualified Teacher Status (QTS) is only available for trainees in their final year of training. The tables show the number of final year ITT trainees for each academic year between 1998/99 and 2006/07 who did not gain QTS in their final year of training and of these the number who left their course before completion and the number where the outcome of QTS is unknown for:

1. Postgraduate ITT trainees
2. Undergraduate ITT trainees
3. Employment Based Routes (EBR) trainees

Information relating to the number of trainees through mainstream courses gaining QTS is only available from 1998/99 onwards. The same information for trainees on employment based routes was only collected from 2001/02 onwards. Figures relating to 2007/08 will be available in July 2009.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

British Humanist Association

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what meetings Ministers in her Department have had with the British Humanist Association in the last 36 months. [274781]

Mr. Khan: I met the British Humanist Association on 10 February 2009 to discuss a range of issues. My predecessor, the hon. Member for Gloucester (Mr. Dhanda), met the organisation on 12 November 2007.

Commission for Local Administration in England

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the cost to her Department of the Office of the local government ombudsman has been in each of the last five years. [274779]

John Healey: The amount of grant paid by this Department to the local government ombudsman from 2004-05 to 2008-09 is set out in the Local Government Finance Report and is as follows:

2004-05	11,058,000
2005-06	11,522,400
2006-07	13,221,000
2007-08	12,851,000
2008-09	12,600,000

For 2009-10 we have made provision in the Main Estimates of £16,155,000 for grants to the local government ombudsman, including a provision for possible future redundancies and a provision to fund the additional remit the ombudsman will have for schools and health matters, if and when the relevant provisions in the Apprenticeships, Skills, Children and Learning Bill and Health Bill currently before Parliament are enacted and come into force.

Council Tax

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what was the (a) percentage and (b) cash rise in (i) average B and D council tax in England and (ii) average council tax per dwelling in England in (A) absolute and (B) real terms in each year since 1997-98. [274768]

John Healey: Information on the change in both percentage and cash terms in the average band D council tax in England and the average council tax per dwelling in England in both absolute and real terms in each year since 1997-98 is shown in the tables.

BR1, BR2, BR3 and CTB returns

The real terms change data for 2009-10 will not be available until after the publication of the April RPI figure on 19 May 2009.

Amounts shown are calculated on headline taxes and before benefits. Where indicated the figures are calculated after the designation of authorities that required them to recalculate their budget requirement and council tax.

The data are taken from the annual council tax base forms completed by all billing authorities in England and the Budget requirement forms completed by all billing and precepting authorities in England.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make an assessment of the (a) feasibility and (b) likely effect on the economy of replacing council tax with a local income tax. [275818]

John Healey: No. The Government agree with Sir Michael Lyons's conclusion, following his inquiry into local government, that council tax is broadly sound and should be retained. In his report Sir Michael concluded that a local income tax would result in a "significant rebalancing of the tax burden".

Council Tax: Valuation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 13 March 2009, Official Report, column 765W, on council tax: valuation, when she plans to place in the Library a copy of the information referred to in the answer. [274706]

John Healey: A copy of the information referred to has been placed in the Library.

Departmental ICT

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department has spent on the maintenance of its IT equipment in the last 12 months. [272875]

Mr. Khan: Communities and Local Government has outsourced its corporate IT service to Steria Limited and costs of maintaining IT equipment are absorbed into the annual cost of the service. The service cost for financial year April 2008 to March 2009 for that service was £4.5 million. Information on the cost of maintenance of other IT systems in the Department is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she has taken to reduce the level of carbon dioxide emissions arising from the operation of ICT systems in her Department under the Greening Government ICT Strategy. [273552]

Mr. Khan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 6 May 2009, Official Report, column 234W to the hon. Member for Cardiff, Central (Jenny Willott).

Departmental Mobile Phones

Mr. Heban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) BlackBerry devices and (b) mobile telephones have been lost by (i) Ministers, (ii) special advisers and (iii) civil servants in her Department and its predecessor in each year since 2005. [274461]

Mr. Khan: There have been no BlackBerry devices or mobile telephones reported as lost by Ministers, or special advisers in Communities and Local Government, which was created in May 2006 or its predecessor, the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister, in any of the years since 2005.

However, one mobile phone was reported as lost by a civil servant in Communities and Local Government in the year 2008-09.

This answer does not include Government offices for the regions who carry out functions on behalf of 10 Government Departments.

Departmental Publications

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what timetable her Department has set for the publication of its evidence and innovation strategy. [272342]

Mr. Khan: The Department for Communities and Local Government intends to publish an evidence and innovation strategy in late 2009.

Departmental Stationery

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department has spent on branded stationery and gifts for (a) internal and (b) external promotional use in each of the last five years. [273777]

Mr. Khan: Communities and Local Government Department was established in May 2006. Since that time the Department has spent the following on branded stationery:

	Amount spent plus VAT
2006-07	18,642.50
2007-08	11,005.50
2008-09	7,198.65

For information relating to the amount spent on promotional materials for the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister between 2002 and the abolition of the Department in 2006, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 25 October 2006, Official Report, column 1934W.

Since the establishment of the Department for Communities and Local Government the costs of gifts for internal and external promotion are not held centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Housing: Low Incomes

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what estimate she has made of the administrative cost to the public purse of the operation of the right to buy scheme in each year since 1997; [274844]

(2) what her Department's policy on the charging by local authorities of right to buy administrative costs to their housing revenue accounts is; and if she will make a statement. [274845]

Mr. Iain Wright: A local authority is permitted to fund its administrative costs incidental to and of a right to buy (RTB) disposal from the receipt arising from that disposal.

A local authority's other administrative costs relating to RTB are required to be charged to its housing revenue account.

Local Government

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what role her Department will have in oversight of the Local Authority Leaders' Forums. [274818]

John Healey: The Local Democracy, Economic Development and Construction Bill provides for the Government to establish and fund the activities of the Local Authority Leaders' Boards in relation to work on the preparation, drafting and implementation of the Regional Strategy.

The Department will be responsible for agreeing the scheme under which the Leaders' Board in each region will be established and also for ensuring that value for money is obtained through agreement of business plans.

Local Government Finance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer of 29 October 2007, Official Report, columns 667-68W, on local authorities: grants, what the grant per capita to each local authority was in (a) 2008-09 and (b) 2009-10; and what the average grant per capita to (i) district councils, (ii) unitary councils, (iii) county councils, (iv) metropolitan councils and (v) London boroughs was in (A) 2008-09 and (B) 2009-10. [274714]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) on 19 January 2009, Official Report, column 1074W.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which shire counties do not levy a separate fire precept. [274769]

John Healey: No shire counties levy a separate fire precept.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much debt each local authority had in the most recent year for which figures are available. [274786]

John Healey: I have today placed in the Library of the House, a table containing details of the gross debt that each local authority in England had at 31 March 2008.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for how long local authorities retain revenue raised through reductions in council tax discounts on (a) empty and (b) second homes before equalisation processes in the calculation of Government grants are applied. [274790]

John Healey: The distribution of formula grant to local authorities in England takes account of the socio-economic and demographic characteristics of the authority, together with its relative ability to raise council tax, expressed in terms of the council tax base. We then ensure that every authority receives at least a minimum percentage increase (the 'floor') year-on-year on a like-for-like basis. In order to pay for the cost of the floor, we scale back the increase in grant above the floor for other authorities.

Since the introduction of multi-year settlements, we have used projected tax base data in the calculation of formula grant. The starting point for the tax base projections used in the current three-year settlement, covering 2008-09 to 2010-11, is the tax base as at 8 October 2007 adjusted for student exemptions. This is then increased annually by the Secretary of State's estimate of the average annual increase in the tax base for the authority between 10 October 2005 and 8 October 2007.

The actual discount applied to long-term empty homes is applied for all authorities in calculating the tax base for the purposes of distributing formula grant. Any reduction in the discount applied to long-term empty homes commencing after 8 October 2007, will not be reflected in the projected taxbase calculations until the 2011-12 settlement.

Since 1 April 2004, althoagh billing authorities have been able to reduce the council tax discount for second homes in their area (to between 10 and 50 per cent.), a discount of 50 per cent. has continued to be assumed for all authorities in calculating the tax base for the purposes of distributing formula grant.

Local Government: Public Consultation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the reasons are for the time taken to publish the outcomes of the Place Survey. [274912]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave her on 7 May 2009, Official Report, column 396W.

Local Government: Reorganisation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the effect on her Department's expenditure in 2009-10 of local government restructuring. [274744]

John Healey: The Department's running cost budget for 2009-10 includes provision of £1.57 million for work on local governance, including work on any reorganisations of local authorities. As required by the affordability criterion for the unitary bids, implementing the unitary proposals is self-financing, and the savings generated by the new unitary councils are available to be invested in front-line services or to reduce the pressure on council tax; hence, implementing a unitary council has no additional impact on departmental expenditure.

Local Government: Standards

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent steps her Department has taken to monitor the performance of local authorities. [275412]

John Healey: The final results from the Comprehensive Performance Assessment (CPA) were published by the Audit Commission in March 2009. These showed the highest ever number of top-performing councils, with more than ever before assessed as 'improving strongly'.

On 1 April we introduced the new system for assessment and inspection of local outcomes, Comprehensive Area Assessment (CAA), as part of the new local performance framework. CAA builds and improves on CPA, covering outcomes delivered by local authorities acting alone or in partnership, and is carried out jointly by six local public service inspectorates. The first CAA reports will be published in November 2009. For each local area the reports will comprise an area assessment—which looks at how well local public services are delivering local priorities and how likely they are to improve in the future—and organisational assessments of individual local public bodies, including local authorities.

Ahead of CAA, following sign-off of the new Local Area Agreements (LAAs) in June 2008, a review of local areas' initial efforts to prepare for LAA delivery was carried out by the Government Offices earlier this year. The review indicated that local authorities and their partners were progressing well with their LAAs, with the vast majority of areas strengthening partnership and delivery arrangements to enhance their ability to meet improvement targets.

Where performance issues are not being addressed sufficiently quickly or effectively in local areas, Government Offices will work with local partners and central Government to provide challenge, broker appropriate action, and monitor improvement. This may range from additional support from the local government sector, to consultancy support, inspection, or ultimately formal intervention action.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she plans to publish a summary of the responses to the consultation on Changing Council Governance Arrangements. [275544]

John Healey: As we indicated in our consultation document on Changing Council Governance Arrangements, we will produce a summary of responses within three months of the close of the consultation—13 March 2009. This will be published on the Department's website.

Non-Domestic Rates

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of the average (a) business rate bill and (b) aggregate business rate revenue at (i) the end of transitional relief period in 2009-10 and (ii) the point at which the 5 per cent. rise in the multiplier will be applied in 2009-10. [274750]

John Healey: No information is held centrally on individual businesses' bills; therefore the average change in business rates bills cannot be calculated.

The reduction in rate yield due to full rate increases being deferred for 2008-09 was £106 million. The net change in yield as a result of transitional relief in 2008-09 was £69.4 million. Data for 2009-10 are not yet available.

In 2009-10 businesses will be able to defer a proportion of their business rates bill increase. Following is a link to an announcement of the Government's plans for deferral, which includes an estimate of the cost of the proposal:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/news/localgovernment/1191049

This estimate will be updated in the impact assessment that will be undertaken and published as part of the process of making the necessary secondary legislation.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many hereditaments in each Government office region have a rateable value of less than £10,000. [274752]

John Healey: The numbers of hereditaments with a rateable value of less than £10,000, by Government office region, are shown in the following table.

Hereditaments with a rateable value of less than £10,000

	Number
North East	51,304
North West	158,285
Yorkshire and the Humber	116,216
East Midlands	87,298
West Midlands	117,324
East of England	110,438

Hereditaments with a rateable value of less than £10,000

	Number
London	138,639
South East	140,899
South West	127,573
Total England	1,047,976

The data are as at 31 March 2009 and are from the Valuation Office Agency.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the gross cost before the application of downward phasing was of providing transitional relief in respect of business rate revaluation in England in each year from 2005-06. [274753]

John Healey: The reduction in rate yield on the local list due to full rate increases being deferred for each year from 2005-06 is shown in the table:

	Gross cost (£ million)
2005-06[1]	1,167
2006-07[1]	501
2007-08[1]	230
2008-09[2]	106

[1] Data from NNDR 3: National Non-Domestic Rate Collection Yield Outturn returns
[2] Data from NNDR 1: National Non-Domestic Rate Collection Yield Forecast returns

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to (a) undertake and (b) publish a (i) small firms and (ii) privacy impact assessment in respect of the 2010 business rate revaluation. [274909]

John Healey: The 2010 business rates revaluation takes effect from 1 April 2010. We will publish a draft impact assessment alongside our proposals for transitional arrangements to phase in changes in rate bills as a result of the revaluation later in the summer.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government by what date businesses must apply in order to be eligible for the deferral of 2009-10 business rate increases. [274910]

John Healey: The Government are currently considering the further detail and administrative arrangements for the business rates deferral scheme, working collaboratively with the local government sector and business to ensure ease of implementation.

The regulations authorising the scheme are planned to come into effect this summer and will set out in detail the application process and timetable. Businesses will be contacted by their billing authority and invited to apply for the scheme shortly after the regulations come into effect.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) of 5 June 2008, Official Report, columns 1067-68W, on non-domestic rates, what estimate her Department has made of the maximum revenue that would be raised in England from supplementary business rates based on (a) 2009 rateable values and (b) 2010 rateable values post-revaluation calculated on the same basis as the estimates provided for maximum revenue based on 2007 rateable values in Table 3.4 of Business Rate Supplements: A White Paper. [274935]

John Healey: The Department has not made any further calculations of possible future revenues from supplementary business rates beyond those based on 2007 rateable values and published in Table 3.4 of Business Rate Supplements: A White Paper.

Rented Housing

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will end the target rent scheme in 2009-10. [275838]

Mr. Iain Wright: No. Future rents policy is tied in with work currently being undertaken as part of the Review of Council Housing Finance.

Shops: Valuation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the most recent edition of the Valuation Office Agency's zoning of shops valuation handbook. [274911]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) on 8 January 2008, Official Report, column 510W.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Government Art Collection

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many items from the Government Art Collection are in (a) departmental offices, (b) ministerial residences, (c) offices of non-departmental public bodies, (d) public galleries, (e) embassies overseas, (f) storage and (g) elsewhere. [271210]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 27 April 2009]: The Government Art Collection comprises some 13,700 works of art. Its main purpose is to promote Britain by the acquisition and display of works of art (mostly by British artists) in the representational areas of major British Government buildings in the UK and abroad, where they are seen by thousands of visitors every year. At any one time some 70 per cent. of the collection is out on display, and the figures given here change on a daily basis.

The latest figures available are:

(a) 2,043 Government Art Collection (GAC) works of art in departmental offices.

(b) 560 in ministerial residences (including the whole of 10 and 11 Downing Street).

(c) 187 in offices of non-departmental public bodies and similar.

(d) 69 on loan to public galleries (including loans to temporary exhibitions).

(e) 5,404 in embassies overseas.

(f) 4,535 currently at the GAC's premises and available for selection and display; 470 of these were earmarked for specific locations (i.e. selected and awaiting installation). Of the rest, three were in commercial storage and 23 were being conserved and/or reframed.

(g) 912 displayed elsewhere (i.e. to organisations which do not fall into the categories a-f, such as in London: Lancaster House, Marlborough House and the Somerset House Trust; and abroad: the Offices of the Council of Europe in Paris and the European Commission Offices in Brussels).

Performing Arts: Discrimination

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent discussions he has had with representatives of the performing arts on age discrimination in respect of performers in theatre, film, radio and television; and if he will make a statement. [274810]

Barbara Follett: I have had no recent discussions of this nature. DCMS is committed to promoting equality of opportunity and we encourage our sectors to make the most of the full range of talent available to them.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

10 Downing Street: E-mail

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what his policy is on the use of web-based e-mail accounts on computers in 10 Downing Street. [275112]

Mr. Watson: The Prime Minister's Office is an integral part of Cabinet Office and therefore follows its guidelines and policies in the use of ICT. The policy for the current Cabinet Office systems does not allow for any web-based e-mail accounts. Web-based e-mail accounts are permitted on a new pilot system, due to the increased security measures we are able to apply. If the system is rolled out, the Cabinet Office will reconsider its policy on web-based e-mails.

Census: Finance

Mr. Todd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what budget has been allocated to the generation of outputs from the 2011 Census. [274196]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated May 2009:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking what budget has been allocated to the generation of outputs from the 2011 Census. (274196)

The purpose of conducting a Census is to generate statistics and over the period 2005-2016 the budget for the Census as a whole is £482 million. Provision of £450 million for the cost of the Census has been made up to the period 2011-12. Of this £450 million, £7.5 million has been allocated to the early development of Census outputs. Provision for later years from 2012/13 will be subject to future spending reviews and will cover the final stages of data and output processing, preparing, publishing and disseminating outputs, and a number of subsequent output services and releases. This is set out in paragraphs 1.28 and 1.29 of the 2011 Census White Paper 'Helping to shape tomorrow' which was published in December 2008. A copy was placed in the House of Commons library and is also available on the website at http://www.ons.gov.uk/census/2011-census/2011-census-project/legislation/index.html

Final decisions have not yet been made about how the statistics are disseminated. We are at present conducting consultation with census users on their requirements for types of statistics and area levels and the ways in which they will be made available.

Civil Servants: Pensions

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many and what proportion of former civil servants have had their pension payments (a) reduced and (b) increased in the last 12 months; and for what reason in each case. [270080]

Mr. Watson: In April each year the pensions, payable from the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme, of all former civil servants and their dependants are increased in line with inflation in accordance with the provisions of the Pensions Increase Act 1971 and Social Security Pensions Act 1975.

The Civil Service Pension Scheme is a statutory scheme and pensions are accordingly corrected when an under or overpayment is identified. I refer the hon. Member to the written statement I gave to the House on 16 December 2008.

Steve Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the administration costs of the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme were in each of the last 10 years. [272639]

Mr. Watson: Central management costs of the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme are met by appropriations in aid of the Cabinet Office from the accruing superannuation liability charges paid by employers. For financial years from 2001-02, these amounts are shown by way of note to the resource accounts for Cabinet Office: Civil Superannuation. The central administration costs for earlier years are:

	£ million
2000-01	14.4
1999-2000	13.6
1998-99	13.5

Day-to-day administration costs are met by individual employers and details are not held centrally.

Steve Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many early retirements among members of the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme there were in the last five years for which figures are available. [272640]

Mr. Watson: Figures are held centrally only in respect of early retirements on the grounds of ill-health. From 2006-07 these numbers are included in the resource accounts for Cabinet Office: Civil Superannuation. Copies of the resource accounts can be found in the Library and on the civil service pensions website at www.civilservice.gov.uk/pensions

Figures for the earlier years are as follows:

Financial year	Ill-health retirement applications approved
2003-04	1,343
2004-05	1,209
2005-06	1,135

Steve Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what guidance the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme has issued to employing departments on enhancements of civil service pension entitlements for scheme members who (a) are made redundant, (b) take early retirement other than on grounds of ill health and (c) take early retirement on grounds of ill health. [272642]

Mr. Watson: On redundancies and early retirements other than those on the grounds of ill-health, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given in the other place to the noble Lord, Lord Laird, on 3 March 2009, Official Report, House of Lords, columns WA 134-35.

The terms payable in respect of early retirements on the grounds of ill-health are set out in the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme, a statutory scheme made under the Superannuation Act 1972. The rules of the scheme can be found on the Civil Service Pensions website at:

www.civilservice.gov.uk/pensions

Steve Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the cost of pension payments made to civil servants who have taken early retirement between the date of their retirement and the date they reached the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme normal retirement age was in each of the last five years. [272644]

Mr. Watson: Employing Departments are responsible for meeting the full costs of early retirements of civil servants other than those on the grounds of ill-health. The annual cost of pension payments made before the scheme's pension age in respect of such early retirements is contained in Cabinet Office: Civil Superannuation Resource Accounts (in the note to the accounts entitled "Revenue account—CSCS compensation agency arrangements"). Copies of the resource accounts can be found in the Library and on the civil service pensions website at:

www.civilservice.gov.uk/pensions

The annual cost of pension payments made before the scheme's pension age in respect of early retirements on the grounds of ill-health is not recorded separately. However, each year, the resource accounts of each employing department give details of the total additional annual pension granted to any of their employees who retired on the grounds of ill-health during that year.

John McDonnell: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many retired civil servants receive a civil service pension of between (a) £2,000 and £3,000, (b) £3,000 and £4,000 and (c) £4,000 and £5,000 per annum. [274169]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 11 May 2009]: As at 7 May 2009 the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme is paying 52,741 pensioners a gross pension between £2000 and £3000; 46,257 pensioners a pension between £3,000 and £4,000, and 37,644 pensioners a pension between £4,000 and £5,000 per annum. "Pensioners" includes retired officers but not those in receipt of a dependant's pension.

Civil Servants: Redundancy

Steve Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what his policy is on the size of redundancy payments for civil servants; and if he will make a statement. [272643]

Mr. Watson: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by the Prime Minister on 31 March 2009, Official Report, column 60-61WS.

Civil Service

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the mechanisms are for reviewing the content of the Civil Service Code; and if he will make a statement. [274617]

Mr. Watson: The Civil Service Code is kept under review and is updated as and when required.

Copies of the Civil Service Code are available in the Library of the House and available at http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/Assets/cs_code_tcm6-2444.pdf

Departmental Contracts for Services

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which services his Department has outsourced in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274454]

Kevin Brennan: Information regarding contracts for the provision of estates management and corporately provided information and communications technology (ICT) which have been outsourced over the past five years, and the year that they were outsourced, are as follows:

Telephone service management (2007);

Security guarding services, not previously outsourced (2007).

Centrally held records do not show any other services being outsourced over that period.

Departmental Correspondence

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what procedure his Department follows for dealing with complaints received (a) by e-mail, (b) by post, (c) by telephone and (d) via his Department's website. [274531]

Mr. Watson: The complaints handling procedure for the Cabinet Office is available on the Cabinet Office website at:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/ContactUs/Complaints.aspx

A copy has been placed in the Library of the House.

Departmental ICT

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the average server capacity utilisation by each division of his Department was in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [269578]

Mr. Watson: The majority of servers used by my Department are supplied under our current ICT contract by Fujitsu services. The Cabinet Office possesses fileserver storage used mainly for the storage of documents and databases. The amount used over the past four years is as follows:

	December
	2005	2006	2007	2008
Data Size (GB)	2,481	3,814	4,700	5,400
Utilisation (percentage)	30	46	57	65

We have no information about the server capacity utilisation in 2004.

The Department also has a small number of servers used for the operation of its e-mail system. The volatile nature of the e-mail traffic and the need to keep real-time backups, mean that these servers provide optimum performance at less than 20 per cent. capacity.

The Department has recently instituted a policy of moving to storage area networking (SAN) devices. These allow several applications to share a server and so make much more efficient use of its capacity. Our current SAN has a utilisation rate of 80 per cent.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many (a) printers and (b) multi-function devices with printing functions were in use in each division of his Department in each of the last five years; how many such devices had a function enabling two-sided printing; and if he will make a statement. [269601]

Mr. Watson: On 17 July 2008, I launched the Greening Government ICT Strategy. Its aim is to reduce the environmental impact of the computer systems employed by all Government bodies. In the strategy, one important target is to reduce the overall number of printers used by an organisation and replace them with multi-function devices (MFDs) where security issues allow. The MFDs should use green printing defaults wherever possible.

The Department has used the following number of multi-function devices with printing functions and printers during the past five years.

December	MFDs	Printers
2008	147	164
2007	167	161
2006	156	150
2005	149	133
2004	128	127

All multi-functional devices are capable of two-sided printing, and indeed are set up to do so as the default.

Since 2003, my Department has had a policy of installing multi-user MFDs as the main device for printing. A number of printers have been retained, but they are only used where there are specific business reasons.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many (a) BlackBerrys and (b) other mobile telephones have been provided to (i) Ministers, (ii) special advisers and (iii) civil servants in (A) the Cabinet Office and (B) the Prime Minister's Office in each year since 2005. [268282]

Mr. Watson: The number of mobile phones purchased by the Cabinet Office in each year since 2005 are shown as follows:

	Number
2005	219
2006	242
2007	226
2008	235

At April 2009 the Cabinet Office has 198 BlackBerrys in use. Records of when these were purchased are not held centrally so the information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Our records do not differentiate between mobile devices supplied to Ministers, special advisers and civil servants.

The Prime Minister's Office is an integral part of the Cabinet Office.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much his Department has spent on (a) conference services and (b) banqueting services in each of the last five years. [274512]

Kevin Brennan: Information relating to spend on conference and banqueting services is not held centrally and therefore is available only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Safety

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much his Department spent on compliance with requirements of health and safety at work legislation in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274549]

Kevin Brennan: Information relating to spend on health and safety for each of the last five years is not held centrally and therefore is available only at disproportionate cost.

Government Departments: Data Protection

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will discuss with the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform the implications for handling sensitive data of the overseas ownership of suppliers of services to BT under its contract for handling sensitive Government IT systems. [272398]

Mr. Watson: All communications services providers supplying services to Government must comply with the appropriate security standards as determined by Government Departments in their information risk management and protective security policies.

Regular discussions take place between Ministers and officials across government as appropriate to address information security and assurance requirements and policies for Government.

Government Departments: Press Releases

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether the (a) issue and (b) content of departmental press releases is subject to a code of conduct. [273263]

Mr. Watson: All Government communications activity is subject to strict propriety guidance, which, along with the Civil Service Code, defines how civil servants can properly and effectively present Government policies and programmes.

Copies of the communication propriety guidance have been placed in the Library of the House, copies of the Civil Service Code are available in the Library of the House and can be found at:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/Assets/cs_code_tcm6-2444.pdf

Local Government: Standards

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster who monitors the performance of local authorities under the (a) Customer Service Excellence and (b) Charter Mark schemes. [273254]

Mr. Watson: Cabinet Office is the owner of the customer service excellence and charter mark schemes. Cabinet Office licenses four independent certification bodies to provide assessment processes for customer service excellence and charter mark. The certification bodies are the sole decision makers in the process of certifying organisations as CSE or charter mark holders. They manage all matters relating to the ongoing suitability and status of holders in local government and other sectors.

Ministers: Costs

Mr. Fallon: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will estimate the average annual cost to each Department of (a) a Secretary of State, (b) a Minister of State and (c) a Parliamentary Under-Secretary in the last 12 months. [273142]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 7 May 2009]: Instruction on the reporting of the remuneration of Government Ministers is set out by HM Treasury in the Government Financial Reporting Manual (FReM). Under this guidance, information on ministerial salaries is provided in the remuneration section of Departments' annual Resource Accounts, copies of which are in the Library of the House.

Ministers: Data Protection

Mr. Evans: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many security breaches involving confidential documents left (a) on public transport and (b) elsewhere involved (i) Cabinet Ministers and (ii) advisers to Cabinet Ministers in each of the last three years. [271007]

Mr. Watson: It is for individual Departments to collate information on security breaches within their Departments.

Pensions

Mr. Baron: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much revenue he expects to accrue to the Exchequer from the application of the correct pension increases for pensioners in the five schemes affected by the incorrect indexation of the guaranteed minimum pension in the next 12 months. [271528]

Mr. Watson: Pensions and other benefits paid from the pension schemes concerned are accounted for in the annual Resource Accounts for the schemes. Resource Accounts for the year 2009-10 will be published following the end of the year in question.

Strategy Committee

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the reasons were for the formation of the Cabinet Office's Strategy Committee; when it was established; on whose authority the committee was established; what its objectives are; who its members are; how often it has met; and if he will make a statement. [274183]

Kevin Brennan: There is no such committee within the Cabinet Office.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Electoral Register

Chris Ruane: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what estimate the Electoral Commission has made of the proportion of unregistered voters who are functionally illiterate. [275408]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Commission informs me that it has made no estimate of the proportion of unregistered voters who are functionally illiterate.

However, the Commission's 2005 report, "Understanding electoral registration", found a correlation between under-registration and those with no educational qualifications. This correlation is more pronounced for the younger age groups, with non-registration approximately 8 per cent. among 18 to 34-year-olds who hold some form of educational qualification and 15 per cent. for those reporting no qualifications.

Chris Ruane: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what steps the Electoral Commission is taking to assist functionally illiterate people to register to vote. [275409]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Commission informs me that it issues guidance to electoral registration officers (EROs) on providing assistance to people with low levels of literacy, and that it includes as part of its performance standards framework a requirement that EROs ensure that the registration process is straightforward and accessible for electors.

The Commission provides materials to help EROs and community groups to communicate with people with literacy or learning difficulties, and also funds, through its partnership grants programme, projects to increase registration among people with learning disabilities.

Local Government: Suffolk

Mr. Spring: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission for what reasons the Boundary Committee for England did not select the East Suffolk/West Suffolk/Ipswich pattern as a formal option for consultation in its structural review of Suffolk local government. [275212]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that the Boundary Committee considered that an East Suffolk/West Suffolk/Ipswich pattern would, on the basis of the information before it, be unlikely to have the capacity to deliver the outcomes specified by the Secretary of State's five criteria.

Mr. Spring: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission for what reasons the Boundary Committee for England's March 2009 consultation on preferred patterns for the future of local government in Suffolk proposed an additional public service village in Stowmarket in the rural authority in the pattern B option; and for what reasons such a village was not proposed in the pattern A option. [275220]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that in its further draft proposal report the Boundary Committee outlined potential arrangements to deliver the outcomes specified by the Secretary of State's five criteria.

One of these arrangements is for a pattern of "service delivery villages". These are centres typically providing shared local offices for public sector service providers, intended to encourage shared solutions to local problems. In pattern A, which is a unitary county authority, the committee proposed locating the public service villages in the three largest towns: Ipswich, Bury St. Edmunds and Lowestoft. In pattern B, the committee requested views on whether the town of Stowmarket would be an appropriate location for a public service village, serving residents living in the centre of Suffolk, bearing in mind that Ipswich would be included in a separate unitary authority.

Mr. Spring: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission whether the Boundary Committee for England has determined Lowestoft to be (a) an urban area and (b) a market town. [275239]

Sir Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that its Boundary Committee has not determined Lowestoft to be either an urban area or a market town for the purposes of its further draft proposals for unitary local government in Suffolk. It is not the committee's remit to decide how an area should be defined.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

British Nuclear Fuels

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the (a) final severance package and (b) pension arrangements were for the previous chief executive of British Nuclear Fuels plc. [267063]

Mr. McFadden: I have been asked to reply.

In line with the company's standard terms of employment, the outgoing chief executive of BNFL, Mike Parker CBE, is entitled to a redundancy payment equivalent to one times his basic salary. There are no other severance related payments due to him. There are no BNFL pension arrangements for Mike Parker; he does not participate in the BNFL pension scheme and the company has not made contributions to any other pension scheme on his behalf.

Government Departments: Carbon Emissions

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what mechanism exists for the co-ordination of measures to reduce carbon dioxide emissions from Government Departments' data centres. [274899]

Mr. Watson: I have been asked to reply.

The Government Chief Information Officer Council is co-ordinating measures to implement the Greening Government ICT Strategy published last July. The strategy includes early actions to increase the average server capacity utilisation, which will reduce the overall level of carbon dioxide emissions in data centres and accord with the European Code of Conduct. The CIO Council are also working with the Public Sector Council of Intellect, the trade association for the high technology industries, on a forward strategy for Government data centres to reduce costs and carbon emissions.

Winter Fuel Payments

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change if he will estimate the cost to the public purse of extending eligibility for the £200 annual winter fuel payment to all people with spinal cord injuries. [272348]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is not available.

Winter fuel payments are made to people aged 60 or over, including those who are disabled. We do not collect statistics on the number of people aged below 60 with spinal cord injuries.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Flood Control

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how many times the National Resilience Forum on Flooding has met since it was established; and if he will make a statement; [269967]

(2) what the membership of the National Resilience Forum on Flooding is; and if he will make a statement. [269968]

Mr. Watson: I have been asked to reply.

The National Resilience Forum has not yet met. In December, in the Government's reply to Sir Michael Pitt's Review, we said that the aim would be for an inaugural meeting in the first half of 2009. The National Security Forum has since met for the first time, in March, which has helped us review proposals for the National Resilience Forum. Detailed proposals and the issue of invitations will commence as soon as possible after this review is complete.

Floods: Property Development

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 2 April 2009, Official Report, column 1302W, on floods: property development, how many local planning authorities are considered by the Environment Agency not to have complied with planning policy statement 25 in each of the last five years. [273523]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Environment Agency has advised that the number of planning applications given planning permission against its advice on flood risk grounds over the past five years, and the number of local planning authorities (LPAs) this represented, is as follows:

	Total number of planning applications permitted against Environment Agency advice on flood risk	Total number of LPAs granting planning permission against an Environment Agency flood risk objection
2003-04	323	85
2004-05	248	108
2005-06	136	82
2006-07	110	72
2007-08	124	76

Planning policy statement (PPS) 25, 'Development and Flood Risk', was published in December 2006. Prior to that date, national planning policy on development and flood risk was set out in planning policy guidance note 25. These policies apply only to England.

It is for the local planning authority to determine planning applications in accordance with the development plan for the area, taking account of the particular circumstances of each application and subject to other material planning considerations.

Further detailed information about the extent to which local planning authorities have taken account of the Environment Agency's advice on flood risk is set out in the Environment Agency's annual 'Development and Flood Risk' monitoring report. The most recent report was published in February 2009, covering the period 2007-08. This shows that where flood risk was an issue, around 96 per cent. of all planning application decisions, as notified to the Environment Agency, were in line with the Environment Agency's advice.

Hydroelectric Power: Licensing

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many water abstraction licences for hydro-electric schemes the Environment Agency has (a) received an application for, (b) issued and (c) refused in (i) England and (ii) Wales in each of the last three years. [275947]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The number of abstraction licence applications received and new abstraction licences granted for hydropower schemes are given in the following table. The Environment Agency introduced a national Water Resources authorisations receipt tracking system in November 2008. As a result, data on the number of applications received and refused are only available from November 2008 onwards. Prior to this, information was not held centrally. To collate pre-2008 data would incur disproportionate costs.

	Applications received		Licences refused		Licences issued
	England	Wales	England	Wales	England	Wales

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

1 Carlton Gardens

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 27 February 2009, Official Report, column 1196W, on departmental buildings, to what use the ministerial residence within 1 Carlton Gardens has been put. [274141]

Gillian Merron: The ministerial residence within 1 Carlton Gardens has not been used since 16 October 2007 but the Foreign and Commonwealth Office uses the function rooms of 1 Carlton Gardens for a range of events hosted by Ministers and senior officials, as well as other departmental meetings.

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the Pakistani Government on minimisation of civilian casualties during military operations in Buner and Lower Dir. [273146]

Bill Rammell: [holding answer 7 May 2009]: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary last discussed the situation in North West Frontier province with Foreign Minister Qureshi on 25 April 2009. As part of our wider defence engagement programme, we will continue our efforts to build the capacity of the Pakistani military to mount effective operations that minimise civilian casualties. The UK is also helping the Government of Pakistan to meet the urgent humanitarian needs of those most directly affected by insecurity. We have so far dispersed £2 million and have recently committed an additional £10 million. Our funds are being channelled through humanitarian agencies on the ground to give food supplies and shelter to those most in need, as well as supplying essential water and sanitation and basic health care.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information his Department holds on the deployment of armed US Predator unmanned aerial vehicles from airbases within Pakistan. [273322]

Bill Rammell: US actions should be discussed between the US and Pakistani Governments. We cannot comment on intelligence matters.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has had recent discussions with the Government of Pakistan on the deployment of armed US Predator unmanned aerial vehicles within Pakistani airspace. [273323]

Bill Rammell: Any such deployments would be for discussion between the US and Pakistani Governments.

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Mid-Sussex of 27 April 2009, Official Report, column 1030W, on Afghanistan: peacekeeping operations, what the dates were of the secondment of each UK official to the US-led review of American defence and security policy; and if he will make a statement. [274388]

David Miliband: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State (Gillian Merron) gave on 26 November 2008, Official Report, columns 1795-1796W.

British Indian Ocean Territory: Nature Conservation

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues on the possibility of formulating a long-term conservation framework with a natural conservation area in the British Indian Ocean Territory. [274602]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and the British Indian Ocean Territory (BIOT) Administration are committed to high standards of environmental protection in BIOT. There is a legislative framework, protection of sites and species of particular importance, and designated reserves (an area of Diego Garcia has been designated as a Wetland of International Importance under the Ramsar Convention on Wetlands). These have contributed to the very high levels of nature conservation achieved in the territory.

The FCO and BIOT Administration are keen to explore options for further enhancing levels of environmental protection in BIOT and welcome the interest expressed, for example, by the Chagos Environment Network who have recently proposed the establishment of a large-scale Marine Protected Area.

These issues have not been the subject of discussion with ministerial colleagues, but FCO officials have been asked to engage with officials in other Government Departments.

Colombia: Foreign Relations

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his latest assessment is of the state of relations between the UK and Colombia; and if he will make a statement. [273847]

Gillian Merron: The UK maintains a constructive partnership with Colombia, working with the Colombian Government, international and civil society partners on a number of shared challenges including human rights, counter-narcotics, impunity and climate change.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary gave a written ministerial statement on UK policy towards Colombia on 30 March 2009, Official Report, column 40WS, which outlined changes to the way we deliver our objectives in Colombia, including giving priority to tackling impunity in the criminal justice system, and promoting the work of human rights and civil society organisations in Colombia.

Conflict Resolution

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the performance of the right hon. Dr Jack McConnell MSP in his capacity as the Prime Minister's Special Representative for Conflict Resolution Mechanisms since his appointment in October 2008. [273825]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 8 May 2009]: The right hon. Jack McConnell MSP, the Prime Minister's Special Representative on Conflict Resolution Mechanisms has made a valuable contribution to advancing the UK's peace building objectives since his appointment in October 2008. He has in particular engaged with the UN Secretariat and key stakeholders around the world to press for an ambitious UN Secretary-General report on peace building in the immediate aftermath of conflict.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Security

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his most recent assessment is of the security situation in South Kivu; and if he will make a statement. [275316]

Gillian Merron: Over the last month the security situation in South Kivu has remained tense. Joint operations by the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC) military and UN peacekeepers against the Rwandan Hutu Democratic Liberation Forces of Rwanda (FDLR) militia have begun. For the time being, the FDLR continues to pose a serious threat to the civilian population in South Kivu, and to commit atrocities in eastern DRC.

I welcome the effort to apply pressure to the FDLR. We are providing support to help FDLR fighters who wish to leave the organisation to do so. Former members of other militias in South Kivu are entering into a process of integration into the DRC army.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many (a) BlackBerry devices and (b) mobile telephones have been lost by (i) Ministers, (ii) special advisers and (iii) civil servants in his Department in each year since 2005. [274466]

Gillian Merron: We do not keep a record of the number of devices lost on a yearly basis.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 27 April 2009, Official Report, column 1032W, on departmental public expenditure, what resource allocation was made for each overseas post for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09. [272913]

David Miliband: The following table gives net administration allocations by post for 2007-08 and 2008-09. Programme allocations are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Stationery

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proportion of office supplies purchased by his Department were recycled products in the latest period for which figures are available. [275344]

Gillian Merron: Data on Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) spend on products from recycled materials are not held centrally, and establishing the global proportion of the FCO's office supplies being made from recycled materials could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. A trawl of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's (FCO's) principal suppliers of office supplies in the UK, has identified that:

The FCO's A4 paper supplies are made from 100 per cent. recycled materials, and a number of more specialised paper products are made from 75 per cent. recycled materials;

80 per cent. of the FCO's bespoke print paper products from its in-house print facility are made from 100 per cent. recycled materials;

The FCO's contracted stationery supplier provides a range of products meeting certain environmental criteria, including but not exclusively, being made from recycled materials. Since 1 May 2008, 18.47 per cent. of the FCO's spend with this supplier has been on products which meet their criteria as being environmentally sound;

Chairs purchased by the FCO contain 50 per cent. recycled materials.

Diplomatic Service: Allowances

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the answer of 27 February 2008, Official Report, column 1196W, on departmental pay, what the source of the security advice used to calculate the hardship element of the Diplomatic Service Compensation Allowance is. [275462]

Gillian Merron: The Diplomatic Service Compensation Allowance hardship allowance is based on scores supplied by an independent company, Employment Conditions Abroad (ECA). ECA score posts around the world in 16 different categories including personal security and socio-political tension, based on their own independent research and information derived from the annual location ranking survey completed by their member organisations. They reflect conditions for an average expatriate living in the city concerned. These scores are then re-weighted by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (multiplied by 1.389) to reflect the additional security risk staff may face because of their higher profile as official Government representatives overseas.

In addition to ECA's security score, our own security advisers award points based on their assessment of the security threat to British diplomats and their families from terrorism, hostile intelligence activity and political violence.

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which posts qualify civilian employees of his Department for the hardship element of the Diplomatic Service Compensation Allowance (DSCA); and what the monthly rate of DSCA hardship allowance paid to staff at each post is. [275463]

Gillian Merron: Each of the posts in the following table qualifies for DSCA hardship allowance. The list and the rates paid are revised annually. The accompanied rates are paid to an officer posted with their spouse/registered partner. Unaccompanied rates are paid to single officers or staff with a spouse/registered partner elsewhere. The rates are changed on 1 January every year.

EU-Pakistan Summit

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) priorities and (b) objectives have been set for the EU-Pakistan summit. [273724]

David Miliband: The Government strongly support the proposed EU-Pakistan summit and continue to encourage the Czech presidency to set an ambitious agenda that will deliver tangible benefits to Pakistan. We believe the summit should focus on security, counter-terrorism, trade and building democracy.

European Court of Human Rights

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate he has made of the average cost to the public purse of an appeal to the European Court of Human Rights in which the Government are a party (a) in the latest period for which figures are available and (b) in 1997. [274032]

Caroline Flint: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office does not hold a record of the estimated average cost to the public purse of the Government's defence of applications in the European Court of Human Rights.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what occasions the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe has been asked to review a case before the European Court of Human Rights involving the United Kingdom in the last 10 years; and what conclusion was reached in each case. [274035]

Caroline Flint: The Council of Europe (CoE) Committee of Ministers considers judgments of the European Court of Human Rights against the United Kingdom at its quarterly meetings for supervision of execution of judgments. Information about the cases considered at each meeting and the decisions taken is publicly available on the CoE Committee of Ministers' website at:

http://www.coe.int/t/e/human_rights/execution/

European Union

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what dates he had (a) discussions and (b) meetings with the European Union Special Representative for the Great Lakes Region on the situation in the region in the last 12 months. [274803]

Gillian Merron: [holding answer 13 May 2009]: There have been no meetings between my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and the EU Special Representative for the Great Lakes Region, Roeland van de Geer, in the last 12 months.

My noble Friend, the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch-Brown, met Mr. van de Geer on 28 May 2008 and on 4 September 2008. They also both attended the regional summit held by the International Conference on the Great Lakes Region in Nairobi on 7 November 2008.

Industrial Health and Safety

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much his Department spent on compliance with requirements of health and safety at work legislation in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274542]

Gillian Merron: Health and Safety considerations are an important factor in decisions about expenditure on the maintenance and improvement of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office estate and on the security and healthcare arrangements we put in place for our staff overseas.

Identifying the information on which elements of this expenditure are spent on compliance with the relevant health and safety standards would incur disproportionate cost.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with representatives of (a) the Israeli Government and (b) the Palestinian authorities on the recent ceasefire in Gaza. [272999]

Bill Rammell: We are in close contact with both Israeli and Palestinian authorities about ways to improve the situation in Gaza.

In April 2009 my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary spoke to both his Israeli counterpart and Palestinian Prime Minister Fayyad.

On 7 April 2009, I spoke to my Israeli counterpart about the importance of improving the situation in Gaza, among other issues.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with (a) UN representatives, (b) members of the Quartet, and (c) his EU counterparts on the recent ceasefire in Gaza. [273013]

Bill Rammell: We are in close touch with the UN, US, Russia and our EU counterparts about the situation in Gaza. Most recently, Gaza was discussed in the context of the wider Middle East Peace Process at the General Affairs and External Relations Council on 27 April 2009.

Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the oral answer from Lord Malloch-Brown to Lord Hannay of Chiswick of 20 April 2009, Official Report, House of Lords, column 1248, what changes are to be made to the (a) number of and (b) level of funding for civilian secondees to conflict prevention and peacekeeping operations; what funding was allocated to civilian secondees in 2008-09; how many UK civilian secondees to each (i) country and (ii) operation there were in that year; and if he will make a statement. [271037]

David Miliband: In financial year (FY) 2009-10, the Government will provide 80 civilian and police secondees to discretionary, international peacekeeping operations compared with 127 in FY 2008-09. The following table sets out the number of civilian and police secondees by country and operation in FY 2008-09 and FY 2009-10.

	Figures at end of 2008-09		Prioritised figures for 2009-10
	Police	Civilians	Police	Civilians
EULEX Kosovo	45	18	17	15

EUMM Georgia	4	7	4	7
EUPM Bosnia	9	0	3	0
EUJUST LEX Iraq	0	4	0	4
ESDP Secretariat	2	1	1	1
EUBAM Rafah/ Gaza	0	1	0	1
EUBAM Moldova	0	1	0	1
EUCOPPS Palestine	0	2	0	2
EUSEC DRC	0	1	0	1

	Figures at end of 2008-09		Prioritised figures for 2009-10
	Police	Civilians	Police	Civilians
EUSR South Caucasus	0	1	0	1
OSCE All Missions	0	15	0	6
UNAMID Sudan	1	1	1	1
Total	70	57	35	45

In FY 2008-09, civilian secondees to discretionary peacekeeping missions were funded from the Government's Peacekeeping Budget. We cannot provide an exact figure for civilian and police deployment costs in 2008-09. However, we estimate it to be some £16 million. In FY 2009-10, all discretionary peacekeeping activity will be funded from the £171 million available for discretionary conflict prevention, stabilisation and peacekeeping activity, as set out in my written statement to the House of 25 March 2009, Official Report, column 17-18WS. It is possible that further resources, for example from the reserve of that discretionary fund, will be made available during the course of the year depending on priorities.

Sri Lanka: Armed Conflict

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether (a) he and (b) his officials have met representatives of the Governments of (i) India, (ii) Iran, (iii) China, (iv) Pakistan, (v) Syria and (vi) Russia to discuss the conflict in Sri Lanka in the last three months; and if he will make a statement. [272924]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 6 May 2009]: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has had regular discussions with a range of international partners on the situation in Sri Lanka, including Indian Foreign Minister Mukherjee. Our officials have had discussions with international partners, including members of the UN Security Council.

The Foreign Secretary made an oral statement in the House on 30 April 2009, Official Report, columns 1048-50W, following his visit to Sri Lanka on 29 April 2009 to meet with the Sri Lankan Government.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the Government of Sri Lanka on the avoidance of civilian deaths among the Tamil population in the north of Sri Lanka. [273324]

Bill Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary visited Sri Lanka on 29 April 2009 with French Foreign Minister Bernard Kouchner, for talks with the Sri Lankan Government on the ongoing conflict and the grave humanitarian impact. In his discussions with President Rajapakse and Foreign Minister Bogollogama, the Foreign Secretary made clear that the protection of civilians must be paramount.

Following his visit, the Foreign Secretary gave an oral statement to the House on 30 April 2009, Official Report, columns 1048-1050.

Sudan: Human Rights

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the International Criminal Court on the status of Sudanese President al-Bashir. [275082]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 12 May 2009]: Following the announcement of the International Criminal Court's (ICC) decision to issue an arrest warrant for President Bashir on counts of war crimes and crimes against humanity on 4 March 2009, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary issued a statement supporting the ICC as an independent judicial body, urging the Government of Sudan to co-operate with the court, and reiterating UK support to peace in Sudan. We have reiterated this message in contacts with international partners and in other public statements. As with all state parties to the Rome Statute, we have regular contact with the ICC on a range of court business.

Torture: British Nationality

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many UK nationals have claimed to his Department's staff in the last three years that they had been tortured overseas; and how many such cases have been investigated. [273705]

Gillian Merron: The UK is opposed to torture and is one of the most active countries in the world in the fight to eradicate it. Ensuring the welfare of British nationals detained abroad is one of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's highest consular priorities, and any allegation of abuse or torture is taken particularly seriously.

Since 1 April 2005 we have collated statistics on the number of cases where we have, with the permission of the British national concerned, raised concerns with the detaining authorities over allegations of torture or abuse. These are as follows:

	Number of allegations raised
April-December 2005	39
January-December 2006	69
January-December 2007	75
January2008-March 2009	60

Our case files also record all instances where UK nationals have approached departmental staff overseas claiming to have been mistreated overseas. Until this month we did not centrally collate these records, and to extract this information would incur a disproportionate cost. However, since May 2009 we have introduced a new system to record the total number of cases of mistreatment raised with us anywhere in the world, and we expect the first data to be available in October 2009.

While we cannot conduct investigations in another sovereign country ourselves, the objective of our representations to foreign Governments is to end any ongoing mistreatment, and have the incident investigated and the perpetrators of any abuse brought to justice.

United Arab Emirates: Torture

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has received reports of alleged video evidence of acts of torture by uniformed police and others in the United Arab Emirates. [272797]

Bill Rammell: In addition to the two questions asked by the hon. Member, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has to date received one letter from a member of the public on this subject.

Yemen: Terrorism

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made on the Government's programme of counter-terrorism capacity-building in Yemen. [273723]

David Miliband: Counter terrorism (CT) capacity-building forms part of the Government's broader engagement with the Yemeni Government. Our CT capacity-building programme is progressing, and includes work to help counter radicalisation and improve the capability of law enforcement agencies to counter terrorism. We are co-ordinating with international partners and multilateral organisations to develop a self-sustaining Yemeni capability to tackle the terrorist threat.

Zimbabwe: Politics and Government

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate his Department has made of the number of white Zimbabwean farmers who have been deprived of their land in each of the last five years. [273109]

Gillian Merron: The majority of white Zimbabwean farmers were evicted from their land between 2000 and 2002, during which period farming organisations in Zimbabwe estimate that numbers fell from between 5,000-6,000 to approx 2,000. Since 2002 the rate of evictions has slowed. Many of the remaining farmers have been forced to keep a low profile, so maintaining accurate records of farm ownership has been challenging for farming organisations. However, they estimate that approximately 700 white Zimbabwean farmers have been evicted since 2004.

HEALTH

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 31 March 2009, Official Report, column 1088W, on abortion, if he will place in the Library a copy of each document on the file held by his Department covering the Termination of Pregnancy Bill of Session 2005-06 and 2006-07; and if he will make a statement. [270592]

Dawn Primarolo: A copy of the file has been placed in the Library.

Breast Cancer: Ethnic Minorities

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on rates of breast cancer among each ethnic minority group. [274774]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has not directly commissioned research on the incidence of breast cancer among ethnic minority groups. A relevant study undertaken by the Thames Cancer Registry has however been recently published ("Breast cancer incidence, stage, treatment and survival in ethnic groups in South East England", British Journal of Cancer, 6 January 2009); and the National Cancer Research Institute's (NCRI) National Cancer Intelligence Network plans to publish an ethnicity and cancer report in June 2009. The report will include incidence and survival figures for ethnic groups in England in relation to selected cancer sites.

The Department funds the regional cancer registries in England. The NCRI is a partnership organisation in which the Department plays a key role.

Cardiovascular System: Health Services

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what mechanisms are in place to reduce health inequalities in (a) prevalence and (b) access to care for (i) cardiac and (ii) vascular disease. [275382]

Ann Keen: The Government have made tackling health inequalities a top priority, and the most comprehensive programme ever in this country is in place to address them. For coronary heart disease (CHD), the target to reduce deaths from cardiovascular disease (CHD, stroke and related diseases) by 40 per cent. in people under 75 by 2010 was met five years early and the mortality rate has now fallen by 44 per cent. when compared to the 1995-97 baseline. Death rates from CHD between the most deprived areas and the national average has narrowed and we are on track to deliver the 2010 target of at least a 40 per cent. reduction in the gap.

From April 2009, the national health service is being asked to implement a systematic and integrated vascular risk assessment and management programme—the NHS Health Check programme. This will provide a mechanism to identify earlier people at risk of heart disease, stroke, diabetes and kidney disease and support them to reduce their risk through the provision of lifestyle advice and interventions, and smoking cessation, and preventative medication such as statins. The programme has significant potential to narrow inequalities and many primary care trusts (PCTs) are using it as a major tool in tackling health inequalities.

Other mechanisms available include the work of the National Health Inequalities Support Team in spearhead areas (the areas with the worst health and deprivation indicators), the Health Inequalities Intervention Tool, jointly developed with the Association of Public Health Observatories that support PCTs and local authorities in local priority setting (including prioritising vascular conditions), planning and commissioning of services and the work of the Improvement Foundation Programme in improving early presentation of cardiovascular disease in the spearhead areas. This is in addition to the work that PCTs are doing to address some of the risk factors for vascular disease such as making available smoking cessation, weight management and physical activity programmes in a way that is accessible to the groups within the population who most need them.

Dementia

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the NHS has spent on research into the (a) causes and (b) treatment of dementia in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [275887]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave the hon. Member for South Cambridgeshire (Mr. Lansley) on 24 February 2009, Official Report, column 640W.

Diabetes: Costs

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the cost to the NHS of treatment of diabetes and diabetes-related conditions in the last 12 months. [275848]

Ann Keen: Estimates of national health service expenditure on diabetes are available from the programme budgeting returns.

Data for 2007-08 are not yet available. However, the following table shows the estimated gross level expenditure for diabetes from 2004-05 to 2006-07 in England. These figures include primary care trust, Department of Health (DH), strategic health authority and special health authority expenditure. It should be noted that these figures do not include prevention expenditure or general medical services/primary medical services expenditure.

	Diabetes expenditure (£000)	DH gross expenditure (£000)	Diabetes as a proportion of gross expenditure (percentage)
2004-05	687,402	71,922,179	1.0
2005-06	866,000	80,185,241	1.1
2006-07	1,043,021	84,193,209	1.2

Dietary Supplements: EU Law

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether the (a) Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency and (b) Food Standards Agency have reviewed the effects on trade in food supplements and herbal remedies of the coming into force of the Mutual Recognition Regulation (EC) 764/2008; and if he will make a statement. [273975]

Dawn Primarolo: Decisions on whether products should be classified as herbal medicinal products, and on the authorisation of herbal medicinal products, are the subject of harmonisation measures at Community level and so are not subject to the requirements of Mutual Recognition Regulation (EC) No 764/2008. The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency does not therefore expect the regulation to have a significant impact on the trade in herbal remedies.

We are advised by the Food Standards Agency that measures taken by the authorities of member states pursuant to provisions of food law of general application are explicitly exempted from the requirements of the regulation. These exemptions relate to measures taken under Regulation (EC) No 178/2002 (General Food Law) in relation to risks to health arising from food, and measures taken under Regulation (EC) No 882/2004 (official feed and food controls) in ensuring that food business operators remedy non-compliance with food law. The European Commission is producing guidance on the application of the Mutual Recognition Regulation to different foodstuffs, including food supplements.

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when he last met representatives of the (a) Proprietary Association of Great Britain and (b) Health Food Manufacturers Association to discuss the EU Food Supplements Directive; [275061]

(2) what recent progress has been made in discussions on the implementation of the EU Food Supplements Directive; and if he will make a statement. [275096]

Dawn Primarolo: I met with representatives of the Health Food Manufacturers Association on 22 January 2009 and with the Proprietary Association of Great Britain on 1 April 2009 to discuss matters relating to the Food Supplements Directive 2002/46/EC.

A meeting of the ad hoc technical group of member states, established to undertake scientific modelling on the setting of maximum levels for vitamins and minerals in food supplements, was held on 24 April 2009. At the meeting, member states presented the results of work they had carried out using the scientific models proposed by the European Commission and their respective national data on the intake of vitamins and minerals from the diet.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when Ministers in his Department next plan to raise with the European Health Commissioner (a) the setting of maximum permitted levels for vitamins and minerals in food supplements and (b) the extension of existing European legislation to include other categories of substance; [275128]

(2) what information his Department holds on the outcome of the recent consultation by the European Commission on the possible extension of the scope of the EU Food Supplements Directive to include substances other than vitamins and minerals; what discussions (a) Ministers and officials and (b) the Food Standards Agency have had at EU level on such an extension; what his Department's policy is on such an extension; and if he will make a statement; [275137]

(3) what assessment has been made of the implications for manufacturers of supplements containing (a) botanical ingredients, (b) glucosamine, (c) creatine and (d) other ingredients of the implementation of proposals to extend the scope of the EU Food Supplements Directive. [275152]

Dawn Primarolo: There are no current plans for Health Ministers to raise the issues of the setting of maximum permitted levels for vitamins and minerals in food supplements or the extension of the Food Supplements Directive 2002/46/EC to substances other than vitamins and minerals with the European Health Commissioner.

Article 4(8) of the Food Supplements Directive placed an obligation on the European Commission to submit a report to the European Parliament and the Council on the necessity for specific rules in relation to the use of substances in food supplements other than vitamins and minerals. This report was published in December 2008 and the Commission's conclusion was that the current legislative framework is sufficient to regulate the use of substances other than vitamins and minerals in food supplements and that additional legislation in this area is not justified at this stage. No additional information is held by the Department or the Food Standards Agency in relation to the report.

The Commission's report was placed on the agenda for an exchange of views at a meeting of the General Food Law Section of the Standing Committee on Food Chain and Animal Health held on 27 March 2009. At the meeting, the United Kingdom, represented by the Food Standards Agency, supported the position the Commission had expressed in its report and the Commission reiterated its position. Health Ministers and Departmental officials have had no discussions at European level on this issue.

There are therefore no proposals currently under consideration to extend the scope of the Food Supplements Directive to substances other than vitamins and minerals. No assessment has been made of the implications of such an extension for manufacturers of supplements containing botanical ingredients, glucosamine, creatine or other ingredients.

Drugs: Babies

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many babies were born with a diagnosed addiction to drugs (a) in each year since 1997 and (b) in each primary care trust area in the last year for which figures are available; [272786]

(2) how many babies received treatment for (a) drug addiction and (b) alcohol problems arising from their mother's use of such substances during pregnancy (i) in each year since 1997 and (ii) in each primary care trust area in the last year for which figures are available. [272789]

Dawn Primarolo: Data on the number of babies treated for alcohol problems arising from their mother's use of alcohol are not collected centrally.

The following tables show the number of finished consultant episodes (FCEs) where the primary or secondary diagnosis was either neonatal withdrawal symptoms from maternal use of drugs of addiction or withdrawal from therapeutic use of drugs in newborns. The baby is not diagnosed as addicted, but as withdrawing from the mother's addiction.

It is not possible to provide information on the type of drug the newborn child is withdrawing from.

It is unclear whether there has been a real rise in the number of babies born suffering from the mother's addiction, as we suspect that a better awareness of drug misuse has lead to an increase of awareness and identification. Improved engagement with pregnant drug addicted women by the national health service and improvements in treatment for drug addiction may have allowed more women to conceive and/or carry a pregnancy to full term.

Epilepsy

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department has taken in response to the finding of its Workforce Issues discussion paper of 2006 on the adequacy of numbers of medical care staff with training and expertise in epilepsy. [275897]

Ann Keen: Local national health service organisations are best placed to determine the workforce they need to deliver high quality service for patients. The Department is committed to supporting the NHS to do this by ensuring information such as supply and demand of medical practitioners with epilepsy training is well understood throughout the NHS, and that workforce planning and education and training decisions reflect this.

The NHS Next Stage Review document 'A High Quality Workforce' outlined improvements for the workforce planning system, including a Centre for Workforce Intelligence and Professional Advisory Boards to provide expert research, analysis and co-ordinated clinical advice to the NHS.

This will help to ensure that the NHS has the right workforce with the right skills to deliver high quality care for all patients.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what information his Department makes available for people diagnosed with epilepsy on the (a) risk factors for and (b) prevention of sudden unexpected death in epilepsy. [275898]

Ann Keen: Detailed information on epilepsy, and the risk factors associated with sudden unexpected death in epilepsy, is made available on the NHS Choices website at:

www.nhs.uk/Conditions/Epilepsy/Pages/Complications.aspx

Food: Labelling

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he has made a recent estimate of the cost to the food industry of implementation of the EU Nutrition Labelling Directive. [275139]

Dawn Primarolo: In line with good regulation principles the Food Standards Agency produces impact assessments to gauge the costs/benefits associated with proposed nutrition labelling legislation. These impact assessments are developed with input from all stakeholders including the food industry and are updated regularly to take into account the latest developments for new European Union legislation in this area. The latest draft impact assessment for Commission Directive 2008/100/EC is available at:

www.food.gov.uk/consultations/consulteng/2009/draftfoodlabelnutdecengregs

The European Commission proposal for a new regulation on the provision of food information for consumers is available at:

www.food.gov.uk/consultations/ukwideconsults/2008/infoprovision

Health Education: Influenza

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much he has allocated for expenditure on material to inform citizens about swine influenza. [273841]

Dawn Primarolo: The cost of advertising and publicity activity across the United Kingdom on swine influenza, including the swine influenza information phone line, is approximately £7.9 million to date.

Hospitals: Infectious Diseases

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what data his Department collects on products purchased by NHS trusts to tackle the spread of infectious diseases in order to monitor control of diseases spread in hospitals; and if he will make a statement. [275637]

Ann Keen: The Department does not collect information centrally on products purchased by national health service trusts. Decisions on what products to purchase for the purposes set out in the question are for local management to make.

Influenza

Jim Dowd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate his Department has made of the number of cases of influenza in the UK in the most recent 12-month period for which figures are available. [274751]

Dawn Primarolo: Data on the actual numbers of people in the United Kingdom who have contracted influenza are not collected.

Surveillance information on cases of influenza-like illness (ILI) is collected by the Royal College of General Practitioners. Information for the 2008-09 season was collected as rates of new cases of ILI per 100,000 general practitioner (GP) population, on a weekly basis in the flu season from 29 September 2008 to 12 April 2009. The peak weekly rate in 2008-09 was 68.5 new cases of ILI per 100,000 in the third week of December. These levels for the flu season 2008-09 are considered moderate levels of influenza activity. This information relates to England and Wales.

Prescriptions: Fees and Charges

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will estimate the cost to the public purse of abolishing prescription charges. [275479]

Dawn Primarolo: For the period April 2007 to March 2008, the revenue raised from prescription charges collected by pharmacists and appliance contractors and from prescription prepayment certificate fees was £432 million. In addition, dispensing doctors collect charges which are retained by primary care trusts and not collected centrally. Abolishing prescription charges in England would result in the loss of income available to the national health service.

Radiography: Manpower

Mr. Clelland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to combat the shortage of qualified sonographers. [275884]

Ann Keen: The national health service is best placed to determine the workforce it needs to deliver high quality service for patients. The Department is committed to supporting the NHS to do this by ensuring information such as supply and demand of sonographers is well understood throughout the NHS, and that workforce planning and education and training decisions reflect this.

For example, the Department and NHS Workforce Review Team work to produce a list of shortage occupations for the Migration Advisory Committee. Registered therapeutic radiographers and sonographers are included in the list, which comprises skilled occupations where there are shortages that can sensibly be filled by enabling employers to recruit migrants from outside the European Economic Area (EEA).

The NHS Next Stage Review document "A High Quality Workforce" outlined improvements for the workforce planning system, including a Centre for Workforce Intelligence and Professional Advisory Boards to provide expert research, analysis and co-ordinated clinical advice to the NHS. A copy has been placed in the Library.

This will help to ensure that the NHS has the right workforce with the right skills to deliver high quality care for all patients.

Sexually Transmitted Diseases: Young People

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children under 16 years old were diagnosed with (a) gonorrhoea, (b) chlamydia, (c) syphilis, (d) herpes and (e) genital warts in each of the last five years. [272349]

Dawn Primarolo: Number of selected sexually transmitted infections (STI) diagnosed in genito-urinary medicine (GUM) clinics and in the National Chlamydia Screening programme (NCSP) in England, in those under the age of 16 for 2003 to 2008 are given in the following table.

STI	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008
GUM clinics (under 16 years)
Chlamydia	1,372	1,367	1,315	1,307	1,530	n/a
Gonorrhoea	322	261	230	199	224	n/a
Syphilis	3	3	17	8	6	n/a

Notes:
1. Data for 2003 consist of information reported for the period 1 April 2003 to 31 December 2003.
2. Notes on GUM data:
(a) The data available from the KC60 statutory returns are for diagnoses made in GUM clinics only. Diagnoses made in other clinical settings, such as general practice, are not recorded in the KC60 dataset.
(b) The data available from the KC60 statutory returns are the number of diagnoses made, not the number of patients diagnosed.
(c) The information provided has been adjusted for missing clinic data.
(d) Data are unavailable for 2008.
3. Notes on NCSP data:
(a) The NCSP has been phased in since 1 April 2003 with all 152 primary care trusts (PCTs) reporting data to the programme since March 2008. Therefore note that numbers of diagnoses have risen substantially as an increasing proportion of the target population have been tested.
(b) NSCP data are presented by PCT of residence and exclude those resident outside of England.
(c) The data from the NCSP Core Dataset are for positive chlamydia screens conducted within the NCSP outside of GUM clinics only and include positive screens made by the Boots pathfinder project.
(d) The data available from the NCSP are the number of diagnoses made and not the number of patients diagnosed.
(e) Data include chlamydia diagnoses for males, females, and those with unknown/ unspecified sex.
(f) Data presented are based on tests with confirmed positive diagnoses only.

Swine Flu

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will fast-track approval by the Advisory Committee on the Safety of Blood, Tissues and Organs of pathogen inactivation for blood products to ensure the UK blood supply is (A)H1N1-free; and if he will make a statement. [274791]

Dr. Desmond Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans his Department has to protect the UK from the A(H1N1) virus; if he will fast-track approval by the Advisory Committee on the Safety of Blood, Tissues and Organs of pathogen inactivation for blood products to ensure that the UK blood supply is (A)H1N1-free; and if he will made a statement. [274717]

Dawn Primarolo: The Advisory Committee on the Safety of Blood, Tissues and Organs is currently reviewing risk-reduction measures for platelets, which include pathogen inactivation. There are currently no pathogen inactivation systems available for red blood cells, the most commonly prescribed blood component. Current expert advice is that risk of transmission of influenza through blood components is low, although the position is being kept under review.

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what quantities of pathogen inactivated (A)H1N1-free blood products are available in the UK; what plans he has to adopt pathogen inactivation for all civilian and military blood products if the World Health Organisation designates the (A)H1N1 outbreak a pandemic; and if he will make a statement. [274792]

Dr. Desmond Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what quantities of pathogen-inactivated (A)H1N1-free blood products are stockpiled in the UK; what plans his Department has to adopt pathogen inactivation for all civilian and military blood products if the World Health Organisation designates the (A)H1N1 outbreak a pandemic; and if he will make a statement. [274720]

Dawn Primarolo: Red cells are the most commonly prescribed blood component. There are no pathogen inactivation systems currently available for red cells. Risk-reduction measures for platelets, which include pathogen inactivation, are currently being reviewed by the Advisory Committee of the Safety of Blood, Tissues and Organs. It is anticipated that this review will be completed shortly. Plasma imported from the United States of America for use in the under-16s is pathogen inactivated. Current expert advice is that risk of transmission of influenza through blood components is low, although the position is being kept under review.

Torbay Hospital: Infectious Diseases

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding has been allocated to Torbay hospital to tackle (a) MRSA and (b) other similar infections in the latest period for which figures are available. [275445]

Ann Keen: The Department does not collect the information requested.

Revenue allocations are made to primary care trusts (PCTs) to cover hospital and community health services, prescribing costs and primary medical services. It is for PCTs to decide what services they should commission (such as specific hospital services), in the light of local needs and circumstances, and to meet the health care needs of the local populations they serve.

To support improvements in the national health service in reducing health care associated infections, there is comprehensive spending review funding of £270 million per year by 2010-11. This funding will be reflected in the national tariff uplift.

This includes £130 million per year by 2010-11 for methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus screening for all elective admissions from April 2009, and for all emergency admissions by 2010-11, as stated in "Our NHS Our Future", published on 4 October 2007. A copy of the publication has been placed in the Library.

Tuberculosis

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what consideration he has given to the merits of establishing a national indicator for tuberculosis infection. [274798]

Dawn Primarolo: The NHS Next Stage Review considered all aspects of health care including tuberculosis and the need to set new targets. It introduced no new national targets, to ensure that the national health service continues to focus on the small number of targets in the NHS Operating Framework. Where the incidence of tuberculosis is a local issue, primary care trusts are empowered to deal with it.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Anabolic Steroids

James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions she has had on the classification of anabolic steroids. [274326]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 11 May 2009]: Anabolic steroids are controlled as Class C drugs under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971. The Government have accepted the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs recommendation to control a further 24 anabolic steroids and two non-steroidal agents (growth promoters) as Class C drugs and Schedule 4 Part 2 of the Misuse of Drugs Regulations 2001 so as not to preclude legitimate use on prescription. A formal, public consultation on this proposal will be published shortly.

Crime Prevention: Expenditure

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to Table 5.2 of the Home Office Annual Report 2007-08, what the crime reduction resource budget has been spent on in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [273530]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The expenditure figures in Table 5.2 of the Home Office Annual Report 2007-08 reflect those in the HM Treasury database as reported in the Main and Supplementary Estimates 2007-08 and approved by Parliament. To remain consistent with the figures approved by Parliament, information in the Annual Report was grouped under the Strategic Objectives published by the Home Office in February 2008.

The expenditure identified in the table as dedicated to crime reduction resource covered a wide range of locally determined and national interventions aimed at tackling crime and antisocial behaviour. It formed an important contribution, along with investment in the Police Service, towards the delivery of an 18 per cent. reduction in crime between 2002-03 and 2007-08 as measured by the British Crime Survey. Over the same period, this expenditure also helped to secure a 24 per cent. reduction in crime within the 40 high crime areas. A detailed breakdown of expenditure by activity could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Demonstrations: Injuries

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers were injured in the course of policing public protests in the last 12 months. [273317]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office does not hold this information.

Google: Data Protection

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will assess the effects on privacy of Google's Latitude tracking system; and if she will make a statement. [265562]

Mr. McFadden: I have been asked to reply.

The Privacy and Electronic Communications Regulations 2003 (PECR) apply to location based services including Google Latitude. Regulation 14 requires that traffic data can be processed only for a value added service with the user or subscriber's consent. Possible breaches of privacy should initially be reported to the service provider and failing this to the Information Commissioner's Office (ICO). The ICO can investigate as they have responsibility for enforcement of the regulations.

Immigration

Mr. Dhanda: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much and what proportion of its section 17 budget Gloucestershire county council has spent in relation to the case with Home Office reference G1082747; and if she will make a statement. [274728]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 12 May 2009]: The Home Office does not hold the information requested.

Independent Police Complaints Commission: Public Appointments

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) when the Chairman of the Independent Police Complaints Commission was appointed, and by whom; what process was followed in the appointment; and what qualifications the Chairman has; [274022]

(2) when each serving commissioner of the Independent Police Complaints Commission was appointed, and by whom; what process was followed in each appointment; and what qualifications each has. [274023]

Mr. Coaker: The chair was originally appointed on 1 February 2003 and was reappointed for a term of five years on 1 February 2008. This is a Crown appointment. He was appointed following a selection process in accordance with the Office of the Commissioner for Public Appointments (OCPA) code of practice. The chair of the IPCC must never have served as a police officer nor have worked for any of the organisations over which the IPCC has jurisdiction. Further information on the chairman's background can be found on the IPCC website at:

www.ipcc.gov.uk

On first appointment, all commissioners underwent an external selection process, including assessment and interview, in accordance with the OCPA code of practice. Those commissioners re-appointed last year were appointed in line with the OCPA code of practice.

Commissioners come from a wide range of backgrounds and by law they must never have served as a police officer nor have worked for any of the organisations over which the IPCC has jurisdiction. Further information on the individual backgrounds of current commissioners can be found on the IPCC website at:

www.ipcc.gov.uk

Please see table:

Commissioner	First appointed	Re-appointed
Deborah Glass (deputy chair)	1 April 2004	1 September 2008
Len Jackson (deputy chair)	1 October 2003	1 October 2008
Tom Davies	1 October 2003	1 October 2008
Rebecca Marsh	15 September 2003	15 September 2008
Amerdeep Somal	1 September 2003	1 September 2008
Nicholas Long	1 September 2003	1 September 2008
Mike Franklin	1 September 2003	1 September 2008
Naseem Malik	1 October 2003	1 October 2008
Gary Garland	1 October 2003	1 October 2008
Rachel Cerfontyne	1 May 2009	—

Two non-executive commissioners are due to be appointed shortly, following open competition in accordance with the OCPA code of practice.

Internet: Monitoring

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent estimate she has made of the cost of implementing the Mastering the Internet Project; and if she will make a statement. [274069]

Gillian Merron: I have been asked to reply.

Government Communications Headquarters (GCHQ) continues to invest to maintain its capabilities in the face of growth in internet-based communications. The use of internet technologies and skills are one of the greatest challenges GCHQ has to master in order to deliver intelligence in accordance with its statutory purposes set out in the Intelligence Services Act 1994 (section 3). In the interests of national security detailed figures on Security and Intelligence Agency expenditure are not made public, but are subject to parliamentary scrutiny through the Intelligence and Security Committee (ISC). The ISC's annual report for 2007-08 was published in March 2009.

Olympic Games 2012: Security

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what budget has been allocated for security technology for the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games; and whether this allocation is drawn from the Olympic security budget; [273215]

(2) which companies will provide security technology for the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games; [273250]

(3) whether any technological security systems are being created for the purpose of security for the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. [273252]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office is committed to the delivery of a safe and secure 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. Work is continuing to finalise the plans for the provision for policing and wider security within the overall funding envelope of £600 million. This funding is separate from the ODA budget for security and the provision that LOCOG has set aside for in-venue security.

Our strategy for 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games is to ensure that security technology is proven, reliable and effective. This means that we do not currently envisage developing new technology specifically for the Games. Any decisions regarding the use of technology will need to take account of the operational needs of the police and other security agencies; affordability within the total funding envelope; and the need to secure value for money. These factors will inform decision-making regarding the appointment of security technology companies.

Police Stations: Access

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will commission an opinion poll in each major conurbation on the attitudes to the provision of public access to police stations. [275669]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 14 May 2009]: The management of the police estate, the allocation of resources and local surveys and or public consultations are matters for each police authority and chief officer, who are responsible for assessing local needs to determine the demand for access to police stations.

Police: Bureaucracy

Mr. Mark Field: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information her Department holds on the proportion of the working time of (a) all police forces in England and (b) Avon and Somerset Constabulary which was spent on (i) different types of non-frontline duties, (ii) frontline duties spent on incident-related paperwork and (iii) frontline duties not spent on incident-related paperwork in each year since 1997. [274404]

Mr. Coaker: The figures for England and Wales are given in the table. Figures for individual forces should be requested from the force in question.

Table 1: Front-line policing, incident-related paperwork, and other activities, by year, for England and Wales[1]

	Front-line policing (FLP)	All other activities	Incident-related paperwork	Percentage FLP excluding incident-related paperwork
2003-04	63.6	36.4	10.3	53.3
2004-05	62.3	37.7	9.9	52.4
2005-06	63.6	36.4	10.8	52.8
2006-07	64.2	35.8	11.4	52.8
2007-08	64.9	35.1	12.4	52.5

[1] Data for Staffordshire are not available for 2007-08 and these figures therefore exclude Staffordshire.

Police: Complaints

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions she has had with the Independent Police Complaints Commission on the disclosure of information between a police force and a complainant since January 2008; and if she will make a statement. [273871]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Secretary has not had any such discussions with the IPCC.

The Police Reform Act 2002 sets out the responsibilities of the IPCC and Chief Officers in keeping complainants informed and in the disclosure of information.

The Home Office has no role in the disclosure of information between a police force and a complainant.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many serving police officers at each rank in each police force have received words of advice by a senior officer following an investigation by the Independent Police Complaints Commission in each year since 2004; [273880]

(2) what definition of words of advice issued in a disciplinary context her Department uses; what representations on the definition she has received since June 2007; and if she will make a statement. [273881]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office does not hold a central record of outcomes of disciplinary action. This is a matter for the Chief Officer of each force.

The phrase "words of advice" is not defined in the current disciplinary regulations (Police (Conduct) Regulations 2008), nor was it used in the preceding regulations: the Police (Conduct) Regulations 2004.

Under the previous disciplinary arrangements, the term 'words of advice' was used in the Home Office Guidance on 'Unsatisfactory Performance, Complaints and Misconduct Procedures' to refer to a managerial method for dealing with allegations of misconduct.

Under the current regulations (the Police (Conduct) Regulations 2008) one possible outcome from a formal disciplinary meeting is management advice. Management advice is defined in the regulations to mean "management action imposed following misconduct proceedings or an appeal meeting".

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what research her Department (a) has undertaken, (b) plans to undertake and (c) has evaluated on the number of complaints that have been referred to the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) in each police force in England since the IPCC was established; [274012]

(2) what research her Department (a) has undertaken, (b) plans to undertake and (c) has evaluated on the complaints made to the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) that have been upheld since the establishment of the IPCC; and if she will make a statement; [274013]

(3) what research her Department (a) has undertaken, (b) plans to undertake and (c) has evaluated on the number of complaints that have been made against police officers in (i) Southend and (ii) Essex in each year since 1997; and what action was taken against each officer concerned when complaints were upheld. [274014]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office has not carried out any research into the number of complaints nationally, by force area, or more locally made against police officers, and has no plans to do so. Responsibility for the guardianship of the police complaints system is the statutory responsibility of the IPCC.

As part of that role, the IPCC analyses and publishes statistics detailing the number and type of complaints made by members of the public and also their outcomes. These reports can be accessed via the IPCC website on www.ipcc.gov.uk. In addition, the IPCC regularly collates and disseminates best practice through its "Learning the Lessons" bulletins, which are also published on its website.

In its 15th report—Independent Police Complaints Commission—published on 31 March 2009, the Public Accounts Committee (PAC) recommended that the Home Office should clarify who is responsible for monitoring the implementation of IPCC recommendations. Discussions are already underway between the IPCC, HM Inspectorate of Constabulary (HMIC) and police authorities on introducing an appropriate system.

Police: Essex

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what the police grant funding for Essex Police Authority was in 2008-09; how much is proposed for 2009-10; and if she will make a statement; [275602]

(2) how much funding was allocated per head of population to Essex Police Authority in 2008-09; how much is planned for 2009-10; and if she will make a statement. [275601]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is set out in the table.

The Government do not distribute grant to police authorities purely on the basis of population. The police funding formula uses a range of data relating to demographic and social characteristics to reflect the relative needs of each authority. Grant allocations also take into account the relative tax base of each authority. Grant allocations are stabilised by damping to limit year-on-year variations.

Essex police authority total grant funding 2008-09 and 2009-10

	Total grant funding[1,2] (£ million)	Resident population (million)
2008-09	197.1	1.69
2009-10	202.2	1.70

[1] Total grant funding comprises: General Grant (Home Office Police Grant and Communities and Local Government Revenue Support Grant and National Non-Domestic Rates) and Specific Grants include—Crime Fighting Fund, Neighbourhood Policing Fund/Community Support Officers, Basic Command Unit Fund and Special Formula Grant (Rural Policing Fund, Special Priority Payments, Forensic (DNA) Grant, London/SE Allowance and Integrated Police Learning and Development Programme) and Capital Provision.

[2] Total Grant funding excludes the following for comparison purposes: Dedicated Security Grant, Pensions Deficit Grant and some minor grant flows.

Sources:

1. Grants: Home Office
2. Population: Office of National Statistics, mid year population estimates and projections as used in the police funding formula

Police: Telephone Services

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make it her policy to limit the use by police forces of 0845 non-emergency telephone numbers. [273836]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 8 May 2009]: It is a matter for individual police forces what number they use for non-emergency telephone contact and the Home Office has no plans to limit the use of 0845 numbers operated by police forces.

Terrorism

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent estimate she has made of the cost of the revised Contest strategy; and if she will make a statement. [275494]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 14 May 2009]: "The United Kingdom's Strategy for Countering International Terrorism" set out details of Government spending on counter terrorism and intelligence. It is forecast to rise from £2.5 billion in 2008-09 to £3.5 billion in 2010-11. This budget is wider than just expenditure on the Government's counter-terrorism strategy, CONTEST.

Breaking down this budget by specific counter-terrorism and intelligence activities, beyond what is published already, would reveal our capabilities and details of the Security and Intelligence Agencies spending. It has been the policy of successive Governments not to reveal these details.

Transport: Personal records

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) when she expects to announce proposals on the collection of advance passenger data on domestic air and sea journeys; [275292]

(2) when she plans to announce further details of her Department's proposal to give the police powers to collect advance passenger data on domestic air and sea journeys. [275502]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 14 May 2009]: A formal public consultation will take place prior to the secondary legislation necessary to implement the powers. It is intended that this will focus on crossings between Great Britain and Northern Ireland only. A decision to launch this consultation has not yet been made.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Members: Allowances

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what the main categories are of personal data selected for redaction from hon. Members' claim forms and receipts prior to publication. [275837]

Nick Harvey: The main categories of data selected for redaction were listed in the notes sent to all Members on 1 April. They are:

Any residential address of a Member of either House of Parliament

Travel arrangements of a Member where the arrangements are regular in nature

The identity of any person who delivers or has delivered goods, or provides or has provided services, to a Member at any residence of the Member (this does not apply to Members' offices or to head office addresses of large suppliers)

Expenditure by a Member on security arrangements

All names of hotels/guest houses used

Correspondence or advice letters to or from Department of Resources/DFA

All manuscript additions to forms, receipts etc where these have been made by HoC staff

Dates and times on till receipts where the name of the supplier is included

Bank and credit card statements (but mortgage or rental agreements or statements will be published to the following extent: (a) names of mortgagee/landlord/chargee (b) amount of interest and rent and (c) information contained on statements of account such as value of mortgage)

Itemised parts of telephone bills listing calls to individual numbers

Personal items on till receipts and invoices for which no claim has been made

Misfiled pages relating to another Member

Names and addresses and other details of members of staff on 'C3' forms (claims for staff expenses)

Other information that is not central to the purpose of the claim or which could aid identity fraud including:

personal telephone numbers and other contact details

barcodes

cost centres and departmental identification numbers personal data of third parties (excluding the name of mortgagees, chargees or landlords)

bank/Giro details

photocopies of cheques account, invoice, delivery, order, NI or reference numbers signatures

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Students: Loans

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what recent estimate he has made of the number of graduates with outstanding tuition fee loans who are resident overseas; and what recent estimate he has made of the number of such graduates who are repaying those loans. [274358]

Mr. Lammy: Student loans for tuition fees have been available since 2006/07. The following table includes English domiciled students and European students who studied at English higher education institutions. It shows the number of borrowers with outstanding tuition fee loans who were known to be resident overseas as at 31 March 2008.

Repayment status at 31 March 2008	Number of borrowers
Under earnings threshold	1,070
Repaying as scheduled	170
Full repayment in progress	10
PGCE Moratorium On Income Contingent Repayment (ICR) Part of Debt	-
Fully repaid after entering repayment	-
Total	1,250

'-' denotes negligible.

Note:

Repayment Status "PGCE Moratorium On ICR Part Of Debt" describes those Income Contingent (IC) borrowers who also have a mortgage style loan and have opted to repay this loan account first before commencing repaying their IC loan balance.

Following usual statistical practice, figures have been rounded to the nearest 10. It is not currently possible to disclose information for the period after 31st March 2008. This is because, following National Statistics protocol, the statistics are under embargo until the publication of the Student Loans Statistical First Release due in summer 2009.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan: International Assistance

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department has contributed to the United Nations Development Programme in Afghanistan. [274709]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) spent £16 million of its bilateral programme through the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) in Afghanistan last year (2008-09).

Africa: Overseas Aid

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what progress his Department is making towards meeting the Millennium Development Goals in Africa; [275007]

(2) what progress the Government is making towards meeting the Millennium Development Goal on (a) reducing child mortality, (b) improving national health, (c) poverty reduction and hunger and (d) achieving universal primary education. [275008]

Mr. Michael Foster: The UN conducts the official assessment of progress towards the millennium development goals (MDGs). Their latest report relating to 2008

http://www.dfid.gov.uk/Documents/publications/mdg-factsheets/mdg-report-2008.pdf found that the global collective effort is yielding results and that progress is being made globally towards achieving many of the MDGs even in some of the more challenging regions. A number of targets are expected to be reached by their target dates in 2015.

The Department for International Development (DFID) also conducts an annual assessment of progress towards key MDG targets at a country level based on international data. The latest assessment was published in its 2008 autumn performance report (copies of which are also in the parliamentary Library):

http://www.dfid.gov.uk/Documents/publications/sust-perf-report-08.pdf

Departmental Public Consultation

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the cost was of producing the short film shown at his Department's White Paper consultation event in London on 5 May 2009; on how many future occasions the film will be shown in public; and if he will make a statement. [274383]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The short film "Our Interdependent World" is one of three films originally commissioned for and shown at the DFID conference, "Eliminating World Poverty: Building our Common Future" on 9 and 10 March 2009. The cost of the three films was £38,545. These films are being shown at a series of 12 regional consultation events on DFID's forthcoming White Paper hosted by DFID Ministers, including the London event on 5 May. They are also being shown at other consultation events and meetings on the White Paper, and are available to view on DFID's website. So far, over 1,700 people have seen "Our Interdependent World".

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the cost was to his Department of (a) venue hire, (b) refreshments and (c) other expenditure in relation to the White Paper public consultation event held in London on 5 May 2009; and if he will make a statement. [274384]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The venue cost for the London consultation event was £4,350. Refreshments, including Fairtrade tea and coffee, amounted to £4,597.50. The total cost, including the above and also technical and production management, facilitation and delegate management amounted to £23,142 excluding VAT. The Central Office of Information events team researched over 30 central London venues which were potentially suitable, and the chosen venue was the cheapest available.

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what estimate he has made of the total cost to his Department of the public consultation process for his Department's forthcoming White Paper; and if he will make a statement. [274385]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The estimated cost to the Department for International Development (DFID) of the public consultation process for the forthcoming White Paper on International Development is £331,463. This has covered: 12 UK regional consultation events hosted by Ministers; six regional consultations hosted by DFID offices in Kenya and Somalia, Jamaica, India, Southern Africa, China and Bangladesh; and over 50 other consultation meetings in the UK with specific groups of stakeholders. It also includes costs related to the online public consultation on the DFID website. The consultation has so far reached a wide range of individuals and organisations in the UK and around the world.

Departmental Visits Abroad

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what mechanisms have been in place for the payment of expenses to Ministers and officials in his Department at regional meetings of the Inter-American Development Bank and the Asian Development Bank in the last 10 years; [274381]

(2) if he will place in the Library a copy of the guidance issued by his Department to Ministers and officials on the acceptance of expenses payments at the meetings of multilateral development banks. [274382]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Travel to multilateral development banks, including the Inter-American Development Bank and Asian Development Bank, is considered to be the same as any international travel undertaken by Ministers and officials of the Department for International Development's (DFID) business. DFID arranges and meets the costs of this travel and other expenses, which are accounted for against receipts.

It is not DFID policy for Ministers or officials to claim expenses from the multilateral development banks. Accommodation is, however, sometimes provided by the host bank for their annual meetings.

Developing Countries: Drugs

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what measures his Department is taking to ensure efficient and timely procurement of antiretroviral drugs through the Global Fund and other mechanisms. [275005]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) is aware that some countries supported by the Global Fund are at risk from health facility stores temporarily running out of essential antiretroviral drugs (stock-outs). DFID officials have spoken to the fund's secretariat about this, including recently at the Global Fund's Executive Board (5-6 May 2009). Formally, the UK supported a resolution made at the board meeting which obliges the fund's secretariat to address this issue urgently, to report on whether its existing procedures are adequate, and to propose solutions which would minimise the risks of disruptions to treatment both in the short term and on an ongoing basis. In developing countries such as Zimbabwe, DFID is also assisting, where possible, in the provision of drugs while problems in Global Fund supported programmes are being addressed.

Developing Countries: Economic Situation

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to assist developing countries to mitigate the effects on them of the economic downturn. [275070]

Mr. Michael Foster: The UK Government have taken various steps through different channels to mitigate the adverse effects of the economic crisis on developing countries. These include:

Taking the appropriate steps to relieve growth at home which will reinvigorate trade and financial flows to developing countries;

Acting through multilateral agencies such as the World Bank and IMF to provide timely and effective assistance; and Providing support directly through our bilateral programmes.

Through its leadership, the UK was instrumental in the announcements made at the London Summit to increase the resources of the IMF including the extension of special drawing rights (SDRs) which will provide vital assistance to developing countries facing short-term balance-of-payments problems. In total, an additional $50 billion was made available to low income countries (LICs).

In March this year, DFID pledged £200 million towards the rapid social response fund to be administrated by the World Bank providing immediate help to meet the daily needs of the poorest people in the poorest countries in the economic downturn.

DFID continues to work closely with our development partners and international financial institutions to ensure that developing countries are provided with timely and effective assistance—e.g. capital increases for the Asian Development Bank; reforms to the exogenous shock facility (ESF).

DFID will be spending more on its bilateral programmes than ever before—2009-10 budget is £2.6 billion. We remain committed to achieving the target of 0.7 per cent. of gross national income (GNI) devoted to official development assistance (ODA) by 2013.

Country programmes are designed to be flexible to respond to changing needs. Where appropriate, existing scheduled country programme spend has been adjusted accordingly.

Overseas Aid

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he made of the implications for his Department's overseas development projects of the outcome of the spring meetings of the World Bank; and if he will make a statement. [275009]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: There are no direct implications for the Department of International Development's (DFID) bilateral programmes from the outcome of the World Bank spring meetings.

The spring meetings helped to underline support for optimal use of the Bank's balance sheet, with lending of up to $100 billion over three years. The UK, along with other shareholders, welcomed Bank initiatives to protect the poorest, reinvigorate trade finance, maintain investment in infrastructure and support the financial sector. We expect these initiatives to complement DFID's own programmes and projects in the countries in which we work together.

Palestinians: Bomb Disposal

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what support his Department is giving to the disposal of unexploded munitions in Gaza. [274992]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) has provided funding of £641,000 directly to Mines Action Group and the UN Mines Action Service for the assessment and clearance of unexploded ordnance (UXO). UXO has been cleared from all UN Relief and Works Agency schools, as well as other public areas such as market places. This has allowed 220,00 children to resume their education, improved security for the civilian population and is allowing early recovery efforts, such as the removal of rubble and for families to return home, to proceed.

Mine clearing organisations are still awaiting clearance from Israel for critical safety equipment and the explosives needed to destroy UXO already cleared to be allowed into Gaza. Agreement on a safe place to destroy the UXO inside Gaza is also required. The UK Government continue to urge Israel to allow the necessary equipment to enter Gaza and to agree to a disposal site.

Palestinians: Overseas Aid

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what support the Government are providing to charities and other non-governmental organisations working with the population of Gaza. [275000]

Mr. Michael Foster: Information on funding provided by the UK Government to non-governmental organisations operating in Gaza is available in the table 'DFID UK Funding to 2009 Gaza'. This is on the DFID web-site:

www.dfid.gov.uk

Palestinians: Trauma

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to support children in Gaza affected by trauma following shelling. [274993]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) is funding several organisations which are providing psychosocial support to traumatised children and their families. Mercy Corps is providing support to conflict affected children, youth and their families through family centres; Islamic Relief have helped 1200 children through group activities such as outings and self expression in safe environments; and the UN Relief and Works Agency have 164 counsellors in their schools to help traumatised children.

JUSTICE

Bribery: Convictions

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people were convicted of offences relating to bribery in each of the last 10 calendar years. [275878]

Maria Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 28 April 2009, Official Report, columns 1253-54W.

Housing: Sales

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many domestic property transactions in each local authority area in the South West were recorded by the Land Registry in the first quarter of 2009. [275844]

Mr. Wills: The number of residential properties sold in each local authority area in the south west in the first quarter of 2009 is shown in the following table.

Land Registry

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many titles in England and Wales were stored on HM Land Registry records on the latest date for which figures are available. [275153]

Mr. Wills: On 8 May 2009 there were 22,185,077 registered titles from England and Wales stored on the Land Registry database.

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent estimate he has made of the number of land registration records which contain inaccuracies. [275158]

Mr. Wills: Although there is no current estimate of records that contain inaccuracies, Land Registry runs automated systems that check against their records to identify potential inaccuracies that are then investigated on a daily basis. Land Registry has reported an accuracy rate of 98.91 per cent. in respect of its output for the year ending 31 March 2009 against a KPI of 98.5 per cent. This level of accuracy was achieved across more than four million applications directly affecting the entries on the Register of Title.

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the procedure is for the alteration of a record held by the Land Registry. [275163]

Mr. Wills: Applications to alter the register of title are made using the forms and procedures prescribed by the land registration legislation. Applications must be accompanied by the appropriate documents and evidence needed to justify the alteration. Land Registry publishes a range of public and practice guides that provide guidance about the different types of application that can be made.

Land Registry requires confirmation of identity for certain types of application as detailed in Land Registry "Practice Guide 67—Evidence of Identity".

All applications are checked by Land Registry's staff in accordance with centrally prescribed practice guidance. If an application is not in order Land Registry may reject it on receipt or may send a written requisition for the defect to be put right. The application may be cancelled if the requisition is not complied with by a specified date.

In some cases notice of an application is sent to interested parties and time is allowed for them to agree or object to the application. Any objection which is not groundless and cannot be resolved by agreement is referred for hearing by the adjudicator to HM Land Registry and the application cannot then be completed until the dispute has been resolved.

If the application is in order, or when all requisitions and objections have been dealt with, the application is approved and the register is altered. The alteration takes effect from the time when Land Registry received the application.

The Courts and the registrar also have power to alter the register without an application being made in the circumstances described in Schedule 4 to the Land Registration Act 2002, for example to correct a mistake or to bring the register up to date.

Land Registry: Data Protection

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what electronic security risk assessment was carried out prior to the establishment of the Land Register Online website. [275165]

Mr. Wills: The Land Register Online facility was conceived as a facility to contribute substantially towards the Government's initiative to provide easier access for the citizen to government held data. As a "view only" service the integrity of the information held is not at risk through the service. The information made available through the service is available through other channels.

A security assessment was undertaken in July 2002 by IBM Global Services. The agreed design was implemented by Land Registry with significant assistance from both HP/Compaq and IBM.

The solution's implementation was validated from a security design stance through the engagement of Echelon who completed their testing 6 May 2003. The scope of the penetration test was to determine if Land Registry's website could be breached.

Echelon concluded that the "website's ability to limit attack is restrictive enough to be considered secure."

Land Registry: Electronic Funds Transfer

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what risk assessment has been undertaken in respect of the Land Registry's proposed electronic funds transfer service; and what anti-fraud measures will be in place under this service; [275166]

(2) when the Land Registry plans to commence its electronic funds transfer service. [275167]

Mr. Wills: Land Registry is not pursuing the development of the electronic funds transfer service.

Land Registry: Electronic Government

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans he has for the future provision of electronic services by HM Land Registry. [275160]

Mr. Wills: The Land Registry is currently consolidating existing e-services onto a new technical platform. Within the current financial year the Land Registry expects to have moved 12,000 professional customers to this new platform, which will support the recent delivery of new electronic services, such as mortgages and redemptions. Welsh language versions of all these services will be made available shortly.

A new Business Gateway service to allow direct connection between customer business software and Land Registry systems without the need to re-key data will be launched as a pilot in June 2009.

Land Registry has recently launched a service developed jointly with the Legal Services Commission for the registration of statutory charges.

The next stage is to introduce a new service allowing electronic transfers of registered land, including the capability to lodge Stamp Duty Land Tax Returns to HMRC. The Land Registry anticipates that this service will be piloted in 2011. Once live, it will be possible for professional customers to apply for the electronic registration of a redemption, transfer and mortgage, so supporting the residential house buying process.

All services will be designed to comply with the appropriate accessibility standards.

To protect the integrity of the Land Register, access to these registration services is made available only to customers who have successfully proved their business and personal identity in accordance with the relevant security checks.

Land Registry: Fraud

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what mechanisms to prevent fraud are used by HM Land Registry. [275154]

Mr. Wills: Land Registry is committed to fighting registration fraud and has implemented a wide ranging anti-fraud strategy. Some aspects of the strategy must remain confidential but measures already implemented include:

publication of Land Registry Public Guide 17—How to safeguard against property fraud and Public Guide 02—Keeping your address for service up to date, which advise property owners to record current contact addresses with Land Registry. Up to three addresses for service are allowed on the register, one of which may be an email address; enhanced ID requirements, as detailed in Land Registry Practice Guide 67—Evidence of identity; anti-fraud training for all Land Registry caseworkers; and the introduction of IT systems to assist in identifying suspect cases.

The strategy is constantly kept under review and revised as appropriate. Land Registry also maintains contact with relevant national bodies, including the National Fraud Authority.

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what training on detecting fraudulent activity is provided to Land Registry employees. [275164]

Mr. Wills: All Land Registry staff receive face-to-face training sessions on the importance of combating fraud and their part in this, and there are regular updates to all staff as internal processes and policies are reviewed and changed. The last two of these were in October 2008 and January 2009. In each Land Registry office there are senior staff who have had further training on fraud issues and they are there to support casework staff on high risk applications.

Land Registry's in-house electronic processing systems identify potential fraudulent applications automatically and all casework staff have been trained on the actions they must take in such circumstances. Land Registry's technical manuals contain clear instructions as to the processes staff must follow on every application received in order to prevent fraudulent registration.

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what mechanisms are in place to inform (a) an individual owning an interest in property and (b) legal representatives of an individual owning an interest in property to a suspected incident of property fraud in respect of that interest. [275170]

Mr. Wills: Land Registry informs owners of applications to alter their register where either the land registration legislation requires it or Land Registry thinks it prudent to do so. Notification is most often sent in cases where the application is made by someone who is not a professional conveyancer.

The notice is sent to the owner's address for service as recorded in the register. All owners are required to provide at least one such address and are entitled to enter up to three. It is important that they keep their addresses up to date to ensure they receive such a notice.

Land Registry will usually not know who the owner's legal representatives are at the time notice is to be sent and so does not generally send the notice to them. For example, it cannot be assumed that the solicitor who acted on a transfer to the owner some years ago is still their representative now. However, if an owner gives their legal representatives' address as one of the owner's addresses for service, Land Registry will send any notification to that address.

Prosecutions: Council Tax

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many successful prosecutions there have been in England and Wales for non-payment of council tax in each year since 1999, broken down by local authority. [275621]

Maria Eagle: Persons proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for offences under Section 56 of the Council Tax (Administration & Enforcement) Regulations 1992 cannot be separately identified on the Ministry of Justice Court proceedings database as they form part of a miscellaneous group which cannot be analysed.

PRIME MINISTER

Forfeiture Committee

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Prime Minister when the Forfeiture Committee next plans to meet. [275836]

The Prime Minister: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave him on 12 February 2009, Official Report, column 2136W.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Prime Minister when he plans to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire dated 27 February 2009, on tax evasion. [275843]

The Prime Minister: A reply has been sent to the hon. Member.

SCOTLAND

Departmental Buildings

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department spent on building maintenance in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274563]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office does not separately identify the costs of building maintenance from the routine repair, maintenance and refurbishment of existing facilities. Over the period of the last five years, the Office has shared its accommodation with a number of other Government Departments. The following figures show the gross total for repairs and maintenance of Scotland Office buildings, but does not include the contribution by the departments towards their share of the costs.

	Cost (£)
2003-04	179,853
2004-05	374,129
2005-06	331,803
2006-07	355,071
2007-08	[1] 1,011,254

[1] Under the terms of the building leases the Office is required to maintain the buildings to an acceptable standard of decoration and repair, which in 2007-08 included roof and exterior repairs to Dover House in London.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department has spent on (a) conference services and (b) banqueting services in each of the last five years. [274498]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office do not separately record the cost of conference and banqueting services. All expenditure is incurred in accordance with the principles of Managing Public Money and the Treasury handbook on Regularity and Propriety.

TRANSPORT

Aviation: EU Countries

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) scheduled and (b) charter flights there were from British airports to (i) Belgium, (ii) Finland and (iii) Greece in each of the last five years. [275830]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The following tables show the number of scheduled and charter flights departing from British airports to Belgium, Finland and Greece in each of the last five years.

Bus Services: Concessions

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions he has had with representatives of West Lancashire district council on (a) funding for, (b) pool arrangements for and (c) surplus from the national concessionary bus fares scheme. [275845]

Paul Clark: Department for Transport Ministers have not had any recent discussions with representatives of West Lancashire district council. However, Ministers have had discussions with representatives of other councils within the Lancashire region.

Departmental officials have met with representatives of the Lancashire Concessionary Travel Scheme, of which West Lancashire is a member. This group comprises the districts and unitary authorities of Lancashire plus the county council. These discussions focused on the concerns that some local authorities in Lancashire have regarding the allocation of concessionary travel special grant funding.

I am aware that authorities within the Lancashire County Scheme already choose to pool a proportion of their funding. This year West Lancashire will receive £252,714 of special grant funding to meet the cost of the new England-wide concession. This represents an increase of 23 per cent. on the authority's spend on concessionary travel in 2007-08.

As funding for concessionary travel is not ring-fenced, local authorities are free to spend the money on any services, provided they meet their statutory obligations. This is consistent with wider policy on local government funding of giving authorities greater freedom and flexibility.

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what funding his Department has provided for West Lancashire district council in respect of the national concessionary bus fares scheme in each year since the scheme was introduced. [275846]

Paul Clark: Before 1 April 2008, funding for the statutory minimum bus concession was provided exclusively through the Formula Grant system, which is administered by the Department for Communities and Local Government (CLG). The Department for Transport therefore provided no separate funding to West Lancashire district council for concessionary bus travel from 2001, when the statutory minimum was first introduced, until 2008.

The Department did however provide West Lancashire with £50,404 in 2007-08 for the cost of producing and issuing the new England-wide bus passes to all those eligible.

In 2008-09 West Lancashire district council received additional special grant funding from the Department for Transport of £246,891 to meet the additional cost of the new, England-wide concession. This represents an increase of 22 per cent. on the authority's spend on concessionary travel in 2007-08. In 2009-10 West Lancashire district council will receive special grant funding of £252,714.

Road Traffic

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the effects of traffic congestion on the environment. [275530]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport has commissioned research into assessing the cost of transport's impact on the natural landscape. The results of phases 1 and 2 of the study are reported on the Department's website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/economics/rdg/landscape/

In addition the Highways Agency is developing a methodology to account for the changes to the quantity of vehicle emissions that affect air quality that can result from major roads schemes.

Also, the Department is collaborating with DEFRA to manage research that DEFRA has commissioned to investigate the health impacts of environmental noise. Although the remit of the study is not confined to transport, it is recognised that transport is a major source of noise exposure to those who live or work near roads.

Although not recent, from 1998 to 2004 the Department ran a research programme—TRAffic Management and Air Quality research (TRAMAQ)—looking at the impact of traffic management schemes on air quality. Details of this can be found on the Department's website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/roads/network/research/tmairqualityresearch/trafficmanagementandairquali3927

There is also recently commissioned related research that is looking at the impacts, including environmental ones, of smarter choices, cycling initiatives, and sustainable travel measures generally.

TREASURY

Annuities

Jo Swinson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what recent assessment he has made of the merits of removing the requirement for pensioners to buy annuities at the age of 75 years; [275672]

(2) with reference to the answer by the Leader of the House, 15 October 2008, Official Report, column 791, on pensions, what the outcome has been of discussions between his Department and the Department for Work and Pensions on the requirement on pensioners to annuitise pensions at the age of 75 years. [275627]

Ian Pearson: There is no requirement to annuitise at any age. Rather there is a requirement that an income be taken from pension savings by age 75.

The Government have considered this requirement to secure an income from a pension fund at age 75 in light of recent conditions in financial markets but has no plans to change it. 95 per cent. of people take an income from their pension savings by the age of 70.

The current rules already allow a considerable degree of flexibility. A pension income can currently commence at any time between the ages of 50 and 75, and can be taken from a pension fund without annuitising, through income drawdown. Even at 75, it is not compulsory to annuitise; alternatively secured pensions are available for those for whom they are suitable and who do not wish to buy an annuity.

Autism

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what guests were invited to the autism reception held at 11 Downing Street on 5 May 2009. [274673]

Angela Eagle: Invitations were issued by "Autism Speaks"—who hosted the reception—and not by HM Treasury.

Bank of England Act 1998

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the operation of the Bank of England Act 1998; what recent representations he has received about this Act; and what (a) statutory instruments, (b) departmental circulars and (c) other documents he (i) has issued since October 2008 and (ii) plans to issue in the next 12 months consequent on the provisions of the Act. [274018]

Ian Pearson: The Treasury reviews regularly the legislative framework for which it is responsible. It receives representations from a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such representations.

The Banking Act 2009, which received Royal Assent on 12 February this year, includes provisions to amend the Bank of England Act 1998 and enables secondary legislation in relation to the role of the Bank. All such legislation is available from the Office of Public Sector Information:

www.opsi.gov.uk

Information published by the Treasury in relation to Part II of the Bank of England Act 1998 (Monetary Policy) can be found on its website, as can Treasury press releases relating to Bank of England appointments made under the Act:

www.hm-treasury.gsi.gov.uk

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many officials in his Department at each pay band have responsibility for the (a) formulation and (b) implementation of policy on the Bank of England Act 1998; what other posts in his Department each such official has held; and if he will make a statement. [274019]

Ian Pearson: The Treasury has a broad range of policy interests related to the Bank of England Act 1998, and flexes the related resources as required. Overall, at 1 April 2008, the Treasury Group had 1,451 full-time equivalent (FTE) staff. Further information regarding Treasury staffing can be found in its latest annual report available at www.hm-treasury.gsi.gov.uk.

Child Tax Credit: Underpayments

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the amount of child tax allowance which was underpaid to married men in 2008-09; and if he will make a statement. [275899]

Ian Pearson: The information requested is not available as HM Revenue and Customs do not hold information on marital status.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer up to what date reviews of an individual's child tax allowance could be requested; and if he will make a statement. [275900]

Ian Pearson: Information concerning tax credits customers' appeal rights can be found in the HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) leaflet WTC/AP "How to appeal against a tax credits decision or award" which is available on the internet at:

www.hmrc.gov.uk/leaflets/wtc_ap.pdf

HMRC is statutorily allowed to examine the correctness of a tax credits claim after it has been finalised. Those powers include time limits for opening an enquiry although there are certain circumstances in which it will still be possible to reconsider a claim for any year after those time limits have expired. Further information can be found in the HMRC Claimant Compliance Manual published on the internet at:

www.hmrc.gov.uk/manuals/ccmmanual/Index.htm

Debts

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the effect on the economy of the level of personal debt; and if he will make a statement. [274620]

Ian Pearson: HM Treasury continually monitors the levels of both household liabilities and assets, and the implications of these for the wider economy are examined as part of the pre-Budget report and Budget forecasting process.

Departmental Absenteeism

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff of his Department were recorded absent for non-medical reasons on (a) 2 February 2009 and (b) 3 February 2009; what estimate he has made of the (i) cost to his Department and (ii) number of working hours lost due to such absence; and what guidance his Department issued to staff in respect of absence on these days. [260470]

Angela Eagle: Treasury guidance ensures that staff attendance and absence are managed locally by line managers with their staff. Flexible working arrangements ensure that many staff have the capacity to work from home when transport or other disruptions occur.

Details of the number or cost of staff taking leave or applying flexible working arrangements on any particular day could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Contracts

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer which services his Department has outsourced in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274442]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury has not outsourced any services within the past five years.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many officials in (a) his Department and (b) HM Revenue and Customs are suspended; how many are suspended on full pay; for how long each has been suspended; and what the reasons are for each such suspension. [270525]

Angela Eagle: Both the Treasury and HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) have well-established processes for dealing with staff disciplinary investigations, and both Departments work from the presumption that the conduct of an investigation, and any suspension from duty applied, does not imply that any wrongdoing or disciplinary conduct has taken place. Both have a policy to maintain staff on full pay while suspended unless there are compelling reasons to suspend without pay.

As a smaller Department, it is not the Treasury's practice to comment on investigations, including whether or not a suspension has been applied, as to do so might compromise the outcome of current or future investigations.

Currently 22 HMRC staff are suspended, eight of those have been suspended for up to three months, three for three to six months, seven for seven to 12 months, two for 17 months, one for 25 months and one for 26 months. These suspensions have been applied because staff are under police investigation for matters in their private lives, because they are under criminal investigation by HMRC's internal investigators, or because they are under investigation for potentially serious disciplinary offences.

Both Departments keep their disciplinary policies under review.

Imports: Drugs

Harry Cohen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) has taken in respect of the import of pharmaceutical products ordered over the internet which are deemed dangerous to public health; how many prosecutions have been bought in respect of illicit imports in the last five years; and what discussions HMRC has had with overseas administrations on the issue. [272626]

Dawn Primarolo: I have been asked to reply.

In the United Kingdom, strict legal controls apply to the retail sale and supply of medicines and these controls apply equally to medicines sold via the internet.

The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) is responsible for enforcing medicines legislation and can take enforcement action against breaches of that legislation in the UK. During the last five years, 18 successful prosecutions have been brought involving medicines being traded illegally over the internet.

Medicines that are brought into the UK by an individual for his or her own personal use, including those purchased via the internet, are not subject to the controls of medicines legislation.

We are aware that considerable illegal activity takes place through websites hosted abroad and outside UK control. The MHRA works closely with European Union and other international regulatory authorities to ensure that, wherever possible, offending websites are amended to reflect the law. MHRA also participates in cross-Government and international groups set up to explore how best to combat internet issues, and exchange intelligence.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to reply to the letter of 17 March 2009 from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire on leading bankers, PO reference: 1/69395/2009. [275675]

Ian Pearson: A reply has been sent to the hon. Member.

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Economic Secretary to the Treasury plans to reply to the letter of 17 March 2009 from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire on the reduction of income derived from pensioners savings, PO reference: 5/04517/2009. [275676]

Ian Pearson: I have replied to the hon. Member.

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire dated 19 February 2009, on national saving accounts, PO reference: 1/67675/2009. [275839]

Ian Pearson: I have replied to the hon. Member.

Revenue and Customs: Closures

Mr. Timpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reasons HM Customs and Excise's offices in (a) Bangor, (b) Bedford and (c) Doncaster were withdrawn from the Workforce Change programme. [273641]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 8 May 2009]: The decisions to vacate HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) offices in Bangor, Bedford and Doncaster were among those announced in December 2008 at the conclusion of HMRC's Workforce Change regional review programme to match HMRC's estate to future business needs. Those decisions have not changed.

While HMRC has looked again at the timing of closures of a number of its offices in the light of budgetary constraints, the aim is still to close them in 2010-11. Full vacation of Ty Glyn, Bangor, and Weston House, Doncaster, originally expected by the end of 2009-10, has now been deferred until after 2009-10. The intention to vacate Portman House, Bedford, by spring 2011 remains unchanged.

Revenue and Customs: Crewe

Mr. Timpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for how long HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) will remain contracted to Mapeley in respect of the HMRC office at Crewe House, Crewe. [275955]

Ian Pearson: HM Revenue and Customs' (HMRC) office at Crewe House, Crewe was included in the Strategic Transfer of the Estate to the Private Sector (STEPS) outsourcing deal with Mapeley in April 2001. The STEPS contract is for a term of 20 years from 2001. However, there is flexibility within the contract for HMRC to fully or partially vacate properties prior to the contract expiry date in 2021. HMRC will remain contracted to Mapeley in respect of Crewe House until it vacates and the appropriate contractual vacation notice expires.

Mr. Timpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 11 May 2009, Official Report, column 541W, on HM Revenue and Customs in Crewe, how much he estimates will accrue in each category of the proposed savings of £230 million to arise from the vacation of two floors of the HM Revenue and Customs offices at Crewe House, Crewe. [276014]

Ian Pearson: HM Revenue and Customs is unable to disclose the specific estate savings for Crewe House, Crewe on grounds of commercial sensitivity.

Stamp Duty Land Tax

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the stamp duty land tax holiday is estimated to have cost the Exchequer at the latest date for which information is available. [275772]

Ian Pearson: The estimated cost of the stamp duty land tax holiday in 2008-09 and the cost for 2009-10 up to 3 September 2009, the original date for the end of the holiday, was published in the PBR 2008 report at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/d/pbr08_annexb_262.pdf

A revised estimate for the cost of the stamp duty land tax holiday in 2009-10, to 3 September 2009, was published in table A2 of the Budget 2009 report at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/d/Budget2009/bud09_chaptera307.pdf

The cost of extending the holiday to 31 December 2009 was also published in table A1 of the Budget 2009 report at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/d/Budget2009/bud09_chaptera_307.pdf

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much revenue was raised in cash terms from stamp duty land tax on residential property in each year since 1996-97. [275855]

Ian Pearson: Estimates of the stamp duty land tax from residential property raised in cash terms since 1996-97 are given at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/stamp_duty/table15-2.xls

Taxation: Bingo

Mr. Betts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what methodology was used to calculate the figure of £50 million estimated revenue lost to the Exchequer by the removal of value added tax on bingo participation fees in the 2009 Budget. [274772]

Angela Eagle: The estimated revenue impact of £50 million in the 2009 Budget Redbook relates to the cost of VAT exemption for both bingo and player-to-player gaming in casinos in 2009-10. Our estimate of the cost of removing VAT on bingo participation fees has been calculated using a methodology that is consistent with other costings of policy changes on tax. It uses information from the bingo industry, bingo duty receipts and takes account of behavioural effects.

Taxation: Gambling

Mr. Betts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what discussions his Department has had with representatives of the bingo industry on levels of taxation in the industry in the last three months; [274765]

(2) what discussions there have been between representatives of his Department and the Department for Culture, Media and Sport on the proposed transfer of gaming machines to a gross profits taxation regime; [274755]

(3) what discussions he had with the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on gambling taxation prior to the 2009 Budget. [274761]

Angela Eagle: Treasury Ministers and officials met with a wide range of organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors as part of the usual Budget process. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such discussions

Mr. Betts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the changes to the tax rates for (a) bingo, (b) casinos, (c) betting, (d) gaming machines and (e) online gaming following the 2009 Budget are. [274784]

Angela Eagle: Details of the tax changes relating to different gambling sectors were announced at Budget 2009. Costings implications are published in Table A1 in the Financial Statement and Budget Report. More detailed information on the tax changes can be found in HMRC Budget Notes 73 and 83, published on the HMRC website:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/budget2009/bn73.htm

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/budget2009/bn83.htm

Taxation: National Lottery

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent estimate his Department has made of the effect on (a) prize levels, (b) good causes' revenue and (c) taxation revenue of a change to the taxation regime for the National Lottery from lottery duty to gross profits taxation. [275410]

Angela Eagle: The Government undertook a detailed assessment of the case for taxing the national lottery on a gross profits tax basis before the 2008 pre-Budget report.

The Government concluded that there was considerable uncertainty over the impact of a switch to a gross profits tax, particularly given the start of the new lottery operating licence in February 2009. The stakes based system of lottery taxation has therefore been retained.

VAT: Tax Rates and Bands

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make it his policy to change the date on which value added tax will revert to 17.5 per cent. to take account of trends in the turnover of retail outlets at the end of 2009. [275427]

Mr. Timms: Budget 2009 confirmed that the VAT rate will revert to 17.5 per cent. from 1 January 2010. HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) will continue to talk to businesses about practical issues associated with the change.

To address the particular difficulties for businesses such as pubs and clubs that will remain open beyond midnight on 31 December, HMRC will allow a few hours' trading grace in which they may continue charging the 15 per cent. rate for a session that goes into the early hours of 1 January.

WALES

Departmental Billing

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much his Department paid in interest to suppliers under the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998 in the last three years for which figures are available. [275192]

Mr. Paul Murphy: My Department has paid the following amounts to suppliers under the late payment of commercial debts:

2006-07	0
2007-08	117
2008-09	[1]822

[1] Interim payment under negotiation with a view to being refunded.

Departmental Stationery

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what proportion of office supplies purchased by his Department were recycled products in the latest period for which figures are available. [275336]

Mr. Paul Murphy: All paper used for photocopying and printing in my Department is sourced from recycled materials. Records are not held on all proportions of stationery that are recycled products and this information could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost. However, we are developing a sustainable development policy that will include recording this information.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Departmental Work Experience

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many work placements his Department offered to (a) school pupils, (b) university students and (c) graduates in each of the last five years. [274475]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department for Work and Pensions does not collate the information requested centrally and it could be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Incapacity Benefit

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he plans to take to assist long-term incapacity benefit claimants back into work. [272482]

Jonathan Shaw: We set out in the White Paper "Raising expectations and increasing support: reforming welfare for the future" published in December 2008, a range of measures to help long-term incapacity benefit claimants into work.

Pathways to Work was rolled out nationally on 28 April 2008 and is now available to everyone receiving incapacity benefits and employment and support allowance in Great Britain. Later this year we will be introducing mandatory work-focused interviews for existing incapacity benefits customers under the age of 25 in Jobcentre Plus Pathways to Work areas.

We intend to migrate existing incapacity benefits customers to employment and support allowance and, in the light of Pathways to Work evaluation evidence, plan to introduce a new system of three work-focused interviews for customers aged under 50 once migrated. They will be able to take up further support on a voluntary basis. It is intended that customers aged 50 and over will receive one mandatory work-focused interview, again with the option of further voluntary support. We also plan to run pilots to test new ways of delivering employment support to existing customers aged 50 and over, to establish what works best for this group.

In addition, five Invest to Save pilots are planned to test the innovative funding model proposed by David Freud, alongside Professor Gregg's vision of conditionality for existing long-term customers.

Service Personnel and Veterans Agency

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many cases his Department has referred to the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency in each year since 2007. [268671]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Pension, Disability and Carers Service routinely refers people to a range of complementary services and organisations where appropriate. Information is not collected centrally on the numbers that are referred to the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Carbon Sequestration: Finance

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change from which budgets the £90 million allocated in Budget 2009 for research into carbon capture and storage will be drawn. [276151]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: £60 million is transferred from the Department of Transport and £30 million from the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs.

Departmental Billing

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much his Department has paid in interest to suppliers under the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998 since its creation. [275204]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Nil.

Departmental Contracts

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what services his Department has outsourced since its establishment; and if he will make a statement. [275635]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: None.

Departmental Correspondence

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what procedure his Department follows for dealing with complaints received (a) by e-mail, (b) by post, (c) by telephone and (d) via his Department's website. [274526]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Complaints to DECC, received by whatever means, i.e. by (a) e-mail, (b) by post, (c) by telephone or (d) via the Department's website, should be dealt with within 15 working days of receipt.

Where possible, complaints should be resolved at the point of receipt. Where this is not possible, the complaint is passed to the unit within the department responsible for the area of work complained about, to be dealt with there. If a complainant is not satisfied with the outcome, the complainant is given the option to escalate the complaint to DECC's impartial Service Standards Adjudicator if it's about standards of service; or to DECC's Secretary of State or a DECC Minister via a Member of Parliament for complaints about DECC policy or legal issues.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much his Department has spent on (a) conference services and (b) banqueting services since its creation. [274507]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Since its creation on 3 October 2008 the Department has spent (a) £64,800 on conference services and (b) nothing on banqueting services.

Departmental Stationery

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what proportion of office supplies purchased by his Department were recycled products in the latest period for which figures are available. [275347]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: DECC does not separately account for purchases of office supplies made from recycled products.

Mineral Resources: International Cooperation

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on the Government's strategy for preservation of global mineral resources. [264697]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change has not had any discussions with his right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary on the Government's strategy for preservation of global mineral resources.

Natural Gas: Waste Disposal

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what percentage of mains gas supply is accounted for by production from anaerobic digester plants. [275790]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Currently no gas in the mains system is provided by anaerobic digester plants.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Copyright: Internet

Dr. Howells: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) if he will bring forward legislative proposals to replace self-regulation in respect of digital content and copyright into a statutory system; [275928]

(2) what recent discussions he has had with internet service providers on measures to reduce levels of copyright theft and infringement; [275929]

(3) what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on proposals to vest in Ofcom a statutory power to create a code of practice on terms for transfer of shares of revenues generated by the use of copyrighted material; [275930]

(4) what steps he is taking to investigate the effects of copyright piracy on the economic viability of the digital content business sector; [275931]

(5) what discussions he has had with (a) Ministerial colleagues and (b) the UK Film Council on the Council's proposal for a legislative structure to support a graduated response approach to online copyright theft and infringement; [275932]

(6) what steps he plans to take to maintain the economic viability of the UK's digital content business sector; [275933]

(7) what discussions he has had with (a) the Digital Rights Agency and (b) other digital rights representatives on amendments to the present regulatory regime on infringements of copyright in respect of digital rights; [275934]

(8) if he will assess the merits of a deterrence scheme to ensure that higher broadband speeds do not lead to an increase in illegal file sharing and copyright theft. [275935]

Andy Burnham: The Government recognise the damaging economic impact of copyright theft and infringement, and unlawful peer-to-peer file-sharing in particular, on the creative sector. Although the music industry is currently affected most by this, other industries—such as film, computer games and publishing—will be increasingly affected as higher broadband speeds are introduced. Last year we set up a memorandum of understanding (MOU) between the Government, internet service providers (ISPs) and rights holders, as a first step to finding agreement on a way forward. Outcomes from the MOU informed the proposals set out in the Digital Britain Interim Report (DBIR) in January. The DBIR proposed a requirement for ISPs to notify their customers when rights holders identified them as engaging in unlawful file sharing. Information on the most serious infringers would then be made available to rights holders (based on the collection of data on the notification requests from rights holders, and subject to a court order) to help them prioritise legal action against those infringers. This would provide a form of graduated response up to prosecution for the most serious infringers. Other forms of graduated response have been suggested to us in response to consultations on this issue, and we are considering the merits of these. We have also consulted on the idea of creating a rights agency, the establishment of a code of practice and Ofcom's possible involvement in this. We have discussed these issues and ideas at ministerial and official level both between Departments and with many interested parties, including ISPs, the UK Film Council and other rights holders' representatives. We will issue a further consultation on the legislative proposals shortly.

More generally, the DBIR acknowledged the structural and cyclical pressures on the UK's media industry and the threats to continued investment in UK-originated content in the digital world. We recognise the challenges and opportunities presented by the transition to digital, and the DBIR made a commitment to investigate ways to address these issues further. Our conclusions will be published in the final Digital Britain report.

Digital Broadcasting: Scotland

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps his Department is taking to ensure that residents of Scotland are prepared for the digital switchover. [275697]

Andy Burnham: Digital UK and the Switchover Help Scheme are the organisations responsible for implementing the digital switchover and providing assistance to those who may need it.

The Scottish information campaign began in October 2007. Since then leaflets have been sent to every Scottish home and TV, radio and press campaigns have been running at intervals to inform viewers about their options for switchover. Over the past two years, Digital UK's Scotland team has carried out a number of public and stakeholder meetings and events to ensure that residents and key stakeholders in Scotland are prepared for the switchover.

The Switchover Help Scheme will begin operating in each transmitter group area up to eight months prior to switchover to offer practical help to those who are eligible. Additionally, national, regional and local charities will begin a programme of community outreach across Scotland to support individuals through the switchover process. Project management, materials and grants are funded through Digital UK. Digital UK also runs a website providing information on switchover at:

http://www.digitaluk.co.uk/

Future Jobs Fund

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding his Department has available as part of the Future Jobs Fund. [276171]

Andy Burnham: The Future Jobs Fund is held by the Department for Work and Pensions. The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions and I announced in May, plans to create 5-10,000 jobs in the cultural and creative sector. Sports organisations have already pledged to bid for at least 5,000 jobs.

Tourism Advisory Council

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what representation from local authorities there is on the Tourism Advisory Council. [274683]

Barbara Follett [holding answer 12 May 2009]: There is currently no representation from local authorities on the Tourism Advisory Council (TAC). The first meeting of the council took place on 30 April 2009 and was established to draw together senior practitioners primarily from the tourism industry to engage with the Government Departments whose policies impact on tourism.

However, after consultation with Visit England's chair, we are currently reviewing the local authority representation on the TAC.

OLYMPICS

Olympic Games 2012: Caravans

Mr. Ames: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what discussions she has had with (a) the Mayor of London and (b) Transport for London on the provision of caravan sites for those attending the Olympic games in 2012 since December 2008; and if she will make a statement. [275611]

Tessa Jowell: There are no plans for spaces for recreational caravans in the Olympic Park. However, we recognise that motor home and caravan users may wish to attend the 2012 games and we expect that, closer to the time, the Olympic Delivery Authority will wish to follow up initial discussions it has had with the Caravan Club to explore the potential for games-time integration of public transport provision and licensed caravan sites.

Olympic Games 2012: Southend on Sea

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what discussions her Office has had since January 2008 with Southend borough council to enable it to (a) participate fully in and (b) receive a legacy from the London 2012 Olympic games; and if she will make a statement. [275615]

Tessa Jowell: Although the Government Olympic Executive has had no direct discussions with Southend borough council about the legacy of London 2012 in Southend, I meet regularly with the chair of the Local Government Association (LGA) and my officials work closely with their LGA counterparts.

We are fully committed to ensuring that everyone in the UK can be part of the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games. The Legacy Action Plan which I published in June last year sets out more details on how we propose to deliver this vision. I am especially keen for regions to identify what is important to them. At a regional level this work is being taken forward by the Nations and Regions Group (NRG) who are working hard to optimise local benefits of the games.

In December 2008 I addressed the LGA conference which had an Olympic focus. I regularly attend meetings with the London councils and meet the five London host borough representatives. I also undertake a programme of regional visits where I meet with local representatives and businesses to highlight the potential benefits and opportunities of London 2012.

We are already seeing great progress in a lot of these areas, for example 23 of the Olympic Delivery Authority's suppliers are businesses registered in Essex. 66 facilities from the region, including Southend Leisure and Tennis Centre in Essex are included in the official London 2012 Pre-Games Training Camp Guide. Additionally, I am delighted that Southend Unitary Authority is offering free swimming to the over 60s and under 16s.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Catering

Mr. Burstow: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what estimate the House of Commons Commission has made of the number of meals purchased in House of Commons cafeterias in each of the last 12 months for which figures are available. [275499]

Nick Harvey: The House of Commons catering service does not record the number of meals purchased in its cafeterias but instead records the number of sales transactions. A transaction is defined as a customer sale and may be for one meal, several meals, or merely a drink or snack. The number of cafeteria transactions is set out below for the 12 months from April 2008 to March 2009, although the hon. Member should note that the figures are recorded on the basis of 12 financial periods, not calendar months.

	Cafeterias	Café@work venues	Total cafeterias, café@work bars

Drinking Water

Mr. Burstow: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what estimate the Commission has made of the number of plastic bottles of water sold in House of Commons cafeterias in each of the last 12 months. [275515]

Nick Harvey: A month-by-month breakdown of the number of plastic water bottles sold in the House of Commons cafeterias and other catering venues in the 12 months from April 2008-March 2009 is set out as follows. The hon. Member should note that the figures are recorded on the basis of 12 financial periods, not calendar months.

	Cafeteria	Other venues	Total

Energy

Mr. Burstow: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission (1) what the energy consumption was of each building on the House of Commons part of the parliamentary estate in each of the last three years; [275505]

(2) what his most recent estimate is of the level of electricity consumption of each building on the parliamentary estate. [275599]

Nick Harvey: The energy consumption of each building on the parliamentary estate, broken down by gas and electricity usage, for each of the last three years is as follows:

Energy consumption

MWh

Building	2006-07			2007-08			2008-09

Food: Waste Disposal

Mr. Burstow: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what estimate the Commission has made of the amount of food waste by weight arising from House of Commons cafeterias in each of the last 12 months; and by what means such waste is disposed. [275514]

Nick Harvey: No record is kept of the amount of food waste by weight but a record is kept of the value of food waste. The cost of food wastage is set out as follows for the House of Commons cafeterias for each of the 12 months from April 2008-March 2009. The hon. Member should note that the figures are recorded on the basis of 12 financial periods, not calendar months.

Period 1	6,394
Period 2	5,845
Period 3	11,382
Period 4	9,501
Period 5	6,928
Period 6	4,762
Period 7	7,510
Period 8	7,761
Period 9	7,347
Period 10	4,684
Period 11	5,386
Period 12	7,414
Total 2008-09	84,924

Food waste is currently mixed with the general waste stream and sent to disposal facilities in the London area obtaining energy from waste. A review of alternative schemes, such as the commercial collection of food waste for transportation to an anaerobic digestion facility, has been scheduled for 2009-10.

Furniture

Mr. Burstow: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how many items of office furniture were (a) purchased and (b) disposed of by the House of Commons Commission in each of the last three years; and what estimate the Commission has made of the (i) weight and (ii) total value of each category. [275510]

Nick Harvey: Figures for the monetary value of office furniture purchased in each of the last three years are: £380,557 (2006), £1,079,461 (2007) and £392,387 (2008). The monetary value of office furniture disposed of in the same period is recorded only back to 2008; the figure in that year was £2,614.91. The weight of items is not recorded and so cannot be quantified per annum.

Members: Allowances

John Mann: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission at what meetings the House of Commons Commission has considered implementation of amendment (f) of 3 July 2008 on the designation of second homes and capital gains tax; what decision was reached; what legal advice was sought and given; and which Members were in attendance. [276173]

Nick Harvey: Matters which relate to the Members Estimate are considered by the Members Estimate Committee rather than the House of Commons Commission. I will contact the hon. Member.

Palace of Westminster: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Davidson: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how much has been spent on improving or renovating accommodation in the House of Commons part of the Palace of Westminster in each of the last five years. [274678]

Nick Harvey: The amount spent by the House of Commons on improving and renovating the Palace of Westminster has been:

2004-05	6,183
2005-06	7,524
2006-07	10,057
2007-08	9,743
2008-09	2,599

This excludes general maintenance costs, some of which are incurred across the whole Estate, and expenditure on security related projects. The Palace is shared with the House of Lords who account for their share of the costs incurred separately.

Pay

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what the (a) gross annual income from the House of Commons and (b) job title was of each of the (i) officers and (ii) staff of the House of Commons who earned more than a backbench hon. Member in 2008-09. [275706]

Nick Harvey: The basic salary payable to Members is £63,291 per annum as at 31 March 2009. As at that date, 89 employees were paid a gross annual salary above this figure; of these 82 were Officers of the House and seven were staff of the House.

The provision of a list of these posts would allow individual staff to be identified which is contrary to House policy on data protection. A list of the posts in the House of Commons senior structure and at pay band A1, which have pay band maxima higher than Members' current salary was placed in the Library in April 2009 in response to the question from the right hon. and learned Member for Sleaford and North Hykeham (Mr. Hogg), on 22 April 2009, Official Report, column 739W.

Details of the staff pay bands and staff pay arrangements are available on the parliamentary intranet. The salaries of Members of the Management Board are disclosed in the House of Commons: Administration annual accounts.

Procurement

Mr. Burstow: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how many paper receipts were issued to suppliers by the House authorities in each of the last three years. [275506]

Nick Harvey: Receipts are issued at catering and retail outlets in the House of Commons but there is no business need to keep records of numbers. During the summer opening of the Palace of Westminster to the public, receipts are issued to visitors purchasing tickets by credit card but the numbers are not readily available. The Parliamentary Bookshop issued the following number of paper receipts based on till transactions:

2008-09: 20,734

2007-08: 19,991.

Information about the bookshop in 2006-07 is not available in the form requested, but is believed to be similar to the later years.

Vending Machines

Mr. Burstow: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how many vending machines there are on the House of Commons estate; and what the energy rating of each such machine is. [275513]

Nick Harvey: There are a total of 13 vending machines in operation on the House of Commons estate.

No information is available about the energy rating of each machine.

However, the machines are scheduled for replacement later this year and energy efficiency, including the use of timers and sensors, will be taken into account when selecting replacement models.

TRANSPORT

A64

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) what the cost of the recent installation of warning signs for overhead cables on the A64 York to Scarborough road was; [276027]

(2) how many (a) road traffic and (b) other accidents or incidents there have been on the A64 York to Scarborough road caused by or involving vehicles hitting overhead lines in the last three months; [276028]

(3) what risk assessment was carried out prior to the installation of overhead cable warning signs on the A64 York to Scarborough road; [276029]

(4) how many individual overhead cable warning signs have been erected on the A64 since 1 January 2009. [276111]

Paul Clark: 424 overhead cable warning signs have been erected on the A64 since 1 January 2009 at a cost of approximately £50,000.

There have been no road traffic accidents or other incidents on the A64 York to Scarborough road caused by or involving vehicles hitting overhead lines in the last three months.

A project specific risk assessment was undertaken to identify a safe method of erection and maintenance of these signs. Prior to any maintenance activity on the A64 a scheme specific risk assessment is undertaken to identify hazards, including overhead power cables, and to ensure risks to road workers are mitigated. The marker posts also enable the emergency services to more easily identify overhead power lines as part of their risk assessment when attending an incident.

British Transport Police: ICT

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on how many and what proportion of British Transport Police computers malware was detected in 2008. [275392]

Paul Clark: It is not in the interests of the UK's national security for Departments to confirm information on the number of malicious attacks against their IT systems and those of the bodies for which they are responsible.

The British Transport police have a policy on managing risks posed by all forms of malicious software ('malware').

Bus Services: Concessions

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the (a) administrative and (b) financial consequences of reimbursement being made by central Government to bus operators for the concessionary bus fare scheme. [275543]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport has recently published a consultation paper on possible changes to the administration of concessionary travel. Option 3 within this consultation paper is for the administration of the statutory minimum bus concession to be moved to central Government and for bus operators to be reimbursed through national negotiation with the Department.

If this option was chosen following the consultation, the Department would need to undertake further detailed assessment of the administrative and financial consequences of such a model.

The draft impact assessment that was published alongside the consultation sets out the Department's initial assessment of such a move. A move to central administration and reimbursement would bring with it a number of complexities, including the potential for duplication of reimbursement negotiations if enhanced concessions continue to be offered at a local level. In addition to any transitional start-up costs, the Department currently estimates a move to central administration would have an average annual cost of £8 million, offset by average annual savings to local authorities of £10.6 million.

Departmental Pay

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies paid in end-of-year performance bonuses to (i) all staff and (ii) senior Civil Service staff in 2008-09; and how many such payments were made. [275247]

Mr. Hoon: The amount of end-of-year non-consolidated performance payments paid to all staff and senior civil service staff in the Department for Transport is shown in the table.

	All staff	SCS
Overall number of staff	19,493	187
Number receiving end year non-consolidated performance payments	13,332	139
End year non-consolidated performance payments amount (£)	9,813,937	1,344,831

Total pay bill was £643,685,777, of which 1.73 per cent., was used for non-consolidated performance payments to staff. The mean payment made was £736 for all staff and £9,675 for senior civil service.

Driving: Licensing

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of applications for driving licence renewals were rejected by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency in each of the last five years; and what proportion of such rejected applications resulted in a retest in each of those years. [275496]

Jim Fitzpatrick: This information is not held in the form requested.

Driving: Standards

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many assessments under the Driving Quality Monitoring scheme were conducted in (a) Greater London, (b) Greater Manchester and (c) Strathclyde in the 2008-09 financial year; and how many of the assessments in each area found the quality of driving to be unacceptable. [275215]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 13 May 2009]: The following assessments were conducted under the Driver Quality Monitoring Scheme in 2008-09.

	Greater London	Greater Manchester
Assessments	7,237	908
Unacceptable drives	1,591	387
Percentage	21	42

The Driving Standards Agency's last Driver Quality Monitoring contract in Strathclyde terminated in January 2007.

The data from the assessment is collated and reported back to the client on the next day, for potential remedial action. For those assessments recording dangerous faults the bus company is notified on the day of the assessment. In all cases the client is responsible for any further action.

Ferries

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what requirements there are on UK ferry operators on routes of less than 20 miles in terms of (a) passenger loading limits and (b) records to be kept of the numbers of people boarding their vessels. [276112]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 2 April 2009, Official Report, columns 1420-421W.

In addition:

Passenger loading limits

The Department for Transport places no absolute limit on the number of passengers that may be carried on any class of passenger ships (with the exception of classes VI and VIA, which have very restricted operations and are limited to a maximum of 250 and 50 passengers respectively). In general the vessel operator may design and equip the vessel to carry the number of passengers they believe there is market demand for.

Regulations then require that appropriate standards of safety are provided to meet the risks posed by the vessel's service and the number of passengers carried. These address areas such as intact stability, freeboard, damage survivability, fire protection, provision of lifesaving appliances, manning levels, safety management, pollution prevention—in each case, the greater the number of passengers and the longer the voyage, the more comprehensive the technical requirements so as to ensure a level of safety appropriate to the risk. Other regulations also apply, but are independent of the number of passengers on board, e.g. for safety of navigation or provision of radios.

Instructions to surveyors and other departmental guidance lay down requirements for passenger accommodation and seating, provision of sanitary facilities, and provisions for persons of reduced mobility. While this guidance does not have the force of law, surveyors will not recommend issue of a passenger certificate unless the vessel meets the required standards.

On completion of surveys which take account of the above factors, the end result is the issue of a Passenger Certificate, which stipulates the maximum number of passengers and the total number of persons on board (including crew) that can be safely carried, and the minimum freeboard corresponding to the maximum draught (loading limit) which is marked on the side of the ship.

Passenger counting

The Master is prohibited by The Merchant Shipping (Survey and Certification) Regulations 1995 from having on board a greater number of passengers than that stated on the ship's Passenger Certificate. He is assisted in meeting this obligation by the Merchant Shipping (Counting and Registration of Persons on Board Passenger Ships) Regulations 1999 (SI 1999 No. 1869), supported by Merchant Shipping Notice 1794, which describes practical methods for counting and registering passengers.

For voyages of less than 20 miles, the regulations require a count of passengers and crew and for this information to be held ashore for the duration of the voyage.

This information is used to check compliance with safety regulations, and for search and rescue authorities, in the event of an incident.

First Great Western: Finance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps his Department has taken to monitor First Great Western's performance in delivering its financial commitments since the last review. [272996]

Paul Clark: Officials meet First Great Western at least every four weeks to review progress of the franchise. The franchise agreement sets out a standard agenda for these meetings, which includes financial performance and performance of the franchisee in meeting its contractual commitments. The Department for Transport is satisfied that First Great Western is meeting its financial commitments.

First Great Western: Standards

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many train services have been cancelled by First Great Western in the last 12 months. [272997]

Paul Clark: In the 12 months to 30 March 2009, 7,024 First Great Western trains were cancelled. Of this total, 3,055 cancellations were attributable to First Great Western itself, the others being caused by Network Rail or by other train operators. These figures include partial cancellations (where a train departs but does not complete its planned journey).

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the performance of First Great Western in delivering its commitment to improve service reliability. [272998]

Paul Clark: Officials meet First Great Western at least every four weeks to review overall progress of the franchise. Officials also meet First Great Western at the milestone reporting sessions contractualised in the remedial agreement to review progress in reducing train cancellations against the provisions of that agreement. First Great Western is currently compliant with the cancellations reduction trajectory contained in the remedial agreement.

Government Car and Despatch Agency: Fines

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) speeding fines, (b) London congestion charge fines and (c) parking fines were incurred by the Government Car and Despatch Agency in each of the last four years for which information is available; how much was incurred in total in each category; and if he will make a statement. [275833]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 24 March 2009, Official Report, column 204W, given to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps).

Lighting

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what information his Department holds on the number of lamp posts maintained by local authorities in England and in use which are beyond their design life; and if he will make a statement. [276038]

Paul Clark: It is for each local authority to decide how to manage its street lighting systems and the Department for Transport does not regularly collect information on street lighting column age. In order to inform the local transport plan capital allocations, in 2006 the Department asked English local authorities outside London to report the number of columns they had aged 40 years or more. At that time, authorities reported 771,900 columns; but this figure has not been independently verified, and may include some columns no longer in use.

The Department encourages local authorities to adopt an asset management approach to maintaining their highways assets, including basing decisions on accurate inventory and condition data rather than notional design lives.

Parking: Disabled

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make an assessment of the adequacy of the level of provision of disabled parking spaces in England. [275811]

Paul Clark: Provision of disabled parking spaces is covered by Disability Discrimination Act (DDA) legislation. The Department for Transport has published the 'Inclusive Mobility' guidance document to help service providers (such as local authorities and car park operators) to meet their requirements under the DDA. Powers exist for disabled people to challenge service providers who they believe do not meet their DDA requirements.

We are working with the British Parking Association and British Council of Shopping Centres to look at the adequacy of existing provision of off-street disabled parking spaces.

Railways: EU Countries

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made for benchmarking purposes of the proportion of travel undertaken by rail in continental European countries. [275480]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport has not made an estimate for benchmarking purposes of the proportion of travel undertaken by rail compared to continental European countries. The Eurostat publication, "Key figures on Europe 2009 edition" contains a selection of key transport statistics including estimates of rail travel by country. It can be found on the Eurostat website at http://epp.eurostat.ec.europa.eu/cache/ITY_OFFPUB/KS-EI-08-001/EN/KS-EI-08-001-EN.PDF

Railways: Fares

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will take steps to establish a nationally-available frequent user railcard. [272849]

Paul Clark: It is not our intention to establish a nationally available frequent user railcard. Any new railcard offering discounts, would need to be revenue generative for the industry as otherwise, under the current system, it would require Government subsidy. There is no current evidence that such a railcard would generate revenue.

Some season tickets already offer loyalty style discounts, such as the "gold card" for annual season tickets in the south-east—offering one third off off-peak travel in the south-east.

Railways: Franchises

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent representations his Department has received from train operating companies on the financial viability of extant rail franchises. [274389]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport has regular discussions with all train operators who have franchise contracts with the Government as part of our ongoing monitoring system.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many train services on the East Coast Main Line have been cancelled by National Express since it assumed the franchise; how many were cancelled by GNER in each of the last five years of its existence; and if he will make a statement. [275033]

Paul Clark: The following table shows the number of cancellations.

Franchisee	Reporting period	Full cancellations
GNER	1 April 2003 to 31 March 2004	661
	1 April 2004 to 31 March 2005	559
	1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006	546
	1 April 2006 to 31 March 2007	805
	1 April 2007 to 8 December 2007	763
NXEC	9 December 2007 to 31 March 2008	234
	1 April 2008 to 31 March 2009	625

In the last five years of its existence, GNER cancelled an average of 55 trains per month. Since taking over the East Coast franchise, National Express East Coast (NXEC) have cancelled an average of 51 trains per month. This is against a backdrop of an increased number of services. Having established themselves in the franchise, NXEC have significantly improved performance.

Since the start of the NXEC franchise, the PPM Moving Annual Average (MAA) has risen from 81.2 per cent. to 86.9 per cent. In the last four weeks, period ending 31 March 2009, NXEC cancelled 37 trains and achieved a record PPM of 91.9 per cent.

Roads: Accidents

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 8 May 2009, Official Report, columns 488-89W, on roads: accidents, how many drivers of each type of vehicle involved in incidents causing cyclists' deaths in the last five years had (a) a UK and (b) a non-UK driving licence. [276214]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is not held centrally.

Virgin Trains

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what topics were raised in the discussions his Department has had with Virgin Trains in the last six months. [274390]

Paul Clark: In the last six months, Department for Transport officials met Virgin West Coast every four weeks to review the financial, operational and contractual performance of the franchise. In addition, Ministers and senior officials from the Department held separate meetings with Virgin West Coast to discuss implementation of the December 2008 timetable and subsequent performance issues.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) rural farms and

(b) smallholdings each local authority holds; and how many have been vacant for longer than (i) three and (ii) six months. [275804]

Jane Kennedy: The annual report to Parliament on smallholdings in England provides details of the numbers of statutory smallholdings held by local authorities analysed according to size of holding. This information is set out in the following table. DEFRA does not hold information regarding the number of smallholdings that are vacant or the duration of vacancies, and it would be for individual local authorities to provide these details.

The latest published annual report is the 57th Report for the period 1 April 2006 to 31 March 2007, which is available in the Library of the House and can also be seen on the DEFRA website.

Agriculture: Land

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many hectares of farmland of best and most valued status in England have changed to a developed use since 1996-97. [275764]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have been asked to reply.

Information is not held centrally on the area of farmland of best and most valued status that has changed to developed use. The Department's Land Use Change Statistics (LUCS) can provide estimates for changes to developed use from all agriculture, in hectares.

Estimates up to 2006 are available in LUCS Live Table 261

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/planningandbuilding/xls/1133773.xls

Animal Welfare Act 2006

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to bring forward those provisions of the Animal Welfare Act 2006 which are not yet in force; and if he will make a statement. [273876]

Jane Kennedy: The following provisions of the Animal Welfare Act 2006 have yet to be brought into force:

Section 8(3) to (6) on recordings of animal fights;

Schedule 3 in so far as it relates to the repeal of Section 2 of the Pet Animals Act 1951 (which makes it an offence to sell a pet in the street);

Schedule 4 in so far as it relates to the repeal of Section 2 of the Pet Animals Act 1951 and the repeal of Sections 37 to 39 (which provides that Ministers may make orders relating to the transport and export of animals) and paragraph 8 of Schedule 5 (Consequential Amendments) of the Animal Health Act 1981.

There is no timetable in place for the commencement of these provisions.

Animals: Clones

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) cloned animals and (b) offspring of cloned animals there are in England. [275939]

Jane Kennedy: All cloning of animals for research, medical or agricultural purposes in the UK must be approved by the Home Office under the strict controls of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986.

This information is not collated by DEFRA.

Badgers

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what criteria are used to assess applications for removal licences in respect of badgers. [275441]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Protection of Badgers Act 1992 includes provision for licences to be issued for specific listed purposes. Licences are issued only where it is demonstrated that three conditions are met:

a licence is required (i.e. badgers or their setts are causing or likely to cause a serious problem or are preventing legitimate operations);

there is no alternative to issuing a licence (i.e. other methods have been shown to be ineffective or impractical and not just difficult to implement); and the activity to be licensed is likely to resolve or contribute to resolving the matter for which it has been issued.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how long on average elapsed between the end of the badger winter hibernation season and the commencement of approved work to remove badgers from unsuitable situations in the last five years. [275680]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Badgers do not hibernate as such but the licensing approach is attuned to sensitive periods such as the breeding season. Natural England, as the licensing authority, does not however record the time elapsed between the end of the badger breeding season and the commencement of licensed action.

Bluetongue Disease: Vaccination

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on what date the decision was made to reduce the cost of bluetongue vaccine to livestock holders; and what the reasons for the decision were. [275801]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA announced on 7 May that remaining bluetongue vaccine stocks will be discounted by 50 per cent.

Reduced uptake during 2009 may leave the national herd and flock vulnerable to further incursions of BTV-8. The Government hold unused stocks which are reaching their expiry dates, leaving the tax payer with a potential liability of £3.3 million if unsold.

The decision to cut the price of Government-owned vaccine has not been taken lightly. The situation is now very different to early 2008, when Government-owned vaccine was the only product available to protect livestock from BTV-8. Government-owned surplus is now competing against vaccines available on the open market, and the pricing is extremely competitive. There is also a need to remove Government-owned stock from the supply chain to allow the market place to operate as normally as possible.

A number of options were investigated and after careful consideration with industry and veterinary stakeholders on the Bluetongue Core Group, we decided that dropping the price of the vaccine was the best approach in order to mitigate financial losses to the taxpayer and reduce vaccine wastage.

Bovine Tuberculosis

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the transmission of bovine tuberculosis to (i) pigs and (ii) domestic animals from wildlife. [275802]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA has not commissioned any research into the spread of bovine TB from wildlife to pigs and other domestic animals. However, DEFRA has been funding passive surveillance in domestic and zoo animal species for several years. This consists of a free post-mortem and culture service for suspect cases of TB provided by the Veterinary Laboratories Agency.

The principal species affected by bovine TB in Great Britain are cattle and badgers. While small numbers of companion animal species and many wild animal species have been shown to be infected with bovine TB, most are spillover hosts. There is some indirect evidence of transmission from spillover hosts though it is uncertain how often this is occurring.

TB is not normally considered to be particularly contagious amongst pigs or to spread easily from pigs to other animals. In most cases, the disease is self-limiting and no extensive TB control measures are required. We are, however, likely to continue to observe sporadic incidents of porcine TB due to M. bovis on farms where pigs and cattle are co-located and in outdoor breeding-fattening units in the south-west of England and west midlands.

Even in areas where TB in cattle and badgers is quite common, not all badgers or family groups will be infected. Even in areas of high TB incidence in cattle and badgers, TB in domestic animals is rare.

Cattle: Mastitis

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the cost of mastitis in dairy cattle to the dairy industry in each of the last three years; how many cases of mastitis there were in each such year; and if he will make a statement. [274925]

Jane Kennedy: Mastitis is not a notifiable disease hence reporting of mastitis diagnoses is voluntary. The levels of endemic diseases, such as mastitis in the cattle population of Great Britain (GB) are monitored through the DEFRA-funded Veterinary Laboratories Agency's (VLA) Endemic Disease Surveillance Programme. This is performed by analysis of test results from clinical diagnostic samples (usually milk samples in the case of mastitis cases) submitted by veterinary surgeons to the VLA regional laboratories and to the Scottish Agricultural College (SAC) disease surveillance centres for investigation.

The VLA surveillance provides information on the causes of mastitis and their trends. The relative proportions of GB mastitis diagnoses attributed to a specific pathogen are monitored—results for 2008 are shown in the following table. The proportions of infection were similar for recent years.

	Percentage
Staphylococcus aureus	15
Streptococcus uberis	23
Streptococcus dysgalactiae	6
Streptococcus agalactiae	1
Escherichia coli	18
Other organism(s)	20
No microbial growth	5
Sample contamination	12

Source:
GB Surveillance Cattle Diseases Quarterly Report October to December 2008.

The data available shows the mastitis pathogens isolated as a result of veterinarians submitting samples to these government laboratories and therefore do not provide an unbiased or comprehensive estimate of the occurrence of the condition in GB. The VLA is not contracted to determine the cost of mastitis to the dairy industry and cost cannot be determined from this data.

The control of endemic diseases such as mastitis, that mainly affect the health and productivity of individual cattle herds, are primarily the responsibility of the owner and his veterinary surgeon. Industry milk recording organisations provide recording through monitoring of somatic cell counts in milk samples, which gives an indication of the presence of mastitis when somatic cell counts are elevated. DairyCo is the relevant levy-funded industry body with responsibility for promotion of the dairy industry and they keep national data on milk recording results.

Departmental ICT

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he has taken to reduce the level of carbon dioxide emissions arising from the operation of ICT systems in his Department under the Greening Government ICT Strategy. [273559]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to my earlier reply given to the hon. Member for Cardiff Central (Jenny Willott) on 11 May 2009, Official Report, column 506W.

Domestic Waste: Waste Disposal

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment has been made of the effect on the management of bio-waste in the European Union on household waste collections in England of implementation of the proposals in the European Commission's Green Paper. [275763]

Jane Kennedy: The European Commission's Green Paper explores a wide range of options in relation to the management of bio-waste in the EU, but contains no firm proposals. Therefore the Government have made no assessment.

The Commission will undertake a formal impact analysis of possible policy or legislative proposals later this year. The Government do not expect any firm proposals before 2010.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 29 April 2009, Official Report, column 1302W, on domestic waste: waste disposal, what the volume of waste for recycling collected from doorsteps was as a proportion of the total volume of waste collected from doorsteps in each local authority area in the latest period for which information is available. [276113]

Jane Kennedy: A table showing waste collected for recycling and reuse from kerbsides as a percentage of total household waste collected as part of the ordinary waste collection service has been placed in the house Library. The table provides figures for each English local authority for the financial year 2007-08.

Floods: Property Development

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what data the Environment Agency obtains about proposed developments to assess the implications of flood risk. [275475]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Environment Agency is a consultee in the planning process. The data the Environment Agency receives about proposed development from local planning authorities includes its location and nature and assessments of flood risk. This should demonstrate that the type of development is appropriate for that location and will be safe from flooding over its lifetime, while not increasing flood risk to others.

Fly Tipping

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer to my hon. Friend, the Member for Romford (Andrew Rosindell) of 20 April 2009, Official Report, column 99W, on fly-tipping, if he will place in the Library a copy of the CD-ROM being distributed to local authorities. [275777]

Jane Kennedy: The CD-ROM has not yet been distributed to local authorities, as some additions are currently being made to the content. A copy will be placed in the Library as soon as it is published, which will be shortly.

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) how many incidents of fly-tipping were reported in each local authority area in London in each of the last five years for which figures are available; [275989]

(2) how many enforcement actions relating to fly-tipping have been taken in each local authority area in London in each of the last five years for which figures are available; [275990]

(3) how many prosecutions for fly-tipping offences in each local authority area in London have been brought in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [275991]

Jane Kennedy: I am placing information in the Library of the House on the number of incidents of fly-tipping, the number of prosecutions taken against fly-tippers and the number of other enforcement actions relating to the prevention of fly-tipping reported as being taken in each local authority in London in each of the last four years. Data on fly-tipping in 2008-09 will be published later this year.

Other enforcement actions that can be taken against suspected fly-tippers and to prevent incidents are investigations, warning letters, statutory notices, fixed penalty notices, duty of care inspections, stop and searches, formal cautions and injunctions. From 2009-10, data will also be collected on the number of vehicles seized from those suspected of involvement in fly-tipping.

Food: VAT

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent (a) representations he has received on and (b) assessment he has made of the effect of the introduction of value added tax on non-fresh food products in shops on (i) food prices and (ii) the retail prices index; and if he will make a statement. [273130]

Jane Kennedy: We have not received any recent representations on the introduction of value added tax on non-fresh food products and have made no assessment of the effect of introducing such a tax on food or the retail price index.

Food: Waste Disposal

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will commission research into the amount of food waste used in ways other than being sent to landfill; and if he will make a statement. [275854]

Jane Kennedy: WRAP will commission a new survey that will aim to capture the amount of the UK's food waste currently going through in-vessel composting and anaerobic digestion facilities. The six-month survey will start at the end of 2009 and is currently planned to end in early 2010.

Recycling

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will commission research into the effectiveness of local authorities' recycling schemes; and if he will make a statement. [275449]

Jane Kennedy: Neither DEFRA nor the Waste and Resources Action Programme plans to commission any research into the effectiveness of local authorities' recycling schemes.

Sheep: Lameness

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding his Department has provided for research into lameness in sheep in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [274926]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA recognises the severe effect on farmers of lameness in sheep and has produced an advisory booklet on its control. Over the past three years DEFRA has provided funding for two research projects on this subject with a total expenditure of:

2006-07: £196,879

2008-09: £17,477.

One of the two projects was carried out jointly with the Scottish Executive and industry, and the level of expenditure referred to above represents the DEFRA contribution only.

The Biotechnology and Biological Sciences Research Council has also funded work on this topic.

Waste and Resources Action Programme

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) has paid to the Association of Cities and Regions for Recycling and Sustainable Resource Management since WRAP's establishment. [275762]

Jane Kennedy: The only payment the Waste and Resources Action Programme has made to the Association of Cities and Regions for Recycling and Sustainable Resource Management is a membership fee of £1,125.

Water Supply

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with South East Water on (a) its plans to reduce leakage and (b) its proposal for a reservoir to increase water capacity. [276302]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Ofwat sets the water companies targets to reduce their leakage to the Economic Level of Leakage (ELL), the level of leakage at which it would cost more for a water company to further reduce its leakage than to produce water from an alternative source. South East Water has met its leakage targets since 2002 and is currently operating at the ELL. Since 1997, total leakage has been reduced by 30 per cent. in South East Water's area of supply.

The Secretary of State will shortly be making a decision on how preparation of the water resource management plan, which includes proposals for a reservoir near Ringmer, should proceed. Ministers have not met directly with South East Water to discuss its plan, although officials, especially at the Environment Agency, have done so.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Members: Allowances

John Mann: To ask the Leader of the House how many current hon. Members have redesignated their main home for the purposes of the additional costs allowance on three or more occasions. [276044]

Chris Bryant: It is not possible to provide this information without going through each individual Member's paper records as the information as requested is not held electronically and nomination forms, indicating where a main and second home are located, were only required from 2003 onwards.

The answer could therefore be provided only at disproportionate cost.

John Mann: To ask the Leader of the House how many hon. Members have redesignated their main home for the purposes of the additional costs allowance since 3 July 2008. [276056]

Chris Bryant: 10 hon. Members have redesignated which of their homes is their main and which is their second home since 3 July 2008.

John Mann: To ask the Leader of the House how many hon. Members submitted claims for reimbursement of mortgage payments on homes outside London under the additional costs allowance in the last 12 months. [276057]

Chris Bryant: 134 Members currently claim costs for homes that are outside London. Of these, 95 have claimed reimbursement of mortgage interest payments.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Leader of the House into which budget moneys paid back to the Fees Office by hon. Members relating to their expenses and allowances claims are paid. [276304]

Chris Bryant: All repayments will be credited to the House of Commons: Members Estimate.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Civil Service Agencies: Employment

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what procedures his Department has in place to monitor compliance by its agencies with procedures on employment matters stipulated by the Civil Service Handbook; and how many cases of (a) unfair dismissal and (b) suspension have been upheld against the Youth Justice Agency by employment tribunals in each of the last three years. [273981]

Paul Goggins: There are personnel service agreements between the various agencies and personnel services division which set out the agreed working arrangements on personnel matters. In addition all recommendations for dismissal must be submitted to the establishment officer, DFP, who has responsibility for termination of employment. There have been no cases of (a) unfair dismissal or (b) suspension upheld against the Youth Justice Agency by employment tribunals in any of the last three years.

Departmental Complaints

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what procedure his Department follows for dealing with complaints received (a) by e-mail, (b) by post, (c) by telephone and (d) via his Department's website. [274519]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Office's complaints procedure is fully documented on the website at:

http://www.nio.gov.uk/index/complaints.htm

The procedure covers complaints by telephone or in writing by letter or e-mail.

The facility to make a complaint via the website is not available.

Departmental Pay

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies paid in end-of-year performance bonuses to (i) all staff and (ii) senior Civil Service staff in 2008-09; and how many such payments were made. [275249]

Paul Goggins: Non-consolidated performance payments for Northern Ireland Office senior civil servants (SCS) are distributed in line with Cabinet Office guidance. The size of the consolidated performance pot is based on recommendations of the independent senior salaries review body. In 2008, 42 members of the SCS received end of year performance payment totalling £371,200 which is 8.6 per cent. of the pay bill. In line with current economic conditions the SCS non-consolidated performance payment pot for 2008-09 has been frozen.

Non-consolidated performance payments for staff below the SCS have been awarded to 20 per cent. of staff who are considered to meet the criteria for an award. In 2008, 367 staff received an end year performance payment totalling £292,675 which is 0.54 per cent. of the pay bill. Awards to be made in respect of 2008-09 remain at 0.54 per cent. and are funded within existing pay bill controls, have to be earned each year against pre-determined targets and as such do not add to future pay bill costs. The award of performance payments help drive high performance.

Departmental Training

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much his Department has spent on IT training for its staff in each of the last five years. [274224]

Mr. Woodward: The following table shows expenditure on IT training for its staff by the Northern Ireland Office, excluding its agencies and Executive NDPBs, in each of the last five years:

	IT training (£000)
2004-05	30
2005-06	98
2006-07	113
2007-08	113
2008-09	[1]

Departmental Responsibilities

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Prime Minister which (a) Minister and (b) civil servant has cross-departmental responsibility for the promotion of sustainable development in respect of public sector procurement policy. [272304]

Angela Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

There are three pillars of sustainable development: environmental; social; and economic.

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary for the Cabinet Office (Mr. Watson) has responsibility for the promotion of the environmental elements of sustainable development in departments' procurement activities and the operation of their estates.

I, as Exchequer Secretary to the Treasury, have responsibility for all other aspects of Central Government procurement policy, including the promotion of the social and economic elements of sustainable development in departments' procurement activities.

The Secretary of State for the Environment (Hilary Benn) is responsible for policy on sustainable development in Government and sustainable products. He is also responsible for the sustainability policy underpinning Government's sustainable procurement commitments, with input from procurement experts in the Office of Government Commerce and other relevant organisations.

The Chief Sustainability and Operating Officer (William Jordan) is the civil servant responsible for working with Departments to ensure that the Government's sustainable operations on the Government Estate targets are met and that its sustainable procurement action plan is implemented. He reports to the Parliamentary Under-Secretary for the Cabinet Office on his work.

The Chief Executive of OGC (Nigel Smith) is the civil servant responsible for all other aspects of Central Government procurement (including the promotion of social and economic elements of sustainable development). He reports to the Exchequer Secretary to the Treasury.

Within central Government Departments, from 2008-09 all Permanent Secretaries' responsibility for improving sustainability has been highlighted in their personal objectives.

SCOTLAND

Departmental Complaints

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what procedure his Department follows for dealing with complaints received (a) by e-mail, (b) by post, (c) by telephone and (d) via his Department's website. [274518]

Ann McKechin: Complaints to the Scotland Office, where they cannot be resolved immediately, whether face-to-face or on the telephone or in writing, are allocated to a senior member of staff. Their responsibility is to investigate and provide a full reply in writing within 10 days of receipt of the complaint. Where it proves impossible to provide a full reply within 10 days, an interim reply is sent explaining the need for more time and indicating when the full reply will be sent. Details of the complaints procedure will shortly be posted on the Scotland Office's internet site, which is currently in the process of being updated.

Departmental Drinking Water

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department has spent on bottled water in each of the last five years. [275700]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office spent the following on bottled water, for water coolers in its premises in London and Edinburgh:

	Cost (£)
2003-04	2,382
2004-05	2,418
2005-06	1,879
2006-07	2,451
2007-08	2,880

These figures do not include any bottles of water that may have been supplied for ministerial hospitality events, as they would have been subsumed within suppliers' overall invoices and not recorded separately.

Departmental Furniture

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department spent on furniture in each of the last five years. [273748]

Ann McKechin: The combined Scotland Office and Office of the Advocate-General expenditure on furniture for departmental buildings in the last five years is as follows:

	Cost (£)
2003-04	4,454
2004-05	25,096
2005-06	16,995
2006-07	0
2007-08	2,384

Departmental Internet

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department has spent on the maintenance of its website in each year since 1997. [275701]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office only came in to existence on 1 July 1999. We do not hold a separate record of the cost of maintaining the Scotland Office website for the period 1999 to 2007.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 19 November 2008, Official Report, column 471W, to the hon. Member for North-East Hertfordshire (Mr. Heald) for the latest period for which figures are available.

Departmental Older Workers

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many staff over the age of (a) 55 and (b) 65 years of age are employed by his Department. [275694]

Ann McKechin: All the staff in the Scotland Office are on secondment from the Scottish Executive or the Ministry of Justice who hold individual staff personnel records, including details such as dates of birth. The Office does not maintain a central record of dates of birth of staff.

Departmental Pay

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department paid in end-of-year performan[illegible] to (a) all staff and (b) senior Civil Service st[illegible]8-09; and how many such payments were made. [275248]

Ann McKechin: All staff in the Scotland Office are on secondment from the Scottish Executive or the Ministry of Justice. Staff may be eligible for end of year performance bonuses under their parent Department's performance management arrangements. The Scotland Office does not itself make the end of year awards and does not hold information centrally on end of year bonus payments made to its secondees.

Departmental Responsibilities

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the operation of the concordats between the Government and the Scottish Executive. [273475]

Ann McKechin: The Government have been leading work to review the working arrangements with the devolved Administrations. We are close to finalising an updated version of the memorandum of understanding which governs the relationship between the UK Government and the three devolved administrations.

Departmental Stationery

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department has spent on branded stationery and gifts for (a) internal and (b) external promotional use in each of the last five years. [273771]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office has incurred no costs on branded stationery and gifts for internal or external promotional use in the last five years.

Departmental Training

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department has spent on IT training for its staff in each of the last five years. [274225]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office does not hold information in the form requested. The staff in the office are on secondment from the Scottish Executive or the Ministry of Justice, both of whom provide free access to training and development opportunities, including a range of IT training specific to the software used.

Industrial Health and Safety

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department has spent on health and safety training for its staff in each of the last five years. [275693]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office does not hold information in the form requested. The staff in the Office are on secondment from the Scottish Executive or the Ministry of Justice, both of whom provide free access to training and development opportunities, including a range of health and safety events.

Isle of Lewis

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many visits he has made to the Isle of Lewis in an official capacity in the last 24 months. [275696]

Mr. Jim Murphy: My hon. Friend the Member for Glasgow, North the Under-Secretary of State for Scotland, (Ann McKechin) visited the Isle of Lewis on the 7 and 8 May 2009 and I intend to visit next month.

Olympic Games 2012

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent discussions he has had with the First Minister on Scotland's role in hosting events and facilities associated with the London 2012 Olympic Games. [275698]

Ann McKechin: My right hon. Friend has not had any recent discussions with the First Minister. Earlier this month I met the Minister for the Olympics on her visit to Glasgow and discussed Scotland's role in hosting events, during our visit at Scotstoun Leisure Centre and National Badminton Centre, which has been listed as one of the 30 facilities in Scotland as potential pre-Games training camps.

Sheep

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many sheep farms in Scotland he has visited in an official capacity in the last 12 months. [275703]

Mr. Jim Murphy: I have not visited a sheep farm in Scotland in my official capacity.

Whisky

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent discussions he has had at EU level on the future prospects for the whisky industry. [275692]

Mr. Jim Murphy: DEFRA Ministers represent the UK Government in EU discussions on the whisky industry. I and my officials continue to have regular discussions with DEFRA and with the Scotch Whisky Association on issues affecting the Scotch Whisky industry.

As part of my recent trade mission to China, I visited the Edrington Group HQ in Shanghai and made representations to the Chinese Government on the importance of their taking steps to deal with counterfeit Scotch Whisky.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many whisky distilleries in Scotland he has visited in an official capacity in the last 12 months. [275695]

Mr. Jim Murphy: My predecessor, the right hon. Member for Kilmarnock and Loudoun (Des Browne) visited the Isle of Arran distillery in August. I met with Gavin Hewitt of the Scotch Whisky Association in November and my predecessor met with Mr. Hewitt in September. In December I hosted and spoke at a Scotch Whisky Association reception at the Scotland Office. I will be visiting a distillery with the Scotch Whisky Association in June. On a trade mission to China in March I visited Edrington Group, a Scottish international premium spirits company. I am currently in discussions with Diageo and will be visiting one of their distilleries in the near future.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the mission statement for employees of his Department in Afghanistan is. [275464]

Bill Rammell: The Mission of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) South Asia and Afghanistan Directorate is to promote the national interests of the UK in South Asia, to contribute to regional stability and the FCO's strategic priorities, managing an effective network of posts in the region.

The specific mission of the Afghanistan Group within the wider directorate is to help Afghanistan achieve stability, security, prosperity, to the benefit of the Afghan people, the UK and the world community.

Conflict Prevention

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 25 March 2009, Official Report, columns 17-19WS, on conflict resources 2009-10, under the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review, what the original planned total allocation was for (a) South Asia, including Afghanistan, (b) Africa, (c) Europe and (d) the Middle East; and if he will make a statement. [267724]

Bill Rammell: The UK's total available conflict resource for FY 2009-10 (leaving aside the cost of UK military operations in Afghanistan and Iraq) is £627 million, compared with the original planned total allocation of £556 million.

As set out in the written ministerial statement of 25 March 2009, Official Report, column 17WS, £456 million will be set aside for assessed peacekeeping activity, leaving £171 million to fund all conflict prevention, stabilisation and discretionary peacekeeping activity.

Individual country/regional allocations were not set out in the comprehensive spending review. These were agreed after an annual tri-departmental (Department for International Development, Foreign and Commonwealth Office and Ministry of Defence) review of planned activity across all three funds.

Departmental Air Conditioning

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much has been spent by his Department on carrying out inspections of air conditioning systems within departmental buildings in accordance with the Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007. [272118]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has not incurred any expenditure to date on carrying out inspections of air conditioning systems within departmental buildings in accordance with the Energy Performance of Buildings Regulations (2007/991).

A registered inspector was booked to carry out the inspections on 15 May 2009. The costs will be covered in the FCO's overarching facilities management contract, at no further cost to the Department.

Departmental Art Works

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 24 March 2009, Official Report, columns 188-89W, on departmental art works, in which of the official residences used by his Department each of the works of art mentioned is. [273706]

Gillian Merron: All of the Government art collection works listed in my previous answer are located in Flat 2, Admiralty House.

Departmental Billing

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the names and addresses are of each organisation which has supplied goods and services to his Department in 2009. [273703]

Gillian Merron: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer given to the hon. Member for Rochford and Southend, East (James Duddridge) on 22 October 2008, Official Report, column 387W.

Departmental Dismissal

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many members of staff in his Department and its agencies were dismissed (a) for under-performance and (b) in total in each of the last 10 years. [274304]

Gillian Merron: 19 members of Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) staff have been dismissed for inefficiency (which covers failure of sick absence procedures and poor performance) and eight members of FCO Services (FCOS) staff have been dismissed for under-performance.

43 members of FCO staff have been dismissed since 2004 and 24 members of FCOS staff have been dismissed in total over the last 10 years.

Departmental Finance

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what changes to services provided by his Department he anticipates following the efficiency savings outlined in the Budget Red Book 2009. [273682]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) will deliver the government target for comprehensive spending review (CSR) value for money savings (CSR07) and the additional savings allocated for 2010-11 whilst continuing to provide a global network for the Government overseas. We will continue to deliver on FCO priorities including our departmental strategic objectives (DSOs), public service agreements (PSAs) and the long-term international challenges facing the UK as outlined in the FCO's Strategic Framework.

Departmental ICT

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he has taken to reduce the level of carbon dioxide emissions arising from the operation of ICT systems in his Department under the Greening Government ICT Strategy. [273557]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has taken an active role in the Greening Government Information and Communications Technology (ICT) strategy by providing a detailed plan for the FCO. The plan includes the baseline of the FCO's current carbon footprint and a number of initiatives that cover the full life-cycle of our ICT, including how we procure, operate and dispose of equipment. We are also looking at how use of ICT will enable savings outside of ICT itself through videoconferencing and collaboration initiatives that reduce the need for travel. This process is integrated into our ICT strategy.

Departmental Official Cars

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what guidelines his Department has in place on the procurement of cars for official use (a) in the UK, (b) in UK Overseas Territories and (c) at diplomatic posts overseas. [273661]

Gillian Merron: Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) guidance for the procurement of cars for official use in the UK, in UK Overseas Territories and at diplomatic posts overseas is as follows:

Purchasing flag vehicles

Procurement of vehicles for the FCO is based on achieving value for money and in a manner which conforms to appropriate UK regulations and EU directives. Where they are readily available and represent value for money, we prefer the FCO in the UK and British missions abroad to buy British cars.

Currently the FCO's preferred supplier for flag vehicles is Jaguar for saloon cars, and Land or Range Rover where four wheel drive capability is essential. The FCO maintains central contracts with these companies, negotiated to ensure value for money. In general flag vehicles will be on a par with the vehicles allocated to Government Ministers in London. The particular model allocated to individual posts will reflect local circumstances.

Posts which consider that there are overriding reasons not to purchase flag cars manufactured by our preferred suppliers, have to submit a detailed case for ministerial approval in London.

Purchasing pool vehicles

Posts have delegated authority to purchase pool vehicles within agreed costs for vehicle purchase. Decisions taken under this delegation have to meet value for money criteria and must always include examination of the option to buy suitable vehicles available under the central contracts referred to above.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much his Department has spent on (a) conference services and (b) banqueting services in each of the last five years. [274505]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) operates through a network of overseas posts and directorates in London who may independently contract conference and banqueting services. The information requested therefore is not held centrally by the FCO and to obtain it for the last five years would incur disproportionate cost.

Departmental Work Experience

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many work placements his Department offered to (a) school pupils, (b) university students and (c) graduates in each of the last five years. [274485]

Gillian Merron: Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) Human Resources Directorate offered the following numbers of work placements:

	School Pupils	University Students	Number Graduates
2008	10	45	10
2007	10	35	20
2006	10	34	20

These figures do not include ad-hoc placements organised by individual directorates.

To collect this information would incur disproportionate cost.

Our records before 2006 are incomplete and as a result we do not hold information on the educational status of individuals to whom we offered work placements in 2005 and 2004.[1]From 1999 to 2008, FCO Services, a trading fund of the FCO, participated in the Equal Choices Schools Initiative programme. They take 16 children annually from ethnic minority backgrounds, who spend two days gaining an insight into their work.

All individuals undertaking work experience at FCO Services were in full-time education.

France

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had on international security with the French government. [276666]

Caroline Flint: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has regular in-depth discussions with the French Government on international security issues. Most recently, at the General Affairs and External Relations Council of the European Union on 18 May 2009, he had a wide-ranging discussion with French and other European counterparts.

G20: Greater London

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs who he expects to participate in the G20 summit in London in March 2009; what gifts each participant will receive; what the cost of each such gift is; how much is being spent on (a) catering and (b) catering facilities; if he will place in the Library a copy of the menu for each official dinner during the summit; how much is being spent per person at each dinner; and if he will make a statement. [276501]

Gillian Merron: All of my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister's counterparts who were invited participated in the G20 summit in London on 2 April 2009. These were as follows:

Cristina Fernandez de Kirchner, President, Argentina
Kevin Rudd, Prime Minister, Australia
Luiz Inácio Lula da Silva, President, Brazil
Stephen Harper, Prime Minister, Canada
Hu Jintao, President, China
Nicolas Sarkozy, President, France
Angela Merkel, Chancellor, Germany
Manmohan Singh, Prime Minister, India
Susilo Bambang, President, Indonesia
Silvio Berlusconi, Prime Minister, Italy
Taro Aso, Prime Minister, Japan
Lee Myung-Bak, President, Republic of Korea
Felipe Calderón, President, Mexico
Jan Peter Balkenende, Prime Minister, The Netherlands
Dmitry Medvedev, President, Russia
HRH King Abdullah bin Abdul Aziz al Saud, Saudi Arabia
Kgalema Motlanthe, President, South Africa
José Luis Rodriguez Zapatero, Prime Minister, Spain
Recep Tayyip Erdogan, Prime Minister, Turkey
Barack Obama, President, United States of America
Prime Minister Abhisit Vejjajiva of Thailand, Chair of ASEAN
Prime Minister Mirek Topolanek of the Czech Republic, EU Presidency
José Manuel Barroso, President, European Commission
Prime Minister Meles Zenawi of Ethiopia, Chair of NEPAD
Mario Draghi, Head of Financial Stability Forum
Dominique Strauss-Kahn, Managing Director, IMF
Youssoff Boutros-Ghali, Chair of IMFC
Ban Ki-moon, UN Secretary General
Robert B. Zoellick, President, World Bank Group
Pascal Lammy, Director General, World Trade Organisation.

Gifts were only given to heads of delegations and their spouses. These were hampers of British products. The total amount spent for all gifts was £3,566.23.

At present we are unable to provide a final figure for the costs of the catering for the summit, but hope to be able to publish those figures in the coming weeks along with the total costs of the London summit.

Copies of the menus for each official dinner will be placed in the Library of the House.

Germany

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had on international security with the German Government. [276659]

Caroline Flint: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has regular in-depth discussions with the German Government on international security issues. Most recently, at the General Affairs and External Relations Council of the European Union on 18 May 2009, he had a wide-ranging discussion with German and other European counterparts.

Israel: Anniversaries

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs to what events held in Israel to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the founding of Tel Aviv HM Ambassador to Israel he has been invited, what such invitations the Ambassador has (a) accepted and (b) declined; and if he will make a statement. [276646]

Bill Rammell: Our ambassador has received several invitations to attend events relating to the 100th anniversary of Tel Aviv. So far he has been able to attend the opening of "The British Season", a specially created programme of film and music events by the British Council designed to mark the anniversary; a reception in the Sarona gardens organised by Tel Aviv Municipality; and the dedication of a school for children with neurological difficulties built with the assistance of the UK Friends of the Tel Aviv Foundation.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs to what events held in (a) the UK and (b) Israel to commemorate the 61st anniversary of the founding of the State of Israel he has been invited; what such invitations he has (i) accepted and (ii) declined; and if he will make a statement. [275617]

Bill Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary accepted an invitation to deliver a speech on 5 May 2009 at an event hosted by the Israeli embassy in London to commemorate the 61st anniversary of the founding of the State of Israel.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs to what events held in (a) the UK and (b) Israel to commemorate the 61st anniversary of the founding of the State of Israel the Prime Minister has been invited; what such invitations he has (i) accepted and (ii) declined; and if he will make a statement. [275619]

Bill Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister did not attend any events commemorating the 61st anniversary of the founding of the State of Israel. However, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary attended an event hosted by the Israeli embassy in London on 5 May 2009 where he delivered a speech.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of the alleged take-over by Hamas of a ward in Shifa Hospital, Gaza, and its use by Hamas as a command and control centre; and if he will make a statement. [275526]

Bill Rammell: We are aware of reports of Hamas representatives operating out of Shifa hospital during the recent conflict. We condemn any use of hospitals for non-medical purposes that could endanger the patients and staff. The UK continues to regard Hamas as a terrorist organisation and to call for it to renounce all violence, recognise Israel and adhere to previous agreements with the Palestinians.

Middle East: Diplomatic Relations

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions (a) he, (b) Ministers and (c) officials in his Department have had with Arab governments on (i) economic and (ii) diplomatic relations between Arab governments and the State of Israel; and if he will make a statement. [275527]

Bill Rammell: We believe that the Arab peace initiative (API) provides the best path towards achieving normal economic and diplomatic relations between Arab Governments and the state of Israel. The API offers full normalisation of relations with Israel in exchange for withdrawal from occupied land. We frequently emphasise the importance of the API, including in discussions with Israel and Arab Governments; my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary did so in his UN Security Council intervention on 11 May 2009.

Pakistan: Politics and Government

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the US Administration on the military and political situation in Pakistan. [273319]

Bill Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary last discussed the situation in Pakistan with US Secretary of State Hillary Clinton on 12 May 2009. We shared our concerns about the threat violent extremism poses to the Pakistani state. Foreign and Commonwealth Office officials also continue to hold frequent discussions about the situation in Pakistan with a wide range of US officials.

Somalia: Piracy

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the effect of payments of ransom money following pirate attacks in the Gulf of Aden on the activities of (a) Islamic militants in Somalia and (b) terrorist groups in the region; and if he will make a statement. [270993]

David Miliband: We are aware that the majority of pirates operating off the coast of Somalia organise their activities in the Puntland region. However, we do not have the capabilities within Somalia to monitor the movement of ransom monies around Somalia.

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Government of Somalia on the number of piracy incidents in the Gulf of Aden in recent months. [273144]

Gillian Merron: Piracy has been discussed in many meetings with the Transitional Federal Government (TFG) of Somalia. In addition to regular meetings between officials at our high commission in Nairobi and representatives of the TFG, my noble Friends the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN (The Lord Malloch-Brown), the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State at the Home Office, (The Lord West of Spithead), and my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for International Development (Mr. Lewis) all discussed piracy with the Somali Deputy Prime Minister, Sharif Hassan Sheikh Adan, during his visit to the UK on 20 April 2009. Sharif Hassan confirmed the TFG is committed to helping tackle this issue.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the effects of poverty in the region on numbers of acts of piracy in the Gulf of Aden. [274324]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 11 May 2009]: Piracy in the Gulf of Aden and off the Coast of Somalia is a symptom of the ongoing instability and lack of economic opportunities in the horn of Africa. Although the security situation makes it difficult to access the region to conduct a full assessment, it is likely that poverty in rural communities in Puntland is one of several contributing factors.

The UK is taking a leading role in the international response to piracy by offering the Operation HQ and Commander for the EU's Counter Piracy operation. We also chair a working group looking to enhance regional co-operation and co-ordination. This working group is also looking to highlight regional capacity-building requirements that will aim to address the longer term causes of piracy.

Somalia: Politics and Government

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the ability of the transitional government in Somalia to provide for its citizens. [274323]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 11 May 2009]: The Transitional Federal Government have stated that its priorities are reconciliation, security and the development of governmental institutions. Given Somalia's recent history, it faces considerable challenges. However, it is receiving international support and has produced an initial three-month budget, which harnesses port revenue to enable the re-establishment of key Ministries in Mogadishu to take its priorities forward.

Tibet: Human Rights

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 23 April 2009, Official Report, columns 807-08W, on Tibet: human rights, what reports he has received on the compliance with international standards of the trials of individuals arrested in connection with the disturbances in Tibet in March 2008. [272629]

Bill Rammell: We have received a number of reports from non-governmental organisations (NGOs) stating that the trials of those connected with the disturbances in Tibet in March 2008 were not compliant with international standards, and that the evidence against the individuals concerned was unsound and the convictions therefore unsafe. We have consistently expressed our concern at the need for proper due process for all those detained, and our belief that any trials should be conducted justly, fairly and transparently. The fact that independent observers were not allowed at these trials means that we have been unable to verify that the human rights of the defendants were respected, and that the trials were free from political interference. This, together with the reports from NGOs, does give us real cause for concern, as does the verdict of the death penalty, to which the UK is opposed in principle. As a consequence, and working closely with our EU counterparts, we are urging the Chinese authorities not to carry out the sentences imposed on those convicted. I made these points in similar terms in my written response to Free Tibet and the Tibet Society at the beginning of May.

Trade Unions

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 12 March 2009, Official Report, column 634W, on trade unions, what office facilities his Department provides for the exclusive use of each recognised trade union; and what the notional annual value of such provision is. [271932]

Gillian Merron: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) provides each recognised trade union representative with their own furnished office, networked computer with e-mail/internet access and a telephone. Trade union representatives have shared access to photocopiers, duplicating and printing services, file storage and fax machines. The FCO meets day-to-day running costs within the rules of public expenditure set out in FCO guidance. Such costs include: rents; building maintenance; stationery; office and IT equipment; telephone charges; official travel; security; corporate overheads; capital charges and depreciation.

Based on full economic cost figures (calculated in line with HM Treasury requirements) for the 2008-09 financial year, the notional annual value of this provision for each recognised trade union is:

Public and Commercial Services Union (2 officers)	80,900
The Diplomatic Service Association (DSA) (1 officer)	40,450
Prospect (1 officer)	40,450

In addition to trade union representatives, the FCO provides four full-time support posts in London for Trade Union Secretariat (TUS) work. These posts are held by members of FCO staff who are elected to their respective roles (with the exception of the TUS registry post which is filled using the normal FCO appointment process). Based on FY2008-09 figures, the total notional value of the Trade Union Secretariat posts is £161,800.

These arrangements comply with the facilities agreement between the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and the trade unions which undertakes to:

"provide such resources as are reasonably necessary to enable Trade Union representatives to carry out their duties efficiently."

UN World Conference against Racism

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the number of persons who walked out during the speech of the Iranian President at the UN Durban 2 anti-racism conference; and if he will make a statement. [272179]

Gillian Merron: The Government are aware that all EU delegations who attended the Durban review conference, and the representative of St. Kitts and Nevis, left the hall when the Iranian President made comments deemed to be offensive. A number of non-governmental organisation delegates also left the hall. Many delegates, including the UK's Permanent Representative to the United Nations in Geneva, subsequently condemned the Iranian President's remarks.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary issued a ministerial statement on the Durban review conference on 28 April 2009, Official Report, columns 41-42WS.

Zimbabwe: Politics and Government

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to have discussions with the President of South Africa on the political and human rights situation in Zimbabwe. [273147]

Gillian Merron: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary currently has no planned meetings with President elect Zuma to discuss Zimbabwe, although Zimbabwe will certainly be among the issues which Ministers will wish to discuss with the incoming South African Administration over the coming weeks. South Africa remains key to the power-sharing agreement, brokered by the Southern African Development Community.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Gurkhas

12. Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent steps her Department has taken to reformulate its policy on settlement rights for Gurkhas. [275722]

Mr. Woolas: Following the debate on 29 April, the date for determining outstanding applications was brought forward to the end of May.

Based on this work, and recognising the strong feeling of the House, we will come forward with proposals for the next stage of our reform of the rules before the summer recess.

17. Martin Salter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the effect on the settlement rights of Gurkhas of the implementation of the points-based immigration system. [275727]

Mr. Woolas: The settlement rights of Gurkhas are entirely separate from the routes to enter the United Kingdom through the points-based system.

It will therefore have no effect on the implementation of the points-based immigration system.

DNA Database

13. Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the compatibility of her proposal on retention of the DNA profiles of persons arrested but not convicted with the jurisprudence of the European Court of Human Rights. [275723]

Mr. Coaker: Our proposals, set out in the public consultation paper "Keeping the Right People on the DNA database" published on 7 May 2009, were drawn up against the background of the judgment of the European Court of Human Rights in the S and Marper case. They aim to implement the judgment in a way which continues to protect the public while safeguarding the rights of the individual.

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of crimes detected using DNA profiles held on the national DNA database in the last 12 months. [275729]

Mr. Alan Campbell: In 2007-08, 33,034 crimes were detected in which a DNA match was available or played a part in solving the crime. They included 83 homicides and 184 rapes. Figures for the 2008-09 financial year will be available shortly.

Identity Cards

14. Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment she has made of progress on the introduction of identity cards. [275724]

23. Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her most recent assessment is of progress on the introduction of identity cards. [275733]

Mr. Woolas: Progress is well on track with identity cards for foreign nationals being introduced from November 2008 and identity cards being rolled out from autumn 2009 to British citizens resident in Manchester and also to airside workers at Manchester and London City airports.

Front-line Policing

15. Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her most recent estimate is of the proportion of police officers' time spent on front-line policing. [275725]

Mr. Coaker: We estimate that at the end of March 2008, 64.9 per cent. of police officer time was spent on front-line duties. This information is no longer collected by the Home Office as part of work to reduce bureaucracy.

Having delivered the funding for record numbers in the work force it is important that the police service make the best possible use of their work force's time. The effective deployment of officers and staff will enable them to be in the right place at the right time to deliver for the public when they most need the police's help.

Nazi War Crimes

16. Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of UK residents who are suspected of having committed war crimes under the Nazi regime. [275726]

Mr. Woolas: The Home Office does not collate figures on the total numbers in the UK who are suspected of these crimes.

Any allegations received concerning crimes under the Nazi regime are referred to the Metropolitan police for investigation.

Antisocial Behaviour: Swindon

Anne Snelgrove: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps her Department is taking to tackle antisocial behaviour in Swindon. [275728]

Mr. Alan Campbell: We have given practitioners the tools and powers they need to do their job effectively. When I visited Swindon recently I met the local partnership including police and the local authority to both support and challenge them to do more to make communities across Wiltshire safer.

Human Trafficking

20. Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment she has made of progress in implementing the provisions of the Council of Europe convention on action against trafficking in human beings. [275730]

Mr. Alan Campbell: I am pleased to say that the convention entered into force in the UK on 1 April this year. A Home Office-led multi agency task force has been established to monitor its implementation and will report later this year.

Public Confidence: Police

21. Siobhain McDonagh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of steps taken by police forces to increase public confidence in the police. [275731]

Mr. Coaker: Through the single confidence target, we expect the police, working with partners, to significantly increase public confidence that the issues that matter locally are being addressed. We will regularly monitor the performance of all forces and authorities against this target. HMIC will also consider the steps forces have taken to increase confidence.

Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the planned programme of work is of the (a) Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs (ACMD) and (b) Technical Committee of the ACMD for the next 12 months. [274642]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information is as follows:

(a) The Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs (ACMD), as an independent advisory body sets it own programme of work responding to both to requests for advice from the Home Office and other Government Departments and conducts work of its own choosing. However, the ACMD has indicated to the Home Department that in the coming 12 months they will be conducting work in the areas of 'legal highs' (including 'Spice'), cognitive enhancers, poly-drug use, treatment effectiveness and development of an early warning system to provide timely information to Ministers of emerging/new drugs and associated risks.

(b) The ACMD Technical Committee supports the work of the ACMD. Therefore, the Home Department understand that its primary work will be supporting the working groups to address the areas identified above. The work of the ACMD Technical Committee will also include responses to priority requests for advice from Government Departments and considering issues of their own volition.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders: Wales

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many antisocial behaviour orders have been (a) imposed and (b) breached in each police force area in Wales in each year since they were introduced. [270664]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The latest available information on the number of ASBOs issued and breached in Wales goes up to 31 December 2006. The available information is shown in the following tables. The first table shows the number of orders issued (by year and by area) and the second the number of orders breached in each year by area. It is important to note, however, that an ASBO can be issued in one Criminal Justice System (CJS) area and breached in another. Therefore the two tables are not directly comparable.

Table 1P: Number of antisocial behaviour orders issued at all courts, as reported to the Home Office by the Court Service, by CJS area and year, April 1999 to December 2006

Asylum

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps her Department has taken to increase the speed with which asylum applications are handled. [275719]

Mr. Woolas: We are succeeding in our goal of handling applications faster than ever before.

60 per cent. of new cases were concluded within six months by the end of last year. We are committed to conclude 90 per cent. of new asylum cases within six months by 2011.

Carnage UK

Mrs. Betty Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent representations she has received on the activities of Carnage UK. [274635]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office has received no formal representations on the activities of Carnage UK.

Community Relations

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on (a) the long-term aims and (b) the involvement of the Muslim community in the implementation of the revised Contest strategy; and if she will make a statement. [274423]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 11 May 2009]: Discussions were held with all Government Departments involved in countering terrorism. The long-term aim of the Contest strategy is to reduce the risk to the UK and its interests overseas from international terrorism, so that people can go about their lives freely and with confidence. All communities continue to play a role in helping to ensure the success of the strategy by rejecting violent extremism and challenging it. Strong and empowered communities are better equipped to effectively reject the ideology of violent extremism, isolate apologists for terrorism and provide support to vulnerable individuals and institutions.

Crime and Disorder Partnerships

Alun Michael: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions she has had with police commanders on the effectiveness of local crime and disorder partnerships. [275710]

Mr. Coaker: Significant reductions in crime since 1997 have been delivered by local agencies working together in Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships and Community Safety Partnerships. Last week the Home Secretary met local partners from across the country, including the ACPO partnership lead, to discuss the role of effective partnerships in increasing public confidence.

Crime Prevention

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what expenditure under what budgetary headings was incurred by her Department in relation to the Crime Prevention Summit held on 4 February 2009; and what topics were discussed at the summit. [270564]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office incurred £328.76 from the programme budget in relation to the Real Help in Hard Times crime prevention summit on 4 February. The summit discussed how the Government and partners from the statutory, voluntary and private sectors can best work together to stay on the front foot to keep burglary down and reassure the public in more challenging economic circumstances. The actions identified at the summit were announced as the Securing Homes: Action Against Burglary initiative on 7 April.

Criminal Records: EU Nationals

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what protocols her Department has established with each EU member state on monitoring the movement of known criminals. [273617]

Mr. Alan Campbell: There is no agreement between all member states of the European Union to monitor the movements of known criminals within the EU but the UK does contribute to the Europol Information System (EIS), a database where each member state can input details of any known criminal that it wishes to share with other European States. If a person is wanted in any member state, that country can also issue a European arrest warrant which will ensure that if the person comes to the notice of the law enforcement authorities in any member state they can be arrested and returned to the country that issued the European arrest warrant. In addition, SOCA has been appointed to operate the UK Sirene Bureau which will have access to the European wide Schengen Information System. This contains details of all wanted persons throughout the European Union. It is planned that the Sirene Bureau will go live in 2010.

The Interpol Notice system also provides a monitoring facility. Green Notices are used to provide warnings and criminal intelligence about persons who have committed criminal offences, and are likely to repeat those offences in other countries. A Green Notice is often issued by the UK for known travelling sex offenders. The Notice system is not limited to Europe and 187 states have access to it.

The United Kingdom has a Memorandum of Understanding with Ireland to ensure that information is shared between the two countries regarding sex offenders travelling between the two.

Cybercrime

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what further steps are required for ratification by the UK of the European Convention on Cybercrime; and when she expects ratification to be completed. [274071]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government are committed to ratifying the Council of Europe cybercrime convention. We are currently working through the formal UK process of ratification, during which we will lay the required explanatory memorandum before Parliament to obtain approval for ratification. If Parliament agrees to ratification, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office will then commence the formal ratification process with the Council of Europe.

The Government hope to complete the parliamentary process by the summer recess and the Council of Europe process within two months of that.

DNA: Databases

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many and what proportion of profiles of children aged under 10 years-old have been removed from the national DNA database (a) in total and (b) in each police force area; and if she will make a statement. [271104]

Mr. Alan Campbell: On 16 December 2008 the Home Secretary announced that all DNA profiles belonging to children aged under 10 would be removed from the National DNA Database (NDNAD). All such profiles loaded by England and Wales forces have been removed and the profiles of under 10s are no longer retained on the NDNAD.

The following table shows the number of profiles of children aged under 10 removed from the NDNAD since 16 December 2008, broken down by police force area.

Gamma Butyrolactone

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what estimate she has made of the volume of sales of liquid gamma butyrolactone for (a) illicit and (b) non-industrial use in each of the last three years; [272887]

(2) what the legal status of liquid gamma butyrolactone in the UK is; and if she will make a statement; [272888]

(3) what advice she received from the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs on the classification of liquid gamma butyrolactone in (a) 2006, (b) 2007, (c) 2008 and (d) 2009; and if she will make a statement. [272889]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 7 May 2009]: Gamma butyrolactone (GBL) is a precursor chemical. It is not a controlled drug under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971.

The Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs (ACMD) provided advice on the classification of GBL in its 2008 report 'GBL & 1,4-BD: Assessment of Risk to the Individual and Communities in the UK'. This advice can be found at:

http://drugs.homeoffice.gov.uk/publication-search/acmd/report-on-gbl1?view=Binary

This advice followed the ACMD's earlier 2007 report on 'Drug Facilitated Sexual Assault' in which the ACMD undertook to provide further advice on GBL This report can be found at:

http://drugs.homeoffice.gov.uk/publicationsearch/acmd/drugfacilitatedsexualassault/ACMDDFSA.pdf?view=Binary

No advice on GBL was received from the ACMD in either 2006 or in 2009 to date.

The Government will shortly be publishing a three-month public consultation which brings forward options to control GBL and its like precursor chemical, 1,4-butanediol. Consultation will look to elicit a better understanding of the scale and scope of the availability for misuse of GBL and 1,4- butanediol in the UK.

Immigration

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects to make a decision on the immigration case of Mrs Mohinder Kaur. [271298]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 27 April 2009]: The UK Border Agency is currently seeking further information in order to be able to decide this case.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) when she plans to reply to the letter of 22 December 2008 from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Folake Surat Odetunde; [253871]

(2) when she plans to reply to the letter of 22 December 2008 from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton, on Folake Surat Odetunde; [271023]

(3) when she plans to reply to the letter from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton of 22 December 2008, regarding Folake Surat Odetunde. [259873]

Jacqui Smith: I wrote to my right hon. Friend on 11 May 2009.

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she plans to reply to the letter of 23 March 2009 from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Mrs N. Akhtar. [275150]

Jacqui Smith: I wrote to my right hon. Friend on 6 April 2009.

Passports: Overseas Residence

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost is to British nationals resident overseas of renewing their British passports. [270236]

Gillian Merron: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is as follows:

Adult passport: £124

Child passport: £79.

Police: Bureaucracy

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what the current status is of the information reduction pilots in Surrey, Staffordshire, West Midlands and Leicestershire police forces; what assessment has been made of the time each pilot will take to achieve its targets; what analysis has been undertaken of the resultant savings in police officer time; and what plans she has for further roll-out of such schemes; [272986]

(2) whether the target date set for national roll out of the shortened crime recording and stop and account procedures has been met. [272987]

Jacqui Smith: The proportionate crime recording pilots are now complete, and the National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA) expects to complete their evaluation next month. The interim findings have highlighted the potential benefits, with Staffordshire police reporting a reduction of up to 80 per cent. of the time it takes to record 80 per cent. of incidents.

I announced on 22 December 2008 that, following the pilots, all forces in England and Wales should now be working to replicate these significant savings by streamlining their crime recording processes, and we are supporting forces in their efforts to do so.

On 1 January 2009 PACE Code A was amended in respect of recording Stop and Account, to remove the requirement to record data other than on ethnicity.

Police: Complaints

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if she will bring forward proposals to require individual police forces to (a) accept, (b) respond to and (c) implement in full recommendations made by the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC); and what (i) representations she has received from and (ii) discussions she has had with (A) police forces, (B) the IPCC and (C) members of the public on this issue; [273868]

(2) if she will bring forward proposals to monitor the responses of police forces to the findings of the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) which affect them; what recent discussions she has had with the IPCC on this issue; and if she will make a statement; [273882]

(3) if she will bring forward proposals to require the Independent Police Complaints Commission to inform her Department of the number of recommendations made by the Commission which have been (a) rejected and (b) implemented by the police force to which they are addressed; and if she will make a statement; [274052]

(4) how long on average police authorities have taken to make a response to recommendations of the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) in each of the last three years; what recent discussions she has had with (a) the IPCC and (b) police authorities on this issue; and if she will make a statement. [273883]

Mr. Coaker: The information sought is not currently collected or held by the Home Office or the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC).

The Public Accounts Committee's 15th report on the Independent Police Complaints Commission published on 31 March 2009, recommended that the Home Office should clarify who is responsible for monitoring the implementation of IPCC recommendations. We are working with the IPCC to take the recommendation forward.

Police: Standards

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what practical steps are being taken to align the performance targets of police forces and the Crown Prosecution Service; and what timetable has been set for such changes. [273032]

Jacqui Smith: The Home Office no longer sets top down numerical targets for the police (with the exception of a single target to raise public confidence) and local target setting is therefore a matter for local criminal justice boards (LCJBs). The Police and the Crown Prosecution Service (CPS), along with other partners, are members of LCJBs which co-ordinate criminal justice planning and activity at the local level. LCJBs are required to agree local targets to improve their efficiency and effectiveness in bringing crime, in particular the most serious acquisitive, sexual and violent offences to justice.

Powers of Entry

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether Lord West's review of powers of entry will extend to reviewing the existing powers of entry of bailiffs. [271281]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The review covers powers of entry provided for by statute and aims to establish a framework of powers to ensure that the right balance is achieved between the statutory investigative and enforcement functions of relevant organisations and safeguards and protections for the public. Existing powers of entry and associated provisions and safeguards can be found at:

http://police.homeoffice.gov.uk/operational-policing/powers-pace-codes/powers-of-entry-review/

The review is expected to report in autumn 2009.

Details on the role of bailiffs can be found at:

http://www.direct.gov.uk/en/MoneyTaxAndBenefits/ManagingDebt/DebtsAndArrears/DG_10034289

Racially Aggravated Offences: Young People

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many racist incidents involving persons under the age of 18 years were reported to the police in each of the last five years; [273575]

(2) how many reports police forces received of racist incidents in schools in each of the last five years. [273576]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information requested is not collected centrally. The Ministry of Justice collect and publish statistics of racist incidents by police force area. However, no information is available on the age of either the victim or the alleged offender or on the location of the incident.

Retail Trade: Crime

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress her Department has made towards the introduction of a specific measurement of commercial (a) robbery and (b) burglary. [274956]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 12 May 2009]: The Commercial Victimisation Survey (CVS) has been conducted by the Home Office on two occasions—once in 1994 and again in 2002. The Home Office have recently commissioned a study to consider and make recommendations about the coverage and methodology of a further survey of crime against commercial victims. This will report later in the year and inform decisions about the scope of another survey.

Serious Organised Crime Agency: Manpower

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff of the Serious and Organised Crime Agency are based overseas. [274004]

Mr. Alan Campbell: As of 30 April 2009, there were 140 staff employed by the Serious Organised Crime Agency based overseas.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps his Department is taking to ensure that detention facilities run by international military forces in Afghanistan meet the standards required under international law in the treatment of women and children. [275861]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Ministry of Defence can only answer this question in respect of UK run facilities.

The UK takes its human rights obligations very seriously and has policy and procedures in place regarding the standards within military detention facilities. All our facilities are regularly inspected to ensure that they meet our obligations under international law. The ICRC and the Afghan Independent Human Rights Commission have access to all the UK's operational detention facilities in Afghanistan.

When any females or juveniles are detained they are separated from male prisoners and/or adult prisoners, unless they are housed with family members. All persons, especially those under 18 are only detained if absolutely essential and in Afghanistan, detainees are held for a maximum of 96 hours before being released or transferred to the Afghan authorities.

Armed Forces: Aviation

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many charter flights to theatres of operation have taken place in each year since 2003, broken down by (a) location, (b) type of aircraft and (c) reason for flight. [275054]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Charter flights to theatres of operation in Iraq and Afghanistan since 2003 are:

Op Telic IRAQ

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department has spent on charter flights to each destination in each theatre of operation in each year since 2003. [275055]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The spend on charter flights to Iraq and Afghanistan since 2003 is:

Armed Forces: Labour Turnover

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average length of service of personnel opting for voluntary outflow from the armed forces was in the latest period for which figures are available. [275181]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Information on the length of service of armed forces personnel from 2006-07 onwards is currently unavailable since the introduction of the joint personnel administration system.

The following table provides the average length of service (in years) of personnel who voluntary outflowed from the trained UK Regular Forces in the financial year 2005-06.

Years

Service	Officers	Other ranks
All Services	15.0	9.4
Navy	16.1	10.1
Army	13.2	7.9
RAF	18.5	12.6

UK Regular Forces excludes Gurkhas, full-time reserve personnel and mobilised reservists.

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of servicemen and women leaving the armed forces in each of the last seven years had combat experience. [275182]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Information on servicemen and women leaving the armed forces who had combat experience is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what percentage of force elements have reported (a) no serious weaknesses, (b) no critical weaknesses and (c) no serious or critical weaknesses against required peacetime readiness levels in each of the last four quarters; [275014]

(2) what percentage of force elements have reported no serious or critical weaknesses against the ability to deploy, sustain and recover force elements at the most demanding level of the Defence Planning Assumptions for contingent operations in each of the last four quarters; [275015]

(3) what percentage of force elements have reported (a) no serious weaknesses, (b) no critical weaknesses and (c) no serious or critical weaknesses against the ability to move from peacetime readiness to immediate readiness for deployment on operations in each of the last four quarters. [275016]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: We have previously sought to measure our ability to bring force elements from their peacetime readiness levels up to the level required to deploy on potential contingent operations at the most demanding scale of effort, known as force generation, and to deploy them on such operations, sustain them there and recover them to their home base thereafter. This system has been predicated on the assumption that, for the most part, the armed forces will be operating below the concurrency level envisaged in defence planning assumptions and that they should therefore be working to maintain their capacity to deploy on potential contingent operations. The longer we have been operating above that concurrency level, the more theoretical this has become. By definition we have consistently, over several years, been successfully generating, deploying, sustaining and recovering force elements above the long term concurrency levels assumed in our long term planning. The metrics we have been using to measure and report our hypothetical capability have consequently provided little or no meaningful management information. We are therefore working to develop a more useful way of measuring and reporting performance in this area for the time when the operational tempo has reduced and the forces structure is recuperated to the point where it is appropriate once more to seek to measure our contingent as opposed to our current capability.

Statistical reporting against the graduated readiness profiles is published in the MOD public service agreement reports. The most recent report, setting out the Q3 2008-09 position, was published on the MOD website on 5 May 2009 and can be found at the following link:

http://www.mod.uk/DefenceInternet/AboutDefence/CorporatePublications/FinancialReports/ModPublicServiceAgreementQuarterReportsapril2008ToMarch2011.htm

The critical and serious weakness scores, as published, for each of the last four quarters are provided in the following table.

	No serious weakness	No critical weakness	Percentage No serious or critical weakness
Q4 2007-08	55	92	49
Q1 2008-09	48	92	39
Q2 2008-09	49	92	42
Q3 2008-09	50	93	43

Armed Forces: Mental Health Services

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the relationship between experience of combat and evidence of psychological wounding; [275184]

(2) what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the relationship between levels of psychological wounding of service personnel and the number of contacts with the enemy. [275185]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Department fully supports the need for high quality research which examines the psychological health of personnel engaged on operational duties. The King's Centre for Military Health Research (KCMHR) and Academic Centre for Defence Mental Health website www.kcl.ac.uk/kcmhr

contains links to a wide range of individual research papers. The 2006 KCMHR 10-year report provides a particularly useful summary of research during the first 10 years since its foundation in 1996. These studies examine the psychological health of Armed Forces personnel and veterans including intensity of operations, but there is no specific study of psychological health correlated with number of contacts.

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will introduce psychometric screening as part of the service discharge medical examinations for all military personnel. [276063]

Mr. Kevan Jones: A discharge medical assessment is undertaken 90 days prior to discharge. This detailed examination is undertaken by a doctor and the results are recorded on the individual's F-Med-1 form. This form contains a specific assessment of the mental capacity and emotional stability of the individual. A reassessment is carried out seven days prior to discharge to confirm the record or reflect any further changes.

A summary of each individual's medical history while in the armed forces, including the results of the discharge medical, is recorded on an F-Med-133 form which is given to the individual to pass on to their civilian GP. The F-Med-133 also contains information on how the GP can gain access to the individual's complete service medical records if required.

Armed Forces: Pay

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what levels of Operational Allowance are payable to troops in (a) Afghanistan, (b) Iraq and (c) each other country in which Operational Allowance is payable. [275455]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The operational allowance is paid at the same rate for all qualifying locations. The allowance amounts to £2,380 for a six month operational tour, equating to £13.08 per day. Operational allowance is paid at a flat rate, recognising that all service personnel serving in the most challenging and dangerous operational circumstances are facing a broadly similar risk. The operational allowance is paid to all service personnel (regular, mobilised reserves and those on full-time reserve service) who are serving in specified operational locations, predominantly Afghanistan, Iraq and Iraqi territorial waters.

Entitlement is also extended to those undertaking flying sorties over or into Iraq and Afghanistan.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost has been of upgrades to the Panther Command and Liaison vehicle in the last 12 months. [276177]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The Panther Command and Liaison vehicle has been modified under an urgent operational requirement to a theatre entry standard appropriate for deployment to operations in Afghanistan, at a cost of approximately £20 million.

Ascension Island

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the estimated value is of each of his Department's properties on Ascension Island; and when the last valuation was carried out. [276174]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Ministry of Defence has some 200 individual property assets on Ascension Island recorded on its asset registers ranging from stores to accommodation blocks. Valuations are carried out on a rolling five-year basis based on the depreciated replacement cost of the assets. The last formal valuation of the assets was carried out in 2005-06 and the next will take place during 2010-11.

The assets on Ascension Island valued at more than £1 million in 2005-06 were disclosed as part of the 2007 National Asset Register which is available on the HM Treasury website, with a total value at that time of £25.7 million.

Clyde Submarine Base

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when his Department plans to change to Faslane the homeport of (a) HMS Trenchant, (b) HMS Talent and (c) HMS Triumph, and when each vessel will have its mid-commission major maintenance period. [275219]

Mr. Quentin Davies: HMS Trenchant, HMS Talent and HMS Triumph will transfer progressively to HM Naval Base Clyde between 2014 and 2017 upon completion of their mid commission major maintenance periods.

Departmental Billing

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies paid in interest to suppliers under the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998 in the last three years for which figures are available. [275205]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Information on interest paid to suppliers under the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998 is published in the Ministry of Defence Annual Report and Accounts. Payments made in the last three years are provided in the following table:

2005-06	14,709
2006-07	8,603
2007-08	9,956

The information contained in the table does not include those interest payments made by the four MOD Trading Funds. This information is summarised as follows.

In 2007-08 Defence Science and Technology Laboratory (DSTL) made interest payments totalling £15,783. No interest payments have been recorded for 2005-06 or 2006-07.

The UK Hydrographic Office does not separately record details of interest paid to suppliers and this information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The Meteorological Office and Defence Support Group have no record of any payments being made to suppliers in the last three years in respect of interest arising under the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998.

Departmental Reviews

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) review and (b) taskforce projects his Department has commissioned in each of the last five years; what the purpose of each such project is; when each such project (i) began and (ii) was completed; what the cost of each such project was; and if he will make a statement. [275984]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Department keeps all of its business under regular review. As a result, a wide range of reviews are in hand at any given time. Information on these is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Vehicles

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many white fleet contract cars his Department owns; [275228]

(2) how many civilian vehicles owned by his Department are based at each of its estates. [275229]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The Ministry of Defence does not own any White Fleet contract cars. We do, however, have two lease agreements in place for the provision of the majority of non-operational cars (White Fleet Vehicles). As at 12 May 2009 there were 8,376 cars leased under the UK and British Forces Germany White Fleet contracts.

Under the UK White Fleet contract, the number of vehicles (including vans, trailers, minibuses, motorbikes and coaches) based at each of the estates in England, Scotland and Wales is currently 15,228. The breakdown of this information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

European Fighter Aircraft

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent estimate he has made of the through-life running cost per aircraft of the Tranche 3 Eurofighter in each year of operation. [275270]

Mr. Quentin Davies: This matter is currently the subject of negotiations with our partner nations and industry.

Ex-servicemen

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will consider the merits of conducting a veterans' population study analysis similar to that undertaken by the US administration following the Vietnam War. [276062]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Ministry of Defence has commissioned a number of studies into veterans' issues and we will continue to do so.

Kenya: Piracy

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what seized property has been transferred to the Kenyan authorities by the EU-led naval force under the Provisions of Transfer of Suspected Pirates and Seized Property published in the Official Journal of the European Union of 25 March 2009; and if he will make a statement. [273355]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Operation Atalanta is an EU led operation and the operational detail requested is held by the EU Operation Commander for Atalanta, who reports to EU member states sitting in the Political and Security Committee in Brussels.

The EU-led naval force (EUNAVFOR), Operation Atalanta, where practicable, has handed over seized property such as skiffs (small boats) and other pirate related paraphernalia such as ladders, buoys and weapons. In some cases the skiffs and weaponry have been destroyed by the detaining ship for navigational and safety of life reasons. All of the incidents in which suspected pirates have been detained by EUNAVFOR are currently being prosecuted by the Kenyan authorities and therefore a more specific answer is not possible without jeopardising the court proceedings.

Land Mines

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many service personnel have been (a) killed and (b) injured as a result of landmine detonation in each theatre in each of the last 12 months. [275231]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I am withholding the information as its disclosure would, or would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Navy

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 6 May 2009, Official Report, columns 16-18WS, on maritime change programme, when he expects (a) the Strategic Environmental Assessment and (b) the Submarine Dismantling Project to be completed. [274734]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The main element of the strategic environmental assessment (SEA) will be completed when the formal public consultation has ended and the MOD has published its response to the consultation findings. This is currently scheduled for spring 2010.

In accordance with statutory guidance, however, the SEA will not have a formal completion date, as monitoring of significant environmental effects will be ongoing throughout the life of the Submarine Dismantling Project (SDP).

The SDP is planned to run until circa 2060 when the intermediate level waste from all 27 submarines included in the project has been sent to the proposed National Geological Disposal Facility.

Nimrod Aircraft

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Nimrod fuel defects have been reported in each year since 2003. [275010]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: We have interpreted 'fuel defects' to mean fuel leaks. The number of fuel leaks reported on the RAF Nimrod fleet since 2006 are stated in the following table.

Information on the number of fuel leaks prior to 2006 is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

	Number of fuel leaks
2006	170
2007	[1]278
2008	146
2009	[2]20

Notes:
1. Includes one fuel leak reported since the figure given in the written answer on 22 July 2008,Official Report, columns 1060-1061W.
[2] Up until 31 March, the last full month for which validated data are available.
[3] A fuel leak is defined as any leakage of fuel from aircraft couplings, pipes or fuel tanks.
[4] These figures do not include fuel leaks which are caused by scheduled maintenance activity, as we disturb the fuel system. In these cases, the leak is both caused and rectified while on the ground.

Pakistan: Military Aid

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much aid was given to Pakistan for military purposes between 1997 and 2008. [273848]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The MOD provides military advice and assistance to Pakistan as part of normal security co-operation, as it does with many countries worldwide.

Rosyth Dockyard

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment his Department has made of the effect on Rosyth Dockyard of the implementation of the Maritime Change Programme. [275488]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 14 May 2009]: Rosyth dockyard, which is owned and operated by Babcock, currently has a strong order book of MOD work: it is a key location for surface ship upkeep work through the Surface Ship Support Programme and is at the heart of the build programme for the two new Queen Elizabeth Class aircraft carriers.

As work on the new aircraft carrier programme at Rosyth increases, it is envisaged that deep maintenance surface ship work will be predominately undertaken at Devonport dockyard (which is also owned by Babcock). This is to ensure best use of industry wide resources.

Somalia: Piracy

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps is he taking to protect UK-registered vessels in the Gulf of Aden from pirate attacks. [272958]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There has been much collaboration and co-operation between the UK shipping industry, the military and from across Government.

The UK military is working alongside the shipping industry to provide safe passage of traffic in the Gulf of Aden. International naval forces are expending significant effort on counter-piracy operations, and are playing a role in protecting vulnerable shipping. For instance, the UK-commanded EU naval operation is utilising an internationally recognised transit corridor through the Gulf of Aden. All merchant shipping, including UK-registered vessels, are encouraged to use this route.

Best practice guidelines have been agreed with industry bodies on speed, self-protection, and registration with the Maritime Security Centre (Horn of Africa) website.

Those ships registered with the website and following best practice have been considerably more successful in evading pirate attacks.

Moreover, the UK Maritime Trade Office acts as the interface between merchant shipping and the military, and has become the focal point for UK-registered vessels seeking advice and guidance.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent discussions has he had with the US administration on the activities of pirates off the coast of Somalia. [272959]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: We have worked closely with the US in the Gulf region for many years, and continue to do so to tackle piracy. The Combined Maritime Force, which conducts maritime security operations, including counter-piracy and counter-terrorism, is commanded by a US Admiral with a UK Royal Navy deputy.

In response to the recent increase in pirate activity, we have engaged with the US along military and diplomatic channels in order to develop a comprehensive approach, as part of an international response.

We also work closely with the US and other parties through the international Contact Group on Piracy off the Coast of Somalia (CGPCS). As part of this, the UK chaired a separate working group on 7-8 May 2009 to continue discussions on military co-ordination and capability building in the region. The meeting was attended by other members of the CGPCS as well as industry representatives.

TREASURY

Adjudicator's Office

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many complaints made to the Adjudicator's Office were outstanding on 22 April 2009; and if he will make a statement. [271783]

Mr. Timms: On 27 April 2009 there were 2,029 complaints yet to be settled.

Banks: Finance

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent estimate he has made of the administration costs of the Asset Protection Scheme in 2008-09; and if he will make a statement. [266087]

Ian Pearson: Figures for the Treasury's spending in 2008-09 will be available in the Department's resource accounts 2008-09 after the conclusion of the Comptroller and Auditor General's audit.

The cost of establishing the asset protection scheme will be shared between the banks participating in the scheme.

John Mann: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what provision he has made for the repayment of sums paid to support UK banks in each of the next six years. [271770]

Ian Pearson: Under the recapitalisation scheme announced on 8 October 2008, the Government have to date invested a total of £37 billion in Lloyds Banking Group (Lloyds) and the Royal Bank of Scotland Group (RBS). There will be further investment alongside their participation in the Asset Protection Scheme.

The Government's shareholdings in RBS and Lloyds are managed on a commercial basis by UK Financial Investments Ltd (UKFI). UKFI's objective is to protect and create value for the taxpayer as shareholder with due regard to the maintenance of financial stability, and consistent with HM Treasury's stated aim that it should not be a permanent investor in UK financial institutions.

Banks: Iran

Mr. Hague: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps his Department has taken to implement the provisions in UN Security Council Resolution 1747 of 2007 on the prevention of new grants, financial assistance and concessional loans to the Government of Iran, other than for humanitarian and developmental purposes. [270988]

David Miliband: In line with paragraph seven of UN Security Council Resolution 1747, adopted on 24 March 2007, the Government make available no new grants, financial assistance or concessional loans to the Government of Iran.

Banks: Regulation

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what changes he plans to make to the arrangements for (a) registration, (b) supervision and (c) accountability of credit rating agencies in light of the Turner Report on the regulatory response to the global banking crisis. [267591]

Ian Pearson: The Government support registration and supervision of credit rating agencies. The European Commission proposed a regulation of credit rating agencies in November 2008. Following negotiation the Council of the European Union and the European Parliament both adopted the text of the regulation in April 2009, as envisaged by the Turner Review. The regulation is expected to enter into force later this calendar year.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to amend the regulatory regime applying to the banking sector following the economic downturn. [275555]

Angela Eagle: As stated in Budget 2009: Building Britain's future, the Government will issue a paper on renewing financial markets for the long term before the summer recess. This will include proposals to strengthen financial services regulation, and build on the work of the Turner Review as well as action taken at an international level.

Coinage

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many pound sterling coins he estimates are in circulation in the United Kingdom. [275608]

Ian Pearson: The information requested can be found on the Royal Mint's website at:

http://www.royalmint.com/Corporate/facts/circulation.aspx

Departmental ICT

Tim Loughton: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on how many and what proportion of computers in his Department malware was detected in 2008. [275395]

Angela Eagle: Malware was detected, and safely removed from, four of the Treasury's total of approximately 1,600 computers during 2008.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much has been spent on (a) departmental Christmas parties and (b) staff entertainment in the last three years. [243745]

Angela Eagle: For information on departmental Christmas parties, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1669W, to the hon. Member for Runnymede and Weybridge (Mr. Hammond).

Treasury staff have organised a number of grass roots events in the period concerned. Those are self-funding and details of costs are not available.

Departmental Postal Services

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many items of correspondence his Department sent by (a) Royal Mail and (b) other commercial delivery services in each of the last five years; and what the reasons were for the use of delivery services other than Royal Mail. [264524]

Angela Eagle: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer that I gave him on 23 July 2007, Official Report, columns 662-63W. The table provides the figures for subsequent years.

	Number of items sent by Royal Mail	Number of items sent by other commercial delivery services
2007[1]	86,391	186
2008	54,371	470

[1] From this year, HM Treasury combined its postal services with the Office of Government Commerce, which moved into the Treasury building in September 2007.

Departmental Training

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether his Department has provided voice coaching to any of its employees in the last 12 months. [260645]

Angela Eagle: The information requested is not available. HM Treasury only holds records centrally of core training provision, which does not include this type of training. Details of other training provided or funded locally could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

EU Budget

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he plans to have discussions with his EU partners on reassessing the UK's contributions to the EU budget. [274674]

Ian Pearson: No timetable has yet been set for the commencement of discussions on the next financial perspective.

The arrangements by which member states finance the EC Budget are set out in the European Communities' Own Resources Decision. A new Own Resources Decision was agreed in June 2007 and has since been ratified by all member states in accordance with their own constitutional requirements. In the UK, ratification was by means of a European Communities (Finance) Bill which was taken through both Houses between 7 November 2007 and 18 February 2008 receiving Royal Assent on 19 February 2008.

Non-domestic Rates

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's analysis of the (a) 2005, (b) 2000, (c) 1995 and (d) 1990 non-domestic rating lists rateable values by (i) detailed property type by country, (ii) property type and (iii) region and property type; [271835]

(2) if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's analysis of the distribution of changes in rateable value by (a) property type and (b) region between the (i) 2005 and 2000, (ii) 2000 and 1995 and (iii) 1995 and 1990 non-domestic rating lists; [271836]

(3) if he will place in the Library a copy of the Valuation Office Agency's (VOA) (a) primary description code and (b) special category code analysis by (i) economic region, (ii) billing authority and (iii) VOA group office of the movements in rateable value between the (A) 2000 and 2005, (B) 1995 and 2000 and (C) 1990 and 1995 rating lists. [276110]

Mr. Timms: The analysis and distribution of changes by ratable value by property type for 2005 and 2000 are available on the Valuation Office Agency's website at:

http://www.voa.gov.uk/business_rates/DraftListStats/index.htm.

The 1995 and 1990 information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Revenue and Customs: Closures

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) which HM Revenue and Customs offices are planned to close under the Workforce Change programme; [273237]

(2) which HM Revenue and Customs offices originally scheduled for closure under the Workforce Change programme are now planned to stay open; and for what reasons in each case. [273330]

Mr. Timms: The aim of HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) Workforce Change regional review programme was to match its accommodation with its future business needs. The following table provides a list of the HMRC offices announced for closure under the regional review programme. Decisions made to close these offices remain unchanged.

HMRC has however looked again at the timing of the closures of a number of these offices in the light of budgetary constraints, and has decided that the vacation of some offices will not now take place in 2009-10 as originally planned. This does not affect the strategic decision to close these buildings, which HMRC aims to complete in 2010-11.

Where an office housing an inquiry centre closes, the inquiry centre services will be retained at or near the current location so face to face services to HMRC's customers will not be affected.

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many HM Revenue and Customs offices are planned for closure in the next 12 months. [275485]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs plans to vacate 58 properties during 2009-10, and of these 47 are offices. It will reduce the size of a further 70 offices by relinquishing space that is no longer needed.

Royal Bank of Scotland: Finance

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much money the Government has provided to the Royal Bank of Scotland in the last 12 months. [267761]

Ian Pearson: Following the conversion of the Treasury's £5 billion preference shares to ordinary shares, announced on 19 January 2009 and completed on 14 April 2009, the Government have now invested £20.3 billion in the Royal Bank of Scotland (RBS) (including additional amounts to cover the accrued dividend on the repurchased preference shares, and the underwriting fee on the new ordinary shares).

With RBS' participation in the asset protection scheme, the Government will make a further investment of £19.5 billion, and will make available a further £6 billion at RBS's option.

Tax Avoidance

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will bring forward legislative proposals to (a) make illegal the design and promotion of schemes intended solely or mainly as a vehicle for tax avoidance and (b) establish penalties for all those involved in the design and promotion of such schemes. [275881]

Mr. Timms: Tax avoidance has the potential to damage the public finances and the provision of public services in the UK. For this reason, HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) monitors tax avoidance closely at all times.

Since 1997, the Government have been taking steps to tackle avoidance, by reforming the tax system, closing loopholes and introducing the disclosure regime. Anti-avoidance measures brought in as a result of the disclosure rules have closed over £11 billion in avoidance opportunities. The disclosure regime ensures that should further avoidance schemes emerge, the Government can quickly take action to protect tax revenues.

The Government agree that more action is still needed to mitigate the effects of tax avoidance. Budget 2009 sets out measures to close down avoidance schemes, including principles-based legislation on financial product avoidance, the successful introduction of which could facilitate this approach being applied to other areas, and work to further extend and improve the disclosure regime. These measures raise over £1 billion during the period 2009-10 to 2011-12, and protect a further £3 billion per year of tax receipts by 2010-11. The Government keep the need for further measures under review.

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will bring forward legislative proposals for a general anti-tax avoidance provision on the Australian equitable model or a similar model. [275882]

Mr. Timms: The Government consulted extensively on the possibility of a general anti-avoidance rule in 1998. Based on the outcome of that consultation, we made the decision not to introduce such a rule at that time, although the situation would be kept under review. That position is unchanged.

Tax Collection

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on how many occasions HM Revenue and Customs has accepted money from taxpayers other than in response to a demand for payment of tax in the last 12 months. [276101]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is not available, as HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) systems do not separately identify those payments received before and after formal demands have been issued.

Much of the operation of the tax system depends on payments being made to HMRC other than in response to a demand for payment. This would include, for example, payments where the taxpayer makes a self-assessment, payments that employers make throughout the year of the amounts due under PAYE, payments on account or in advance of future liabilities and payments in respect of VAT due from traders.

Tax Havens

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he expects the tax information exchange agreements sought by the G20 to be in operation. [274411]

Mr. Timms: In keeping with the G20 London summit communiqué, we expect swift implementation of the international standard of exchange of information by all countries. The G20 summit stated its readiness to apply sanctions against countries that fail to implement the international standard. G20 Leaders and Finance Ministers will meet again this year to review progress on commitments.

Taxation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the ruling on the capping of input tax claims by HM Revenue and Customs, what refund payments have now been made to each local authority; and what the total estimated Exchequer liability is for such payments. [275758]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) does not disclose the details of individual taxpayers, so I am unable to provide details of refunds paid to each local authority in light of legal rulings on the capping of input tax. No specific estimate of the total liability to the Exchequer for such payments to local authorities is available.

Valuation Office: ICT

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on what date the Valuation Office Agency's automated valuation model was last calibrated. [275757]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) on 6 May 2008, Official Report, column 828W.

Valuation Office: Rightmove

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much the Valuation Office Agency (a) paid Rightmove.co.uk in 2008-09 and (b) plans to pay to that company in 2009-10. [275767]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 12 March 2009, Official Report, columns 723-24W.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Peterborough (Mr. Jackson) of 10 March 2009, Official Report, column 262W, on the Valuation Office: Rightmove, for what reasons the contract with Rightmove.co.uk and HM Revenue and Customs, on behalf of the Valuation Office Agency, was extended; and whether the contract will be extended into 2010. [275851]

Mr. Timms: The contract between HM Revenue and Customs and Rightmove was extended because it provides good value for money by reducing the need for Valuation Office Agency (VOA) staff to visit properties in order to undertake their functions. It also allows the VOA to source the information it needs at minimal inconvenience to taxpayers. There is no provision in the contract for extension into 2010.

VAT: Bingo

John Hemming: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the annual revenue which would be forgone by the Exchequer from the removal of value added tax on mainstage bingo. [258691]

Mr. Timms: It is estimated that the removal of value added tax on mainstage bingo would forego around £20 million in revenue in 2009-10. This includes the impact of value added tax removal on excise duty revenues from bingo and other gambling sectors.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Developing Countries: Climate Change

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to assist developing countries tackle the adverse effects of climate change. [274715]

Mr. Thomas: Information on the Department for International Development's (DFID) climate change policy and the steps being taken are available on the DFID website:

http://www.dfid.gov.uk/Global-Issues/How-we-fight-Poverty/Climate-and-Environment/Climate-Change/What-DFID-is-doing/

Developing Countries: HIV Infection

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department's policy is on measures to tackle HIV/AIDS in the developing world; and if he will make a statement. [275001]

Mr. Thomas: In June 2008 the UK Government launched "Achieving Universal Access"—the UK's strategy for halting and reversing the spread of HIV in the developing world. This is available in the Library of the House and on the DFID web-site:

www.dfid.gov.uk.

Pakistan: Armed Conflict

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what reports he has received on the humanitarian situation in the Swat Valley region of Pakistan following the recent conflict between Pakistani security forces and the Taliban; and what assistance the Government plan to provide to displaced civilians in that conflict zone. [275536]

Mr. Michael Foster: The UK Government are deeply concerned by the growing humanitarian crisis in the Swat Valley and neighbouring districts. We are in close discussion with the Government of Pakistan, humanitarian agencies and other donors to monitor the situation. The number of registered people displaced by the conflict now stands at over 1 million and this figure is sill growing. The United Nations (UN) is currently revising its appeal to meet the needs of up to 1.5 million people. The Department for International Development (DFID) has so far provided £12 million for humanitarian assistance to help those who have been displaced from their homes. This includes £10 million that was released at the end of April. Our funds are being used to provide shelter, water, sanitation, food and medical services. We will take a decision about the provision of further support once the revised humanitarian appeal is launched next week and funding gaps are clear.

Palestinians: Politics and Government

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his most recent assessment is of the humanitarian situation in Gaza. [275062]

Mr. Michael Foster: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to the hon. Member for Ealing, Southall (Mr. Sharma) on 13 May 2009, Official Report, column 855W.

Sri Lanka: Armed Conflict

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what reports he has received of the nature of the screening process for Tamil people displaced by the conflict in the north of the country upon entering the camps established by the government of Sri Lanka; and if he will make a statement. [275315]

Mr. Michael Foster: Security screening for civilians escaping the conflict zone initially takes place in an area of the Vanni to which no international humanitarian agencies have access. Secondary screening takes place at Omantai checkpoint where the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees has only limited access to observe the screening process. There is no established security screening process in the IDP camps and there are reports of people being removed for questioning and detention. This lack of international observation continues to cause concern and the UK Government have repeatedly called for full access for international humanitarian agencies to assist and protect all displaced people on their journey to the camps.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many UN High Commission for Refugees (a) emergency and (b) field monitoring experts have been granted access to former battle areas in the conflict in the northern region of Sri Lanka. [275324]

Mr. Michael Foster: The United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) has not had a permanent presence in the Vanni since September 2008 when the Government of Sri Lanka required all UN agencies and NGOs to leave. Until January 2009 there were occasional visits of UNHCR personnel aboard humanitarian convoys into the Vanni. But since January there has been no UNHCR access to the Vanni except restricted access to the IDP security screening centre at Omantai checkpoint. The UK Government have repeatedly called for full UN access to the conflict zone, and for a UN team to be allowed to make a full humanitarian assessment of the needs there. The UN Secretary General's Chief of Staff, Vijay Nambiar, went to Sri Lanka on 15 May to press for full humanitarian access and respect for international humanitarian standards.

Sri Lanka: Internally Displaced Persons

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent estimate he has made of the number of Tamil people who have been able to return to their homes in former battle areas in the conflict in the northern region of Sri Lanka. [275320]

Mr. Michael Foster: Only a few hundred people have been able to return to their homes in Mannar district—formerly longer term residents of two small camps which pre-date the present exodus of civilians. The UK Government have consistently pressed the Government of Sri Lanka to abide by its commitment to return 80 per cent. of the new displaced population by the end of the year.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the feasibility of delivering humanitarian aid by sea to Tamil people displaced by the conflict in the northern region of Sri Lanka; and what discussions he has had with the government of Sri Lanka on this matter. [275321]

Mr. Michael Foster: The only deliveries of aid to the conflict zone since February have been made by sea, all under the auspices of the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC). Recently, only very small consignments of 25 tonnes at a time have been possible. The overwhelming constraint is the reluctance of both parties to allow humanitarian access and permit the ICRC ships to enter the zone and unload supplies safely. The UK Government have continually pressed the Government of Sri Lanka to allow full humanitarian access to the conflict zone, including guaranteeing safe passage for a 1,000 tonne vessel which has not been able to return since last unloading on 8 April.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent estimate he has made of the number of camps established by the Sri Lankan Government for Tamil people displaced by the conflict in northern Sri Lanka; and what recent estimate he has made of the number of people (a) in such camps and (b) whose deaths are attributable to conditions in such camps. [275325]

Mr. Michael Foster: As at 12 May 194,303 people have been registered in more than 40 camps for displaced persons. More than 173,000 of these are in Vavuniya, most of them in three very large camps at Menik Farm. The conditions are far from ideal but starting slowly to improve. There are no reliable data available for deaths in the camps or to what extent those could be attributable to the conditions there. By far the greatest concern is the terrible loss of life in the conflict zone and in hospitals overwhelmed with sick and wounded patients.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the compatibility with international standards of the humanitarian conditions of the camps established by the Sri Lankan government for Tamil people displaced by the conflict in the north of Sri Lanka. [275329]

Mr. Michael Foster: In terms of international standards for assistance such as shelter, water and sanitation, food, health and education, the camps started from a very low standard but are gradually improving. Large influxes such as more than 113,000 people in one week made camp conditions very difficult to manage, particularly their sanitation. The UK Government have repeatedly pressed the Government of Sri Lanka to abide by international humanitarian standards and to work with humanitarian agencies to improve both protection and assistance, with a view to meeting their commitment of early return of at least 80 per cent. of the displaced population before the end of the year.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what mechanisms are in place to ensure that humanitarian aid from his Department to assist Tamil people displaced by the conflict in the north of Sri Lanka is not misappropriated; and if he will make a statement. [275330]

Mr. Michael Foster: Department for International Development (DFID) assistance is provided directly only to United Nations and independent humanitarian organisations such as the International Committee of the Red Cross, International Organisation for Migration and reputable international and national NGOs. DFID follows rigorous grant management procedures. Its humanitarian staff in Sri Lanka and London monitor and evaluate its programmes. No DFID humanitarian funding is transferred to the Government of Sri Lanka or any other governmental organisation in Sri Lanka.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent estimate he has made of the number of international aid workers who have access to the camps established by the Sri Lankan government for Tamil people displaced by the conflict in the north of Sri Lanka; and if he will make a statement. [275331]

Mr. Michael Foster: We have no firm figure. Access to Government of Sri Lanka controlled camps was a serious concern earlier this year, especially with regard to non-governmental organisations (NGOs). United Nations (UN) agencies, the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and the International Organisation of Migration (IOM) generally had better access to the camps. The UK Government repeatedly pressed the Government of Sri Lanka for greatly increased access to the camps, especially for NGOs.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent estimate he has made of the number of people in the camps established by the Sri Lankan government for Tamil people displaced by the conflict in the (a) Wanni region and (b) Mullaitivu district who do not have access to humanitarian aid; and if he will make a statement. [275332]

Mr. Michael Foster: Although the situation is far from ideal the 194,303 internally displaced people registered in camps in Vavuniya, Jaffna and Mannar do have access to humanitarian assistance. The situation is improving slowly. However, the population trapped in the conflict zone in Mullaitivu district is almost entirely isolated from any humanitarian assistance. Only the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) has any kind of access and is able only to deliver 25 tonnes of food and other emergency items three times a week to a population of at least 50,000—barely three days of food each week. The UK Government repeatedly press at the highest level for an immediate humanitarian ceasefire to enable the ICRC to evacuate the sick and wounded and to deliver sufficient humanitarian aid.

Sri Lanka: Politics and Government

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent assessment he has made of the humanitarian situation in Sri Lanka; and if he will make a statement. [275067]

Mr. Michael Foster: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Clwyd, West (Mr. Jones) and the hon. Member for Mid-Worcestershire (Peter Luff) on 13 May 2009, Official Report, column 844.

Zimbabwe: Politics and Government

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent steps his Department has taken to meet the need for humanitarian assistance in Zimbabwe. [275063]

Mr. Thomas: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer provided to my hon. Friend the Member for Dundee, West (Mr. McGovern) on 13 May 2009, Official Report, column 841W.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Council Housing

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many new lets there were by (a) local authorities and (b) registered social landlords in each year since 1997. [273402]

Mr. Iain Wright: New lets are defined as the number of lets to new social housing tenants.

New lets are reported by local authorities annually, through the Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix (HSSA), covering the period 1 April to 31 March. The number of new lets made by local authorities in each year since 1996-97 is provided in Table 1.

Departmental Billing

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much (a) her Department and its predecessor and (b) its agencies paid in interest to suppliers under the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998 in the last three years for which figures are available. [275207]

Mr. Khan: The Department and its agencies have made no payments under the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998 in the last three years.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department and its predecessor has spent on (a) conference services and (b) banqueting services in each of the last five years. [274510]

Mr. Khan: The Department has spent the following amount on (a) conference services for the last three years:

	Conference services (£)
2006-07	1,450,377
2007-08	1,836,863
2008-09	1,338,590

Owing to changes to the coding structure on the Department's finance system, figures for earlier years could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The cost of any working meals cannot be disaggregated without disproportionate cost. I refer the hon. Member the answer I gave to the right hon. and learned Member for Devizes (Mr. Ancram) on 27 October 2008, Official Report, column 717W.

Empty Property: Essex

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of properties were vacant in (a) Essex and (b) Castle Point in each of the last five years. [275832]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information requested is provided in the following table.

The table shows the number of empty homes for each year between 2003 and 2008 for Essex and Castle Point with the number of those in the private sector empty for more than six months.

Energy Performance Certificates

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Buckingham of 5 May 2009, Official Report, column 128W, on energy performance certificates, from which organisation her Department has commissioned research relating to the implementation of the EU Energy Performance of Buildings Directive. [275179]

Margaret Beckett: Communities and Local Government has commissioned AECOM (formerly Faber Maunsell) to undertake the research relating to the implementation of the energy performance of buildings directive.

Fire Services: South West

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her latest estimate is of the cost of the South West fire control centre project. [275442]

Mr. Khan: The full business case for the FiReControl project was published on 6 May. This sets out in detail the forecast costs of project implementation, and contains a South West specific annex. Copies of the business case have been placed in the Libraries of the House and can be found on our website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/fire/firecontrolfullbusinesscase

Fire Stations: ICT

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on how many and what proportion of computers in fire stations malware was detected in 2008. [275401]

Mr. Khan: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Housing and Planning Delivery Grant

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of the effect of the recession on the level of housing and planning delivery grant to be paid to each planning authority in 2009-10; and if she will make a statement. [273545]

Mr. Iain Wright: A written ministerial statement on housing and planning delivery grant was made to the House by my right hon. Friend, the Minister for Housing and Planning, on 12 May 2009, Official Report, columns 45-46WS.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much is planned to be spent on housing and planning delivery grant in each of the next three years. [276164]

Mr. Iain Wright: £135 million is to be spent on housing and planning delivery grant in 2009-10 and £200 million in 2010-11. No funding has been agreed beyond the current spending review period.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent on (a) planning delivery grant and (b) the housing and planning delivery grant in each year since 2003. [276166]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information is as follows.

Housing: Low Incomes

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) which HomeBuy agents have suspended applications for MyChoice HomeBuy; [275568]

(2) which regions have filled their MyChoice HomeBuy allocations for 2009-10; and when she expects the scheme to be opened to applicants again. [276163]

Margaret Beckett: Mychoice homebuy providers have fully committed their current funds for the scheme. To date the Government have invested £126 million in the scheme this year and are considering the next steps for funding. In managing the Affordable Housing programme, the Government need to strike the right balance between this scheme and other programmes that support the delivery of new homes, including social rented homes, which also support new supply and jobs. Applicants who are eligible for assistance to purchase a home under my choice homebuy are also eligible for our other homebuy products including homebuy direct and new build homebuy.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on what date the Rent to Homebuy scheme became operational. [276165]

Margaret Beckett: The rent to homebuy scheme became operational on 16 July 2008.

Housing: Rents

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what average (a) local authority, (b) registered social landlord and (c) private sector rental levels were as a percentage of average earnings in each year since 1997. [275949]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 15 May 2009]: Estimates of average rents, for local authority, registered social landlord and private sector tenants, as a percentage of average earnings are given in the following table for each year from 2002 to 2007. Comparable data prior to 2002 are not available.

The estimates are based on average rent data from a number of sources: CLG Housing Subsidy Claim Form; Housing Corporation (now Tenants Services Authority) HAR/10 and RSR; and Survey of English Housing (private rents). For each tenure, the percentage is calculated as the average rent for that tenure divided by the average earnings for England (all tenures).

Inland Waterways: Planning Permission

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what policies her Department has in place for the protection of wharfs north of Prescott Lock from housing development. [275666]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 14 May 2009]: The protection of wharves for river-related use is a matter for the Mayor of London and the relevant local authority, which in this case is the London borough of Newham. The London Plan contains policies to protect a number of safeguarded commercial wharves on the Thames and the Lower Lea and to require referral to the Mayor of any proposals for non river-related uses of these wharves, including housing development. The borough development plans are required to reflect the strategic policies through the inclusion of detailed development control policies. In the case of the Lower Lea, north of Prescotts Lock, there are two safeguarded wharves, Mayer Parry and Priors wharves and these are protected through the saved policies of the Newham Unitary Development Plan of 2001. Change of use of unprotected wharves would be subject to the borough's general policies and, in determining applications for housing development, it would be for the council to judge the suitability of the proposal.

Owner Occupation: Social Mobility

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent research her Department has commissioned on links between home ownership and social mobility. [275556]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department published in February 2007 research on the links between home ownership and social mobility. The final research report is entitled: "Social Mobility and Homeownership: A Risk Assessment—final report" and is available on the Communities and Local Government website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/corporate/newhorizonsresearch

Rented Housing

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what estimate she has made of the percentage of (a) registered social landlord and (b) local authority residential properties which were built before (A) 1919, (B) 1965, (C) 1980 and (D) 1990; [274839]

(2) how many dwellings owned by (a) local authorities and (b) registered social landlords were built prior to 1980. [275580]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following table shows an estimate of the percentage of registered social landlord and local authority residential properties which were built before 1919, 1965, 1981 and 1990, and the number of dwellings owned by local authorities and registered social landlords which were built prior to 1980.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the annual turnover rate of (a) local authority and (b) registered social landlord tenancies was in each region in each year since 1997. [274860]

Mr. Iain Wright: The annual turnover rate has been produced by calculating the number of lettings as a percentage of total stock for each year.

A comparison between the figures provided for local authorities (LAs) and registered social landlords (RSLs) is not possible, because RSL figures cover general needs households, while LA figures also include supported needs.

The amount of local authority stock and number of lettings are reported annually by local authorities through the Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix. Table 1 gives turnover rates by region for all local authority stock for each year since 1997-98.

Repossession Orders: South Yorkshire

Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many home repossessions initiated by (a) building societies and (b) banks there were in (i) Barnsley, (ii) Doncaster and (iii) South Yorkshire in each of the last five years. [275819]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Crosby (Mrs. Curtis-Thomas) on 13 May 2009, Official Report, column 818W.

Social Rented Housing

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will assess the merits of transferring social housing stock from local authority to registered social landlord control. [275482]

Mr. Iain Wright: Local authorities who wish to consider transferring their social housing to a registered social landlord (RSL) need to ensure that there are clear benefits from doing so and that the proposal would have the support of tenants. The Department has published guidance to local authorities, the Housing Transfer Manual 2005 and a 2006 supplement, which sets out the process and assessments required.

The Homes and Communities Agency has a responsibility to consider housing transfer applications from local authorities, and the Tenant Services Authority considers from a regulatory perspective the position of the RSL to whom the housing is proposed to be transferred. Housing transfer only takes place where it has the support of tenants, and has the legal consent of the Secretary of State.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average age of a dwelling owned by a (a) local authority and (b) registered social landlord was in each of the last five years. [275573]

Mr. Iain Wright: Provisional figures for the average age of social housing in England, as at May 2009, are:

(a) Local authority dwellings—53 years;

(b) Housing association dwellings—44 years.

Equivalent statistics for previous years are not available but it should be noted that there is little change in the age profile of the stock from year to year.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) registered social landlords and (b) local authority tenants received a cash incentive to vacate their home in each of the last five years. [276145]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answers I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Regent's Park and Kensington, North (Ms Buck) on 10 March 2009, Official Report, column 322W, and on 24 February 2009, Official Report, columns 554-56W.

Urban Areas: Regeneration

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent steps her Department has taken to provide (a) guidance and (b) assistance to (i) regional and (ii) local organisations in relation to town centre regeneration projects. [275447]

Mr. Khan: On 14 April we published "Looking after our town centres", which sets out the range of powers, guidance and approaches that can help local authorities and their partners promote the vitality and viability of town centres, and explains additional steps that the Government are taking to enable further positive action to be taken, particularly through the temporary use of empty shops.

We also recently issued, for public consultation, "Planning for Prosperous Economies", a new Planning Policy Statement streamlining planning policy for economic development. This includes policy on town centres currently in Planning Policy Statement 6. We are also consulting on associated guidance. Together these will strengthen the Government's "town centre first" policy and support regeneration schemes.

We also set out clear principles for working at regional and local levels when we launched the next stage of the Regeneration Framework on 11 May. This explains the Government's vision for regeneration and the steps we are now taking to keep regeneration moving in the current economic conditions. It takes a holistic approach—ensuring physical, social and economic regeneration are planned and delivered together.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Cold Weather Payments: Fife

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people resident in North-East Fife constituency qualified for cold weather payments in each of the last five years. [270859]

Kitty Ussher: No cold weather payments were triggered for eligible people living in the post code area covering the North-East Fife constituency in the years 2004-05 to 2006-07. Cold weather payments were triggered once for this post code area in 2007-2008 and either once or twice in 2008-09, dependent on the relevant weather station. However, it is not possible to give a figure for the number of people who qualified for a cold weather payment, as this information is not available at constituency level, only by weather station.

Crisis Loans: Essex

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much was paid out in crisis loans by each Essex jobcentre in each year since 2005. [271987]

Kitty Ussher: The information is not available in the format requested. Information on crisis loan expenditure is not available by Jobcentre Plus office.

Foreign Workers

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) non-UK and (b) non-EU citizens applied for a national insurance number in each region in each of the last five years. [268452]

Mr. McNulty: The available information is in the tables.

The statistics show the total number of national insurance numbers allocated—not the number of migrants living in the UK. We know that many people come to work for a short period and then return—the national insurance number statistics do not measure people leaving the UK. They should not be used to make estimates about the number of foreign nationals living in the UK at a particular time.

Housing Benefit

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in England were in receipt of housing benefit on 1 April 2009 in each of the last five years. [275478]

Kitty Ussher: Information is not available for 1 April each year; the available information is in the table.

Number of recipients of housing benefit in England: as at May each year

	Number
2003	3,161,380
2004	3,232,600

Number of recipients of housing benefit in England, as at May each year

	Number
2005	3,314,900
2006	3,358,000
2007	3,401,600

Notes:
1. The data refer to benefit units, which may be a single person or a couple.
2. The figures have been rounded to the nearest hundred.
3. Figures for any non-responding authorities have been estimated.
4. The figures are for May which relate to the second Thursday of May each year.
5. Housing benefit figures exclude any extended payment cases.
6. From February 2007, DWP has been collecting more detailed HB/CTB data electronically from local authorities. Over time this will improve the accuracy, timeliness and level of detail available in the published statistics. However, until the new data have been fully quality assured to National Statistics standards, the most recent summary statistics available are for August 2007.

Housing Benefit: East of England

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people have claimed housing benefit in (a) Cambridgeshire and (b) the East of England in each of the last 10 years. [275224]

Kitty Usher: The available information is in the following table.

Housing benefit recipients in Cambridgeshire and the East of England as at August each year

	Cambridgeshire	East of England
1998	26,700	311,500
1999	24,600	295,500
2000	23,500	275,500

Housing Benefit: Fraud

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many social housing tenants in receipt of housing benefit had their access to benefit withdrawn following a determination that they had been subletting a social home in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [274875]

Kitty Usher: The information is not available.

Jobcentre Plus

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what courses are delivered by Jobcentre Plus programme centres. [271701]

Mr. McNulty: Programme centre provision is delivered via a range of job search modules and soft skill development modules to reflect the needs of employers and the local labour market. Provision is tailored to meet the individual needs of the customer. The following table lists the modules available. However, it is not exhaustive as providers may develop new modules subject to the approval of Jobcentre Plus.

National Insurance

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many applications from (a) British citizens, (b) EU citizens and (c) citizens from countries outside the EU for a national insurance number were received by each office issuing national insurance numbers in London in each of the last five years; how many staff were employed at each such office in each such year; and what the cost was of operating each office in each such year. [268389]

Mr. McNulty: The available information on national insurance number (NINo) registrations in London Government office region is in the table.

NINo registrations to adult overseas nationals entering the UK, in London Government office region by EU/Non-EU status

Financial year	EU nationals	Thousands Non-EU nationals
2003-04	49.49	107.63
2004-05	69.06	100.36
2005-06	106.12	129.09
2006-07	116.43	124.31
2007-08	140.05	132.49

Notes:
1. Figures are rounded to the nearest ten and displayed in thousands. Some additional disclosure control has been applied.
2. Registration date is derived from the date at which a NINo is maintained on the National Insurance Recording System.
3. Government office region improvements have been made to the allocation of migrants whose residential address is incomplete. Figures reflect the best estimate of an overseas national's locality at the time of registering for a NINo.
4. The mapping for "world areas" is based on the present day. Bulgaria and Romania are listed as EU accession states for the entire Back Series. European Union excludes the accession states.
5. Financial year of registration date years are financial based (1 April to 31 March).
6. The latest year that full year data is available is 2007-08. In the first two quarters from April to September 2008, there have been some 69.74 thousand national insurance numbers allocated to EU nationals and 66.4 thousand allocated to non-EU nationals.

Source:
100 per cent. extract from National Insurance Recording System.

The statistics show the number of adult overseas nationals (by Government office region) entering the UK and registering for a NINo in order to work or to claim benefits and tax credits. As such they are one measure of in-migration to the UK. However, they do not represent the number of migrants living in the UK at a point in time, nor are they consistent with estimates of Government office region migrant populations. Nor do they represent the distribution of employment of migrants—as they provide information on where the individual lived at the time they registered for a NINo; they may have since moved.

Information on full-time equivalent staff numbers and operating costs is not collated for each individual office and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Natural Gas: Safety

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the terms of the contract agreed with Capita for the operation of the Gas Safe Register are; what the key performance indicators are; and how (i) performance and (ii) value for money will be reviewed. [276284]

Kitty Ussher: The Services Concession Agreement entered into by the Health and Safety Executive (HSE) with Capita Gas Registration and Ancillary Services Ltd. for the operation of the Gas Safe Register is a commercially confidential document. The performance and value for money of the Gas Safe Register will be measured against eight key performance indicators, which are published on the HSE website.

Parliamentary Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he plans to reply to Question 254755, on cold weather payments, tabled on 3 February 2009; and what the reasons are for the time taken to reply. [271999]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 30 April 2009]: I replied to the hon. Member's question on 13 May 2009, Official Report, columns 866-7W.

Welfare Tax Credits: Lone Parents

Mr. Rooney: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost would be of paying a work-related activity premium of (a) £10, (b) £20 and (c) £30 per week to lone parents with children aged under seven years in 2009-10. [270109]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 22 April 2009]: There are approximately 460,000 lone parents on income support with a youngest child under the age of seven.

Assuming that this remains constant, the annual cost of paying all lone parents with a child aged under seven a work-related activity premium is in the table.

Cost of paying a work-related activity premium to all lone parents on income support with a youngest child under the age of seven

Work-related activity premium	Annual cost (£ million)
£10 per week	240
£20 per week	480
£30 per week	720

Notes:
1. Costs are rounded to the nearest £5 million.
2. Costs depend upon case loads. The average number of lone parents on income support over the last year was 460,000, but higher numbers would mean higher costs, and vice versa.

As this is not Government policy these costs assume all lone parents with a youngest child under the age of seven receive a work-related activity premium.

They reflect only the additional cost of paying the premium, and not any additional costs associated with ensuring additional provision is made available through, for example, the new deal for lone parents programme.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Business: Advisory Services

John Penrose: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what progress has been made in piloting an insured advice helpline for employment and health and safety regulations as referred to in the Government's response to the Anderson Review of Good Guidance. [274368]

Mr. Thomas: In its response to the Anderson Review the Government undertook to develop an approach to this recommendation by spring 2009. We will shortly be making an announcement on our piloting strategy.

Departmental Billing

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much (a) his Department and its predecessor and (b) its agencies paid in interest to suppliers under the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998 in the last three years for which figures are available. [275210]

Mr. Thomas: The Department has made the following payments covering interest for late payment of invoices under the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998:

Financial year	Amount (£)
2006-07	1,116

Prior to the creation of BERR in June 2007, the payments covering interest for late payment of invoices relate to payments made by the Department of Trade and Industry.

I have approached the chief executives of the Insolvency Service and Companies House and they will respond to the hon. Member directly.

Letter from Gareth Jones, dated 18 May 2009:

I am replying on behalf of Companies House to your Parliamentary Question tabled on 8 May 2009, UIN 275210, to the Minister of State for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

Companies House has not paid any interest to suppliers under the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998 in the last three years.

Letter from Stephen Speed, dated 18 May 2009:

The Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform has asked me to reply to your question how much (a) his Department and its predecessor and (b) its agencies paid in interest to suppliers under the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998 in the last three years for which figures are available.

The Insolvency Service Executive Agency of The Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform made no payments of interest to suppliers for late payment of invoices in the last three years.

Departmental Furniture

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much (a) his Department spent on furniture in 2008-09 and (b) his Department's agencies spent on furniture in each of the last five years. [273745]

Mr. Thomas: This Department's published "Annual Report and Accounts" contains information on its tangible fixed assets, which includes an additions category entitled "furniture, fixtures and fittings".

These accounts can be found on the BERR website at the following address:

www.berr.gov.uk.

Information for 2008-09 is still subject to audit and will be published in the 2008-09 Annual Report and Accounts on 17 July 2009.

I have approached the chief executives of the Insolvency Service and Companies House and they will respond to the hon. Member directly.

Letter from Gareth Jones, dated 18 May 2009:

I am replying on behalf of Companies House to your Parliamentary Question tabled on 5 May 2009, UIN 273745, to the Minister of State for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

Companies House has spent the following amounts on furniture in the last five years:

Financial Year	Amount (£)
2004-05	548,761
2005-06	83,999
2006-07	37,406
2007-08	41,554
2008-09	12,825

The high costs in 2004-05 and 2005-06 were as a result of establishing a new office in Nantgarw, north of Cardiff.

Letter from Stephen Speed, dated 18 May 2009:

I refer to your question to ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, how much (a) his Department spent on furniture in 2008-09 and (b) his Department's agencies spent on furniture in each of the last five years.

The Insolvency Service expenditure on furniture for the last five years is shown in the table below:

Year	Expenditure (£)
2008-09	869,363
2007-08	683,666
2006-07	678,952
2005-06	526,985
2004-05	149,160

Departmental Mobile Phones

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many (a) BlackBerry devices and (b) mobile telephones have been lost by (i) Ministers, (ii) special advisers and (iii) civil servants in his Department and its predecessor in each year since 2005. [274457]

Ian Pearson: In 2008, one BlackBerry was lost by a Minister and one by a special adviser. The numbers lost by civil servants are shown in the following table.

	Mobile Phones	Blackberry's
2005	11	3
2006	14	3
2007	2	12
2009[1]	0	5

[1] 30 April

Departmental Public Expenditure

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 17 March 2009, Official Report, column 1128W, on the economic situation, what expenditure was incurred by his Department under each budgetary heading for each of the summits, conferences and seminars held for which the primary focus was the effects of the economic situation. [270696]

Mr. Thomas [holding answer 23 April 2009]: Information on expenditure on summits was provided in my right hon. Friend the Minister for Employment Relations and Postal Affairs (Mr. McFadden) answer to the hon. Member on 11 May 2009, Official Report, column 557W.

Information on expenditure on the conferences and seminars referred to in my right hon. Friend the Minister for Employment Relations and Postal Affairs (Mr. McFadden) answer to the hon. Member on 17 March 2009, Official Report, column 1128W, is as follows:

	Total	Venue	£ Catering
Conferences
Small Business Forum	777.25	490.00	287.25
Prompt Payment Forum	174.60	137.50	37.10

	168.20	137.50	30.70
	168.20	137.50	30.70
Senior Whitehall Stakeholder Group for Business (two occasions)	600.50	410.00	190.50
	474.00	410.00	64.00

The events listed pertained to a broad range of different issues within Ministers' briefs—from small business to consumer protection and the automotive industry. It also includes interdepartmental meetings between Whitehall economic experts.

Departmental Telephone Services

Mike Penning: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the rate (a) per minute and (b) per three minutes charged to a caller to a number operated by his Department and its agencies beginning with (i) 084 and (ii) 03 is. [275145]

Ian Pearson: This Department is unable to confirm the cost of calling the 084 numbers in use, as rates will vary dependent upon the tariffs applied by each caller's telephone service supplier. The Department does not deploy any 03 numbers.

Mike Penning: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the average duration of a call to a telephone number beginning with (a) 084 and (b) 03 operated by his Department and its agencies was in the last period for which figures are available. [275146]

Ian Pearson: The information available on call duration to the Department's 084 numbers is limited to the three numbers supplied by the main telephone supplier, Global Crossing. For the first quarter of 2009 the average call duration for these 084 numbers was two minutes and nine seconds. The Department does not use 03 numbers.

Departmental Training

Bob Spink: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much his Department and its predecessor has spent on IT training for its staff in each of the last five years. [274211]

Mr. Thomas: The Department's budgets for training are devolved to individual directorates. IT training, whether it relates to routine or project-related activities, is not separately itemised on the Department's accounting system and the amount that was spent on it within overall training budgets could be ascertained only at disproportionate cost.

Employment Tribunals Service

Judy Mallaber: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) how many of the 678 equal pay claims upheld at an employment tribunal in 2007-08 related to the employer with the greatest number of cases reaching an employment tribunal in that year; [275376]

(2) how many employers had equal pay claims upheld against them in 2007-08. [275377]

Maria Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The Employment Tribunal does not keep the information which the hon. Member has requested in a readily available format. This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Food

Tim Farron: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will make an estimate of the (a) monetary value and (b) quantity of waste food disposed of from his Department's premises in the last 12 months. [273443]

Mr. Thomas: Over the last 12 months up to the end of April 2009, it is estimated that 16,350 kgs of waste food was disposed of by BERR's catering service provider from its restaurant facility at 1 Victoria street.

It is not possible to estimate the monetary value of this waste as information is not held centrally and collating this information would incur disproportionate costs.

Gambling Commission

Mr. Moss: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform which review model was used by the Hampton review team in its assessment of the Gambling Commission; and on how many occasions the Review Team met the Gambling Commission for the purposes of the assessment. [274173]

Ian Pearson: Under the Hampton implementation review framework, regulators are reviewed under one of two models, depending on their size, scope and impact, to ensure that reviews are proportionate to the organisation in question.

The Gambling Commission was assessed under the 'Model 1' framework whereby a review team of experienced individuals from the Better Regulation Executive, National Audit Office, the Security Industry Authority and the EEF assessed the work of the Commission over a one-week period. The review team conducted a combination of interviews with senior staff, with representatives of the gambling sector, and with individual regulated businesses, as well as shadowing the work of Commission inspectors.

The review framework and both the Model 1 and Model 2 methodologies are set out on the BERR website at http://www.berr.gov.uk/whatwedo/bre/inspection-enforcement/implementing-principles/reviewing-regulators/page44054.html.

The review team met with a wide range of Commission staff, including both Commission members and Executive staff ranging from the Chief Executive to their compliance and advisory staff over the course of 6 October to 10 October.

Home Information Packs

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether the rules against misleading omissions under the Consumer Protection from Unfair Trading Regulations 2008 will apply to property information questionnaires in home information packs. [273720]

Mr. Thomas: The rules on misleading omissions in the Consumer Protection from Unfair Trading Regulations 2008 (CPRs) will apply to Property information questionnaires (PIQs) where they constitute a marketing communication between a trader (as part of his business) and a consumer. The rules prohibit the provision of unclear material information or the hiding or omission of material information which the consumer needs in the circumstances.

We believe that an estate agent acting for a consumer seller would not normally breach the rules on misleading omissions in the CPRs where the PIQ had been completed by the seller.

Housing: Sales

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what guidance his Department has issued on the effect of (a) the Cancellation of Contracts Made in a Consumer's Home or Place of Work etc Regulations 2008 and (b) Consumer Protection from Unfair Trading Regulations 2008 on the (i) sale and (ii) marketing of (A) homes and (B) home information packs. [272340]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform has produced general guidance, available on the BERR website at:

www.berr.gov.uk

about the Cancellation of Contracts Made in a Consumer's Home or Place of Work etc. Regulations 2008. The Office of Fair Trading has published joint OFT/BERR branded general guidance, available on the OFT website at:

www.oft.gov.uk

about the Consumer Protection from Unfair Trading Regulations 2008. The guidance details the steps that any business, that is subject to the regulations, must take to comply with the regulations.

Motor Vehicles: EU Law

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what his policy is on whether the Motor Vehicle Block Exemption Regulation (EC) 1400/2002 should expire in 2010; and what discussions he has had with the motor repair industry on this matter. [274351]

Mr. Thomas: On the basis of detailed discussion with EU member states, the Motor Vehicle Block Exemption Regulation will be extended or otherwise by the European Commission as this falls within their competence under Article 81 (3) of the European Treaty. We have expressed concerns about access to information, particularly technical information, and parts for the independent aftermarket, and have made several representations to the European Commission on the subject. Most other EU member states have expressed similar concerns. I would expect these concerns to be addressed in any formal proposals by the European Commission.

Officials from BERR and the Office of Fair Trading (OFT) have been in discussion with representative groups from the motor vehicle industry including the 'Right to Repair' campaign throughout the review of the Motor Vehicle Block Exemption Regulation and these helpful contacts will continue.

Motor Vehicles: Manufacturing Industries

Bob Spink: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will hold an inquiry into the actions of Visteon UK and Ford UK to establish responsibility for pension and redundancy payments for employees made redundant by each company; and if he will make a statement. [269820]

Ian Pearson: As indicated during the debate in the House on 30 April, BERR is in contact with Visteon UK. I understand that the unions and the Visteon corporation have agreed a much improved redundancy package and that staff at the three Visteon UK plants voted overwhelmingly to accept it. I hope that the necessary payments can be made as soon as is possible. We will continue to monitor the situation.

Post Offices: Bank Services

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many times Ministers in his Department have met representatives of the Post Bank Coalition in the last six months. [269074]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 20 April 2009]: My right hon. Friend the Minister for Employment Relations and Postal Affairs attended the Post Bank Coalition's launch event on 17 March and regularly meets representatives of a range of post office network stakeholders and other interested parties.

Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what new powers the provisions of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 will provide for local authorities. [272412]

Mr. Thomas: Part 3 of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008 allows a Minister, by order, to give local authorities and other regulators access to four new civil sanctions:

Fixed monetary penalties

Discretionary requirements which will enable a regulator to impose, by notice, one or more of the following:

a variable monetary penalty determined by the regulator;

a requirement to take specified steps within a stated period to secure that an offence does not continue or happen again; and a requirement to take specified steps within a stated period to secure that the position is restored, so far as possible, to what it would have been if no offence had been committed.

Stop notices which will prevent a business from carrying on an activity described in the notice until it has taken steps to come back into compliance.

Enforcement undertakings which will enable a business, which a regulator reasonably suspects of having committed an offence, to give an undertaking to a regulator to take one or more corrective actions set out in the undertaking.

To date, no orders have been made under part 3 and so local authorities cannot yet access the new powers.

Part 2 of the Act, which commenced on 6 April 2009, established the primary authority scheme. The scheme allows businesses, charities or other organisations that operate across more than one site, to enter into a partnership with a local authority for it to become a primary authority. As well as promoting consistency, the scheme is intended to help local authorities decide what action will be necessary and proportionate in a given circumstance to bring about a successful outcome with the minimum burden to an organisation.

Where the Local Better Regulation Office has registered a primary authority, any other local authority that proposes to take enforcement action against an organisation must contact the primary authority first. The primary authority can then block the proposed enforcement action if it believes that it is inconsistent with advice or guidance that it has previously given. In situations where action is urgently required to prevent harm, the Act allows local authorities to proceed immediately and inform the primary authority as soon as possible after taking the action. Under the scheme, a local authority may reclaim costs incurred while acting as a primary authority on a cost recovery basis.

Retirement: Age

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will bring forward proposals to prevent employers using mandatory retirement ages. [275857]

Ian Pearson: The UK does not have a national mandatory retirement age. The Employment Equality (Age) Regulations 2006 introduced a default retirement age of 65, which allows employers to use retirement at 65 as a tool for workforce planning. However, employers do not have to retire employees once they reach 65. They are free to continue to employ them for as long as they like, and employees are entitled to request to continue working beyond 65.

As the Government clearly stated when the regulations were introduced, we are committed to undertaking an evidence based review of the default retirement age five years after its introduction. This provides sufficient time for the regulations to bed in and helps business to plan with certainty. We will be gathering the evidence needed to enable us to undertake this review in 2011. If the conclusion of the review is that the evidence demonstrates a default retirement age is no longer necessary, we will take the necessary steps to remove it.

WPP

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 31 March 2009, Official Report, column 1186W, on WPP, what matters were discussed at the meeting. [269033]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 20 April 2009]: I understand general business issues were discussed.

JUSTICE

Council Tax: Non-payment

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many council tax liability orders have been issued by magistrates to local authorities in England and Wales in each year from 1998 to 2008. [273674]

Mr. Straw: Statistics on the number of orders issued, as opposed to the number of applications made, are not available. The following table shows the number of applications for council tax and business rate liability orders made to magistrates courts during the financial years 2005-06 to 2008-09 inclusive. These liability orders attract the same fee charge, and are therefore recorded on the internet fees accounting system (IFAS) in the same way. It is not possible to distinguish between applications for liability orders made in relation to council tax and business rates.

Number of applications for council tax and business rate liability orders made to magistrates courts in England and Wales, 2005-06 to 2008-09

	Number of applications made
2005-06	2,438,305
2006-07	2,632,923
2007-08	2,867,390
2008-09	3,124,406

Centrally-held figures are not available for earlier years because HM Courts Service only assumed direct responsibility for the magistrates courts with effect from April 2005.

Damages

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he plans to publish his response to the consultation on the law on damages; what the reasons are for the time taken; and if he will make a statement. [274733]

Bridget Prentice: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 28 April 2009, Official Report, column 1253W, to his earlier question on this subject.

The consultation on the law on damages closed on 27 July 2007. The consultation paper considered proposals put forward in a series of Law Commission reports and consequently covered a number of distinct and complex issues. There were 103 responses, many very detailed, that required careful consideration. This work has taken longer than planned, partly because of the scale or the response and the inherent complexity, and partly because of by the need to divert resources to deal with other pressing issues. The Government do, however, intend to publish a response paper outlining the way forward as soon as possible.

Departmental Reviews

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) review and (b) task-force projects his Department and its predecessor have commissioned in each of the last five years; what the purpose of each such project is; when each such project (i) began and (ii) was completed; what the cost of each such project was; and if he will make a statement. [275970]

Mr. Wills: The Ministry of Justice does not hold this information centrally. To collate this level of information would require a detailed trawl across the Department which would entail disproportionate cost.

However, information on major reports and reviews undertaken by the Department on a wide range of issues can be accessed at the following link from the MOJ website:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/policy-reports.htm

It also contains Green Papers, White Papers and Government responses to parliamentary committee reports on major policy reviews.

Publications and follow-up reports on the Department's regular research programme, as well as any special projects that MOJ initiates can also be found at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/research.htm

Information on MOJ consultations, both open and closed, can be found at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/consultations.htm

Land Registry: Fraud

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much compensation has been paid by HM Land Registry in respect of property fraud in each of the last 10 years. [275155]

Mr. Wills: The figures requested are shown in the following table. The increase in the level of payments in 2005-06 was principally caused by one fraudulent transfer which resulted in payments of more than £8.1 million. The raised level of payments in subsequent years is attributable to a range of factors—including increasing numbers of registered transactions, greater availability of credit providing more opportunities for fraudsters, increases in property values resulting in the losses from each fraud being higher, and more professional as opposed to domestic frauds. The number of frauds must be seen against the overall numbers of transactions processed in each year. For example, in 2007-08, Land Registry processed 5,638,226 applications to alter the register and there were 60 successful indemnity claims based on fraud.

	Indemnity payments relating to fraud (£)	Number of fraud related indemnity claims
1998-99	231,540	17
1999-2000	89,226	15
2000-01	245,457	9
2001-02	99,320	7
2002-03	254,930	4
2003-04	151,626	12
2004-05	293,599	15
2005-06	8.6 million	31
2006-07	2.1 million	24
2007-08	3.9 million	60
2008-09[1]	5.07 million	62
Total	21.04 million	256

[1] The figures for 2008-09 are based on information currently available to be finalised when Land Registry's audited accounts are published later this year. This figure can change. The Audit Committee are due to sign off the accounts in June.

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the number of (a) title registries and (b) deeds for properties which have been altered by fraudulent means in each of the last 10 years. [275159]

Mr. Wills: It is not possible to provide these figures as no such estimates have been made. Land Registry tracks the level of fraudulent alterations to the register by reference to claims received for indemnity based on fraud rather than against estimates of the number of fraudulent alterations which would necessarily be speculative.

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the cost to the economy of property fraud in each of the last 10 years. [275169]

Mr. Wills: No such estimates have been made.

Offenders: Mental Health Services

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans he has to ensure that the mental health needs of ex-service personnel involved in the criminal justice system are met. [275918]

Phil Hope: I have been asked to reply.

Ex-service personnel, including those within the criminal justice system, have access to national health service treatment and services. Prison mental health care transferred fully to primary care trusts in 2006, and all prison mental health services are now mainstreamed within the NHS. On entering custody, the reception screening tool assesses all prisoners' health concerns, including mental illness, and can refer them to mental health in-reach teams within the criminal justice system. A person whose mental illness is too severe to justify their remaining in prison can be transferred to NHS secure services.

In its response to Lord Bradley's report on people with mental health problems or learning disabilities in the criminal justice system, the Government make it clear that veterans involved in the criminal justice system is an important group, and whose needs will also be taken into account as the delivery plan to address Lord Bradley's recommendations is developed.

Orchard Lodge Secure Unit

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice for what reasons the Youth Justice Board decided to close the Orchard Lodge Unit in Anerley. [275557]

Mr. Hanson: The Youth Justice Board will be commissioning 191 beds in Secure Children's Homes in England and Wales from 1 July 2009. This figure was determined by examining the average level of demand for secure training centre and secure children's home beds over a three-year period and determining the optimum number of secure children's home beds to be commissioned in the current contracting round.

The Youth Justice Board's decision not to offer Orchard Lodge a new contract was taken following a comprehensive evaluation of a tender exercise. The evaluation panel assessed the quality of all tenders received based on the quality of the responses to the specifications issued, and a financial evaluation on submitted bed prices. Any decision about the future of Orchard Lodge will be taken by the private operator, Glen Care.

Prisoners: Foreigners

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what percentage of the prison population foreign nationals comprised in each of the last five years. [274194]

Mr. Straw: The following table provides the numbers of prisoners held in all prison establishments in England and Wales as at 30 June in each year from 2004 to 2008, showing the percentage of foreign national prisoners:

	All prisoners (number)	Foreign nationals (number)	Foreign nationals (percentage)
2004	74,488	8,941	12
2005	76,190	9,651	13
2006	77,982	10,879	14
2007	79,734	11,093	14
2009	83,194	11,498	14

These figures include foreign national prisoners serving their sentence, those on remand pending prosecution and those being held under immigration powers pending deportation action.

These figures are available on the Ministry of Justice website:

For the period 2004 to 2007:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/prisonandprobation.htm

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/populationincustody-2008.htm

Data on foreign national prisoners are published quarterly in the population in custody bulletin, again on the Ministry of Justice website:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/populationincustody .htm

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Prisons: Discipline

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prison disturbances requiring the deployment of (a) Tornado support officers and (b) the police there have been in prisons in England and Wales in each of the last 12 years for which figures are available; and what the (i) cause, (ii) nature and (iii) cost to the public purse of the disturbance was in each case. [272821]

Mr. Hanson: The information is not held in the form required and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. There are a variety of types of incident where Tornado teams may be deployed, predominantly concerted indiscipline, hostage taking and incidents at height. As Tornado teams will not have been deployed to all of these incidents, the information could be obtained only by examining each incident in detail. Similarly police presence at incidents is not centrally recorded.

There have been just four major incidents of disorder since 1996, and the incident at Ashwell in April was the first since the disturbance at Lincoln in October 2002. Between 1990 and 1995 there were 11 major incidents of disorder, including Manchester, which lasted 25 days, and Pucklechurch, where the entire prison was destroyed (both in 1990).

Probation Boards: Pay

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what average percentage of probation board and trust expenditure was incurred on salaries paid in respect of management positions higher than Band 4 on the national job evaluation scheme in (a) England and (b) Wales in 2008-09; [275385]

(2) what average percentage of probation board and trust expenditure was on probation board members' (a) salaries and (b) associated expenses in (i) England and (ii) Wales in the last 12 months. [275386]

Mr. Hanson: This information is not held centrally and is not available in the format requested in the 42 probation areas where it is held. To obtain this information would therefore incur a disproportionate cost.

Repossession Orders: Mortgages

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many court orders for action in relation to mortgage arrears have been issued in each of the last five years; [275537]

(2) how many court orders were issued in respect of mortgage arrears in each region in the latest period for which figures are available; [275538]

(3) how many repossession orders have been issued by courts in England and Wales in respect of mortgage arrears in each of the last five years; [275539]

(4) how many repossession orders have been issued by the courts in each of the English regions in respect of mortgage arrears in each of the last five years. [275540]

Bridget Prentice: The number of mortgage possession orders made in each year from 1990 and in each quarter from 2004 are available via the Ministry of Justice website at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/docs/stats-mortgage-land-q1-2009.pdf

The following table shows the number of mortgage possession orders made in England and Wales and each Government office region in the last five years and in the first quarter of 2009.

This breakdown is based on the location of the court which heard the case, rather than the exact location of the property which was the subject of the case.

The Ministry of Justice does not hold information centrally on the breakdown of mortgage possession orders according to the nature of dispute. This is because one of the main administrative computer systems used in the county courts for possession cases (CaseMan) does not identify the specific nature of dispute for these orders. Changing the administrative system to create the necessary field to capture this information would incur disproportionate cost.

The number of mortgage possession orders made in each county court of England and Wales in each year from 1987 to 2008 can be viewed using the following web link:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/mortgatelandlordpossession.htm

The civil procedure rules state that all claims for the repossession of land must be commenced in the district in which the land is situated. However, geographical boundaries of county courts may not necessarily be consistent with other administrative or constituency boundaries.

These figures do not indicate how many homes have actually been repossessed. Repossessions can occur without a court order being made while not all court orders result in repossession.

Number of mortgage[1] possession orders made[2, 3] in the county courts of England and Wales, by Government office region in which the court is located, 2004-08

[2] The court, follow hg a judicial hearing, may grant an order for possession immediately. This entitles the claimant to apply for a warrant to have the defendant evicted. However, even where a warrant for possession is issued, the parties can still negotiate a compromise to prevent eviction.
[3] Includes outright and suspended orders, the latter being where the court grants the claimant possession but suspends the operation of the order. Provided the defendant complies with the terms of suspension, which usually require the defendant to pay the current mortgage or rent instalments plus some of the accrued arrears, the possession order cannot be enforced.
[4] Figures for the latest quarter are provisional.

Note:
The Mortgage Pre Action Protocol for possession claims relating to mortgage or home purchase arrears was introduced on 19 November 2008. Its introduction has coincided with a substantial fall in the number of new mortgage possession claims in 2008 quarter 4 and subsequently in the number of mortgage possession orders in 2009 quarter 1.

Terrorism: Compensation

Mr. McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 11 May 2009, Official Report, column 533W, on terrorism: compensation, which (a) Departmental officials and (b) Ministers have been appointed to the working group on support for victims of terrorism abroad; what options are being considered by that working group; what timetable has been set for that working group to report; and when he next expects that working group to meet. [275950]

Mr. Straw: The working group brings together officials from across Government and includes representatives from the following Departments:

Humanitarian Assistance Unit
Foreign and Commonwealth Office
Office for Criminal Justice Reform
Ministry of Justice
Criminal Injuries Compensation Authority
Ministry of Defence
Northern Ireland Office
Scotland Office
HM Treasury.

There will be a separate ministerial group which will include the Minister with responsibility for humanitarian assistance, a Foreign Office Minister, the Home Secretary, the Attorney-General and the Justice Secretary.

The working group of officials will look at all available options and put together detailed proposals for consideration by the ministerial group.

The working group will meet regularly and is expected to report to Ministers in the summer.

HEALTH

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will place in the Library a copy of each document in his Department's file CPO 2/25 Lord Braine of Wheatley's Partial Birth Abortion (Prohibition) Bill; and if he will make a statement; [264612]

(2) if he will place in the Library a copy of each document in his Department's file CPO 2/6 Lord Robertson of Oakridge, Abortion Amendment Bill Briefing for Legislation Committee and Second Reading Debate; and if he will make a statement; [264614]

(3) if he will place in the Library a copy of each document in his Department's file CPO 2/4 10 Minute Rule Bill (Jo Richardson) NHS Act 1977 (Amendment) Bill; and if he will make a statement. [266970]

Dawn Primarolo: A copy of the files has been placed in the Library.

Care Homes

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many care homes in (a) England and (b) Leicester are operated by (i) local authorities and (ii) private enterprises; and what estimate he has made of the number of persons over 60 years old resident in each category of home. [273693]

Phil Hope: We are informed by the Care Quality Commission (CQC) that the numbers of services operating in Leicester city council area and in England are as shown in the following table.

Ownership type	Leicester city council	England
Charity	3	843
Local authority	11	1,055
National health service	—	193
Other	—	102
Private	90	14,052
Voluntary	9	2,168
Total	113	18,413

Note:
Services include care and nursing homes inspected against the national minimum standards for care homes for older people (aged 65 or over) and care homes for younger adults (aged 18-64).
Source:
CQC registration and inspection database. Data as at 8 April 2009.

Information on the total numbers of residents, those aged over 60 and those whose care is privately funded in care homes is not collected centrally.

Information about the number of people aged 65 and over in residential care, funded fully or in part by councils with adult social services responsibilities, is collected by the NHS information centre for health and social care. This information is shown in the following table.

Council supported residents aged 65 and over at 31 March 2008

Area	Residential care homes		Independent nursing homes
	Council	Independent

Dementia

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what support is available from his Department to (a) those diagnosed with dementia and (b) the carers of those with dementia; whether he plans to increase this support; and if he will make a statement. [275888]

Phil Hope: The Department published the first National Dementia Strategy on 3 February 2009, which will improve services for people with dementia and their carers. The strategy to be implemented over five years will focus on three key areas in relation to dementia services: improved awareness, earlier diagnosis and intervention, and a higher quality of care.

The Carers' Strategy, "Carers at the heart of 21st century families and communities", published in June 2008, recognises the increasingly important role that carers play in our society and acknowledges that all carers, including carers of those diagnosed with dementia, need more help and support than has been available in the past. The strategy contains a number of commitments including information and advice, new break provision and a recognition that family carers should be involved in decisions about treatment and support.

Copies of both publications have already been placed in the Library.

Departmental ICT

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on how many and what proportion of computers in his Department malware was detected in 2008. [275393]

Mr. Bradshaw: There were no instances of malware being detected on the Department's computers in 2008.

Health Professions: Registration

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which professional organisations have applied to be registered by the Health Professions Council; when each such application was made; and if he will make a statement. [275598]

Mr. Bradshaw: The following organisations have applied for their professionals to be registered by the Health Professions Council (HPC).

2 April 2003. The Association of Operating Department Practitioners. Operating Department Practitioners. Recommended to the Secretary of State, on the HPC register since 2004;

4 June 2003: The British Psychological Society. Applied Psychologists. Recommended to the Secretary of State, on the HPC register from 1 July 2009;

17 September 2003. The Society of Clinical Perfusion Scientists of Great Britain. Clinical Perfusion Scientists. Recommended to the Secretary of State;

8 October 2003. The Registration Council for Clinical Physiologists. Clinical Physiologists. Recommended to the Secretary of State;

2 March 2004. The Association of Dance Movement Therapy. Dance Movement Therapists. Recommended to the Secretary of State;

13 May 2004. The Voluntary Register of Clinical Technologists. Clinical Technologists. Recommended to the Secretary of State;

14 September 2004. The Institute of Medical Illustrators. Medical Illustrators. Recommended to the Secretary of State;

13 September 2005. The Institute of Maxillofacial Prosthetists and Technologists. Maxillofacial Prosthetists and Technologists. Recommended to the Secretary of State subject to clarifying the education routes to registration and also the nature of the profession's continuing professional development and that they engage in discussions with one of the professions already regulated by the HPC with a view to being regulated under their umbrella;

1 March 2006 and 11 May 2006. The Society of Sports Therapists. Sports Therapists. Recommended to the Secretary of State;

3 July 2008. Society and College of Radiographers. Sonographers. Outstanding, awaiting publication of extending professional regulation working group report; and 11 September 2008. The HPC considered the report of the Department of Health working group on acupuncture, herbal medicine, traditional Chinese medicine and other traditional medicine systems practised in the United Kingdom as if it were a new professions application. Recommended to the Secretary of State.

Hertfordshire Community Health Services

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what statutory functions will be undertaken by the arms-length organisation Hertfordshire Community Health Services. [275372]

Phil Hope: Hertfordshire Community Health Services is the provider arm of the West and East and North Hertfordshire primary care trusts (PCTs). Therefore the PCTs retain all the statutory functions of those organisations.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what role the Care Quality Commission will play in the regulation of the arms-length organisation Hertfordshire Community Health Services. [275373]

Mr. Bradshaw: All national health service providers of health care, including primary care trusts (PCTs), have been registered with the Care Quality Commission since 1 April 2009 against a single registration requirement relating to the prevention and control of health care acquired infections. From April 2010, NHS providers of regulated activities will be required to register with the Care Quality Commission against a full set of registration requirements. The Care Quality Commission will also assess PCT provider services as part of its organisational assessment of PCTs.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much (a) has been allocated and (b) is expected to be spent on renaming (i) West Hertfordshire Primary Care Trust and (ii) East and North Hertfordshire Primary Care Trust. [275374]

Phil Hope: Allocations are made to primary care trusts (PCTs) and it is their responsibility to ensure that those allocations are used to commission services to meet the needs of the communities that they serve while at the same time giving value for money. The East of England Strategic Health Authority (SHA) reports that the cost implications for renaming West Hertfordshire PCT and East and North Hertfordshire PCT will be very limited and restricted largely to the production of new name badges for staff. There are no immediate plans to replace any premises signage. The SHA also reports that there will be little or no cost to making the name change in other areas such as email signatures, websites and stationery reprints, the latter only taking place as stationery stocks diminish.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his most recent assessment is of the performance of the Hertfordshire community health service. [275551]

Phil Hope: The Care Quality Commission will continue to assess the provider services of primary care trusts (PCTs) as part of their assessment of PCTs. The Healthcare Commission's annual health check ratings for West Hertfordshire PCT and East and North Hertfordshire PCT is shown in the following table.

	West Hertfordshire PCT	East and North Hertfordshire PCT
2006-07
Quality of service	Weak	Weak
Use of resources	Weak	Weak
2007-08
Quality of service	Fair	Fair
Use of resources	Fair	Fair

Hospitals: ICT

Mr. Godsiff: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the financial implications for the NHS are of BT not installing core IT systems at (a) all major hospital trusts in London and (b) all major hospital trusts in Birmingham. [275707]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 14 May 2009]: In London, four acute trusts, Barnet and Chase Farm Hospitals, Queen Mary's Sidcup, Barts and the London, and the Royal Free Hampstead NHS Trusts are already live with the Cerner Millennium system supplied by the local service provider, BT.

BT is not responsible for the implementation of systems in Birmingham.

While the scale of the challenge in implementing new IT systems into acute trusts must not be underestimated, and initial experience with the new systems in London was not without difficulties, significant progress has since been made.

Information about the local financial and resource impact on national health service organisations resulting from implementation of, or failure to implement, computer systems is not held centrally, and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Under the national programme for information technology central contracts, suppliers are only paid when systems have been successfully deployed and are working satisfactorily. The cost of failure is therefore met by the supplier rather than the taxpayer.

Mental Health Services: Prisons

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his estimate is of the number of prisoners with a diagnosed mental health disorder; what percentage of prisoners who (a) had a diagnosed mental health disorder prior to conviction and (b) have been diagnosed with schizophrenia; and what proportion of prisoners diagnosed with (i) schizophrenia and (ii) another mental health disorder had been convicted of an offence involving violence. [274625]

Phil Hope: This information is not collected by the Department.

On 30 April 2009, Lord Bradley published his review of people with mental health problems or learning disabilities in the criminal justice system. The "Bradley report" found that too many people pass through the criminal justice system without their mental health needs or learning disabilities being recognised. This means that their specific needs are not met and too often this leads to a cycle of re-offending.

The prevalence among suspects and offenders, of mental disorders, learning disabilities, and drug and alcohol problems is very high. About 20 per cent. will either currently be in contact with, or have a history of psychiatric treatment.

The Government published their response to the recommendations alongside Lord Bradley's report. The report has been welcomed by Ministers across Government who recognise the need for reform in this area and the necessity for more joined up services to strengthen capacity and take forward this work.

Mid Staffordshire NHS Foundation Trust

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to scrutinise the performance of Mid-Staffordshire NHS Foundation Trust in dealing with complaints; and if he will make a statement. [274917]

Mr. Bradshaw: The primary care trust (PCT) monitors performance and scrutinises complaints through the Commissioning Quality Review Committee meetings. The complaints report is presented at the PCTs Quality Scrutiny Committee, which looks at the response rates, key themes and any trends. This is then reported through the Governance Group meetings at the PCT. The PCT reports complaints at its monthly trust board as part of the performance report. As a result of the situation in Mid Staffordshire, the PCT offered to advocate on behalf of patients and will continue to offer this service.

More generally, the Department has reformed and strengthened the national health service complaints system from 1 April this year. This sets the expectation that hospitals need to do better at resolving complaints at the local level and, importantly, take appropriate action in the light of the outcome of a complaint.

Information on complaints is already available from the Care Quality Commission, the ombudsman and the Information Centre, but we will now require hospitals to publish annually the number of complaints they receive, and how many were successfully resolved locally. We will also discuss with the health ombudsman publishing the number of complaints from each trust referred to and upheld by her. All this information will also be placed on the NHS Choices website allowing easier comparisons between hospitals.

A written ministerial statement was issued on 30 April 2009 setting out the Government response to the reports on care at Mid-Staffordshire NHS Foundation Trust submitted by Professor Sir George Alberti and Dr. David Colin-Thome.

In line with the recommendations in Dr. David Colin-Thome's report, officials will undertake an assessment of the new complaints system in due course.

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent guidance his Department has issued to Mid-Staffordshire NHS Foundation Trust on the exercise of the statutory powers of the trust's governors; and if he will make a statement. [274919]

Mr. Bradshaw: The statutory powers of an NHS Foundation Trust's board of governors are set out in the National Health Service Act 2006 (c41) Schedule 7 —"Constitution of public benefit corporations".

In general, the governors of a foundation trust are expected to represent the interests of the membership, and to act as a bridge between the Board of Directors and the membership. Governors must act in the best interest of the trust, and hold the board of directors to account for the performance of the trust. This includes reviewing the annual report and accounts. The governors have a legal duty to appoint the non-executive directors and chair of the trust, and are responsible for appointing the external auditors.

It is for the governors of an NHS Foundation Trust, acting on behalf of the trust's membership, to consider whether and when to act in accordance with their legal powers. The Secretary of State does not have a power of direction. NHS Foundation Trusts were established to increase the level of local accountability and the Department has not issued any guidance to Mid-Staffordshire NHS Foundation Trust on the exercise of the statutory powers of the trust's governors.

A written ministerial statement on Mid-Staffordshire NHS Foundation Trust was issued on 30 April 2009 in response to the reports of the independent reviews undertaken by Professor Sir George Alberti and Dr. David Colin-Thome.

NHS Foundation Trusts: Pay

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what requirements there are on NHS Foundation Trusts to publish details of the salaries and remuneration packages offered to their chief executives and senior managers; and if he will make a statement. [276039]

Mr. Bradshaw: The independent regulator (Monitor) requires foundation trusts to produce annual reports including annual accounts. These include details of salaries and remuneration packages of chief executives and senior managers. Copies of these documents are placed in the House of Commons Library. As a public benefit corporation, NHS Foundation Trusts have a duty to make this published data available to any person who requests it.

NHS: Disclosure of Information

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will bring forward proposals to amend the law to increase levels of protection for whistleblowers in the NHS; and if he will make a statement. [274916]

Mr. Bradshaw: We have already introduced legislation to protect whistleblowers. The Public Interest Disclosure Act 1998 (PIDA) gives the full protection of the law to national health service staff who blow the whistle. The Department has made it clear that every NHS trust must have in place local policies and procedures that comply with the Act. The Government expect a climate of openness and dialogue in the NHS that encourages staff to feel able to raise concerns about health care matters sensibly and responsibly without fear of victimisation. The NHS constitution published on 21 January 2009, also sets out how staff should have "protection from detriment in employment and the right not to be unfairly dismissed for 'whistleblowing' or reporting wrongdoing in the workplace."

We have taken out a contract with the charity "Public Concern at Work" to provide a helpline that is manned by lawyers with expertise on whistleblowing law who can provide confidential advice and support to NHS staff.

NHS: Information and Communications Technology

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on how many and what proportion of computers in NHS hospitals malware was detected in 2008. [275400]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Tranquillisers

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) prescriptions and (b) in-patient prescriptions were issued for each (i) benzodiazepine and (ii) Z tranquilliser in (A) 2007 and (B) the last quarter of 2008. [274692]

Dawn Primarolo: Information is not held centrally for the number of prescription items issued, only for prescription items dispensed. Similarly, information on the number of in-patient prescriptions is not held in the format requested.

The following table provides prescriptions for Benzodiazepine items, dispensed in the community, in England, and written in the United Kingdom, for 2007 and 2008, by quarters (Q1-Q4), in thousands.

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will consider the merits of introducing specialist tranquilliser withdrawal clinics. [274693]

Dawn Primarolo: The provision of treatments/services that reflect local needs and priorities is a matter for local decision.

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which members of the Commission on Human Medicines provide scientific advice on tranquillisers to his Department. [274966]

Dawn Primarolo: The Commission on Human Medicines (CHM) provides its advice to the Secretary of State as a collective body and not through individual experts.

Membership of the CHM and the expert advisory groups is available on the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency website at:

www.mhra.gov.uk/Committees/Medicinesadvisorybodies/CommissiononHumanMedicines/Members/index.htm

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the potential permanent effects on health of long-term tranquilliser use in the last 10 years; and what assessment he has made of the conclusions of such research. [276015]

Dawn Primarolo: Neither the Department's National Institute for Health Research nor the Medical Research Council has funded research into the permanent effects on health of long-term tranquilliser use. Both organisations welcome applications for support for research into any aspect of human health. Applications are judged in open competition with other demands on funding, with awards being made on the basis of the scientific quality of the proposals made.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Building Colleges for the Future Programme

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) which colleges will receive funds from the £300 million allocated to Building Colleges for the Future in the 2009 Budget; [274038]

(2) how many projects will receive funds from the £300 million allocated to Building Colleges for the Future in the 2009 Budget. [274039]

Mr. Simon: Budget 2009 announced that an additional £300 million of capital funding will be made available in the current spending round and will allow a limited number of projects to start within this spending review period. Capital investment between 2007-08 and 2010-11 will total £2.6 billion on top of the £2 billion invested between 1997-98 and 2007-08. It is not possible to say the exact number of, or the names of the specific projects, that will be funded as the selection of projects will be based on objective criteria that the LSC is developing in consultation with the sector. The LSC plan to confirm which projects will be taken forward during this spending review period at the beginning of the summer.

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of the meeting held on 29 April 2009 of the panel of college principals established to discuss prioritisation of further education capital funding. [274234]

Mr. Simon: The minutes of this meeting were published on the Learning and Skills Council's website on 30 April, at:

http://readingroom.lsc.gov.uk/lsc/National/nat-Minutes_capital_reference_group_29_april_2009.pdf

I will ensure copies of the minutes are placed in the House Libraries.

Energy Performance Certificates

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what responsibilities the National Measurement Office has for enforcement of the provisions of the Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007. [276167]

Mr. Lammy: The National Measurement Office has no responsibilities for the enforcement of the provisions of the Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007. The Regulations themselves are the responsibility of the Department for Communities and Local Government and enforcement is a matter for local authorities with trading standards functions.

Like any other part of government the Office is responsible for complying with the regulations in respect of its own building.

Further Education: Finance

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much funding has been allocated by his Department to cover the start-up costs of each further education college which received approval in principle for capital development from the Learning and Skills Council. [276280]

Mr. Simon: Capital funding for further education colleges is administered by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC). As the information requested is with regard to an operational matter for the Council, I have asked Geoffrey Russell, the acting LSC chief executive, to write to the hon. Member with the further information requested. A copy of his letter will be placed in the House Libraries.

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much of the £1.2 billion funding available for new further education capital programmes in 2009-2014 he estimates will be allocated for outstanding costs of existing capital programmes. [276281]

Mr. Simon: Budget 2009 announced that an additional £300 million of capital funding will be made available in the current spending round and will allow a limited number of projects to start within this spending review period. Capital investment between 2007-08 and 2010-11 will total £2.6 billion on top of the £2 billion invested between 1997-98 and 2007-08. It is not possible to say the exact number of, or the names of the specific projects, that will be funded as the selection of projects will be based on objective criteria that the LSC is developing in consultation with the sector. The LSC plan to confirm which projects will be taken forward during this spending review period at the beginning of the summer.

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what his latest estimate is of the level of non-recoverable costs incurred by further education and other colleges resulting from the reused allocations of capital funding by his Department; and what arrangements he has made to compensate colleges for such costs. [276282]

Mr. Simon: To be clear, the Department has not withdrawn any capital funding. In actual fact, in addition to the already record level of capital funding that we are investing in this spending review period, Budget 2009 announced that an additional £300 million of capital funding will be made available in the current spending round.

Capital funding for further education colleges is administered by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC). As the information requested is with regard to an operational matter for the council, I have asked Geoffrey Russell, the acting LSC chief executive, to write to the hon. Member with the further information requested. A copy of his letter will be placed in the House Libraries.

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much funding each further education college which has not received an approval in detail for capital redevelopment has been guaranteed by the Learning and Skills Council to cover their start-up costs. [276283]

Mr. Simon: Capital funding for further education colleges is administered by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC). As the information requested is with regard to an operational matter for the council, I have asked Geoffrey Russell, the acting LSC chief executive, to write to the hon. Member with the further information requested. A copy of his letter will be placed in the House Libraries.

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills pursuant to the answer of 30 April 2009, whether Matthew Boulton College in Birmingham has submitted plans to the Learning and Skills Council for developing the campus in the Birmingham, Erdington constituency. [273122]

Mr. Simon [holding answer 18 May 2009]: Capital funding for further education colleges is administered by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC). As the information requested is with regard to an operational matter for the council, I have asked Geoffrey Russell, the acting LSC chief executive, to write to the hon. Member with the further information requested. A copy of his letter will be placed in the House Libraries.

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what estimate his Department has made of the effect on Sutton Coldfield and Matthew Boulton colleges arising from the freeze on capital spending on their Erdington campus. [273282]

Mr. Simon [holding answer 7 May 2009]: Capital funding for further education colleges is administered by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC). As the information requested is with regard to an operational matter for the council, I have asked Geoffrey Russell, the acting LSC chief executive, to write to the hon. Member with the further information requested. A copy of his letter will be placed in the House Libraries.

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills when the Learning and Skills Council and its external property advisers plan to meet representatives of Wycombe and Amersham college. [273431]

Mr. Simon [holding answer 7 May 2009]: Capital funding for further education colleges is administered by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC). As the information requested is with regard to an operational matter for the council, I have asked Geoffrey Russell, the acting LSC chief executive, to write to the hon. Member with the further information requested. A copy of his letter will be placed in the House Libraries.

Learning and Skills Council

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many people are employed in each office of the (a) Learning and Skills Council and (b) Higher Education Funding Council for England. [274232]

Mr. Simon: The Higher Education Funding Council for England employs 263 full-time equivalent staff; 259 in Bristol and four in London.

The management of the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) estate is a matter for the LSC. As at March 2009 the LSC had 3,046.41 full-time equivalent (FTE) staff in post. A breakdown of the number of staff based in each office of the LSC is provided as follows. The total occupancy varies slightly from the FTE figure as the FTE figure incorporates data on part time workers as a proportion of one FTE depending on individual working patterns.

Space Technology

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what progress there has been on the British National Space Centre's review of the space licensing regime. [274001]

Mr. Lammy: In recent years a number of changes have been made to improve operation of the space licensing regime. Such changes include:

Extension of the Outer Space Act to Bermuda (2006)

Introduction of improved assessments of collision risk in-orbit and for the satellite's transfer from the launch vehicle to its final working orbit (2006)

Improved guidance and planning information for applicants on BNSC website (2007)

Agreement of the Isle of Man to share contingent liability (2007)

Agreement of Bermuda to share contingency liability (2008)

Measures to enable the introduction of temporary licences for operating spacecraft belonging to others (for maintenance or emergency intervention) (2008)

Students: Low Incomes

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps his Department is taking to (a) encourage and (b) provide financial support for students from low-income socio-economic backgrounds entering higher education; and if he will make a statement. [275745]

Mr. Lammy: The information is as follows:

(a) This Government are fully committed to ensuring every young person has a fair chance of attending university. We are making progress with the proportion of young entrants from lower socio economic groups going to university increasing steadily, reaching almost 30 per cent. in 2007. This year we are investing £89 million in the Aimhigher programme which raises the aspirations of young people to progress further and enter HE, and launched Aimhigher Associates across England with 5,500 undergraduates from state schools mentoring 21,000 learners to promote progression to HE from state schools.

As part of the New Opportunities White Paper, we also announced further measures to ensure every young person from a low income background, who could benefit from going to university, is given the opportunity to do so. This includes a group of 11 research intensive universities working together to look at ways to reach out to talented students from disadvantaged backgrounds.

(b) Around two-thirds of new students are expected to benefit from a non-repayable maintenance grant of up to £2,906 (2009/10 figure).

Students are also able to take out a loan for their living costs. Student loans have a more favourable interest rate compared to commercial loans, and borrowers are not required to make repayments until they are earning over £15,000 a year once they have left university.

Bursaries are an extra source of non-repayable support that universities are required to provide to all students entitled to the full maintenance grant.

Other help is available for students with disabilities, and for students with children or adult dependants. The access to learning fund (available through universities and colleges) provides help for students in hardship who may need extra financial support for their course and to stay in higher education.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many meetings of governing bodies academies have been attended by officials from his Department in each year since 2000; and if he will make a statement. [275094]

Jim Knight: We do not hold this information centrally.

Officials from the Department have regular contact with academies and this often includes attendance at governing body meetings.

Apprentices

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the average duration of an apprenticeship under the apprenticeship programme for 16 to 18-year-olds. [272679]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Apprenticeship frameworks typically take between one and three years to complete depending on the level and type of framework, the prior attainment and needs of the apprentice. These factors and an individual's speed of learning mean that length of time as an apprentice can vary enormously. Our primary measure of quality is the completion rate which last year was 64 per cent.; up from 37 per cent. in 2004/05.

The Government are committed to rebuilding apprenticeships. Since 1997, we have witnessed a renaissance in apprenticeships from a low point of 65,000 to a record 225,000 apprenticeship starts in 2007/08.

Building Schools for the Future Programme

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many of the schools built or refurbished under the Building Schools for the Future programme incorporate (a) forms of renewable energy generation and (b) rainwater harvesting and recycling. [275628]

Jim Knight: The Department does not routinely collect information on the numbers and types of renewable energy systems, rainwater harvesting installations or grey water recovery systems that are included within school projects delivered though the Building Schools for the Future programme (BSF).

Since December 2007 we have required that newly constructed schools within BSF meet challenging targets for reducing carbon emissions. The Department has provided additional funding for more than 200 schools to invest in energy efficiency and renewable energy measures on school sites to enable this requirement to be met.

We will be monitoring carbon emissions for new and refurbished schools as part of post occupancy evaluations to be carried for all BSF schools. Typically these evaluations take place one full calendar year after the school has opened, and so they are only now beginning to take place for schools that have been delivered within BSF.

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent progress has been made in confirming approval for revision to the primary capital programme for schools to 2008-11. [276237]

Jim Knight: We have now completed our assessment of revised or modified primary strategies for change from all of those local authorities required to resubmit following initial assessment last November. All but four have now been confirmed as fully approved. The remainder have been approved subject to further modification. The relevant local authorities have been notified of the outcome.

Children: Literacy

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what steps his Department plans to take to publicise the results of the Partnership for Literacy pilot scheme; [276168]

(2) what assessment he has made of the outcome of the Partnership for Literacy pilot scheme; [276169]

(3) what plans are in place to implement the Partnership for Literacy scheme; [276170]

(4) what estimate has been made of the cost of implementing the Partnership for Literacy scheme on a national basis. [276172]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The cost of implementing the Partnership for Literacy scheme nationwide has not been estimated. However, Sir Jim Rose is taking into account the evaluation report of the programme's first two-years, which was published in February, as part of developing recommendations on the identification and teaching of children with dyslexia. We are looking forward to Sir Jim Rose publishing his recommendations in June.

Children: Mental Health Services

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children were placed on adult mental health wards in each of the last five years. [275651]

Phil Hope: I have been asked to reply.

The following table gives figures for the number of bed days for children on child and adolescent mental health wards and for children aged under 16 and 16-17 on adult mental health wards.

	Quarter	Bed days - under 16s on adult ward	Bed days -16/17s on adult ward	Bed days - under 18s on CAMHS ward
2005-06	1	589	10,269	38,761
	2	349	5,958	26,351
	3	880	8,818	40,460

	2	[1]4	4,024	35,482
	3	0	2,918	40,734

[1] Five bed days were initially reported but one (Berkshire Healthcare NHS Foundation Trust) was a data error.

Notes:

Data on this issue was first collected in 2005-06 but data up until Quarter 3 of 2005-06 is not comparable with the data for Quarter 4 2005-06 onwards as information was collected on a different basis.

Class Sizes: Tamworth

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average class size in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in Tamworth constituency was in each of the last five years. [274136]

Jim Knight: The requested information is shown in the table.

Maintained primary[1] and state-funded secondary[1, 2] schools: average class size[3], as at January each year, in Tamworth parliamentary constituency

	Primary schools	Secondary schools
2004	25.4	20.9

Departmental Assets

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when his Department last reviewed its assets and land and property holdings with a view to identifying and disposing of surpluses. [269857]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) Property Asset Management Plan was revised in October 2008.

The Department's Business Plan includes challenging efficiency targets to reduce the size and cost of its estate while improving the quality of our working environments. Both of these objectives are addressed in DCSF's Property Asset Management Plan.

DCSF has already made significant progress in efficiency and effectiveness as shown in "Improving the Efficiency of Central Government's use of office property" released by the NAO recently.

Departmental Billing

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department and its predecessor paid in interest to suppliers under the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998 in the last three years for which figures are available. [275208]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: I can confirm that the Department for Children, Schools and Families and its predecessor did not make any interest payments to suppliers under the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998 in the last three financial years from 2006-07 to 2008-09.

Departmental Contracts

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which services his Department and its predecessors have outsourced in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274453]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Since April 2004, the Department for Children, Schools and Families and its predecessor has not outsourced any services. All services currently outsourced went through the process prior to this date.

Departmental Furniture

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department and its predecessors spent on furniture in each of the last five years. [273746]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Expenditure by the Department for Children, Schools and Families and its predecessors on furniture in each of the last five years is shown as follows:

	Total cost (£)
2004/05	524,490
2005/06	315,124
2006/07	123,703
2007/08	1,297,092
2008-09	1,228,197

Departmental Official Hospitality

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department and its predecessors has spent on (a) conference services and (b) banqueting services in each of the last five years. [274511]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Details of expenditure on conferences incurred by the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) in the last five years are as follows:

2008-09	978,338
2007-08	692,232
2006-07	1,284,335
2005-06	945,416
2004-05	1,082,099

DCSF is unable to separately identify the costs for conference services and banqueting services as such expenditure is recorded under the general heading of 'Conference Costs' on the Department's financial system.

DCSF was established under Machinery of Government changes on 28 June 2007. The expenditure recorded also relates to that of its predecessor Department, the Department for Education and Skills.

Departmental Press Releases

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families to which media organisations his Department sends press releases. [272610]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department's press releases are sent to all organisations representing national and regional TV, radio and newspapers, and a range of other media companies. All press releases are also posted on the Department's website. A list of all of the organisations will be placed in the House Libraries.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to table 8.3 of his Department's annual report 2008, pages 88-9, Detailed breakdown of expenditure by function within departmental expenditure limit, 2002-03 to 2010-11, which individual programmes and corresponding allocations are aggregated as other miscellaneous programmes for 2010-11; which grants and corresponding allocations are aggregated as other standards funds for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2010-11; and which grants and corresponding allocations are aggregated within area-based grants for 2010-11. [271731]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department's grants and programmes aggregated as within other miscellaneous programmes for 2010-11 are provided in Table 1:

Departmental Publications

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department has spent on placing supplements in (a) Children and Young People Now magazine and (b) Community Care magazine in the last 12 months. [274264]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Since 1 May 2008, the Department has placed two items in Community Care magazine, at a cost of £6,228, and two in Children and Young People Now magazine, costing £27,861.

Head Teachers: Retirement

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number of head teachers in post in 2009 who will have retired by (a) 2010, (b) 2015 and (c) 2020; and if he will make a statement. [275037]

Jim Knight: As we said in the Children's Plan, over 60 per cent. of head teachers are now over 50, which means that within the next decade a whole generation of head teachers will be retiring. Of the number of head teachers in post in 2009 we estimate that by 2010, 6 per cent. will have retired, by 2015 this will have risen to 38 per cent. and by 2020 it will have reached 55 per cent.[1] Dealing with the loss of their skills and experience will be a challenge but also an opportunity for innovation and reform. We have invested £30 million in the National College for School Leadership's succession planning strategy which is working with schools, local authorities and faith bodies around the country to develop local solutions to find, develop and keep great head teachers.

[1] The estimates assume that the head teachers in post in 2009 will choose to retire at the current average age of 58 years. This estimate is therefore a predictive trend of retirement as we cannot forecast with certainty the future retirement behaviours of individuals.

History: Primary Education

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps his Department is taking to improve the teaching of (a) history and (b) British history in primary schools. [274086]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: We asked Sir Jim Rose to review the primary curriculum in order to reduce prescription and give schools more time to teach essential knowledge and skills in greater depth. In the revised primary curriculum, it is proposed that, from 2011, schools will be required to teach children the broad chronology of major events in the UK, from ancient civilisations to present day. At least two key periods of history that were significant to the locality and the UK must be studied in depth. A consultation on these proposals will run until 24 July.

More specifically on support for teachers, the Training and Development Agency (TDA) has supported History initial teacher training (ITT) by providing access to specialist subject knowledge for ITT tutors and mentors. This is delivered via the History subject resource network, led by the Historical Association. In 2008 TDA also funded the Historical Association to develop subject specific online CPD opportunities. The e-CPD modules offer a package of support and a programme of professional development activity for history tutors and teachers undertaking subject development or improvement projects in their own schools.

International Baccalaureate

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils at (a) maintained schools, (b) sixth form colleges, (c) independent schools and (d) comprehensive schools were entered for the International Baccalaureate examination in each of the last five years. [262264]

Jim Knight: The information is provided in the following table. Data were not collected prior to 2005/06 and so the information is available only for the past three years.

	2005/06	2006/07	2007/08
Maintained schools	607	755	726
Comprehensive	365	510	452
Independent	922	1,152	1,313

Total	1,790	2,261	2,485

Notes:
1. Figures relate to 16 to 18-year-olds (age at start of academic year, i.e. 31 August).
2. 'Maintained schools' include comprehensive, selective, modern, PRUs and hospital schools.

Primary Education

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his most recent estimate is of the number of primary school places required for the academic years (a) 2009-10, (b) 2010-11 and (c) 2011-12. [273857]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Local authorities are responsible for planning the creation of new school places and are under a duty to ensure sufficient school places are available to meet local needs. The Department allocates basic need funding to enable local authorities to provide the additional places needed in response to a growth in pupil numbers. For funding the additional school places the Department relies on authorities' own estimates of future primary and secondary pupil numbers, which they provide to the Department annually through the Surplus Places Survey. At January 2008 there were 3.823 million pupils in primary schools in England and local authorities estimated the primary school population would increase by around 2.5 per cent. over the following four academic years as follows:

	LA estimated number of primary pupils (million)	Annual increase (percentage)
2008-09	3.833	+0.26
2009-10	3.847	+0.37
2010-11	3.875	+0.73
2011-12	3.919	+1.14

Source:
Surplus Places Survey 2008

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools in each local authority will require temporary accommodation to be constructed in order to provide additional state sector primary school places in the academic year (a) 2009-10, (b) 2010-11 and (c) 2011-12. [273858]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department does not hold estimates of the amount of temporary accommodation that may be required by schools.

Local authorities are responsible for planning the creation of new school places and are under a duty to ensure sufficient school places are available to meet local needs. Through good asset management processes, they are encouraged to plan for future accommodation requirements.

Temporary accommodation is appropriate where there is too little time to construct permanent accommodation, or where the need is likely to be short term. In such circumstances, modern, high-quality temporary buildings provide a good environment for teaching and learning. Where they are new or relocated, they are required to meet building environmental standards similar to those which apply to permanent buildings.

Pupils: Obesity

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps his Department is taking to tackle childhood obesity; what proportion of school-age children he estimates are (a) overweight and (b) obese; and if he will make a statement. [269297]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: In the year since the £372 million "Healthy Weight, Healthy Lives: a Cross Government Strategy for England" was published there has been substantial progress. The "Healthy Weight, Healthy Lives: One Year On" annual report was published last month, which sets out in detail our progress to date and also the areas we need to focus on over the next year. A copy of the report is available on the DCSF and Department of Health websites.

The two main sources of data on childhood obesity are the Health Survey for England (HSE) and National Child Measurement Programme (NCMP). In 2008, the HSE data showed that the estimated prevalence of overweight among 2 to 15-year-olds was 14.0 per cent. and the prevalence of obesity was 16.5 per cent. The 2007/8 NCMP results showed that in reception year 13.0 per cent. of children were overweight and 9.6 per cent. were obese and that in Year 6 14.3 per cent. of children were overweight and 18.3 per cent. were obese.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what guidance his Department has issued on the education of highly obese children in each of the last three years. [274590]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Government's strategy for addressing overweight and obesity is set out in "Healthy Weight, Healthy Lives: A Cross-Government Strategy for England" and in the recent progress report "Healthy Weight, Healthy Lives: One Year On". The latter report sets out how we can continue our drive to combat obesity by helping people to make healthier choices, creating an environment that promotes healthy weight, providing quality services that identify, advise, refer and treat those at risk, and strengthening the delivery system. The initial focus of the strategy is on children.

The most recent data from the National Child Measurement Programme for 2007/08 and from the Health Survey for England for 2007 suggests that the trend in obesity prevalence may have begun to flatten out over the last two to three years. The Cross-Government Obesity Unit provides primary care trusts and schools with annual guidance on the National Child Measurement Programme which includes information on sending the results from the programme back to parents.

There is no evidence that there are large numbers of children who need special arrangements for their education on the grounds that they are obese, and the Department has not issued guidance on the specific topic of education of obese children. If school nurses or other health professionals are concerned about a child's health because of his or her apparent weight status they should take action according to standard local care pathways. However, children with health problems related to obesity may need support at school in managing these conditions, and for these pupils schools should have policies in place on the management of pupils' medicines and on supporting pupils with medical needs. The Department for Children, Schools and Families and Department of Health have published joint guidance, "Managing Medicines in Schools and Early Years Settings", to help schools and their employers develop such policies.

There may be a small number of children whose weight gives rise to mobility problems and who might also meet the Disability Discrimination Act 2005 definition of a disabled person. Guidance has been issued to schools and local authorities on their responsibilities under the Act: this and can be found at http://www.teachernet.gov.uk/wholeschool/disability/disabilityandthedda/

Schools

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average (a) class size, (b) number and percentage of pupils with special educational needs, (c) free school meal entitlement percentage, (d) suspension rate, (e) exclusion rate, (f) expenditure per pupil, (g) truancy rate and (h) punctuality rate was in (i) schools in England and (ii) each national challenge school in each seaside town in the latest period for which information is available. [257334]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry [holding answer 23 February 2009]: To provide all of the requested information for England and each national challenge school in each seaside town would incur disproportionate cost.

Information on special needs, free school meal eligibility and expenditure per pupil for each national challenge school in each seaside town has been placed in the House Libraries.

The latest available published information on average class sizes, which includes information for local authorities, is published as SFR 09/2008 "Pupil Characteristics and Class Sizes in Maintained Schools in England: January 2008" which can be accessed at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000786/index.shtml

The latest available published information on pupils with special educational needs, which includes information for local authorities, is published as SFR 15/2008 "Special Educational Needs in England: January 2008" which can be accessed at:

The latest available published information on the number and percentage of pupils eligible for free school meals, which includes information for local authorities, is published as SFR 09/2008 "Pupil Characteristics and Class Sizes in Maintained Schools in England: January 2008" which can be accessed at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000786/index.shtml

The latest available published information about permanent and fixed period exclusions, which includes information for local authorities, is published as SFR 14/2008 "Permanent and Fixed Period Exclusions from Schools in England 2006/07" which can be accessed at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000793/index.shtml

Information is collected on unauthorised absence. Unauthorised absence is absence without leave from a teacher or other authorised representative of the school. This includes all unexplained or unjustified absences, such as lateness, holidays during term time not authorised by the school, absence where reason is not yet established and truancy. Information collected by the Department on absence is a more comprehensive measure of children's missed schooling.

The Department's focus is on reducing all forms of absence, not just a small subset. The issue is not whether the pupil had permission to be absent; it is how much absence the pupil has.

The absence SFR provides information on absence, which includes authorised and unauthorised absence, and highlights the numbers of pupils who are persistent absentees missing 20 per cent. or more of their schooling, whether with permission or not.

The latest available published information on absence, which includes information for local authorities, is published as SFR 03/2009 "Pupil Absence in Schools in England, including Pupil Characteristics: 2007/08" at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000832/index.shtml

Schools: Playing Fields

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will make it his policy to retain for community sport and leisure use school playing fields which are surplus to requirements. [274243]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: When we consulted on the effects of the disposal of school playing fields, local authorities and schools expressed concerns about the financial implications of maintaining school playing fields that were genuinely surplus to requirements. The Department does, however, encourage schools and local authorities to consider arrangements whereby such playing fields could be maintained by other local organisations and managed to benefit their local communities. When considering any application to dispose of school playing fields, the views of any authorised community users of the land are fully taken into account.

Schools: Training

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent assessment he has made of the adequacy of the amount of time provided by schools for staff training in new technologies and initiatives. [274704]

Jim Knight: Decisions about the appropriate amount of time allocated for training individual members of school staff, including training in new technologies and initiatives, are made at school level. For teachers these decisions will be taken in the context of the revised performance management arrangements we introduced in September 2007. In many schools similar arrangements have been introduced for all school staff.

The Department works to support the professional development of school staff and recently, for example, made provision during the 2007/08 academic year for schools to reduce their school sessions from 190 to 189 days to provide additional opportunities for staff training on the secondary curriculum changes. On 30 April, we announced that similar provision would be made for primary schools in 2010 to provide training to staff in advance of a new primary curriculum being introduced from 2011. A comprehensive package of guidance and support for schools to aid introduction of a new primary curriculum will be available from January 2010.

In addition, the Department is working with the QCA and BECTA to consider what additional support teachers will need to meet the raised expectations of children's ICT capabilities, and the use of technology to enrich learning across the curriculum, as set out in the final report of Jim Rose's review of the primary curriculum.

Science: General Certificate of Secondary Education

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils who were (a) eligible and (b) ineligible for free school meals took GCSEs in (i) science, (ii) science and additional science and (iii) separate science subjects in 2008. [262486]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The number of pupils at the end of KS4 who attempted the following science subjects in 2008 by free school meals eligibility.

	FSM	Non-FSM
Physics	2,100	50,600
Chemistry	2,100	51,000
Biological sciences	2,700	55,700
Core science	56,100	409,600
Core and additional science	31,800	299,100

Special Educational Needs: Disadvantaged

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils who were eligible for free school meals had statements of special educational needs in each local authority area in each year since 1997. [264874]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry [holding answer 20 March 2009]: Pupil level data has only been collected since 2002.

The earliest and latest available data has been placed in the House Libraries.

Data for further years could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Teachers: Training

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he is taking to increase the number of school-based teacher training mentors; and if he will make a statement. [275035]

Jim Knight: Between 2001 and 2009 the Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDA) has supported a significant number of initiatives to increase both the number and quality of school based mentors in initial teacher training (ITT) and in continuing professional development. Since 2001 the number of trainee teachers has risen from 27,000 to over 36,000 this year. In order to ensure that all trainees have a well trained mentor in their placement schools the TDA has invested in significant programmes:

2002 to 2006—the National Partnership Project (over £20 million over the lifetime of the project)—a wide-ranging programme of support for mentor training, including sharing of best practice; direct funding for higher education institution mentor training with schools and support for the building of regional sharing of mentors and training between ITT providers.

2006 to 2009—Partnership development schools (over £6 million)—worked with over 600 schools on national priority areas focusing on mentoring on a local level.

From 2009—Beyond Partnership—the TDA is opening out a consultation process with the ITT sector to explore best use of the investment made and how further support can be developed and delivered.

Evidence of Ofsted inspections and feedback from ITT providers, schools and regional field-forces indicates that this investment has had a significant impact ensuring that all trainees receive high quality training during their school experience, including the support of a well-trained mentor.

In response to the recommendations made in Lord Sainsbury's report "The Race to the Top", the TDA has put into place an Early Career Mentoring project for science and mathematics teachers. This project is a two-year evaluative pilot, being delivered by the Learning and Skills Network that will provide face-to-face, telephone and e-mentoring for 600 (rising to 800 in the second year) science and mathematics trainee teachers, newly qualified teachers and teachers in their second year of teaching. The programme will start in September 2009.

The Professional Standards for Teachers also make clear that being a coach and mentor are key aspects of teacher professional development, and this is referenced more strongly as the individual progresses up the career ladder. The Government are committed to the introduction of the Masters in Teaching and Learning programme from 2009/10, an initiative that will establish teaching as a masters-level profession. A key element of that will include the identification and training of in-school coaches.

Trade Unions

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 12 March 2009, Official Report, column 715W, on trade unions, what office facilities his Department provides for the exclusive use of each recognised trade union; and what the notional monetary value of such provision was in 2008-09. [271927]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department provides a small office, with furniture, for the exclusive use of the trade unions on each of our four sites. This can be used for confidential phone calls and meetings with individual union members. Other facilities, such as IT and photocopying facilities, are provided on a shared basis, similar to that provided to our other staff.

The notional cost apportioned to the office space provided is as follows:

Site	Cost per annum (£)
Sheffield	11,030
London	23,800
Runcorn	3,170
Darlington	2,770
Total	40,770

Truancy

[262478]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The requested information is shown in the table.

Primary, secondary and special schools[1, 2, 3]: Number of schools by percentage of persistent absentees[4], 2007/08

The information is a variation of table 4.4 in SFR03/2009, which was reissued with revised row delimiters on 21 April 2009. However, the above information is taken from a dataset which contains a minor amendment and is now being used for all pupil absence analysis.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent steps his Department has taken to reduce the rate of truancy. [273090]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department's strategy on school attendance aims to reduce all forms of absence, not merely absence which schools do not authorise (which includes truancy). Our particular focus is on individual pupils who are persistent absentees, who miss 20 per cent. or more of their schooling, whether with permission or not.

This year the Department is working closely through the National Strategies with 42 local authorities with high levels of persistent absence. The National Strategies are providing intensive support and challenge to minimise absence, particularly in 360 secondary schools in those authorities with high persistent absence. A further 102 local authorities with lower rates of persistent absence are receiving support to reduce persistent absence in 795 secondary schools with high levels of persistent absence.

Our work on reducing absence, and persistent absence, has been successful. Overall absence rates in 2007-08 were 6.29 per cent., down from 7.41 per cent. in 1996-97, equivalent to some 70,000 more pupils in school every day.

The total number of persistent absentees in 2007-08 was 233,000, down from 273,000 in 2006-07, a reduction of 14.5 per cent.

Truancy: Tamworth

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many days of unauthorised absence were recorded in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in Tamworth constituency in each of the last five years. [274134]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Information is not available in the form requested. The available information on the number of days of unauthorised absence in Staffordshire local authority for the last five years is shown in the table. To provide pupil absence data at constituency level would incur disproportionate cost.

Absence data is normally reported in terms of sessions. There are two sessions per day.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

10 Downing Street: Security

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether (a) Mr. Derek Draper and (b) Mr. Charlie Whelan has a security pass for 10 Downing Street. [274985]

Kevin Brennan: I refer the hon. Member to the answer the Prime Minister gave to the hon. Member for Hammersmith and Fulham (Mr. Hands) on 6 May 2009, Official Report, column 182W.

12 Downing Street

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the cost to the public purse was of establishing the new open plan office in 12 Downing Street. [272016]

Kevin Brennan: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer given to his question on 11 November 2008, Official Report, column 1131W.

Business: Government Assistance

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what budget the Cabinet Office has set for the "real help now" website for 2009-10. [269896]

Mr. Byrne: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps) on 20 April 2009, Official Report, column 355W.

Childbirth: Migration

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 30 March 2009, Official Report, columns 956-7W, on child birth, what forecast he has made of the number of births there would be if (a) net migration were six per cent. lower than the principal projection, (b) migration equalled emigration and (c) net migration were 60,000 in each year to 2031. [276294]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated May 2009:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question, pursuant to the answer of 30 March 2009 (Official Report, columns 956-7W) on child birth, regarding what forecast the Office for National Statistics has made of the number of births there would be if (a) net migration were six per cent lower than the principal projection (b) migration equalled emigration and (c) if net migration was 60,000 in each of the years to 2031 [276294].

Migration assumptions for national population projections are conventionally expressed in terms of net migration (immigration less emigration). The 2006-based principal (or central) projection assumed a long-term annual net inflow to the UK of +190,000 persons a year. The attached table shows the projected number of births in the UK for each year from mid-2008 to mid-2031 according to this 2006-based principal national population projection which is included for the sake of completeness.

The 2006-based 'zero migration' variant projection makes the same assumptions about future fertility and mortality as the principal projection, but assumes that immigration will equal emigration, and thus net migration will be zero, at all ages from mid-2006 to the end of the projection period. The projected numbers of births in the UK for each year from mid-2008 to mid-2031 according to this variant projection are also shown in the table.

To fully answer your question, further population projections have been produced by reducing the nominal immigration totals applied in the 2006-based principal projection, but leaving the fertility, mortality and emigration assumptions unchanged. It should be noted that, in practice, this may not be a realistic scenario: if immigration fell permanently to levels well below those experienced in recent years, it is likely that this would, in time, lead to a reduction in the level of emigration as well.

[1] Additional population projections produced using reduced immigration assumptions compared to the principal projection.

Using this method, two further projections have been produced; one assumes annual net migration inflows to the UK six per cent lower than those assumed for the principal projection, whilst the other assumes annual net migration inflows of +60,000 persons a year. The table therefore also shows the projected number of births in the UK for these two additional projections.

Civil Servants: Codes of Practice

Nadine Dorries: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what recent discussions he has had with the Cabinet Secretary and Head of the Home Civil Service on changes to the code of conduct for civil servants and political advisers; and if he will make a statement; [271095]

(2) what recent discussions he has had with the Prime Minister on changes to the code of conduct for civil servants and political advisers; and if he will make a statement. [271096]

Mr. Byrne: Information relating to internal discussion and advice is not normally disclosed.

Damian McBride

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what severance package has been agreed upon in respect of the departure of Damian McBride from the staff of his Department. [271804]

Mr. Byrne: Special advisers are employed under terms and conditions set out in the Model Contract for Special Advisers.

Mr. McBride received no severance package on leaving office.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) whether the resignation of Damian McBride from his position as a special adviser had immediate effect; [274987]

(2) on what date each Minister in the Cabinet Office was informed of the emails sent by Damian McBride to Derek Draper. [275144]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 12 May 2009]: Mr McBride resigned with immediate effect.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister, on 7 May 2009, Official Report, column 379W.

Departmental Furniture

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) how much was spent by the Cabinet Office on furniture for 10 Downing Street in each of the last five years; [273708]

(2) how much was spent by (a) the Cabinet Office and (b) its agency on furniture in each of the last five years. [273709]

Kevin Brennan: The Prime Minister's Office is an integral part of Cabinet Office. The cost for the Cabinet Office for the financial year 2007-08 was £139,887.

For information for previous years I refer the hon. Member to the answers given to the hon. Member for Lewes (Norman Baker) on 29 March 2006, Official Report, column 1031W, and on 23 October 2007, Official Report, columns 295-96W.

Figures for the financial year 2008-09 will be available once the Cabinet Office accounts have been audited.

Departmental Manpower

Nadine Dorries: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster who is responsible for the line management of civil servants based in 10 Downing Street; and if he will make a statement. [271098]

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what the job title of each employee within 10 Downing Street is; [272014]

(2) what the organisational structure of the posts in 10 Downing Street is. [272012]

Kevin Brennan: Jeremy Heywood is the most senior civil servant in the Prime Minister's Office reporting to the Cabinet Secretary. Further information on the Prime Minister's Office is available in Dodd's publications, copies of which are available in the Libraries of the House.

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many (a) civil servants, (b) secondees, (c) contractors, (d) consultants, (e) fee-paid staff, (f) agency staff, (g) Downing Street Political Office staff and (h) other staff worked in 10 Downing Street as at April 2009. [272013]

Kevin Brennan: The total number of staff on the No. 10 payroll as at 1 April 2009 is 200. The staffing and associated costs for the Political Office are met by the Labour party. As has been the case under successive Administrations, marginal costs associated with the Political Office are met from within the overall budget for 10 Downing Street.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisers

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which special advisers (a) were dismissed, (b) resigned, (c) were demoted and (d) were disciplined in each year since June 2007. [270079]

Mr. Byrne: Special advisers are employed under the terms and conditions set out in the "Model Contract for Special Advisers". Since 2003, the Government have published, on an annual basis, a list of special advisers by Department. The next list will be published before the summer reeess. Personal information about individual special advisers is not normally disclosed.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will place in the Library a copy of the Central Office of Information White Book, March 2009 edition. [271962]

Mr. Byrne: A copy has now been placed in the Library of the House.

Departmental Security

Nick Harvey: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on how many occasions the Cabinet Office's head of departmental security has invited the Director-General of the International Bodyguard Association to assess his Department's security in the last three years. [275268]

Kevin Brennan: The Director-General of the International Bodyguard Association was invited, on just one occasion in 2008, to act as an independent reviewer on part of one small ad hoc review being undertaken by the Cabinet Office.

The Department has no on-going business relationship with The Director-General of the International Bodyguard Association.

Departmental Stationery

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what proportion of office supplies purchased by his Department were recycled products in the latest period for which figures are available. [275352]

Kevin Brennan: The Cabinet Office purchases the majority of its office supplies through two contracts for paper and other stationery items which include a wide range of recycled products. Between May 2008 when the current contracts started and March 2009, 84 per cent. of paper and 20 per cent. of other items purchased via these contracts were recycled products.

Honours: Arts

Mr. Soames: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster who appoints the Chair of the Arts and Media Honours Committee. [273104]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 6 May 2009]: The independent chairs of the eight honours committees are appointed by the Cabinet Secretary after a process of open advertising, written application and interview.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Burns: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if he will instruct Ministers, their Departments and Government agencies to correspond with hon. Members at their House of Commons offices unless they have been instructed otherwise by hon. Members. [272198]

Mr. Byrne: The Cabinet Office guidance 'Handling Correspondence from Members of Parliament, Members of the House of Lords, MEPs and Members of Devolved Assemblies' makes clear that replies to letters from hon. Members should be sent to the originating office of the correspondence unless indicated otherwise by the hon. Member concerned. Copies of the guidance are available in the Libraries of the House.

Non-profit Making Associations: Olympic Games 2012

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what steps the Government are taking to encourage social enterprises to take up commercial opportunities arising out of the London 2012 Olympics. [272602]

Kevin Brennan: The Office of the Third Sector (OTS) works closely with Social Enterprise London (SEL), as a strategic partner, whose remit is to promote the work of social enterprises to the London Organising Committee for the Olympic Games (LOCOG), the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA), and their 2012 supply chain. Under the project 'Winning with social enterprise', SEL promotes commercial opportunities to social enterprises across the country, encouraging them to bid for the contracts and signposting to relevant sources of business support when necessary.

Funding from the project enables SEL to engage with London 2012 to promote social enterprise as a potential contractor. SEL also delivers regional workshops about 2012 commercial opportunities to social enterprises across England. The workshops provide detailed information about how social enterprises can register on the CompeteFor system, and where they can obtain further support and guidance.

Redundancy

Mr. Vara: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many (a) men and (b) women in each age group in each local authority area in England and Wales were made redundant in each of the last five years. [275266]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many (a) men and (b) women in each age group were made redundant in each local authority in England and Wales in each of the last five years. (275266).

The Office for National Statistics (ONS) compiles labour market statistics for local areas from the Annual Population Survey (APS) and its predecessor the annual Labour Force Survey (LFS) following International Labour Organisation (ILO) definitions. However, this source does not support analysis of redundancies at these geographic levels and no alternative source is available.

Unemployment

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster in which parliamentary constituencies the (a) number and (b) proportion of people out of work was greater in the latest month for which figures are available than in the equivalent month of 1997. [275446]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, May 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking in which parliamentary constituencies the (a) number and (b) proportion of people out of work was greater in the latest month for which figures are available than in the equivalent month of 1997.(275446)

The Office for National Statistics compiles unemployment statistics in line with International Labour Market Organisation definitions, for local areas from the Annual Population Survey and its predecessor the Annual Labour Force Survey.

Unfortunately, due to small sample sizes at this level of geography it is not practicable to produce the requested analyses.

As an alternative, Table 1 shows the Parliamentary Constituencies where the number of persons claiming Jobseeker's Allowance (Claimant Count), the main unemployment related benefit, was higher in April 2009 compared to April 1997-Table 2 shows the Parliamentary Constituencies where the proportion of persons claiming Jobseeker's Allowance was higher in April 2009 compared to April 1997.

A copy of the tables has been placed in the Library of the House.

The definition of the claimant count has not changed since 1997, following the introduction of Jobseeker's Allowance in 1996.

Although not a change to the definition of the claimant count, the introduction of the system of joint claims for Jobseeker's Allowance from 2001 has meant that both members of certain couples are now required to claim JSA jointly and both are required to look for work. This change has led to certain claims being counted as two separate claims when they would previously have appeared as one claim. Without this change, the current level of the unemployment claimant count would be about 9,000 lower than it currently is.

OLYMPICS

Departmental Computers

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how many laptop computers have been provided to (a) her, (b) her special advisers and (c) civil servants in the Government Olympic Executive in each year since 2005; and at what cost. [268257]

Tessa Jowell: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by the Parliamentary Secretary, Cabinet Office, my hon. Friend the Member for West Bromwich, East (Mr. Watson) on 21 April 2009, Official Report, columns 549-50W.

Figures for the Government Olympic Executive were included in the reply given by the Under-Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport, my hon. Friend the Member for Bradford, South (Mr. Sutcliffe) on 2 April 2009, Official Report, column 1377W.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much has been spent on (a) the purchase of and (b) bills for (i) BlackBerrys and (ii) other mobile telephones for (A) her, (B) her special advisers and (C) civil servants in the Government Olympic Executive in each year since its establishment. [268235]

Tessa Jowell: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Secretary for the Cabinet Office, (Tom Watson) on 21 May 2009, Official Report, column 550W.

Figures for the Government Olympic Executive were included in the reply given by my hon. Friend the Minister for Sport on 2 April 2009, Official Report, column 1377W.

Government Olympic Executive: Manpower

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how many people have been employed in the Government Olympic Executive in each year since 2005. [275951]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 15 May 2009]: The number of staff (full-time equivalents (FTEs)) working in the Government Olympic Executive (GOE) and its predecessor, the Olympic Games Unit, has risen over the last five years as follows.

End of financial year	Number of FTEs
2004-05	[1]90
2005-06	[1]90
2006-07	44.3
2007-08	62.3
2008-09	89.4

[1] Approximately

This planned increase in staffing (a) reflects the wider role the GOE has taken on during this period—GOE is now the only organisation overseeing the entire Olympic project, integrating the work of multiple delivery bodies, and ensuring the Games is delivered within the £9.3 billion public sector funding provision; (b) is a planned response to the expected growth in work to deliver the Government's commitments and guarantees, as 2012 approaches; and (c) is consistent with GOE's staffing and resource plan for 2008-09 to 2010-11, which was agreed early in 2008.

GOE headcount is expected to peak this summer at about 95 FTE, as a result of the recent recruitment of interim resources to focus on an integrated delivery assurance project across the programme, after which it is expected to reduce towards 90 FTE. There are no plans for GOE headcount to grow further before 2012.

Government Olympic Executive: Operating Costs

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what the operational costs of the Government Olympic Executive have been in each year since 2005. [275953]

Tessa Jowell [holding answer 15 May 2009]: The Government Olympic Executive (GOE) is responsible for overseeing the successful delivery of the entire London 2012 Games Programme, integrating the work of multiple delivery bodies, safeguarding and maximising the value of the Government's investment ensuring the Games is delivered within the £9.3 billion public sector funding provision, and maximising the benefits of the Games for the whole of the UK.

The expenditure of the GOE, part of the Department for Culture, Media and Sport, and its predecessor, the Olympic Games Unit, for the completed financial years since 2004-05 are as follows:

	£ million
2004-05	0.6
2005-06	1.4
2006-07	3.1
2007-08	5.4
2008-09 (provisional outturn)	7.9

This increase in expenditure over the period:

(a) reflects the increased role that the GOE has taken on during this period;

(b) is a planned response to the expected growth in work to deliver the Government's commitments and guarantees, to spread the benefits of the Games across the UK as 2012 approaches; and

(c) is consistent with GOE's staffing and resource plan for 2008-09 to 2010-11, agreed in early 2008.

Olympic Games 2012: Construction

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Minister for the Olympics (1) for what reasons the construction of the (a) North Olympic site and (b) Olympic site has been delayed; and what steps she is taking to reduce that delay; [273127]

(2) if she will make an assessment of the potential for further delays to the (a) construction of the North Olympic site and (b) landscaping deadlines for growing the plants required for the Olympic site; [273128]

(3) what recent representations she has received from the landscaping and horticultural firms contracted to provide services on the Olympic site on the effects on them of changes in the timetable for construction of the Olympic site; [273129]

(4) what assessment she has made of the likely effects on horticultural companies providing plants for the (a) North Olympic and (b) Olympic site of delays to construction at the Olympic site. [273135]

Tessa Jowell: The overall construction programme for the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic games continues on track, with no delay in the construction of the Olympic Park or in the construction of the parklands in the North of the Park.

The delivery contractor, Bam Nuttall, is currently procuring a number of specialist subcontractors and suppliers through a series of packages and is on track to start delivery of the Northern parklands later this spring. The contracts for the hard and soft landscaping of the South Park are due for award later in 2009, with on-site work to start in early 2010. These are in line with planned dates for such contracts to be let.

Further to those packages already at an advanced stage of procurement, there will be many more opportunities for landscaping and horticultural suppliers registered on the London 2012 CompeteFor website in areas, including the supply of thousands of younger woodland trees, shrubs and other plants scheduled for planting nearer games-time.

In consultation with landscaping industry expertise (including the British Association of Landscape Industries, the Horticultural Trades Association, Greening the Games—an industry-wide lobby group—as well as expert industry contractors and suppliers) the Olympic Delivery Authority has given careful consideration to the number of growing seasons available for the plant stock proposed across the park and is confident that there is sufficient time to ensure an excellent games-time park.

Olympic Games 2012: Essex

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what assessment the Government Olympic Executive (GOE) has made since December 2008 of the economic effects of the London 2012 Olympics on (a) Essex and (b) Southend West constituency; what recent discussions she had with the GOE on this issue; and if she will make a statement. [275613]

Tessa Jowell: The Government Olympic Executive has not made a specific assessment of the economic effects of the London 2012 Olympics and Paralympics on Essex or Southend West. However, the East of England stands to gain from the wide range of opportunities created by the London 2012 games. These include businesses winning games-related work, increased tourism and improved skills and employment opportunities. The games, including pre-games training camps, will enable regions to attract inward investment and showcase themselves on an international stage, and UK Trade and Investment are helping businesses to use 2012 as a springboard for export.

We are already seeing progress in a lot of these areas, for example 23 of the Olympic Delivery Authority's suppliers are businesses registered in Essex. Additionally, 66 facilities from the region, including Southend Leisure and Tennis Centre in Essex are included in the official London 2012 Pre-Games Training Camp Guide.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how many suppliers based in (a) Southend-on-Sea and (b) Essex have been awarded contracts by the Olympic Delivery Authority to date; and if she will make a statement. [275614]

Tessa Jowell: To the end of March 2009, 23 suppliers registered in Essex had been awarded contracts by the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA). Currently no businesses registered in Southend-on-Sea are directly supplying the ODA.

The East of England Development Agency recently organised a programme of events for the chairman of the ODA, John Armitt on 18 March, which included a visit to a major business conference at Colchester FC and meetings with companies in the region that have won work supplying the ODA. Details of this and similar events, and information on CompeteFor (the electronic brokerage service for buyers and suppliers) are provided in the business section of the London 2012 website:

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Departmental Air Conditioning

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many of his Department's buildings are equipped with air conditioning systems with greater than 250kW of output; how many of these systems have been inspected under the Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the results. [270614]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport has one building with an air conditioning system with greater than 250 kW of output. This air conditioning system will need to be inspected in accordance with the Energy Performance of Buildings Regulations (2007/991). The inspection will be completed shortly.

Copies of the display energy certificates and their associated advisory reports in respect of each property occupied by my Department and its agencies have been deposited in the House Library.

Departmental Buildings

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on building maintenance in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274555]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport spent the following amounts on building maintenance in each of the last five years:

2008-09	312,682.94
2007-08	495,747.01
2006-07	598,354.08
2005-06	512,458.73
2004-05	433,051.28

Departmental Pay

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much (a) his Department and (b) its agency paid in end-of-year performance bonuses to (i) all staff and (ii) senior Civil Service staff in 2008-09; and how many such payments were made. [275258]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information is as follows:

Department of Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS)

Total pay bill was £24,534,890, of which 2.37 per cent. was used for non-consolidated in year and year end performance payments. These non-consolidated payments were paid to staff in the year 2008-09 for the performance year 2007-08. For the senior civil service (SCS), the size of the non-consolidated performance pay pot is based on recommendations by the independent senior salaries review body.

2008-09	All staff	Senior civil service (SCS) staff
Number of year end non-consolidated performance payments	221	25
Median (£)	1,200	7,000
Total cost (£)	499,647	254,750

Note:
The permanent secretary also received a non-consolidated performance payment in 2008.

Royal Parks

Total pay bill was £4,458,312, of which 0.75 per cent. was used for non-consolidated in year and year end performance payments. These non-consolidated payments were paid to staff in the year 2008-09 for the performance year 2007-08.

2008-09	All staff	Senior civil service (SCS) staff
Number of year end non-consolidated performance payments	19	[1]
Median (£)	510	[1]
Total cost (£)	25,160	[1]

[1] This information is not available due to the small number of SCS staff involved (less than five).

The Department for Culture, Media and Sport and its agency the Royal Parks make non consolidated payments to their staff to reward highly successful performance over a whole year (e.g. targets exceeded). All non-consolidated payments are funded within existing pay controls, have to be re-earned each year against pre-determined targets and as such do not add to future pay bill costs. This year the Government have responded positively to current economic conditions by freezing the size of the SCS 'pot' set aside for non-consolidated payments.

Industrial Health and Safety

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on compliance with requirements of health and safety at work legislation in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274546]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department spent the following on compliance with requirements of health and safety at work legislation:

2004-05	11,596.60
2005-06	28,451.75
2006-07	25,255.14
2007-08	30,355.26
2008-09	31,757.97

Mass Media: Ownership

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will commission research on the effects on the UK media industry of foreign ownership of UK media outlets. [276203]

Andy Burnham: There are no plans to commission research into the effects of foreign ownership on UK media outlets. However, Ofcom are currently conducting a review of the media ownership regime. Although this will not specifically consider foreign ownership, it will take a view on the ownership structures as a whole. This review will conclude later this year.

Sports: Disabled

Mr. Duncan Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps his Department is taking in respect of the provision of sports facilities for disabled children. [264792]

Andy Burnham [holding answer 1 April 2009]: Through the Physical Education and Sport Strategy for Young People (PESSYP), 250 multi-sports clubs were established in 2008-09, providing opportunities for young disabled people to take part in sport. The strategy aims to deliver a total of 450 new multi-sport clubs by 2011.

In addition, the Government have built on the Disability Discrimination Act 1995, setting down a clear framework that requires sports clubs to make reasonable adjustments to the way their services provide for disabled people and where necessary adjust the physical features of their premises.

Swimming

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the expected contribution of swimming to Olympics legacy targets for participation in sports. [275813]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Sport England has commissioned the Amateur Swimming Association (ASA) to deliver outcomes against Grow, Sustain and Excel. The ASA has been offered an award of £20,875,000 over the period 2009 to 2013 to drive these outcomes. Sport England is awaiting acceptance of this offer.

The ASA award agreement specifies that the ASA will grow the sport by 270,000 additional participants swimming for 30 minutes once a week (increasing the total of one x 30 16+ swimmers to 3,514,400) by 2012-13. It should be noted that Sport England's overall growth target is to get 1 million more people playing sport for 30 minutes three times a week by 2012-13. Recognising that most people who achieve three x 30 minutes per week do so through a combination of different sports, the individual National Governing Bodies have therefore been given goals expressed in terms of one x 30 minutes per week that will aggregate together.

In addition, the ASA award agreement sets out that the ASA will increase the total number of young people (five to 19) participating in swimming clubs from 136,327 to 159,483 by 2012-13. These figures for young people refer to the number of young people participating in swimming clubs, not the number of young people participating in swimming more generally.

Television: Standards

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many representations he has received on television programmes with content claimed to be unsuitable for viewing being broadcast before the watershed in each of the last five years. [276249]

Andy Burnham: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Approximately 50 per cent. of the correspondence received by the Department on broadcasting is about content of which quite a large proportion is about the watershed.

VisitEngland: Finance

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much VisitEngland has budgeted to spend on administration costs in 2009-10. [276450]

Barbara Follett: VisitBritain have confirmed that the total VisitEngland grant in aid budget for 2009-10, including VisitEngland's proportion of shared costs with VisitBritain, is £11,724,000.

Of that budget VisitEngland has allocated £2,874,000 to administration and property costs.

SCOTLAND

Departmental Billing

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department paid in interest to suppliers under the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998 in the last three years for which figures are available. [275195]

Ann McKechin: None.

Industrial Health and Safety

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department spent on compliance with requirements of health and safety at work legislation in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274536]

Ann McKechin: Information is not available in the form requested. Details on the cost of compliance with requirements of health and safety at work legislation are not recorded in a way that such information could be disaggregated.

WALES

Departmental Pay

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much his Department paid in end-of-year performance bonuses to (a) all staff and (b) senior Civil Service staff in 2008-09; and how many such payments were made. [275245]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office paid £6,000 in end-of-year performance bonuses to five staff. There were no payments to senior civil service staff.

Departmental Reviews

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many (a) review and (b) taskforce projects his Department has commissioned in each of the last five years; what the purpose of each such project is; when each such project (i) began and (ii) was completed; what the cost of each such project was; and if he will make a statement. [275979]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office has adopted a project management approach to various tasks, such as implementation of the Government of Wales Act 2006, but not commissioned any external reviews or taskforces.

Employment Tribunals Service

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many actions under employment law were brought against his Department in each of the last three years, broken down by category of action; and how many were contested by the Department at an employment tribunal. [275623]

Mr. Paul Murphy: Only one action under employment law has been brought against the Wales Office in the last three years to which a response has only recently been filed and therefore the matter has not yet progressed to employment tribunal stage.

TRANSPORT

Departmental Air Conditioning

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many of his Department's buildings are equipped with air conditioning systems with greater than 250kW of output; how many of these systems have been inspected under the Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007; and if he will place in the Library a copy of each inspection report. [272139]

Mr. Hoon: The requested information is provided in the following table:

Organisational unit	Number of buildings	Number of inspections
DFT Central
London HQ	2	1
Air Accidents Investigation Branch	0	n/a

Organisational unit	Number of buildings	Number of inspections
Rail Accident Investigation Branch	0	n/a
Executive Agency
Driving Standards Agency[2]	1	1
Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency[1]	6	6
Government Car and Despatch Agency	0	n/a
Highways Agency	7	28
Maritime and Coastguard Agency[2]	2	2
Vehicle and Operator Services Agency	0	n/a
Vehicle Certification Agency	0	n/a

[1] New chillers installed on certain units and due for installation at others. Inspection to be arranged.
[2] Display Energy Certificate and Inspection Report placed in the Library.
[3] The reports are currently with Chartered Institute of Building Services Engineers (CIBSE) for agreement due to the limited availability of assessors.

The Department for Transport will place in the Library a copy of the display energy certificates and their associated advisory reports in respect of each property occupied by the Department and its agencies.

Driving: Licensing

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make it his policy to reissue official photocard driving licences with all prior entitlements without the need for the applicant to provide proof of completion for each individual class; and if he will make a statement. [275497]

Jim Fitzpatrick: There is no requirement for applicants to routinely provide proof of their driver entitlement when applying for a replacement photocard licence. The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) will renew photocard licences that reflect the driving entitlement recorded on the applicant's driving record. On receipt of a new licence, drivers are asked to check the accuracy of the document and raise with DVLA any concerns they have. If the customer claims an entitlement that is not shown on the licence, DVLA will investigate.

Local Transport Act 2008

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when he plans to publish guidance on the quality contracts provided for by the Local Transport Act 2008; and if he will make a statement. [276445]

Paul Clark: We will be consulting on draft regulations and guidance before the summer recess, with a view to bringing provisions into force by the end of the year.

Newhaven Marine Railway Station

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for what reason a closure process for Newhaven Marine station has not been initiated. [276325]

Paul Clark: Newhaven Marine station is owned by Network Rail and as such it is up to them to review options for the future of the station. If Network Rail were to conclude they wished to close this station they would be required to follow the procedures under the Railways Act 2005, including a full consultation.

Private Roads: Lancashire

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent estimate he has made of the number of miles of unadopted road in Lancashire. [276308]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport holds no record of the number of miles of unadopted roads in Lancashire. The last recorded figures based on a 1972 survey, suggested there were around 40,000 such roads within the UK. We have no information on how many of these roads have since been adopted or how many new unadopted roads have been created.

Railways: Finance

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what proportion of the cost of running the rail network was met from passenger revenue in (a) 1997 and (b) 2003; and what proportion he estimates will be so met in (i) 2009 and (ii) 2013. [276326]

Paul Clark: Details of historic passenger revenue and Government support are set out in "National Rail Trends" which is published by the Office of Rail Regulation.

An estimate of passenger revenue alongside planned Government support for the railway up until 2013-14 is set out in the White Paper, "Delivering a Sustainable Railway" which was published in July 2007. Copies of both documents are available in the Libraries of the House.

Railways: Franchises

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether the bond deposited by a train operating company awarded a rail franchise is fully forfeit in the event of a unilateral termination of the franchise by that company. [276327]

Paul Clark: In the event that a franchise is terminated the performance bond would be called. However, the bond can only be used to cover costs. As such if there are any funds left after those costs have been discharged we would have to repay the balance.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what meetings his Department has had with each rail franchise company in each month of 2009; and what requests from such companies to modify franchise agreements he has received in that period. [276448]

Paul Clark: Meetings are held regularly with each train operating company (TOC) during the normal course of business. These include regular formal franchise performance meetings with each TOC every four weeks. There are also a range of meetings about various projects which impact on operations and working level meetings around specific aspects of franchise delivery.

During the normal course of business TOCs may request contract changes and derogations to the franchise agreement. However, the Department for Transport does not accept changes which amount to renegotiating terms of the franchise agreements.

Railways: Freight

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on rail freight transport; and what steps he is taking to increase the proportion of freight transported by rail. [275517]

Paul Clark: There have been no discussions on rail freight transport with the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform.

To encourage the transfer of freight from road to rail we have recently announced additional funding of £67 million to the Sustainable Distribution Fund. £61 million of this is allocated to the capital budget from which the Freight Facilities Grant allocations are made.

In the last two years the Government have announced record levels of rail freight investment to support continued growth including £200 million towards the development of a Strategic Freight Network and over £150 million of funding towards the provision of infrastructure enhancement for freight through the Productivity Transport Innovation Fund.

Railways: South West

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will assess the effect of the removal of South West Trains services west of Exeter from December 2009 on the economy. [276178]

Paul Clark: Analysis conducted as part of the franchise replacement process recommended the withdrawal of the four South Western services per weekday west of Exeter. From a National Rail perspective loss of revenue is minimal as there are alternative services operated by other train operators, with clear national financial benefit for this change of circa £5.5 million net present value (NPV) over the franchise. This will enable an hourly service to be introduced between Exeter and London Waterloo, a long held local and regional authority ambition, which will have a significant benefit to the Devon economy.

Roads: Accidents

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 8 May 2009, Official Report, columns 488-89W, on roads: accidents, how many of the drivers of (a) heavy goods vehicles, (b) light goods vehicles and (c) cars referred to in the table had (i) foreign and (ii) UK driving licences in (A) 2003, (B) 2004, (C) 2005, (D) 2006 and (E) 2007. [276427]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I refer my right hon. Friend to my answer of 18 May 2009, Official Report, columns 1129-30W.

Transport: Exhaust Emissions

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will assess the merits of a carbon reduction fund relating to transport. [274291]

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the merits of the establishment of a carbon reduction fund for transport. [275559]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport is currently looking very closely at the best ways of reducing greenhouse gas emissions from transport and has received representations from a number of groups advocating a Carbon Reduction Fund.

When making decisions about transport expenditure we aim to do so in a way that delivers across all of our goals as set out in the 'Delivering a Sustainable Transport System' consultation. In this context we will set out our policies and proposals for reducing greenhouse gas emissions from transport as part of our Carbon Reduction Strategy in the summer.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Crimes of Violence

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many violent crimes were committed in (a) Northern Ireland and (b) Belfast in each of the last three years. [276170]

Paul Goggins: That is an operational matter for the Chief Constable. I have asked him to reply directly to the hon. Member, and a copy of his letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Departmental Buildings

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much his Department spent on building maintenance in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274562]

Paul Goggins: The following table shows expenditure on building maintenance by the Northern Ireland Office, excluding its agencies and executive non-departmental public bodies, in each of the last five years:

	Building maintenance (£000)
2004-05	2,727
2005-06	2,234
2006-07	2,600
2007-08	1,792
2008-09	2,760

Building maintenance includes work where the primary aim is routine repair and/or replacement of existing facilities.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) BlackBerry devices and (b) mobile telephones have been lost by (i) Ministers, (ii) special advisers and (iii) civil servants in his Department in each year since 2005. [274472]

Paul Goggins: In 2005, two mobiles belonging to civil servants were lost and one belonging to a special adviser was stolen. In 2006 two mobiles belonging to civil servants were lost. In 2007 six mobiles phones belonging to civil servants were lost.

In 2005, one BlackBerry belonging to a special adviser was stolen. No other phones or BlackBerrys were lost by Ministers, special advisers or civil servants.

Departmental Stationery

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much his Department spent on the purchase of (a) recycled office supplies in the last 12 months and (b) printer ink cartridges in each of the last five years. [274574]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Office (NIO) does not record details of expenditure under the descriptions requested therefore it would be possible to extract these costs only at disproportionate cost.

The Northern Ireland Office has a policy on the use of recycled paper for printing and copying which states that 100 per cent. recycled paper is mandatory.

In addition the Northern Ireland Office has a policy of recycling used ink cartridges.

Drugs: Seizures

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many drug seizures were carried out by the Police Service of Northern Ireland in each policing district in each of the last five years. [276224]

Paul Goggins: That is an operational matter for the Chief Constable. I have asked him to reply directly to the hon. Member, and a copy of his letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Catering

Mr. Burstow: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what estimate the House of Commons Commission has made of the number of (a) styrofoam and (b) plastic food service items used in House of Commons cafeterias in each of the last 12 months for which figures are available. [275498]

Nick Harvey: The House of Commons catering service estimates that it has used the following number of (a) Styrofoam and (b) plastic food service items in its cafeterias in each of 12 accounting periods from April 2008-March 2009:

		(b) Plastic food service items
	(a) Styrofoam	(i) food containers	(ii) cutlery	(iii) lids for drinks cups
Period 1	0	8,450	22,200	6,000
Period 2	0	15,650	25,000	14,000
Period 3	67,150	31,849	108,100	46,000
Period 4	0	15,950	28,200	19,000
Period 5	11,000	11,050	51,000	23,000
Period 6	0	10,500	40,100	11,000
Period 7	0	2,550	16,000	7,000
Period 8	0	32,911	102,400	53,000
Period 9	0	12,750	39,100	34,000
Period 10	0	10,550	37,000	25,000
Period 11	0	13,550	58,000	50,000
Period 12	0	22,950	66,000	49,000
Total 2008-09	78,150	188,710	593,100	337,000

Styrofoam items were being phased out of use during 2008-09 but were re-introduced briefly during two periods due to technical issues with the replacement products. An estimated 300,000 cardboard cups were used during the year in replacement of Styrofoam cups previously used.

Work has also been done to reduce the environmental impact of plastic food service items used by the catering department. Over 40 per cent. of the plastic food containers listed above were made from recycled plastics and the total number of plastic food containers used in 2008-09 was reduced by an estimated 140,000 by switching to bio-degradable containers manufactured from a by-product of the sugar refining industry. The House of Commons catering service is continuing to test more environmentally-friendly disposable products as new products become available and hopes to reduce even further the remaining usage of oil-based plastics.

ICT

Mr. Burstow: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how much has been spent on the provision of air conditioning to cool servers on the House of Commons estate in each of the last three years. [275511]

Nick Harvey: The expenditure associated with the provision of cooling to server rooms has three main components: capital expenditure associated with new equipment, electricity costs, and maintenance costs.

Capital expenditure

The parliamentary estates directorate (PED) has not carried out any new projects providing cooling for server rooms during the last three years. During this period however PED has provided additional cooling to rooms which house communications and computer equipment associated with servers. The overall cost of this work is estimated to have been approximately £25,000 per year.

Electrical energy consumption

Due to fluctuating energy prices and the complexities of the individual buildings' tariff structures it is not possible to estimate accurately the cost of energy used by all of the cooling equipment associated with server rooms. However PED has used an estimated average electrical energy cost of 10p/kWh to calculate an approximate cost associated with electrical energy of £124,000 per year.

Cost of maintenance

PED maintenance engineers routinely carry out cyclical maintenance works and attend call outs involving the repair and replacement of defective cooling plant. The cost of these works is included within general maintenance contracts which cover large items of cooling plant, some of which serve more than one location. This makes it difficult to accurately assess the cost of maintenance directly attributable to server room cooling alone. PED however estimate the cost of maintenance tasks associated with server cooling equipment to be approximately £9,000 per year[1].

The total estimated annual cost is £158,000.

[1] Estimated using BSRIA rules of thumb BG14/2003 table 7.

Members: Data Protection

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what legal responsibilities the House authorities have under the Data Protection Act 1998 to keep hon. Members' (a) home addresses, (b) ex-directory telephone numbers, (c) bank account details and (d) other personal information secure; and if he will make a statement. [276387]

Nick Harvey: The House's Corporate Officer is the data controller for the purposes of the Data Protection Act 1998 in respect of personal data held by the House Departments. The Corporate Officer, like any other data controller, must comply with the 1998 Act in respect of any personal data processed by the House Departments.

Ventilation

Mr. Burstow: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what the House of Commons Commission's most recent assessment is of the efficiency of the ventilation systems in each building in the House of Commons part of the parliamentary estate. [275509]

Nick Harvey: The efficiency of the numerous ventilation systems across the parliamentary estate is not monitored.

However, the associated plant and controls are continually monitored via the various building management systems installed to confirm correct and continued operation.

In addition, the effectiveness of the ventilation systems is maintained against the installed design parameters by regular maintenance.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps his Department is taking to afford special protection from military action for Afghan citizens, with particular reference to women and children, as required under international humanitarian law. [275860]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: UK personnel operate at all times under rules of engagement which ensure that force is used in accordance with international humanitarian law. This ensures that civilian casualties and damage to civilian infrastructure are minimised. This does not, however, restrict the inherent right of self defence that enables our military personnel to defend themselves. The rules of engagement are reviewed regularly to ensure that they remain effective and compliant with international law.

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he has considered a timetable for the withdrawal of British troops from Afghanistan; whether he has had recent discussions on the matter with other states involved in military operations; and if he will make a statement. [276330]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The UK's strategy for Afghanistan is long-term and based on a comprehensive approach to security, political, social and economic development.

At the recent NATO summit in April 2009, allies reiterated their commitment to support Afghanistan in building security, both in the short term during the crucial election period and in the long term; when the focus of this support will shift further towards strengthening Afghan security forces to take responsibility themselves.

We have always made clear that we would keep the commitment of UK forces under review.

Armed Forces Day

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans his Department has to mark Armed Forces Day on 27 June 2009 through national events; and if he will make a statement. [276499]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The aim of armed forces day is to honour Britain's armed forces, past, present and future and it is hoped that all former and currently serving members of the forces will fully embrace the concept of the day. The Historic Dockyard Chatham will host the inaugural armed forces day national event on Saturday 27 June 2009. The event will include a parade through Chatham town centre, a drumhead service, flypasts of military aircraft and a range of other activities in the Dockyard throughout the day.

To enable communities across the UK to be involved in this inaugural year, we have also invited all local authorities to fly a flag for our armed forces. Over 460 of the 480 borough, city, district and county councils across the UK, Channel Islands and the Isle of Man that have been invited to participate in the fly the flag event have registered to take part, as have the Governors in Gibraltar and the Falkland Islands. The intention is that this ceremony will be repeated across the country at 1030 on Monday 22 June, synchronised with similar ceremonies where we have forces deployed overseas, and that the flags will be flown until after armed forces day itself.

The MOD is also supporting over 80 community events across the country with major events in every region. A full list of events can be found at the armed forces day website at the following link:

www.armedforcesday.org.uk

Armed Forces: Pensions

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he last met the chairman of each war pension committee. [274685]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 12 May 2009]: My predecessor, the former Under-Secretary of State for Defence and Minister for Veterans, my hon. Friend the Member for Halton (Derek Twigg) attended the War Pensions Committee Chairmen's conference in September 2008.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost to his Department was of each war pension committee in the last year for which figures are available. [274686]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 12 May 2009]: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Members of War Pensions Committees are not paid but the overall total for their travel expenses and loss of earnings for financial year 2008-09 can be identified and was approximately £50,500.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many cases were handled by each war pension committee in the last year for which figures are available. [274687]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 12 May 2009]: During 2008 there were 28 cases where a panel of War Pension Committee members heard individual complaints about the way the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency had dealt with cases. These figures are broken down by WPC panel and provided in the following table.

WPC panel	Number of cases
South East	4
Eastern	4
South West	4
North West	7
Northern Ireland	4
Yorkshire and Humberside	2
London	2
West Midlands	1

In addition, individual WPC members are frequently contacted directly by individuals with concerns or inquiries about war pension related matters and are responded to directly. These numbers however, are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Dismissal

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of staff in his Department and its agencies were dismissed (a) for under-performance and (b) in total in each of the last 10 years. [274302]

Mr. Hutton: The following table provided details the numbers of staff who were dismissed from the Department in each calendar year since 2004.

	Dismissals relating to under-performance	Total of all dismissals
2004[1]	12	189
2005	9	206
2006	12	183
2007	9	155
2008	2	127
2009[2]	1	56

[1] Records for industrial employees were migrated onto the HR system in March 2004. Any dismissals involving industrial staff prior to this date are not included.
[2] Numbers for 2009 are up to and including 30 April.

The figures exclude the MOD's trading fund agencies: ABRO, the Defence Aviation Repair Agency, the Defence Science and Technology Laboratory, Met Office and UK Hydrographic Office, as this information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Pay

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many staff employed in London on work contracted out by his Department earn less than £7.45 per hour. [274949]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 12 May 2009]: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Work Experience

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many work placements his Department offered to (a) school pupils, (b) university students and (c) graduates in each of the last five years. [274488]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Ex-servicemen: Military Decorations

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps his Department has taken to publicise availability of the veterans' badge. [276501]

Mr. Kevan Jones: All those leaving the Services now receive their HM Armed Forces Veterans Badge in their service leavers' pack. For others, the details of eligibility and the application process are advertised on the Veterans-UK website found at the following link:

http://www.veterans-uk.info/new_badge/badge.html.

The badge has also been publicised through Government and ex-Service organisation publications and through local and national press articles featuring coverage of badge presentation ceremonies held by Ministers, MPs and external organisations. We are also promoting badge presentations as part of the armed forces day events to be held on 27 June this year. The position is kept under review, including the consideration of opportunities to provide further publicity for the scheme.

Military Bases: Aviation

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will assess the effect of levels of handling equipment at military airports on the capacity to fulfil airbridge schedules. [276236]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The amount of handling equipment available for loading and unloading transport aircraft at military airports is sufficient to fulfil the operational airbridge schedule.

Pakistan: Deployment

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British military personnel are serving in Pakistan; and in what capacities such personnel are serving. [276264]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I can confirm that there are currently 29 UK military personnel based in Pakistan undertaking a variety of roles, including training, liaison and diplomatic duties.

The number of military personnel based in Pakistan varies from time to time. This can be for a variety of reasons, including revised tasking and changes to previous roles.

Rosyth Dockyard

Lindsay Roy: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has for Rosyth dockyard to undertake refitting of Royal Navy (a) frigates and (b) other vessels after 2012. [276287]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The locations for future upkeep packages beyond 2012 have yet to be determined as part of the developing Surface Ship Support (SSS) Alliance.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Research

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding his Department has provided for farming-related research and development in real terms in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [274951]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 12 May 2009]: DEFRA's spend profile on farming-related research and development is shown in the following table. Figures are not available prior to the formation of DEFRA in 2001.

£ million

	Total DEFRA R and D spend on sustainable farming and food	Total DEFRA R and D spend on animal health and welfare	Total DEFRA agricultural R and D spend
2001-02	41	41	82
2002-03	40	41	81
2003-04	39	36	75
2004-05	39	40	79
2005-06	38	40	78

Bovine Tuberculosis

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what advice his Department offers to owners of domestic animals on the risk of tuberculosis transmission from wildlife in areas where there is a high incidence of bovine tuberculosis. [275803]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA advises owners of domestic animals (i.e. cats and dogs) who suspect their animals may have been infected or may be at risk of becoming infected with TB to contact their private veterinary surgeon for advice in the first instance.

Compost

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for what reasons the Waste and Resources Action Programme plans to end its support for subsidised composting bins for householders; on what date such support will end; and what estimate has been made of the average change in the cost to a householder of a compost bin as a result. [275761]

Jane Kennedy: The Waste and Resources Action Programme's (WRAP's) home composting campaign used central funding to subsidise the sale of home composting bins for five years. In that time two million home compost bins were sold and 40 per cent. of households with gardens are now home composting. It is estimated that, as a result of WRAP'S programme, more than 300,000 tonnes of organic waste have been diverted from the waste stream each year, resulting in significant waste management and disposal cost savings.

Having demonstrated the benefits of promoting home composting, it was appropriate for local authorities to decide how home composting should fit within their waste strategies and for them to take responsibility for deciding on a suitable level of subsidy. WRAP stopped subsidising compost bins at the end of March 2009. As a result, the full cost of bins to consumers rose by an average of £8, except where the local authority decided to offer its own subsidy. A total of 37 waste disposal authorities are currently offering varying degrees of subsidy. WRAP will continue to promote home composting to the public and provide practical advice and support as part of a wider waste reduction programme.

Departmental Training

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department has spent on IT training for its staff in each of the last five years. [274215]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA provides a 'shared' IT training service to a number of agencies and the spending of DEFRA will include the spending on IT training by those agencies on a consolidated accounting basis.

IT training for DEFRA can be separated into two distinct areas:

1. Regular spending on IT training for staff. This includes such activities as maintaining hardware and training new staff members in the use of the DEFRA systems. The overall spending on IT during the years 2004-05, 2005-06, 2006-07 and 2007-08 is contained in the 'Resource Accounts'. The annual reports are available at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/corporate/finance/resource-accounts and are in the Library. Providing more specific information on regular IT spend in earlier years can be done only at disproportionate cost.

2. Project spending on IT training for staff. IT projects that will require trained staff will include the cost of that training within their budgets. Information on the costs of training alone or on the costs of IT work between 2004-08 are available only at disproportionate cost.

Domestic Waste: Waste Disposal

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) with reference to the answers to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 30 April 2008, Official Report, column 467W, and to the hon. Member for Beckenham (Mrs. Lait) of 9 October 2008, Official Report, column 754W, on waste management: domestic wastes, if he will publish an updated table of the local authorities which operate residual household waste collections with a frequency of less than once a week, including those operating or planning to operate pilot schemes with that frequency; [270136]

(2) which local authorities operate residual household waste collections with a frequency of less than once a week, including those operating or planning to operate pilot schemes with that frequency. [275780]

Jane Kennedy: The Waste and Resources Action programme has provided the following list of local authorities operating residual household waste collections with a frequency of less than once a week, including pilot schemes. This represents WRAP'S best understanding but the situation can change rapidly.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 12 March 2009, Official Report, column 679W, on domestic waste: waste disposal, if he will place in the Library a copy of the WR1204 research report on completion. [275776]

Jane Kennedy: A copy of the WR1204 research report will be placed in the Library once it is published later this year.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the answer of 11 March 2008, Official Report, column 222W, on domestic waste: waste disposal, whether any projects involved helping local authorities with introducing or operating alternate weekly collections. [275783]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA provided funding directly to authorities, through the local authority support unit (LASU), to:

resource technical support for waste compositional analysis;

develop their wastes strategies; and formulate their procurement and planning approach.

We did not fund any option specifically to deliver any particular collection approach. However, authorities may have explored the options mentioned as part of those available. All LASU case studies are available on the Waste Information Network website.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) of 24 November 2008, Official Report, column 841W, on domestic waste: waste disposal, whether (a) the Waste Improvement Network and (b) the Waste and Resources Action programme have made estimates of the average cost per household to local waste collection authorities of domestic waste collection with (i) a weekly and (ii) an alternate weekly frequency. [275856]

Jane Kennedy: Neither the Waste Improvement Network not the Waste and Resources Action programme (WRAP) have made any such estimates.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Peterborough (Mr. Jackson) of 17 March 2009, Official Report, column 1007W, on domestic waste: waste disposal, which of the 10 councils awarded beacon status for best practice in waste collection have (a) weekly and (b) alternate weekly collections. [275858]

Jane Kennedy: Two of the bodies awarded beacon status for waste collection in 2007 are waste partnerships representing a total of 16 authorities. 14 of these have waste collection duties. Therefore, a total of 21 waste collection authorities received beacon status for waste collection. Of these, three now provide weekly collections and 18 provide alternate weekly collections.

Environmental Permitting Regulations 2007

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he plans to bring forward proposals to amend the Environmental Permitting Regulations 2007 to take account of the ruling of the Court of Appeal in the case of OSS Group v. the Environment Agency; and if he will make a statement. [276324]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA does not have any plans to amend the Environmental Permitting (England and Wales) Regulations 2007 in the light of the ruling by the Court of Appeal.

Food Supply

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his most recent assessment is of progress in the delivery of the Government's commitment to the right to food as a fundamental human right. [275829]

Jane Kennedy: We are currently assessing the UK's contributions to the realisation of a right to food and will shortly be submitting a report to the UN Human Rights Council Special Rapporteur. The UK Government remain committed to working with international partners to enhance global food security in line with our millennium development goals (MDG), including MDG 1 on hunger, and to the progressive realisation of a right for all to have economic and physical access to safe and nutritious food—a commitment which was recently reaffirmed by G8 Agriculture Ministers in Treviso on 18-20 April.

Geographical Information Systems

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 4 February 2009, Official Report, columns 1281-2W, on geographical information systems, whether the cadastral parcels used in implementation of the INSPIRE Directive will include property data held by (a) the Land Registry, (b) Ordnance Survey and (c) the Valuation Office Agency. [275782]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Cadastral parcel datasets[1] held by or on behalf of public authorities will be in scope for implementation of the INSPIRE Directive. However, the implementing rules that will confirm the criteria to assess which datasets meet the definition of cadastral parcels will not be finalised before autumn 2009. Until the criteria have been agreed and assessed it is not possible to state explicitly whether datasets from specific organisations will be in scope.

[1] Areas defined by cadastral registers or equivalent.

Joint Waste Authorities: Finance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much seed-corn funding has been allocated to the first group of joint waste authorities. [275770]

Jane Kennedy: No joint waste authorities have been established.

Rabies

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures are in place to prevent the importation of rabies into the UK. [275795]

Jane Kennedy: Rabies-susceptible mammals are subject one of three sets of controls in place to prevent the importation of rabies: the Pet Travel scheme, quarantine or rules known as the Balai Directive which deal with the trade movement of certain animals and animal products.

Pets entering the UK under the Pet Travel scheme must meet certain rules, including the need for a rabies vaccination and a blood test. They can only enter the UK on transport routes approved by the Animal Health Agency and all undergo a pre-entry identity and documentary check to ensure that they have met all of the rules of the scheme. If they meet these rules they do not need to enter quarantine on arrival.

Animals subject to UK quarantine laws, for example pets from countries for which the Pet Travel scheme does not apply or zoo animals, must be issued with a rabies import licence issued by the Animal Health Agency before they can enter the UK. On arrival in the UK, these animals are immediately transported by an approved carrier to quarantine premises where they undergo six months' quarantine. These animals are under the control of authorised quarantines or travelling agents at all times and are subject to regular veterinary inspections.

Rabies-susceptible mammals entering the UK under the Balai Directive must meet very strict pre-entry requirements including stringent bio-security at the premises of origin. They will also require a pre-entry veterinary health inspection and be accompanied by a official veterinary export health certificate.

Recycling

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the relative costs of using (i) landfill, (ii) incineration and (iii) crushing for the purposes of reuse and reclamation in relation to (A) construction and (B) domestic waste; and if he will make a statement. [276516]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA's Waste and Resources Evidence programme has not commissioned any research into the areas mentioned.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much funding his Department has allocated to projects established to increase levels of (a) reuse and (b) source-separated recycling in the last five years; and whether the number of jobs involved was one of the criteria used in decisions to allocate funds to such projects. [276517]

Jane Kennedy: The Government believe that local authorities are best placed to make decisions for their own communities. How funding is allocated once projects are established is for the local authorities to decide and not within the remit of DEFRA.

Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what powers his Department plans to provide to local authorities under the provisions of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions Act 2008. [275760]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA currently has no proposals to provide local authorities with additional powers under the provisions of the Regulatory Enforcement and Sanctions (RES) Act 2008.

Reservoirs: Ringmer

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the potential effects on the Site of Special Scientific Interest at Ringmer, East Sussex of a proposed reservoir on an adjacent site; and if he will make a statement. [276309]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The proposed reservoir is subject to the due process of an environmental impact assessment which must consider in detail potential impacts on the site of special scientific interest (Plashett Park Wood). It is too early on in the process to conclude what the impact will be. Scoping of potential impacts has been undertaken along with a detailed baseline environmental survey. Statutory environmental bodies including Natural England are fully engaged in this process.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with Natural England on the potential effects on the environment of a reservoir at Ringmer, East Sussex; and if he will make a statement. [276301]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Natural England has expressed concern at the potential for the reservoir to have adverse hydrological impacts on neighbouring site of special scientific interest (SSSI) woodland as well as impacts on the viability of the rare butterfly populations and bats which use the SSSI. Other protected species' interests outside of the SSSI must also be considered (e.g. water voles in local watercourses). Natural England is working with South East Water through the statutory environment impact assessment process to ensure that these risks are properly understood.

Rights of Way: Coastal Areas

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what financial support his Department is providing to local authorities to increase (a) public access to coastal areas and (b) cleanliness and quality of beaches in 2009-10. [275812]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The coastal access provisions in the Marine and Coastal Access Bill will be implemented by Natural England (NE) who will enter into agreements with local access authorities in order that they undertake much of the detailed implementation work, where they are willing to do so. Such agreements will include provision for the relevant financial support to enable local access authorities to undertake this work. This cost accounts for part of the £50 million budget over 10 years that NE has provisionally estimated is required for the project. NE will fund the project from the core budget DEFRA provides it with.

Under section 89 of the Environmental Protection Act 1990, local authorities have a duty to keep their relevant land, including beaches above the high water mark, clear of litter and refuse. The statutory Code of Practice on Litter and Refuse recommends those responsible for beaches regularly monitor them, and develop an appropriate cleansing regime. DEFRA does, however, provide grant funding support through EnCAMS (also known as Keep Britain Tidy) to run the national Quality Coast Award (QCA) and Blue Flag schemes designed to drive up the standards of beaches.

EnCAMS recently announced that a total of 71 Blue Flags and 113 QCAs have been awarded to beaches in recognition of their high quality environments and facilities.

Rural Payments Agency: Official Hospitality

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much the Rural Payments Agency has spent on hospitality and entertainment in each of the last five years. [276370]

Jane Kennedy: The Rural Payments Agency (RPA) expenditure on hospitality in each of the last five financial years is as follows:

Financial year	Amount spent (£)
2004-05	57,000
2005-06	81,000
2006-07	105,000
2007-08	95,000
2008-09	164,000

[1] This amount is subject to audit by the National Audit Office in relation to the 2008-09 financial year.

Hospitality covers refreshments and working lunches provided for meetings and workshops where the attendees can include visitors to RPA from public bodies and other non public organizations as well as RPA staff.

There is no RPA expenditure on entertainment.

Swine Flu

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will (a) commission and (b) evaluate research into the implications for animal health of the pathogenesis between species of the H1N1 strain of swine influenza, including transfer from humans to pigs. [276197]

Jane Kennedy: The Veterinary Laboratories Agency (VLA) is in the process of agreeing a programme of work to assess the transmission characteristics of H1N1 in certain animals and associated implications for animal health with the European Commission. It is expected that this will involve researchers from a number of member states. DEFRA is being kept fully informed of the progress of this initiative.

Work has already started at VLA on a research study to determine whether the new H1N1 strain of influenza is transmissible to pigs, and if so, what the main characteristics of such an infection might be.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs from which countries the import of (a) live pigs and (b) pork carcasses is prohibited following the identification of swine influenza in pig herds. [276198]

Jane Kennedy: Swine influenza is not a notifiable or statutory disease and it is not listed by the World Organisation for Animal Health (OIE). International standards for trade in animals and animal products do not impose any restrictions in respect of swine influenza virus infection for the protection of either animal or human health. Accordingly, the EU does not prohibit the import of live pigs or pig meat as a result of the presence of swine influenza in an approved third country from which they may legally be imported to the EU.

The European Commission's Standing Committee for the Food Chain and Animal Health considers that from the evidence available from the recent outbreak of influenza in a pig farm in Canada restrictions in trade of pigs and their products would not be justified. As the World Health Organisation has made clear, this situation does not pose a food safety risk to consumers. Eating properly handled and cooked pork and pork products is perfectly safe.

We will continue to work with international organisations to understand whether there is any unusual disease in pigs and whether any action to restrict trade would be appropriate.

All animals and meat can only be imported to the European Community from third countries approved as having equivalent health status as member states. They must be accompanied by veterinary certification that must confirm, among other things, that live animals have been examined by an official veterinarian within 24 hours of loading and showed no clinical signs of disease. Meat must have been derived from animals which have been subjected to a veterinary inspection during the 24 hours prior to slaughter.

Animals and meat imported into the European Community from approved third countries must enter at designated Border Inspection Posts (BIPs) where they are also subject to veterinary inspections.

Water Charges

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which water companies are levying new surface water charges on non-domestic customers; and what the timetable is for the introduction of such charges by each company. [275852]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Four of the 10 water and sewerage companies in England and Wales have switched to site area charging for surface water drainage: Northumbrian Water, Severn Trent Water, United Utilities and Yorkshire Water.

It is for individual companies to propose their schemes of charges, having regard to the relevant guidance, including the timetable for introducing any changes to charges, and for Ofwat to approve them.

Wildlife: Crime

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has held with international counterparts on tackling the global illegal trade in wildlife. [275944]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Following a meeting with the then United States' Assistant Secretary of State for Oceans and International Environmental and Scientific Affairs, Claudia McMurray, I wrote to her on 16 January to confirm that our officials would work towards the UK taking over as the chair of the Coalition Against Wildlife Trafficking (CAWT) later this year. In addition the UK remains an active party to the convention on illegal trade in endangered species (CITES).

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Equality

Mr. Todd: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality whether there are plans for further investigation into evidence of caste discrimination in the UK following the informal survey carried out in preparation for the Equality Bill. [276130]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

The Government are always willing to consider whether there is a case for legislating to prohibit caste discrimination, but to date insufficient evidence has been presented to indicate that this is a significant problem in the United Kingdom which is why it has not been included in the Equality Bill. However, the Government have agreed to undertake further research shortly into the extent of caste discrimination. As part of this, senior officials from my Department and the Government Equalities Office have already committed to meet a delegation representing organisations with an interest.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Asylum: Finance

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 19 March 2009, Official Report, column 69WS, on asylum support, what estimate she has made of the initial cost of transferring the provision of section 4 support for asylum seekers to a plastic payment card system. [271649]

Mr. Woolas: The costs for the initial implementation and running costs for the first year are estimated at £350,000. There are no immediate financial benefits following the transfer to a card based system but the new system will deliver improved management information which will provide better control over support costs.

Asylum: Offenders

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many foreign national prisoners applied for asylum (a) before their conviction and (b) following their imprisonment in each of the last 12 months. [275683]

Mr. Woolas: The information requested can be obtained only through the detailed examination of individual case files and cross-referencing these details with records held by the Prison Service which would incur a disproportionate cost. The chief executive of the UK Border Agency has regularly written to the Home Affairs Select Committee with all of the most robust and accurate information on the deportation of foreign national prisoners. Copies of her letters are available in the Library of the House.

Community Relations

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions she has had with the Equality and Human Rights Commission on the implementation of the revised Contest strategy; and if she will make a statement. [275466]

Mr. Coaker: Home Office officials sent the Equality and Human Rights Commission details of the revised CONTEST strategy when it was launched in March. The Commission will be key stakeholders in the CONTEST Outreach programme that the Home Office is developing to take forward implementation of the strategy.

Criminal Records: EU Nationals

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many EU nationals have been refused entry to the UK on the basis of previous criminal convictions in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [273620]

Mr. Woolas: From 2006-08, 929 EU nationals were refused entry at the UK border on grounds relating to the public good.

The annual breakdown is as follows:

	Number of EU nationals refused entry to the UK
2006	186
2007	388
2008	355

This includes, but is not limited to those EU nationals refused entry due to criminal convictions. This information could be obtained only by the detailed examination of individual records at disproportionate cost.

The data provided are based on locally-collated management information, which may be subject to change and does not represent published national statistics.

Departmental Buildings

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Government house in Pimlico at 62 South Eaton Place became empty. [275863]

Mr. Woolas: I refer the hon. Member to the answer provided on 18 February 2008, Official Report, column 455W.

Departmental Correspondence

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what procedure her Department follows for dealing with complaints received (a) by e-mail, (b) by post, (c) by telephone and (d) via her Department's website. [274522]

Mr. Woolas: Complaints received by e-mail and post are forwarded to the relevant area of the Home Office or its agencies to be handled. Those who telephone the Home Office to make a complaint are asked to put it in writing to the Direct Communications Unit. At the bottom of every Home Office web page there is a 'Complaints' link, which opens the Complaints webpage with contact details for the Direct Communications Unit.

Departmental ICT

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on how many and what proportion of computers in her Department malware was detected in 2008. [275390]

Mr. Woolas: It is not in the interests of the UK's national security for Departments to confirm information on the number of malicious attacks against their IT systems.

The Home Office complies with Mandatory Requirement 39 of the Security Policy Framework which requires a policy on managing risks posed by all forms of malicious software ('malware').

Departmental Paper

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her policy is on minimising the use of paper in her Department. [275508]

Mr. Woolas: The Home Office is working to reduce all forms of waste, in line with the Sustainable Operations on the Government Estate targets. Accordingly a wide range of initiatives are currently in place within the Department to minimise the use of paper. Examples include: setting printers to print double sided by default; making some Home Office publications available only online and encouraging staff to avoid printing emails.

Deportation

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether her Department seeks advice from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office with regard to the safety of specific countries in respect of deportation cases. [269749]

Mr. Woolas: The UK Border Agency obtains information about specific countries from a wide range of publicly accessible sources including governmental, non-governmental and international organisations and reliable media sources. The UK Border Agency works closely with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office to ensure that the picture obtained from these sources is an accurate one.

Country plans/information, which are the Government's official assessment of the circumstances in specific countries, are public documents and can be found on the Home Office website.

Dual Nationality

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many citizens of the United Kingdom hold dual citizenship; and what the top 10 most common nations of dual citizenship are, ranked in descending order. [276485]

Mr. Woolas: This information is not available. British citizenship can be acquired in a number of ways. For those who acquire that status automatically, by birth or descent, we do not have information about any other nationalities that they might also hold. For those who acquire British citizenship by registration or naturalisation, the UK Border Agency has records of the nationality that was held at the time of the application, but do not have figures as to how many retained another nationality on becoming British.

Emergency Calls: Speech Impaired

Malcolm Bruce: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans her Department has to enable people who are deaf, speech-impaired or otherwise unable to use voice telephony to opt to use a short message text service for 999 or 112 emergency calls. [275435]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 14 May 2009]: There are currently a number of regional schemes allowing the use of short message text access from mobile telephones for the hearing or speech impaired to the emergency services. Work to develop a national solution is being led by the National 999 Liaison Committee which is chaired by Department of Communities and Local Government. The National Policing Improvement Agency, on behalf of the Police Service, participates in this work alongside the mobile telephony service providers, the other emergency services, British Telecom and the Royal National Institute for the Deaf. The group is currently scoping a trial to take place during 2009 to assess the most appropriate technical solution.

Entry Clearances

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) highly-skilled migrants and (b) dependants of highly-skilled migrants have been given leave to enter the UK under (i) the highly-skilled migrants programme and (ii) Tier 1 of the points-based system in each of the last eight quarters for which figures are available. [254492]

Mr. Woolas: The number of people given leave to enter (a) under the Highly Skilled Migrant programme (b) under Tier 1 of the Points Based System, and (c) as dependents of the above, in each quarter of 2007 and 2008, is shown in the following table.

	2007				2008
	Q1	Q2	Q3	Q4	Q1	Q2	Q3	Q4
HSMP	2,060	2,411	2,639	2,939	3,616	2,661	470	157
Tier 1	0	0	0	0	0	263	2,364	5,166
Total	2,060	2,411	2,637	2,939	3,616	2,926	2,834	5,323
Dependents	1,773	1,161	1,611	1,741	1,883	1,591	1,652	2,746

The data are unpublished and should be treated as provisional.

Entry Clearances: Agriculture

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many temporary visas were issued for migrant agricultural workers in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08; and what estimate she has made of the number of such migrants who have overstayed their visas. [269139]

Mr. Woolas: Work cards allocated to seasonal agricultural workers scheme Operators by UKBA were:

April 2006 to March 2007: 16,404

April 2007 to March 2008: 16,732

The figures quoted are not provided under National Statistics and have been derived from local management information and are therefore provisional and subject to change.

The scheme is restricted to Bulgarian and Romanian nationals only from 1 January 2008. Since 1 January 2007, Bulgarian and Romanian nationals have freedom of movement rights and are not required to leave the UK when their work card expires but must generally obtain further permission if they wish to recommence work.

Entry Clearances: Married People

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what differences exist between her Department's methods of treatment of visa applications from spouses of British passport holders who hold dual nationality with Pakistan and spouses of those who hold only a British passport; and if she will make a statement. [267692]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 30 March 2009]: There is no difference in treatment of visa applications from spouses of British passport holders who hold dual nationality with Pakistan and spouses of those who only hold a British passport. The requirements for entry as a spouse are set out in Paragraph 281 of the Immigration Rules.

Entry Clearances: Overseas Students

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 29 April 2009, Official Report, column 1355W, on immigration controls: overseas students, whether students who pay for their accommodation, including bills, before attending the academic institution will be required to demonstrate they have the required monthly maintenance funds set under the new Tier 4 rules on immigration. [274164]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 11 May 2009]: Where students have paid for accommodation in advance of applying for a visa, this amount will be deducted from the total amount of funds they will need to demonstrate in order to meet the Tier 4 maintenance requirement. For accommodation, this only applies if the student is staying in university or college arranged accommodation. This information is set out in paragraph 96 of the Tier 4 policy guidance, which is available in the House of Commons Library and has also been published on the UK Border Agency website.

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 23 April 2009, Official Report, column 856W, on immigration controls: educational institutions, what criteria the objective test includes; and how many times an academic institution is required to assess students according to this test during an academic year. [274329]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 11 May 2009]: The points test, integral to all parts of the Points Based System, is the objective test used by the UK Border Agency to assess applications for leave to enter or remain. The specific criteria that must be met are detailed in the Immigration Rules, following changes contained in the Statement of Changes to the Immigration Rules (HC 314) laid before the House on 9 March 2009, and which came into force on 31 March 2009.

It is the responsibility of the education provider, as licensed sponsor, to assess their students' progress throughout the duration of their studies. The UK Border Agency does not define the method nor the frequency of such assessments throughout an academic year.

Entry Clearances: Zimbabwe

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will review her policy on determining visa applications from Zimbabwean nationals to take account of changes in the political situation in Zimbabwe. [257758]

Mr. Woolas: All applications for UK visas are determined in accordance with the UK's Immigration Rules, regardless of an applicant's nationality. When assessing an application, it is normal to take account of an applicant's individual circumstances and, where relevant, the prevailing economic, political or security situation in their country.

Foreign Workers

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answers of 10 February 2009, Official Report, column 1829W, and 23 April 2009, Official Report, column 856W, on foreign workers, which pages of the copy of the EC Services Offer placed in the Library contain a definition of a temporary worker under Mode 4 of the General Agreement on Trade in Services in the context of admission to the UK. [274432]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 11 May 2009]: The definition of temporary workers under Mode 4 of the General Agreement on Trade in Services can be found between pages 21 and 41 of the revised EC Services offer, placed in the Library.

Foreign Workers: EU Nationals

Mr. Soames: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many nationals of the A8 states have completed a year on the Worker Registration Scheme and are entitled to full access to benefits. [263737]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 16 March 2009]: Data on the number of nationals of the A8 states that have completed 12 months continuous employment in the UK and have consequently ceased to be subject to the registration requirement are not available. The effect of the registration requirement is to restrict access to tax-funded, income related benefits subject to a habitual residence test, including income support and income-based jobseeker's allowance.

Identity Cards

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what timetable has been set for the distribution of identity card readers to (a) police stations, (b) border entry points, (c) local authorities and (d) job centres. [269932]

Mr. Woolas: The UK Border Agency is continuing to increase the number of identity cards issued to foreign nationals granted further permission to stay in the country. In time, card readers will be made available so that the cardholder's biometric and biographical features can be checked against the card, although a timetable for their introduction has not been established. At present, cards may currently be verified using the card verification phone line and as the volume of cards in circulation increases other forms of verification will be introduced.

Identity cards issued to British citizens under the Identity Cards Act 2006 will be valid for travel in Europe and so will have the capability for facial image biometrics to be read at border control in the same way as biometric passports. Any wider introduction of readers would be linked to the incremental rollout of the National Identity Service as detailed in the National Identity Service Delivery Update 2009 published on 6 May 2009.

Immigration

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent meetings she has had with the chief executive of the UK Border Agency on backlogs in processing immigration casework. [276374]

Mr. Woolas: The chief executive of the UK Border Agency regularly updates the Home Secretary on the progress made by the Agency on processing immigration case work.

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when a decision will be made in the case of the hon. Member for Billericay's constituent Mr W. Mlangeni, with reference to the hon. Member's letters of 1 September 2008 and 28 January 2009. [276425]

Mr. Woolas: The UK Border Agency wrote to the hon. Member on 2 March 2009 with the latest position on Mr. Mlangeni's case.

Immigration Controls

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether there will be a charge for each certificate of acceptance for studies issued under the new Tier 4 immigration rules. [274328]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 11 May 2009]: The Immigration and Nationality (Cost Recovery Fees) Regulations 2009, which came into force on 6 April 2009, make provision for the UK Border Agency to charge £10 for each certificate of sponsorship issued to Tier 4 migrants. The certificate of sponsorship is known as a Confirmation of Acceptance for Studies under Tier 4. This fee will apply once the sponsorship management system for Tier 4 sponsors commences its roll-out from autumn 2009.

Internet: Monitoring

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what further plans her Department has to monitor internet use and telephone calls. [274070]

Mr. Coaker: There are no plans to amend the legal framework for interception in the UK.

Separately the Government have launched a consultation, "Protecting the Public in a changing Communications Environment". This consultation relates to communications data (information about a communication but not its content) and is seeking the public's view on how to ensure that communications data continue to be retained in and made available lawfully, on a case by case basis, to public authorities.

Offenders: Deportation

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many people arrested (a) in England and Wales and (b) in each police force area in England and Wales had been the subject of a deportation order in each of the last five years; [273531]

(2) how many people subject to a deportation order have been arrested in (a) England and Wales and (b) each police force in England and Wales in each of the last five years. [273532]

Mr. Woolas: The information requested can be obtained only through the detailed examination of individual case files and cross-referencing that information with records held by the police, which would incur a disproportionate cost. The UK Border Agency is advised of when a foreign national has been convicted of a crime within the UK in order to take appropriate action, including deportation action. The UK Border Agency will consider deportation action against any foreign national who has been convicted of a crime committed in the UK and meets the relevant criteria.

Those who have a deportation order signed against them are removed from the UK and prevented from re-entering as long as the order is in force. In 2008 the Agency exceeded its Government target by deporting or removing a record 5,395 foreign national criminals. The chief executive of the UK Border Agency has regularly written to the Home Affairs Select Committee in order to provide all of the most robust and accurate information on the deportation of foreign national criminals and will continue to do so as required. Copies of her letters are available in the Library of the House.

Police: Complaints

Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many complaints have been made against the South Yorkshire police force in each of the last five years. [275820]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office does not hold the information requested. This is a matter primarily for the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) in fulfilling its statutory functions under the Police Reform Act 2002. The IPCC will respond to the hon. Member direct.

Police: Essex

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many officers of each rank in Essex Police have voluntarily ceased employment, excluding redundancy, since March 2008; [275587]

(2) how many officials of each grade have voluntarily ceased employment, other than through redundancy, in Essex Police Authority since June 2007. [275606]

Mr. Coaker: Data for the financial year 2008-09 are unavailable until headline figures are published in July.

The available data for the financial year 2007-08 are given in the table.

Prisoners: Repatriation

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many non-UK nationals in UK prisons she expects to be deported in the next 12 months; [273854]

(2) how many non-UK nationals in UK prisons were deported in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08. [273855]

Mr. Woolas: The chief executive of the UK Border Agency has written to the Home Affairs Select Committee on a regular basis in order to provide all of the most robust and accurate in formation on the subject of foreign national prisoners and deportation. She advised the Committee that in 2007 the agency deported or removed a record 4,200 foreign national prisoners, exceeding the Prime Minister's target. In 2008 the UK Border Agency established a new record by deporting or removing 5,395 foreign national prisoners, which was reported in the quarterly asylum and immigration statistics.

Copies of her letters are available in the Library of the House. She will continue to update the Committee as required. In its business plan for 2009-10 the UK Border Agency has confirmed that it will continue to deport or remove record numbers of foreign national prisoners.

Repatriation: Finance

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what expenditure her Department has incurred on the provision of financial incentives to foreign national prisoners to serve the remainder of their sentence in their country of origin (a) since the inception of the scheme and (b) in 2008-09; [275520]

(2) how much on average foreign national prisoners received in reintegration support in 2008; [275521]

(3) what expenditure her Department has incurred on reintegration support in each of the last three years; [275522]

(4) how many prisoners at each prison have been offered financial incentives to serve the remainder of their sentence in their country of origin since the inception of that incentive scheme; [275531]

(5) how many prisoners have received reintegration support more than once in the last five years; [275552]

(6) how many foreign national prisoners have been repatriated to their country of origin under the reintegration scheme since the scheme's inception. [276226]

Mr. Woolas: The facilitated returns scheme was launched in October 2006 as an incentive to persuade foreign prisoners to return voluntarily to their own country. The scheme offers a package of reintegration assistance to the individual, however no financial incentives are offered. The only cash the individual receives is the standard £46 discharge grant provided to all prisoners, including British nationals. The level of assistance offered is variable and is dependant upon the individual circumstances of each case. Around half of those who are removed under the provisions of the scheme receive reintegration assistance. There has been only one instance where an individual who has been transferred to a prison within the country of origin has been provided reintegration assistance.

Details of the scheme are available in all UK prisons where foreign national prisoners are serving their sentence. Although they are also verbally advised of the scheme, it is not possible to provide data on the numbers of individuals who have been offered the scheme. It remains open to them to make such an application. Once removed from the UK under the scheme's provisions, they are excluded from re-entering the UK. As such it is only possible to benefit from the scheme once.

The chief executive of the UK Border Agency has written to the Home Affairs Select Committee on a regular basis in order to provide all of the most robust and accurate information on foreign national prisoners and deportation, including the successes seen through the use of the facilitated returns scheme.

In her letter of 23 July 2008 she advised that the scheme, which has generated significant savings and accounted for around 25 per cent. of all foreign prisoner removals in 2007, has resulted in nearly 1,800 foreign prisoners being removed from the UK. In the first year of the scheme (October 2006 to October 2007) the agency spent around £350,000, inclusive of administrative costs. For the same period around 880 removals were made under the scheme which generated considerable savings in detention costs alone.

Copies of her letters are available in the Library of the House. The chief executive will continue to write to the Committee with further updates on the scheme and other data on the deportation of foreign national prisoners.

Serious and Organised Crime Agency: Disciplinary Proceedings

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many disciplinary offences by Serious and Organised Crime Agency staff have been recorded in each month since March 2006. [272739]

Jacqui Smith: The Serious Organised Crime Agency was formed in April 2006. The number of cases since April 2006 in which a disciplinary offence was recorded in a SOCA officer's personnel file are in the following table.

	Number

Terrorism

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what (a) statutory instruments, (b) departmental circulars, (c) consultation documents and (d) other documents she (i) has issued since February 2008 and (ii) plans to issue in the next two years consequent on the provisions of counter-terrorism legislation passed since 1984; and if she will make a statement. [273978]

Mr. Coaker: Since February 2008 the following statutory instruments have been made by the Home Office in relation to the Terrorism Act 2000, the Anti-Terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001, the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2005, the Terrorism Act 2006 and the Counter-Terrorism Act 2008:

The Terrorism Act 2000 (Proscribed Organisations) (Amendment) Order 2008, made on 23 June 2008.

The Terrorism Act 2000 (Proscribed Organisations) (Amendment) (No. 2) Order 2008, made on 17 July 2008.

The Terrorism Act 2000 (Proscribed Organisations) (Name Change) Order 2009, made 5 March 2009.

The Terrorism Act 2006 (Pre-charge Detention) (Renewal) Order 2008 made on 24 July 2008.

The Counter-Terrorism Act 2008 (Commencement No. 1) Order 2008, made 23 December 2008.

The Counter-Terrorism Act 2008 (Commencement No. 2) Order 2009, made 19 January 2009.

The Prevention of Terrorism Act 2005 (Continuance in force of sections 1 to 9) Order 2008, made 3 March 2008.

The Prevention of Terrorism Act 2005 (Continuance in force of sections 1 to 9) Order 2009, made 5 March 2009.

The Terrorism Act 2000 (Code of Practice for Examining Officers) (Revision) Order 2009, made 26 February 2009.

The Home Office plans for future statutory instruments are published quarterly at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/documents/secondary-legislation-list

The only departmental circular published by the Home Office since February 2008 in relation to the above legislation was Home Office Circular 027/2008 which was issued on 2 December 2008 and deals with the authorisation process under the stop and search powers at section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000. It is intended that there will be Home Office circulars issued in relation to the Counter-Terrorism Act 2008 during the course of 2009.

A formal 12 week consultation was carried out in the summer of 2007 on schedule 7 to the Terrorism Act 2000 (Code of Practice for Examining Officers). The consultation was published on the Home Office website on 4 June 2007. The Home Office will consult on changes to the various police and criminal evidence codes arising from the provisions in the Counter-Terrorism Act 2008 in due course. It is also intended that there will be a consultation on amending the list of pathogens and toxins contained in schedule 5 of the Anti-Terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001 in the next two years.

Information relating to 'other documents' can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

UK Border Agency

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) whether during the recruitment process individuals applying for positions at the UK Border Agency are asked whether they are members of a political party; [252406]

(2) whether individuals applying for positions at the UK Border Agency are asked about membership of a political party during the recruitment process. [250181]

Mr. Woolas: No. Civil servants are required to act impartially and follow the Civil Service Code.

Work Permits

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many work permits the UK Border Agency has issued to software developers from each country of origin in the last six months. [275099]

Mr. Woolas: The information requested is not centrally recorded.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Carers

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues on implementation of the National Carers Strategy 2008; and if he will make a statement. [275467]

Jonathan Shaw: To support the implementation of National Carers Strategy objectives, Ministers from all the signatory Departments have maintained close working relationships. To support this an inter-ministerial meeting is planned for early June.

Children: Maintenance

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions in what percentage of cases in which 40 per cent. of a parent's income had been assessed as the liability for child maintenance arrears the Child Support Agency has identified (a) delays and (b) other instances of maladministration attributable to it in the last year for which figures are available. [270498]

Kitty Ussher: I have consulted with the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission who are now responsible for the Child Support Agency. They have confirmed that the information requested is not available.

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what factors underlie the time taken to release to Mona McNamara by the Child Support Agency monies collected from the non-resident parent in December 2008 and January, February, March and April 2009. [274812]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 13 May 2009]: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have therefore asked the Child Maintenance Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Council Tax Benefits

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of council tax benefit claimants of working age who have capital assets of between £6,000 and £16,000; and if he will make a statement. [272662]

Kitty Ussher: As at May 2004, the most recent available information, there were 9,000 council tax benefit recipients under 60 years of age with capital assets between £6,000 and £16,000 in Great Britain.

Notes:

1. The figures are based on a 1 per cent. sample and are therefore subject to a degree of sampling variation.

2. The data refer to benefit units, which may be a single person or a couple.

3. The figures have been rounded to the nearest thousand.

4. Council tax benefit figures exclude any single adult rebate cases.

5. From February 2007, DWP has been collecting more detailed HB/CTB data electronically from local authorities. Over time this will improve the accuracy, timeliness and level of detail available in the published statistics. However, until the new data have been fully quality assured to National Statistics standards, the most recent detailed statistics available are for May 2004.

Departmental Correspondence

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what procedure his Department follows for dealing with complaints received (a) by e-mail, (b) by post, (c) by telephone and (d) via his Department's website. [274514]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department for Work and Pensions and its agencies deal with all complaints on an equal basis, however they are made. How they are dealt with will depend on whether the complaint is about a decision on entitlement, for which there is generally a right of appeal, or about the manner in which the service is delivered.

For example, customers who are dissatisfied with any statutory decision made by Jobcentre Plus can appeal. In the first instance, the decision is reviewed by another decision-maker. If the decision remains unchanged after the review, Jobcentre Plus sends the case to the Tribunals Service as part of the appeal process. The Tribunals Service are responsible for administering the appeals process and contact customers about the hearing, which may be held in person or by correspondence.

Jobcentre Plus treats decisions complained about in correspondence as an appeal and automatically reconsiders the decision. Where appropriate, Jobcentre Plus contacts the customer for further information to support the appeal process.

Most complaints about the service provided can be resolved straightaway by the person dealing with the customer and each of the Department's agencies seeks to achieve this. Each has a clear and simple process for dealing with customer complaints and details of this are contained in their leaflets.

Where failings are identified we provide appropriate redress, which might typically include an apology, correction of any error and, where appropriate, financial redress.

Where a customer is not satisfied with the response given to their complaint they can ask for a review of the complaint and any redress given. This will first be by a senior manager and, if the customer remains dissatisfied, by the chief executive of the agency concerned.

If the customer remains dissatisfied, he or she can ask the independent case examiner (ICE) to review matters. A request for ICE to investigate should be made within six months of the chief executive's response.

The ICE will consider complaints about service delivery, though not matters of law or Government policy. He will review the papers and attempt to mediate. If this is not possible he will report his findings and inform the customer of their right to ask a MP to refer the matter to the Parliamentary and Health Service Ombudsman.

Departmental Internet

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much his Department has spent on maintaining its website in the last 12 months. [272488]

Jonathan Shaw: Maintenance of DWP websites including www.dwp.gov.uk is mostly carried out by the Department's own in-house digital media team. It is not possible for us to quantify internal staff costs because, in most cases, staff are engaged in more than one role. In addition, we are unable to establish accurately our infrastructure costs because they form part of a wider departmental IT contract.

DWP have worked with the Central Office of Information to develop a standardised method for quantifying website costs across Government. This will be implemented from March 2009.

Departmental Reviews

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many (a) review and (b) taskforce projects his Department has commissioned in each of the last five years; what the purpose of each such project is; when each such project (i) began and (ii) was completed; what the cost of each such project was; and if he will make a statement. [275977]

Jonathan Shaw: The information is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Employment Schemes

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what estimate he has made of the number of people likely to take up the additional support provided through (a) incentives to employees to recruit and train unemployed people, (b) training places, (c) work-focused volunteering and (d) help to establish a business under the six month offer to the unemployed; [271686]

(2) what level of take up of the six month offer he anticipates in respect of (a) employment subsidy vouchers, (b) train to gain funding, (c) training places, (d) volunteering and (e) help for the self-employed under the six month offer. [271714]

Mr. McNulty: We have anticipated and funded the six month offer for the provision of 500,000 opportunities for jobseekers who have been claiming jobseeker's allowance for 26 weeks or more for two years from April 2009 to March 2011.

The offers are voluntary and are therefore demand led. The overall package is designed to be flexible and respond to customer needs. It is also possible that for any individual customer, a mix of offers may be appropriate.

The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills expects to provide 75,000 new work focused training opportunities over two years. The volunteering offer expects to provide 40,000 opportunities over this same period.

Incapacity Benefit

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many incapacity benefit claimants attended an appointment for a personal capability assessment in each of the last three years; and what percentage this figure represents of those incapacity benefit claimants asked to attend for such an assessment in each such year. [275431]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 14 May 2009]: The available information is in the table.

Number and percentage of incapacity benefit claimants that attended an appointment for a personal capability assessment in each of the last three years

April to March each year	Number	Percentage
2006-07	507,734	77.4
2007-08	535,119	74.4
2008-09	513,511	72

Jobseeker's Allowance

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of group review interviews for existing Jobseeker's Allowance claimants conducted in place of one-to-one review interviews in each month since January 2008. [271694]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not available.

National Insurance Contributions

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate the change in revenue for the Exchequer if employee and employer national insurance contributions were charged on aggregate income from all employments; and if he will make a statement. [269040]

Mr. Timms: I have been asked to reply.

Aggregating the earnings of people doing more than one job with separate employers would be administratively complex for employers. Information on the number of people with more than one employee job who would pay more national insurance contributions (NICs), and the average increase they would pay, under a cumulative annual basis of assessment for employee's NICs is shown in "Income tax and national insurance alignment: an evidence-based assessment" published in October 2007. It is available at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/pbr_csr07_income.htm

Estimates for employers NICs are not available.

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 27 April 2009, Official Report, column 1057W, on national insurance contributions, if he will estimate how many (a) men and (b) women over state pension age would be eligible to purchase up to six additional years of national insurance contributions if eligibility applied (i) only to those with 20 or more qualifying years, (ii) only to those with 15 or more qualifying years and (iii) only to those with 10 or more qualifying years. [272192]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 30 April 2009]: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

New Deal Schemes

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many individuals in each region have been on the new deal for young people more than once since its inception; [268841]

(2) how many individuals in each region have been on the new deal 25 plus more than once since its inception; [268842]

(3) how many individuals in each region have been on the new deal for lone parents more than once since its inception; [268846]

(4) how many 18 to 24 year olds in each region have been on the new deal for lone parents more than once since its inception. [268847]

Mr. McNulty: New Deal repeaters are more likely to enter employment from their second spell on the programme than their first. Each period on New Deal moves participants closer to the labour market. The information is in the following table.

Number of individuals in each region who have been on New Deal for Young People (NDYP), New Deal 25+ (ND25+) and New Deal for Lone Parents (NDLP) more than once since each programme's inception (November 2008)

	NDYP	ND25+	NDLP (all)	NDLP (aged 18-24)

Parliamentary Questions: Government Responses

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he plans to answer question 265969 on 0845 telephone numbers, tabled by the hon. Member for South West Bedfordshire on 19 March 2009. [274414]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 11 May 2009]: I replied to the hon. Member's question on 11 May 2009, Official Report, column 568W.

Pension Credit

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people of working age have been claiming pension credit (a) in each month of the last two years and (b) in each year since pension credit was introduced. [271689]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Government are committed to tackling age discrimination and working through the Age Positive Initiative to continue to encourage employers to adopt flexible approaches to work and employment that will allow more choices and opportunity for older people to remain in, or re-enter the labour market.

From April 2009, financial incentives of up to £2,500 will be available to employers that recruit and train people who have been unemployed for six months or longer.

The qualifying age for pension credit is linked to the state pension age for women, which means that men aged 60 to 64 can claim pension credit without having reached their state pension age. The state pension age for women, and therefore the qualifying age for pension credit, is due to increase gradually from 60 to 65 between 2010 and 2020. The information requested is in the tables. The new claims data in tables 1 and 2 do not capture those claims where the partner is below state pension age, they count only those claims where the claimant is below state pension age.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Afghanistan: Females

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress his Department has made in implementing the provisions of UN Security Council Resolution 1325 in UK and international development programmes in Afghanistan in the last 12 months. [275864]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) has made the following provisions to implement the UN Security Council Resolution 1325 in its development programmes in Afghanistan:

Drawing on the findings of the research DFID commissioned at the end of last year, titled 'Understanding Afghanistan', we have developed a detailed Gender Equality Action plan for Afghanistan. This plan supports the 10-year National Action Plan for Women in Afghanistan (NAPWA) by ensuring gender equality is an integral part of our programme.

The UK Government are working closely with the Afghan Government to ensure that gender equality is integrated into their own policies to ensure long-term, sustainable improvements. We have provided an adviser to the Afghanistan Government to ensure the Afghanistan National Development Strategy (ANDS), which lays out its development plan over the next five years, has integrated cross-cutting issues such as gender equality into sector plans. DFID also provides funding to Womankind and UNIFEM who are both working to support women's rights in Afghanistan.

In addition, DFID has committed almost £11 million (2008-09) to support elections in Afghanistan. At present women hold 68 out of 249 seats in the Lower House and 23 out of 102 seats in the Upper House. Our funding will raise awareness and understanding of the electoral process and empower women's political participation.

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department has taken to take account of the needs of women and girls in its work on reconstruction and assistance to Afghanistan since its response to the International Development Select Committee's Fourth Report of Session 2007-08 on Reconstructing Afghanistan. [275865]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) has drawn on the findings of the research commissioned last year, titled 'Understanding Afghanistan', to develop a detailed Gender Equality Action Plan for Afghanistan. This plan supports the 10-year National Action Plan for Women in Afghanistan (NAPWA) by ensuring gender equality is an integral part of our programme.

The UK Government are working closely with the Afghan Government to ensure that gender equality is integrated into its own policies. We have provided an adviser to the Afghan Government to ensure the Afghanistan National Development Strategy (ANDS) has integrated cross-cutting issues such as gender equality into sector plans. We invested £60 million (2008-09) through the Government of Afghanistan's Reconstruction Trust Fund (ARTF): this helps pay the salaries of over 165,000 teachers. 28 per cent. of teachers are now women and this has helped to ensure the number of girls enrolled in school continues to grow. 35 per cent. of all enrolled students are now girls, up from virtually none under the Taliban.

In addition, the Department for International Development (DFID) is providing funding to Womankind and UNIFEM and £40 million of support over five years to the Micro-Finance Investment Support Facility in Afghanistan, which provides small loans to poor individuals to invest in businesses. Nearly 65 per cent. of those receiving loans are women.

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to ensure that girls from communities in Afghanistan where they are prevented from attending school receive adequate nutrition. [275866]

Mr. Michael Foster: Food insecurity remains the most pressing humanitarian concern for Afghanistan. Over the last year chronic food insecurity has been driven by high food prices and drought. The UN World Food Programme's (WFP) emergency response—to which the Department for International Development (DFID) contributed £17 million from January 2008—reached 8.7 million of Afghanistan's most vulnerable. This programme distributes food to families in the most food vulnerable parts of Afghanistan based on a WFP and Government of Afghanistan needs assessment, regardless of whether girls are attending school.

Afghanistan: Overseas Investment

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his most recent assessment is of the work of the Afghanistan Investment Climate Facility. [276102]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Afghanistan Investment Climate Facility (AICF) has made good progress since its launch in June 2008 having already approved four proposals for funding, including a project with the Afghanistan National Standards Authority to help Afghan producers to obtain higher prices for their goods. A further five proposals are under development. The Department for International Development (DFID) will carry out a full review of the programme in due course.

John Battle: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether (a) CDC and (b) the Business Linkages Challenge Fund operate in Afghanistan. [276104]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: CDC Group plc has not invested in any funds at present which invest in Afghanistan.

The Business Linkages Challenge Fund (BLCF) is now closed. While operational, the BLCF supported one project in Afghanistan. Information about this project is available on the BLCF website at:

http://www.businesslinkageschallengefund.org/ManufacturingAfghanistan.aspx

Departmental Billing

John Mason: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what percentage of invoices from suppliers his Department paid within 10 days of receipt in March 2009. [271852]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development paid 60 per cent. of payments to suppliers in March within 10 days of receipt.

Departmental ICT

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he has taken to reduce the level of carbon dioxide emissions arising from the operation of ICT systems in his Department under the Greening Government ICT Strategy. [273563]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID), in line with all other Chief Information Officers (CIOs) on the Cabinet Office CIO Council, has produced a "CIO Green ICT Roadmap" which we will be following to deliver against the 18 target improvement areas outlined in the Greening Government IT Strategy.

I also refer the hon. Member to the answer provided to the hon. Member for Cardiff, Central (Jenny Willott) on 27 April 2009, Official Report, column 1014W.

Sudan: Politics and Government

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his most recent assessment is of the humanitarian situation in South Kordofan and Abyei in Sudan. [275312]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The UK Government continue to monitor the humanitarian situation in Abyei and Southern Kordofan closely. The population of Abyei (and surrounding areas) is fewer than 50,000, most living in displaced camps in Agok, with 650 in Southern Kordofan. United Nations (UN) sources indicate that the humanitarian system is stable, although the situation remains tense, with the coming rains posing an increased risk of disease and logistical challenges in the delivery of assistance. We are also expecting the results of a recent joint UN/Government assessment of the NGO expulsions impact on the transitional areas, which should provide a more comprehensive picture of any gaps in the humanitarian response and impact on future recovery programmes.

The UK Government provide humanitarian and early recovery support primarily through the UN-managed Common Humanitarian Fund (CHF), which contributed $10.1 million for Southern Kordofan, and an additional $3.3 million for Abyei in 2008. Our 2008 share of the CHF was around 50 per cent. at £40 million. For 2009, we have provided a further £36 million. In addition, the UK Government are supporting recovery in the police (Abyei) and education sectors (up to £5.7 million), and through the Multi-Donor Trust Fund (MDTF) which has provided $28.67 million in funding for Southern Kordofan.

Uzbekistan: Overseas Aid

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what aid the Government gave to Uzbekistan in the last 12 months; and whether any funding from his Department is targeted on reducing that country's reliance on the employment of children in the cotton industry. [275792]

Mr. Michael Foster: The UK Government closed their bilateral aid programme to Uzbekistan in March 2006. However, the Department for International Development (DFID) funds a Central Asia Regional HIV/AIDS Programme, which operates in Uzbekistan, totalling £7.4 million over four years. DFID has also committed £1 million to a World Bank led Central Asia HIV Control Project and continues to monitor and support the work of multilateral institutions in Uzbekistan. No UK Government funding goes through the Government of Uzbekistan.

Zimbabwe: Economic Situation

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent discussions he has had with officials from the African Development Bank on a financial rescue package for Zimbabwe; and if he will make a statement. [275318]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Ministers from the Department for International Development (DFID) have met with Donald Kaberuka, President of the African Development Bank (AfDB), on a number of occasions over recent months. Most recently the Secretary of State met him on 2 April 2009 at the G20 summit in London. DFID staff have also held regular meetings at senior level with African Development Bank officials, including most recently at the AfDB annual meetings in Senegal on May 13-14.

In all of these meetings we have emphasised the importance of a strong AfDB role and country presence to provide early technical support to key institutions in the new Inclusive Government, to help co-ordinate donor engagement and, generally, to help build and maintain momentum for much needed reform efforts in Zimbabwe. However, further major support from the AfDB, from other institutions such as the IMF and World Bank and from the wider donor community will only be made available when we begin to see evidence of a commitment to political and economic reform. Establishing a track record on strong and competent fiscal management and tackling debt arrears will be key issues for the Inclusive Government in building confidence with the international community to support recovery.

JUSTICE

Ashwell Prison

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners have been transferred out of HM Prison Ashwell since 12 April 2009. [275529]

Mr. Straw: Between 12 April 2009 and 13 May 2009, 20 prisoners have been transferred out of HMP Ashwell.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the prison population at HM Prison Ashwell was in each of the last six months. [275535]

Mr. Straw: The following table gives the numbers of prisoners held in HMP Ashwell on the last day of each month between October 2008 to March 2008 (latest available).

Prison population within HMP Ashwell, October 2008 to March 2009

	Number
October 2008	610
November 2008	615
December 2008	609
January 2009	617
February 2009	610
March 2009	618

This information is available from the following website, which is updated monthly:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/populationincustody.htm

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Council Tax: Non-payment

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many successful prosecutions there were in (a) Essex and (b) Castle Point for non-payment of council tax in each of the last five years. [276108]

Maria Eagle: Persons proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for offences under regulation 56 of the Council Tax (Administration and Enforcement) Regulations 1992 form part of a miscellaneous group on the Ministry of Justice Court proceedings database which cannot be separately identified.

Debt Collection

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many court orders were obtained by each local authority in England in 2007-08; and how many of these related to (a) council tax, (b) housing benefit and (c) parking penalties; [276205]

(2) how many warrants to authorise bailiff action were issued at the request of each local authority in England in 2007-08; [276206]

(3) what the (a) actual and (b) percentage change in the number of (i) court orders and (ii) warrants to authorise bailiff action secured by each local authority (A) relating to council tax, (B) relating to housing benefit, (C) relating to parking penalties and (D) overall in England was between (1) 1997-98 and 2002-03 and (2) 1997-98 and 2007-08; [276207]

(4) how many bailiff warrants were issued in each region in respect of (a) council tax, (b) magistrates court fines, (c) consumer credit debts, (d) parking penalties and congestion charges, (e) child support and maintenance, (f) television licences and (g) other matters in (i) 1997-98, (ii) 2002-03 and (iii) 2007-08; [276208]

(5) how many mortgage and landlord repossession orders were granted by each county court in (a) 1990, (b) 2000 and (c) 2007-08. [276209]

Bridget Prentice: Statistics on mortgage repossession orders granted by each county court from 1987 to 2008 and on landlord repossession orders granted by each county court from 1999 to 2008 are available via the Ministry of Justice website at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/docs/stats-landlord-mortgage-historic-20-02-09.xls

However, landlord repossession order data are not held prior to 1999.

These figures do not indicate how many homes have actually been repossessed. Repossessions can occur without a court order being made while not all court orders result in repossession.

The Ministry of Justice does not hold statistical counts of:

court orders obtained by local authorities;

warrants to authorise bailiff action issued at the request of local authorities; warrants to authorise bailiff action issued in respect of (a) council tax, (b) magistrates court fines, (c) consumer credit debts, (d) parking penalties and congestion charges, (e) child support and maintenance, (f) television licences and (g) other matters.

The administrative computer systems used in the county courts do not enable easy identification of whether cases are brought specifically by local authorities, of the specific case type listed. All relevant cases are logged on the system and the claimant name is recorded. However, the statistics requested could only be derived following extensive manual searching of individual case records, which would incur disproportionate cost.

In addition, the numbers of orders made in magistrates courts are not held centrally.

Legal Aid

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much was spent on legal aid in (a) North West Cambridgeshire, (b) Cambridgeshire, (c) the East of England and (d) England and Wales in each of the last 10 years. [275920]

Mr. Hanson: The Legal Services Commission (LSC) does not record legal aid expenditure in such as way as to readily ascribe it to (a) North West Cambridgeshire or (b) Cambridgeshire. Obtaining this information would require a manual extraction of data, which would incur disproportionate cost.

Legal aid expenditure, in cash terms, for each of the past 10 years in (d) England and Wales is given in the following table. Expenditure for (c) the East of England region is available only from 2001-02 as obtaining this information for earlier years would require a manual extraction of data, which would incur disproportionate cost. Expenditure has been attributed on the basis of the location of the court in which proceedings were conducted for some legal aid schemes and the location of the service provider for others. Small elements of expenditure, for example, CDS Direct, have been excluded as they cannot easily be allocated to specific regions.

Lindholme Prison

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners he expects to be released early from HM Prison Lindholme in the next six months. [275534]

Mr. Straw: The number discharged from prison are dependent on a variety of factors, including the profile of the prison population in each establishment, the specifics of legislation or policies pertaining at the time, those received into the prison, movements between prisons and in the case of Lindholme the practicalities of removing foreign national prisoners to their home countries. No assessment has therefore been made on the number of releases, early or otherwise, from any specific prison.

Estimates of the prison population as a whole are generally published annually. This gives the projected monthly prison population in England and Wales for the next seven years. Sub-population (such as gender) estimates are presented alongside the effects of legislation, sentencing activity, and other factors relevant to the prison population. The relevant page on the Ministry of Justice website is:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/prisonpopulation.htm

Members: Correspondence

Jeremy Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when the Minister of State, Ministry of Justice, the right hon. Member for Delyn (Mr. Hanson) plans to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Rugby and Kenilworth of 18 March 2009, on Clifton Court Nursing Home. [276270]

Mr. Hanson: I am sorry for the delay. A reply has been sent and the hon. Member should receive it shortly.

Prisoners' Discharge Grants

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much on average prisoners received in a discharge grant in 2008. [275554]

Mr. Straw: Prison Service Order (PSO) 6400 (Discharge) states that all eligible prisoners aged 18 or over sentenced to a custodial sentence of more than 14 days must be given a discharge grant of £46 on release. Prisoners released from custody will not receive any benefits immediately and the grant is intended to meet their immediate basic needs.

Prisoners in the following categories are not eligible for a discharge grant:

Sentenced prisoners who are known to have in excess of £8,000 in savings (and would therefore be ineligible for income support under the relevant regulations);

Unconvicted prisoners;

Those serving a custodial sentence of 14 days or less;

Those recalled from licence to prison for a period of 14 days or less;

Those awaiting deportation or removal from the United Kingdom;

Those travelling to an address outside the United Kingdom. For the purpose of paying the discharge grant, the Channel Islands, the Isle of Man and the Republic of Ireland are included within the United Kingdom;

Those being discharged to a hospital under a Mental Health Act Section Order;

Fine defaulters and those held on further remand warrants.

Prisons: Barking and Dagenham

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what area of land is required to build the proposed prison on the Beam Park West site; [275075]

(2) what proportion of the London Development Agency's Beam Park West site is required to be secured in order to build the prison he proposes. [275118]

Mr. Straw: Our intention is to purchase the entire Beam Park West site. A minimum of 35 acres is required for a 1,500 place prison.

Prisons: Location

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 27 April 2009, Official Report, columns 569-71, on prisons and probation, what factors he took into account in deciding on sites for the new prisons. [275826]

Mr. Straw: Criteria including size, location, shape and topography of sites as well as public and private transport and planning policies were taken into account during the site search.

Young Offenders

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many inmates of each age group there were in each young offender institution in each year since 1997. [272025]

Mr. Hanson: Available information provided in the following table shows the number of 15-17 year olds and young adults under sentence in prison establishments in England and Wales as at the end of June 2002 to June 2007 (latest available).

Young adults are those aged 18-20 and those 21-year-olds who were aged 20 or under at conviction who have not been reclassified as part of the adult population.

It is not possible to provide information from 1997 without incurring disproportionate cost.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Youth Justice

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what timetable he has set for the publication of the strategy on the health and social care needs of children and younger people across the youth justice pathway, referred to in his Department's response to Lord Bradley's report. [275916]

Phil Hope: I have been asked to reply.

A strategy to meet the health and social care needs of children and young people across the youth justice pathway is being developed following the launch of Lord Bradley's review of people with mental health problems or learning disabilities in the criminal justice system. The strategy for children and young people is expected to be published in the autumn 2009 following approval from the forthcoming Health and Criminal Justice Programme Board.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

US-EU Relations

10. Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect of President Obama's recent visit to Europe on US-EU relations. [276075]

Bill Rammell: This was an important visit to Europe by President Obama. His meetings with partners in the G20, NATO and EU reinforced the importance of working together and helped to build further the shared sense of direction we need for a strong transatlantic relationship.

G20 Summit

11. Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the implications for UK policy of the outcomes of the recent London G20 Summit. [276076]

Gillian Merron: The G20 London Summit was a significant success for the UK, with key agreements on: financial regulation; reform of financial institutions; preventing protectionism; development, and climate change. All of these are critical for restoring growth, building stability and supporting jobs.

Middle East Peace Process

12. Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of discussions with his European counterparts on a united European approach to the Middle East peace process. [276077]

Bill Rammell: The EU has a hugely important role to play in achieving peace in the Middle East. When we last discussed this issue at the end of April, all 27 EU Foreign Ministers agreed that the EU approach to the Middle East Peace Process should be clear: support a two-state solution as the only viable outcome of a final settlement. Both the EU and the UK will pursue this goal vigorously in the coming months.

13. Mr. McCartney: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent progress has been made in the Middle East peace process; and if he will make a statement. [276078]

Bill Rammell: We are encouraged by recent developments in the Middle East Peace Process (MEPP). The new Israeli Government has signalled a commitment to resume peace negotiations including a political track. The Palestinian Authority is also ready to enter peace negotiations with the new Israeli Government when the conditions are right. The Obama Administration has made a priority of the MEPP, appointing Senator Mitchell as a Special Envoy. The United Nations Security Council, chaired by Russia, discussed the MEPP on 11 May and issued a Presidential Statement.

The MEPP remains a priority for HM Government. We shall continue to support efforts towards a two-state solution. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary reiterated this during his intervention at the UN on 11 May.

General Affairs Council

15. Mr. Fiello: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had in the General Affairs Council on EU policy to tackle trade protectionism; and if he will make a statement. [276080]

22. Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had in the General Affairs Council on EU policy to tackle trade protectionism; and if he will make a statement. [276087]

Caroline Flint: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not had any recent discussions at the General Affairs council on EU policy to tackle trade protectionism. Agreement at Spring European Council ahead of the London Summit to keep markets open and avoid all form of protectionist measures demonstrates Europe is committed to rejecting protectionism in order to facilitate a recovery of the world economy.

Gaza

16. Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department is taking to facilitate the opening of all border crossings into Gaza. [276081]

Bill Rammell: The UK remains concerned with the severe humanitarian situation in Gaza. We have continually urged Israel to open the crossings into Gaza, particularly for humanitarian aid, but also for reconstruction materials and trade and have already raised this issue with the new Israeli Government. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary made this clear in his meeting with the Israeli Foreign Minister Avigdor Lieberman on 13 May 2009 and also in his statement to the UN on 11 May 2009.

EU-US Relations

17. Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has held with his US counterpart on EU-US relations following President Obama's recent visit to Europe. [276082]

Bill Rammell: Close dialogue between the EU and US remains essential as we tackle the range of challenges we share. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary will continue to engage with my European and American colleagues closely on how we can work together to address these issues—as he last did with US Secretary of State Hilary Clinton in Washington on 12 May 2009.

Pakistan: Swat Region

18. Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent estimate he has made of the number of UK citizens in the Swat region of Pakistan. [276083]

Bill Rammell: We believe that there are about 80,000 British nationals in Pakistan at any one time. All but a small percentage are dual nationals either resident in Pakistan or visiting family members. We do not have accurate figures for the number of British nationals in Swat but this is not an area recognised as having particularly high concentrations of British nationals when compared to other parts of the country.

BBC Kinyarwanda Service: Rwanda

19. Mr. Joyce: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the suspension of the BBC Kinyarwanda service for Rwanda; and if he will make a statement. [276084]

Caroline Flint: The BBC Kinyarwanda service for Rwanda is suspended on FM due to Government action. I am concerned at this development and assured by BBC World Service that they are seeking urgent clarification of the Government's decision. The World Service refutes allegations of misreporting and is making every effort to get FM broadcasts in Kinyarwanda restored.

Afghanistan

20. Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the extent to which the Government's political objectives for Afghanistan have been achieved since 2001. [276085]

Bill Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister set out our assessment of the current situation in Afghanistan and the way forward in his statement to Parliament on 29 April 2009, Official Report, column 869, and the associated strategy document. We keep progress against our objectives in Afghanistan under constant review.

General Affairs Council: Swedish Presidency

21. David Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with his Swedish counterpart on the Swedish Presidency's programme for the General Affairs Council. [276086]

Caroline Flint: I visited Stockholm on 28 April for talks with the Swedish Europe Minister, Cecilia Malmstrom. Sweden has clearly prioritised: tackling the global financial crisis; overseeing the coming EU institutional changes; and working towards an ambitious global agreement at the UN Climate Change Conference in Copenhagen this December. We welcome these priorities.

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with his Swedish counterpart on the Swedish Presidency's programme for the General Affairs Council. [276079]

Caroline Flint: I visited Stockholm on 28 April for talks with the Swedish Europe Minister, Cecilia Malmstrom. Sweden has set clear priorities: tackling the global financial crisis; overseeing EU institutional changes; and working towards an ambitious global agreement at the UN Climate Change Conference in Copenhagen this December. We support these priorities.

Zimbabwe

23. Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will seek an early meeting with the Prime Minister of Zimbabwe to discuss the political situation in that country. [276088]

Gillian Merron: My right hon. Friend, the Foreign Secretary welcomed Finance Minister Biti to a meeting on 30 April 2009. My noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch Brown, also met Biti on that day, and met Prime Minister Tsvangirai and Foreign Minister Mumbengegwi in South Africa on 9 May 2009—the first official meetings between British and Zimbabwean Ministers since April 2000 and reflecting the UK's concern to support the ongoing process of reform in Zimbabwe.

Afghanistan and Iraq

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many British citizens are directly employed by his Department in (a) Afghanistan and (b) Iraq; and in what capacities. [275458]

Bill Rammell: In Afghanistan there are 297 and in Iraq 339 British Citizens employed by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO).

The capacity in which these people are employed crosses political, development and support services.

The number of British citizens employed in Afghanistan and Iraq includes all FCO staff (civil servants and inward secondees), those employed under an individual contract with the FCO as well as those contracted to a hiring company under contract to the FCO. Contracted staff include cleaning, catering, security, medical and facilities management.

Aung San Suu Kyi

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received on the health of Aung San Suu Kyi and the medical treatment that she is receiving; and if he will make a statement. [276352]

Bill Rammell: Following the arrest of Aung San Suu Kyi's doctor on 7 May 2009, an assistant doctor was permitted to visit Aung San Suu Kyi on Friday 8 May 2009 and reported that she suffered from low blood pressure and dehydration. Mrs Suu Kyi was reported to be in good spirits during a further visit permitted on Monday 11 May 2009. We have received reports that she appeared to be in good health on arrival for her trial on 18 May 2009. We understand that her doctor has now been released but we are not aware that he has been able to see Mrs Suu Kyi since her arrest.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received on the conditions in Insein Prison in Burma; and if he will make a statement. [276353]

Bill Rammell: On 16 February, the UN Special Rapporteur on Human Rights in Burma, Tomas Quintana, was able to visit Insein prison as part of his fact finding tour to the country. He was able in inspect certain areas of the prison, although his visit was heavily stage-managed by the Burmese authorities. In his report of 11 March 2009 he drew attention to some prisoners being shackled and their lack of access to legal representation. We support his call for the release of all political prisoners in Insein prison and elsewhere.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans there are for the UN Security Council to take steps in response to the arrest and detention of Aung San Suu Kyi by the Burmese regime on 14 May 2009; and if he will make a statement. [276354]

Bill Rammell: We share UN Secretary General, Ban Ki Moon's expression of grave concern at Aung San Suu Kyi's arrest on 14 May 2009.

We are continuing to discuss the situation with our international colleagues in the UN. Once the outcome of the trial is known, we will actively consider how best to engage members of the UN Security Council further on the situation in Burma.

Australia

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had on international security with the Australian Government. [276061]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 18 May 2009]: The British and Australian Governments are in regular and close contact at ministerial and official level to discuss the full range of international security challenges. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has regular discussions on security issues with his Australian counterpart most recently in London in April 2009.

During the visit of the Australian Prime Minister for the London summit in April, a joint statement was issued by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister and Prime Minister Rudd, which agreed a new and comprehensive security partnership covering key areas of common concern.

British Overseas Territories: Crime Prevention

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many records are stored on the Overseas Territories Regional Crime Intelligence System. [272621]

Gillian Merron: There are 1,406,891 records stored on the Overseas Territories Regional Crime Intelligence System.

Democratic Republic of Congo: Security

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his UN Security Council (UNSC) counterparts on implementation of UNSC Resolution 1843 in South Kivu. [275317]

Gillian Merron: The UN Security Council most recently discussed the uplift of personnel and resources for the UN peacekeeping mission in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC) (MONUC) in consultations on 9 April 2009. This matter will also be raised during a UN Security Council visit to the DRC between 17 and 18 May 2009. On 13 May 2009, my noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch-Brown, discussed the issue with Alan Doss, the Special Representative of the UN Secretary-General for DRC.

Departmental Telecommunications

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much his Department paid for telecommunications services in the most recent year for which figures are available; when the contract with its existing telecommunications supplier referred to on page 131 of the Budget Red Book 2009 was signed; who the telecommunications supplier is; and what steps he plans to take to achieve the £6 million per annum saving referred to on page 131 of the Budget Red Book. [275461]

Gillian Merron: In the financial year 2008-09 the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) spent £26 million on centrally funded telecommunications services, net of VAT. The contract with the current supplier, Global Crossing, was signed on 10 May 2000.

The contract provides a review mechanism enabling the FCO to ensure that it continues to receive value for money over the term of the agreement. Savings arising from changed technologies and market conditions have been identified and passed on by the supplier as an agreed series of cost reductions. As a result the amount paid in 2008-09 was £26 million, not the £32 million originally agreed. This mechanism will operate for the remaining duration of the contract.

Embassies: Festivals and Special Occasions

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what guidance his Department has issued on the marking of (a) Christmas, (b) Easter and (c) other religious festivals in British Embassies and High Commissions overseas; and if he will place in the Library a copy of such guidance. [275437]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 14 May 2009]: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office recognises the significant contribution played by different faiths, both home and abroad, to the fabric of UK society. We currently have no central guidance on this matter as we leave this to the discretion of our Heads of Mission overseas. However, I have asked officials to review whether formal guidance is necessary.

EU Battlegroups

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) equipment and (b) personnel have been committed to the EU Atalanta mission. [273844]

Caroline Flint: The UK contribution to Operation Atalanta includes the operation commander and the operation headquarters at Northwood. The Royal Navy also provided HMS Northumberland for the first phase of the operation but she has since moved onto other duties. While not formally part of the mission, tanker support has been provided, on an occasional basis, through RFA Wave Knight.

Greece, France, Belgium, Netherlands, Norway, Germany, Italy, Spain and UK have provided a combination of assets and manpower to Operation Atalanta. Specific details of which can be found on the EU operation headquarters website:

www.mschoa.eu

The UK is also providing a liaison officer embedded in the Combined Maritime Forces (CMF), a naval coalition conducting counter terrorism, counter narcotics, counter smuggling and counter piracy operations. The Royal Navy also contributes a frigate, currently HMS Portland to Combined Maritime Forces. EU and CMF operations work together highly effectively in pursuing common objectives.

EU Budget

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the prospects for reform of the EU budget; and if he will make a statement. [276215]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 18 May 2009]: In December 2005 the European Council agreed for an EU budget review to take place by the end of 2009. We look forward to discussing the Commission's white paper with member states.

Gambia: Politics and Government

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations his Department has made to the Government of the Gambia on (a) the case of David and Fiona Fulton and (b) new charges brought against David and Fiona Fulton. [275327]

Gillian Merron: We have registered our interest in the Fulton case with the Gambian authorities and made representations where appropriate on behalf of Mr. Fulton. Mr. Fulton has not asked us to make representations with regard to the latest charges brought against him. Mrs Fulton does not face new charges.

Ghana: Politics and Government

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his Ghanaian counterpart on the political situation in Ghana. [276065]

Gillian Merron: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary met the Ghanaian Foreign Minister during President Mills' visit to London two weeks ago.

They discussed the success of the recent democratic elections in Ghana and the positive example this has set in the region, the continued work between both Governments on promoting stability in West Africa and the need for an equitable solution to the challenge of climate change. The discussion also touched upon the rich variety of educational and cultural links between the UK and Ghana.

Gibraltar: Politics and Government

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when the appointment of the new Governor of Gibraltar is expected to be announced. [276293]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 18 May 2009]: The appointment of the Governor is a matter for Her Majesty The Queen acting on the advice of Government and will be announced at the appropriate time.

India: Elections

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the probable outcome of the general election in India; and if he will make a statement. [276073]

Bill Rammell: The Indian election result was announced on 16 May 2009. It was expected that no one party would have a sufficient majority to form the new Indian Government. The relevant political parties will now consult to form the next coalition. The UK enjoys constructive relations with India and we look forward to working with the new Indian Government.

Iran: Religious Freedom

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Iranian authorities on the detention without charge of Maryam Rostampour and Marzieh Amirizadeh in Evin Prison in Iran. [276321]

Bill Rammell: We have received worrying reports that Maryam Rostampour and Marzieh Amirizadeh are being held in Evin prison following their arrest by Iranian security officers on 5 March 2009. The women are known be practicing Christians. Reports suggest that neither have been charged with any crime defined under Iranian or international legislation, nor have they been permitted access to lawyers. The UK has genuine concerns for their safety and well-being, which are heightened by the fact that the Iranian Parliament is currently debating a draft Bill which could codify life imprisonment for female apostates.

We have made clear to the Iranian authorities on many occasions that we believe persecution of individuals on the grounds of their ethnicity or religious beliefs is unacceptable, and will continue to do so through the EU and bilaterally. We will continue to press the Iranian authorities to take seriously their international human rights obligations and uphold the right to freedom of religion and belief as described in Article 18 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights (to which Iran is a state party).

Iraq: Oil

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received from the Government of Iraq on (a) the return of monies held in escrow under the UN oil-for-food programme and not yet received and (b) the disbursement of international commitments for development aid; what estimate he has made of the sums due to the Iraqi Government in each case; and if he will make a statement. [275994]

Bill Rammell: The Government have not received any specific representations from the Government of Iraq (GoI) on the oil-for-food programme. However, the GoI has asked us to help it resolve outstanding UN resolutions relating to Iraq. We support the review of those UN Security Council Resolutions that are still in effect as part of the process to help Iraq normalise its relationship with the international community.

We will continue to work with other members of the UN Security Council to resolve outstanding issues on the oil-for-food programme so that it can be concluded with the mutual agreement of all parties, including the Iraqi Government.

We have not received any representations from the GoI on the disbursement of international development commitments. Any outstanding commitments from the international community regarding the disbursement of development funds are a matter for the GoI to address direct with donors.

Malta: Illegal Immigrants

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with (a) the government of Malta and (b) the EU on illegal migration to Malta from the African coast; and if he will make a statement. [275558]

Caroline Flint: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary last met Foreign Minster Dr. Tonio Borg on 20 November 2008. During this meeting migration was discussed, and Dr. Borg mentioned co-operation with Italy on illegal migration.

Illegal migration was also raised by Malta and Italy at the EU General Affairs and External Relations Council on 27 April 2009, where Ministers noted the challenges that migration across the Mediterranean poses for all member states.

In addition, my right hon. Friend the Home Secretary attends the Justice and Home Affairs Council, where illegal transit migration routes from Africa through the Mediterranean are regularly discussed.

Mauritania: Diplomatic Relations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the state of relations between Mauritania and the UK. [276201]

Bill Rammell: We regularly assess our relationship with Mauritania, and the political situation in the country, following the 2008 coup.

We remain concerned that there has been little progress towards the restoration of democracy, despite increasing international pressure. We, in line with international partners like the EU, US, North Atlantic Treaty Organisation and the African Union, maintain working level contact with Mauritanian officials.

The UK continues to fully support the EU in its efforts to restore democracy through the provisions of the Cotonou Agreement.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the French Government on Israeli soldier Corporal Shalit. [275964]

Bill Rammell: The UK continues to call for the immediate, unconditional, and safe release of Gilad Shalit, in public and in private. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary reiterated this most recently in his statement to the UN Security Council on 11 May 2009. The case of Corporal Shalit was also discussed during an EU Foreign Ministers' meeting in March 2009.

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what recent representations (a) he and (b) officials in his Department have made to the Palestinian Authority on Israeli soldier Corporal Shalit. [275965]

(2) whether his Department has taken steps since 25 June 2006 to seek to secure the release of Israeli soldier Corporal Shalit. [275967]

Bill Rammell: The UK continues to call for the immediate, unconditional, and safe release of Gilad Shalit, in public and in private. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary reiterated this most recently in his statement to the UN Security Council on 11 May 2009. We have also shown our support to Corporal Shalit's family by meeting his parents on several occasions.

Morocco: Human Rights

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will investigate reports of the torture and solitary confinement of Yahya Mohamed el Hafed Aaza, detained at Ayat-Melol prison. [276306]

Bill Rammell: We are aware that a Mr. el Hafed Aaza has been sentenced to 15 years in prison. At this time we do not know what conditions he is being held in or what he has been convicted of.

Our embassy in Rabat is making further inquiries and will continue to monitor the situation closely in partnership with European colleagues.

Piracy

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether representatives from his Department plan to attend the international conference on piracy in Malaysia in May 2009; and if he will make a statement. [275996]

Bill Rammell: A senior Foreign and Commonwealth Office Legal Advisor will attend the Kuala Lumpur International conference on piracy and crimes at sea on 18 and 19 May 2009.

Spain: Anti-Semitism

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received of levels of anti-Semitism in Spain; and if he will make a statement. [275618]

Caroline Flint: We have not received any specific reports of serious anti-Semitic incidents having taken place recently in Spain although we are aware of surveys which have suggested a rise in unfavourable views of Jews.

As an EU member state, Spain is a signatory to the European Convention on Human Rights and is fully committed to combating discrimination and upholding the rights of minority groups.

Sri Lanka: Armed Conflict

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans there are for further UN Security Council action in response to the humanitarian situation in Sri Lanka; and if he will make a statement. [275314]

Bill Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has been in regular contact with his counterparts in the UN Security Council on the situation in Sri Lanka. Most recently he held talks at the UN on 11 May 2009 with the UN Secretary General, other UN Security Council members and non-governmental organisations. The UK again raised Sri Lanka at the UN Security Council on 13 May 2009, under 'Other Matters', and UN Security Council members released a statement urging the Government of Sri Lanka to extend full co-operation to the UN in order to resolve the humanitarian crisis.

We welcome the continued engagement by the UN, sometimes in the face of opposition from others, and we will continue to look for further opportunities to keep the UN focused on the situation in Sri Lanka.

Sri Lanka: International Assistance

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with his UN Security Council counterparts on the $1.9 billion IMF emergency loan package for Sri Lanka; and if he will make a statement. [275322]

Bill Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary regularly discusses the situation in Sri Lanka with his counterparts in the UN Security Council, most recently on 11 May 2009. However, the International Monetary Fund has not yet presented a programme for Sri Lanka and the UK has not been asked to vote on a programme yet. Once a programme is presented, it will be assessed on its merits and the situation on the ground in Sri Lanka at the time to decide whether it will help the people of Sri Lanka.

Territorial Waters

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent progress has been made in talks between his Department and representatives of (a) Spain and (b) Gibraltar on territorial waters; and if he will make a statement. [276331]

Caroline Flint: There have been no recent talks between the UK and either Spain or Gibraltar on the sovereignty of territorial waters. The Government are fully confident of its sovereignty over British Gibraltar Territorial Waters (BGTW) and continues to make this clear to Spain whenever appropriate.

However, the UK has made written and oral representations to Spain regarding European Commission Decision 2009/95/EC. Under the decision, Spain has put forward a site of community importance under the Habitats Directive which encompasses BGTW, including an existing site designated by the UK under the same directive. As the UK is the only member state competent to propose a site covering BGTW, we do not recognise the validity of the adopted site. The UK is deeply concerned that Spain should seek to designate an area of BGTW and that this designation should have been approved.

USA

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had on international security with the US administration. [276058]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 18 May 2009]: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary regularly discusses issues of international security with representatives of the US Administration—including in his frequent conversations with US Secretary of State Hillary Clinton.

He most recently discussed international security issues during his visit to Washington on 11-12 May 2009 where he met with Secretary Clinton, Deputy Secretary Steinberg and other representatives of the US Administration.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what matters were discussed in his meeting with his US counterpart during his recent visit to Washington DC; and what the outcomes of the meeting were. [276109]

Bill Rammell: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary met US Secretary of State Hillary Clinton during his visit to Washington on 11-12 May 2009. They had a wide ranging discussion covering key foreign policy issues including Afghanistan, Pakistan, Iran and Sri Lanka.

Secretary Clinton and the Foreign Secretary also agreed a joint statement on Sri Lanka which was issued following their meeting.

Uzbekistan: Human Rights

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received on the human rights position of children employed in the cotton industry in Uzbekistan. [276190]

Caroline Flint: The UK remains concerned about allegations of the use of child labour in the cotton industry in Uzbekistan. We have raised these concerns with the Uzbek Government most recently in discussions with the Uzbek Ministry of Foreign Affairs in March. Our embassy also remains in regular contact with the UN Children's Fund (UNICEF) on the issue of child labour in Uzbekistan.

In order to help establish stronger child labour monitoring systems our embassy in Tashkent is supporting a project that estimates the prevalence of child labour in remote rural cotton growing areas of Uzbekistan. The project aims to prevent child labour through informal education and vocational training. We have also welcomed Uzbekistan's recent ratification of the International Labour Organisation Conventions on the minimum age of employment and on the worst forms of child labour, and stand ready to work with the Uzbek Government to implement its international obligations in this regard.

We remain concerned at the overall level of respect for human rights in Uzbekistan, and regularly raise these concerns through a critical, but constructive dialogue with the Uzbek authorities in Tashkent and in discussions with the Uzbek Embassy in London. In addition, the EU has a comprehensive human rights dialogue with Uzbekistan, which includes a focus on the need for further progress in Uzbek promotion and protection of human rights. The third round of talks is due to take place on 10 June 2009.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Higher Education: Admissions

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many (a) applicants and (b) accepted applicants to full-time undergraduate courses in England there were in each of the last 10 years; and how many such applicants were domiciled in (i) England, (ii) Wales, (iii) Scotland and (iv) Northern Ireland. [271019]

Mr. Lammy: The information is given in the tables. The figures cover students who apply to full-time undergraduate courses via UCAS. UCAS does not cover applications to part-time undergraduate or postgraduate courses, or students who apply directly to institutions.

Notes on UCAS applicant data:
1. The applicant figures cover applicants submitting one or more applications to an English institution (up to 2007 each applicant could submit up to six applications, this was reduced to five from 2008). Students in this table applying to English institutions may also have applied to institutions in one or more of the other home countries, and some may have been accepted to institutions in those countries.
2. In 2008 the Nursing and Midwifery Admissions System (NMAS) was subsumed in to the UCAS application system and part of the increase from 2007 to 2008 can be attributed this factor. There were 14,184 applicants who were accepted to former NMAS courses, the majority of whom were English domiciled (and NMAS was only for English institutions).

Students: Finance

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many and what proportion of students studying for a higher education qualification in a further education college in 2007-08 were (a) directly funded by the Higher Education Funding Council for England, (b) funded via a university and (c) funded by the Learning and Skills Council; and what proportion of the total number of higher education students in England in that year each represents. [273072]

Mr. Lammy: The latest available information is given in the table.

Higher education enrolments by source of funding: English Further education colleges[1] academic years 2005/06[2] and 2007/08[3]

	Number	Proportion (percentage)	Proportion of all higher education enrolments[4] (percentage)
Total higher education enrolments at further education colleges[5]	172,160	100.0	8.4
Of which:
Directly funded by HEFCE[6]	52,775	30.7	2.6
Funded via a University[2,7]	50,015	29.1	2.4
Funded by LSC	47,140	27.4	2.3

[1] The figures have not been adjusted for colleges that transferred during this period from the FE to the HE sector, or for those which merged with HE institutions.
[2] Funded via a university figures come from the 2005/06 HESA record and were provided by HEFCE analysts. 2006/07 and 2007/08 HESA data are available but the equivalent analysis has not yet been performed by HEFCE. Therefore proportions given in the table for students funded via a university are estimates based on earlier data, and may not reflect 2007/08 actual proportions.
[3] 2007/08 data are provisional. The final 2007/08 data will be available in January 2010.
[4] All Higher Education enrolments cover Higher Education enrolments at Further Education Colleges plus Higher Education enrolments at Higher Education Institutions. The underlying Higher Education Institution data come from the Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA) student record and are on a DIUS whole year count basis. Includes students registered by an English HE institution that are taught at any UK FE college (not just English FE colleges).
[5] Includes students with other sources of funding, therefore the sum of HEFCE funded, funded via a university and LSC funded will not sum to the number of all enrolments; likewise the proportions will not sum to 100 per cent.
[6] Includes students funded via a HEFCE-recognised funding consortium led by an HE institution.
[7] Includes students registered at any English HE institution, this includes HE colleges as well as universities.
Notes:
1. [illegible]R figures are on a DIUS whole year count basis, which counts students enrolled at any point in the academic year.

Community Relations: Islam

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills when he plans to reply to question 245558, on Islamic Studies outside the Islamic world, tabled on 16 December 2008 and transferred from the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on 12 January 2009. [276447]

Mr. Lammy: Since the Government designated Islamic studies as a strategically important subject in 2007, the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE), following a period of research and consultation, has been working with other funding agencies in the UK to develop a programme of work designed to address its strategic importance and to provide additional support for it as a subject in UK higher education.

HEFCE research and consultation showed that Islamic studies scholars are often relatively isolated experts affiliated to different departments, with weak links to scholars doing related work at other institutions.

HEFCE is, for this reason, funding a national network to bring the community of Islamic studies scholars closer together.

This network aims to provide information on courses and staff, facilitate events, seminars and exchange of ideas, and enable academics to connect. The network will be managed through a website and complemented by a programme to digitise Islamic studies resources developed by the Joint Information Systems Committee (JISC).

The Higher Education Academy has been funded for a short development phase to plan and develop the national network, which we expect to be operational from the autumn.

Although a national network, the web facility and international links within the UK academic community should further enrich this work and strengthen the UK's position as a leading centre for the study of the subject.

Further details can be found on HEFCE's website at:

http://www.hefce.ac.uk/aboutus/sis/islamic/

UK network and digitisation programme

In January 2009, HEFCE awarded £95,000 to the Higher Education Academy to work with the Joint Information Systems Committee (JISC) on the development of a full business case for an Islamic studies UK network. We expect that this work will inform a further three-year implementation phase.

HEFCE has awarded £350,000 to the JISC Digitisation Programme to support two specific strands of work relating to the digitisation of resources for use in Islamic studies research and teaching. This is based on recommendations in Exeter University's 2008 "Review of User Requirements for Digitised Resources in Islamic Studies".

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Departmental Lost Property

John Mason: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what property has been lost or stolen from his Department in the last 12 months; and what the estimated cost was of replacement of such property. [263111]

Mr. McFadden: During the period 1 February 2008 to 28 February 2009, this Department's records show that 71 items were reported as lost or stolen on the BERR central London estate with an estimated total replacement value of £13,500. Of these, 17 items were subsequently found with an estimated replacement value of £1,000.

In addition to the above, during the period 1 March 2009 to 30 April 2009, a further 16 items were reported lost or stolen with an estimated total replacement value of £4,400. One of these items was subsequently found with an estimated value of £50.00.

This figure includes small, low value personal items reported lost or stolen as well as a small number of mobile phones, multi media equipment and other electrical accessories.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Departmental Pay

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many and what proportion of staff in (a) the Cabinet Office and (b) the Central Office of Information received bonus payments in each of the last five years; what the total amount of bonuses paid was; what the largest single payment was in each year; and if he will make a statement. [258009]

Mr. Watson: An element of the Cabinet Office's overall pay award is allocated to non-consolidated variable pay related to performance. These payments are used to drive high performance and form part of the pay award for members of staff who demonstrate exceptional performance, for example by exceeding targets set or meeting challenging objectives. Non-consolidated variable pay awards are funded from within existing pay bill controls, and have to be re-earned each year against pre-determined targets and, as such, do not add to future pay bill costs.

For details of the cost of end of year non-consolidated variable payments in 2004 to 2007 I refer the hon. Member to the answers given on:

2 July 2007, Official Report, column 901W, to the hon. Member for Upper Bann (David Simpson).

6 June 2008, Official Report, column 1185W, to the hon. Member for Runnymede and Weybridge (Mr. Hammond).

Details of total paybill and headcount for each year can be found in the Cabinet Office Annual Report and Resource Accounts, which are published on the Cabinet Office website.

We would not normally give out information pertaining to an individual's remuneration. However, the average senior civil service non-consolidated award paid by the Cabinet Office over the past five years is:

	Average non-consolidated award (£)
2008	9,260
2007	7,280
2006	6,820
2005	4,520
2004	5,000

I have asked the chief executive of the Central Office of Information (COI) to write to the hon. Member with the information relating to COI.

Copies of the COI letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Disadvantaged

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster if his Department will commission research on the relationship between levels of public spending and levels of deprivation across the UK. [275545]

John Healey: I have been asked to reply.

We conduct regular research on regeneration and economic development including the impact of government programmes on the most deprived areas, and publish research reports regularly on our website. Other Government Departments undertake and publish similar research.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when he plans to answer question 270079 tabled on 17 April 2009, about special advisers; and if he will make a statement. [275605]

Mr. Byrne: A response has been sent to the hon. Member.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Building Schools for the Future Programme

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what average rate of interest is being paid on the 30 Building Schools for the Future contracts which had been signed with the private sector by the end of March 2009. [275629]

Jim Knight [holding answer 18 May 2009]: There were 18 signed projects at the end of March 2009 involving private finance; the average all-in rate of interest was 5.88 per cent.

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what rate of interest is being charged by the Government on the £2.4 billion set aside as the additional HM Treasury contribution to private finance initiative schemes in the Building Schools for the Future programme. [275630]

Jim Knight [holding answer 18 May 2009]: The rate of interest to be charged by the Treasury's Infrastructure Finance Unit (TIFU) to assist Building Schools for the Future PFI projects is not set in advance. It will lend on a commercial basis and at rates applicable in the market at the time of financial close of a project.

The £2.4 billion relates to the value of BSF PFI projects in procurement at the time of the announcement according to figures provided to HMT as part of the pre-Budget PFI data collection exercise.

Not every project is expected to require assistance, only those projects which cannot secure debt finance on acceptable terms.

Cam House School Dursley

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether he has received a proposal from Gloucestershire county council to change the status of Cam House school. [276216]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: I can confirm that the Secretary of State has not, to date, received a copy of a statutory proposal notice relating to Cam House school.

When the school was placed in special measures the local authority (LA) temporarily suspended residential provision. Should the LA decide to permanently close residential provision then it would be considered as a prescribed alteration and the authority would be obliged to follow statutory procedures relating to school organisation.

The LA received approval from the Secretary of State on 13 February 2009 to set up an Interim Executive Board for the school.

Primary Education

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what forecast he has made of the number of children there will be in primary schools in each year to 2031. [276295]

Jim Knight [holding answer 18 May 2009]: The Department's current estimates for the number of full-time equivalent pupils in education in maintained primary schools in England are shown in the following table:

Projected numbers of pupils (in thousands)[1, 2] in maintained primary schools

As at January	Primary schools pupils
2009	3,954
2010	3,980
2011	4,035
2012	4,110
2013	4,201
2014	4,300
2015	4,387
2016	4,462
2017	4,528

[1] Full-time equivalents, counting each part-time pupil as 0.5. The numbers have been rounded to the nearest one thousand.

[2] Experience has shown that totals in maintained primary schools are usually within ±0.2 per cent. for the first projected year. There is less certainty in the longer term. Factors which contribute to differences between projections and outturn data include the underlying population trends, participation among under fives and variations of proportions attending independent schools. Projections are increasing in uncertainty.

Updated projections for the number of pupils in primary and nursery schools are due to be published in the departmental annual report on 8 June 2009. These will take into account the provisional annual school census figures for January 2009. Projections are not shown beyond 2017 because of the increasing degree of uncertainty over time.

Secondary Education

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils entered state secondary schools in each local authority in year 7 in September 2008; how many and what percentage of these pupils entered schools selecting other than via banding systems (a) wholly by academic ability, (b) partly by academic ability and (c) by aptitude; and how many of them transferred to state secondary schools from primary schools in the private sector. [274440]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department does not hold data on the number of pupils who entered state secondary schools in September 2008. The latest available data about the number of admissions to schools can be accessed in the statistical first release (SFR) "Admission Appeals for Maintained Primary and Secondary Schools in England, 2006/07" http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000789/index.shtml (table 3).

Data for 2007/08 are due to be published in late June.

The Department also collects data about offers of secondary school places. The data on offers made in March 2008 (which will relate to the number of pupils who entered state secondary schools in September 2008) can be accessed in the SFR "Secondary School Applications and Offers" http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/STA/t000791/index.shtml.

These figures are likely to have changed slightly by September for a number of reasons, such as appeals being successful, children moving home and late applications being processed. However, local authorities are not required to submit updated data in September.

The Department does not collect data on the admission arrangements applied to determine which school places are offered, or on the number of children that have transferred to state secondary schools from primary schools in the independent sector.

Teachers: Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) head teachers, (b) deputy head teachers, (c) other teaching staff and (d) non-teaching staff were suspended from duties in each local authority area to each of the last three years for which figures are available. [276217]

Jim Knight: The operation of disciplinary procedures in schools, including those that result in suspension, is a matter for local determination. Accordingly the information requested about the suspension of teaching and non-teaching staff is not held centrally.

Young Offender Institutions: ICT

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families on how many and what proportion of computers in (a) young offender institutions and (b) secure training centres malware was detected in 2008. [275422]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 14 May 2009]: The National Offender Management Service (NOMS) is responsible for overseeing the management of services in young offender institutions. The Youth Justice Board (YJB) is responsible for monitoring the services provided by contractors in secure training centres.

Neither NOMS nor the YJB have received any reports of malware being detected in young offender institutions or secure training centres in 2008.

Young Offenders: Essex

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many young people were in young offender institutions in Essex in each of the last five years. [274240]

Mr. Hanson: I have been asked to reply.

Available information provided in the following table shows the number of 15-17 year olds and young adults under sentence in prison establishments in Essex as at the end of June 2003 to June 2007 (latest available).

Young adults are those aged 18-20 and those 21 year olds who were aged 20 or under at conviction who have not been reclassified as part of the adult population.

Population in prison establishments in Essex, under sentence, by age group 15-20, 2003-07

	As at 30 June each year
	2003	2004	2005	2006[1]	2007
Bullwood Hall[1]	114	108	105	0	0
Chelmsford	110	130	120	142	199

[1] HMP Bullwood Hall previously a female prison was re-roled to take male Category C inmates only. The young offender institution unit and the female juvenile institution unit at HMP Bullwood Hall closed and stopped taking inmates.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Armed Forces: Housing

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the merits of allowing members of the armed forces to claim single household council tax rebate for married quarters when posted to other military establishments in the UK; and if she will make a statement. [276158]

John Healey: A dwelling (including married quarters) of which the Secretary of State for Defence is the owner, held for the purposes of armed forces accommodation, is exempt from council tax under Class O of the Council Tax (Exempt Dwellings) Order 1992 (SI. 1992/558). A local authority therefore cannot issue a council tax demand notice in respect of such a property, and the question of single person discount does not arise.

The Ministry of Defence pays a contribution in lieu of council tax to local authorities in respect of the totality of the dwellings on each of its estates, in an amount broadly equivalent to the amount of tax that would otherwise be due. As part of the terms and conditions under which service personnel occupy such quarters, an amount is recovered by the Ministry from the occupiers. The detail of those arrangements is determined by the Secretary of State for Defence.

Community Relations: Islam

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how the Government plans to promote the UK as a standard setter for Islamic studies outside the Islamic world, as referred to on page 4 of the report Preventing Violent Extremism: A Strategy for Delivery. [245558]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

Since the Government designated Islamic studies as a strategically important subject in 2007, the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE), following a period of research and consultation, has been working with other funding agencies in the UK to develop a programme of work designed to address its strategic importance and to provide additional support for it as a subject in UK higher education.

HEFCE research and consultation showed that Islamic studies scholars are often relatively isolated experts affiliated to different departments, with weak links to scholars doing related work at other institutions.

HEFCE is, for this reason, funding a national network to bring the community of Islamic studies scholars closer together.

This network aims to provide information on courses and staff, facilitate events, seminars and exchange of ideas, and enable academics to connect. The network will be managed through a website and complemented by a programme to digitise Islamic studies resources developed by the Joint Information Systems Committee (JISC).

The Higher Education Academy has been funded for a short development phase to plan and develop the national network, which we expect to be operational from the autumn.

Although a national network, the web facility and international links within the UK academic community should further enrich this work and strengthen the UK's position as a leading centre for the study of the subject.

Further details can be found on HEFCE's website at http://www.hefce.ac.uk/aboutus/sis/islamic/

UK network and digitisation programme

In January 2009, HEFCE awarded £95,000 to the Higher Education Academy to work with the Joint Information Systems Committee (JISC) on the development of a full business case for an Islamic studies UK network. We expect that this work will inform a further three-year implementation phase.

HEFCE has awarded £350,000 to the JISC Digitisation Programme to support two specific strands of work relating to the digitisation of resources for use in Islamic studies research and teaching. This is based on recommendations in Exeter University's 2008 "Review of User Requirements for Digitised Resources in Islamic Studies".

Departmental Buildings

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department and its predecessors spent on building maintenance in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [274554]

John Healey: The Department for Communities and Local Government and its predecessors incurred the following expenditure on building maintenance across the headquarters estate during the last five financial years:

Financial year	Cost (£)
2004-05	1,693,230
2005-06	2,075,079
2006-07	1,646,722
2007-08	1,564,742
2008-09	1,713,495

The Department and its predecessors had not maintained records of their agencies' and arms length bodies' maintenance spend. This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Contracts

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which services her Department and its predecessor have outsourced in each of the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [274452]

John Healey: The Department has outsourced its information technology and payroll services in the last five years.

Departmental ICT

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on how many and what proportion of computers in her Department malware was detected in 2008. [275394]

John Healey: It is not in the interests of the UK's national security for Departments to confirm information on the number of malicious attacks against their IT systems.

Communities and Local Government complies with Mandatory Requirement 39 of the Security Policy Framework which requires a policy on managing risks posed by all forms of malicious software ('malware').

Departmental Pay

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much (a) her Department and (b) its agencies paid in end-of-year performance bonuses to (i) all staff and (ii) senior Civil Service staff in 2008-09; and how many such payments were made. [275259]

John Healey: The Communities and Local Government total pay bill was £93,582,821, of which 0.63 per cent. was used for non-consolidated performance payments to staff. For the 2008-09 financial year non-consolidated performance payments of £428,157 were made to staff and £856,392 to senior civil servants.

All non-consolidated payments above are funded within existing pay bill controls and have to be re-earned each year against pre-determined targets and, as such, do not add to future pay bill costs.

The non-consolidated performance pay pot made to senior civil servants is based on the recommendations by the independent senior salaries review body. The Government has responded to current economic conditions by freezing the size of the SCS non-consolidated pot.

Communities and Local Government do not hold information centrally on non-consolidated payments made to staff within its agencies.

Derelict Land

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much the Homes and Communities Agency and its predecessor bodies spent on acquiring surplus public sector land in each of the last five years; and what estimate has been made of the monetary value of such land. [274829]

Margaret Beckett: The Homes and Communities Agency and its predecessor bodies have spent about £612 million on acquiring surplus public sector land sites since 2004. A number of the sites have since been sold and the estimated current value of the remaining sites purchased since 2004 that remain in HCA ownership is estimated to be £207 million as at March 2009. More detailed information cannot be provided without disproportionate costs.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many surplus public sector land sites were purchased by the Homes and Communities Agency and its predecessor bodies in each of the last five years; and how many hectares of land on each site were purchased. [274834]

Margaret Beckett: The Homes and Communities Agency and its predecessor bodies have purchased around 134 sites covering approximately 2,400 hectares from the public sector over the last five years.

Derelict Land: Property Development

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many of the sites currently on the Homes and Communities Agency's Register of Surplus Public Sector Land have been assessed as suitable for residential property development; and if she will make a statement; [274830]

(2) how many sites on the Homes and Communities Agency's Register of Surplus Public Sector Land have been on the register for more than (a) six months, (b) one year and (c) two years. [274831]

Margaret Beckett: Nearly 200 sites of the 704 currently on the Register of Surplus Public Sector Land have been assessed as suitable for residential development subject to planning approval being granted. Sites are assessed for their development potential when their details are first entered onto the Register.

The Register is a snapshot of current activity and sites are continually being added and removed by the responsible landowning department. Sites are often added to the Register a number of years before they become vacant and available for sale so that prospective buyers have early notification of their availability. Currently there are 704 sites on the Register. Of those 704 sites (a) 46 have been on the Register for less than six months (b) 89 sites between six months and one year (c) 164 sites between one and two years and (d) 405 sites longer than two years.

Economic Situation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield of 2 April 2009, Official Report, columns 1498-502W, on departmental conferences, if she will place in the Library a copy of the presentations and handouts produced for the Homeowners Mortgage Support Scheme workshop on 5 February 2009. [273457]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to her on 7 May 2009, Official Report, column 387W.

Energy Performance Certificates

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 5 May 2009, Official Report, column 128W, on energy performance certificates, how many complaints have been received from prospective tenants of (a) social and (b) private accommodation about a landlord failing to provide an energy performance certificate in each month since the entry into force of the provisions of the Energy Performance of Buildings Directive. [274795]

Margaret Beckett: Enforcement of the Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) England and Wales) Regulations 2007 is the responsibility of local weights and measures authorities. There is no requirement for the Department to be informed when they receive a complaint.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 5 May 2009, Official Report, column 128W, on energy performance certificates, how many fixed penalties for failure to supply an energy performance certificate have been issued to landlords in the (a) private and (b) social sector. [274796]

Margaret Beckett: Penalty notices are issued by local weights and measures authorities who are empowered to enforce the Energy Performance of Buildings (Certificates and Inspections) (England and Wales) Regulations 2007. There is no requirement for the Department to be informed when a penalty charge notice is issued.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she plans to review the fees charged for adding assessors to the register of energy display certificates. [275659]

Margaret Beckett: The contract between CLG and Landmark Information Group Limited for operating the non-domestic energy performance certificate (EPC) and display energy certificate (DEC) register makes provision for the lodgement fees to be reviewed at prescribed intervals. The first opportunity to review the fee structure for lodging EPCs and DECs on the non-domestic register arose in March of this year, at which time it was agreed that there was no need for a change in the fee. The next opportunity to review fees for the non-domestic register will arise in March 2012 and subsequently every three years thereafter.

Home Information Packs

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many accredited providers of home information packs there were in each of the last three years. [274837]

Margaret Beckett: There are no accreditation schemes for providers of home information packs.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the completion date was of the most recent independent research commissioned by her Department to evaluate the effect of home information packs on the housing market. [274982]

Margaret Beckett: Independent research into the impact of home information packs (HIPs) was undertaken by Europe Economics and published on 22 November 2007.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to limit the maximum cost to consumers of home information packs. [275016]

Margaret Beckett: The cost of a home information pack (HIP) is set by the market and the Government have no role in this.

Homebuy Scheme

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average income of a tenant purchasing under the Social Homebuy Scheme was in each of the last five years. [270438]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following table shows the average household income of tenants who have purchased under the Social HomeBuy scheme in England, by year.

2006-07	23,430
2007-08	23,410

Source:
CORE (Continuous Recording) returns from registered social landlords to the Tenant Services Authority (TSA).

The Social HomeBuy (SHB) scheme was introduced in April 2006, so there are no Social HomeBuy sales before 2006-07. 2008-09 figures are not yet available from CORE.

The household income figures are calculated from the "monthly take home pay" figures, which are based on net earnings from any paid work. These figures do not include income from benefits such as income support, child benefit, child tax credit, or any payments received from the Child Support Agency (CSA).

Homes and Communities Agency: Finance

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what percentage of the assets sale receipts of the Homes and Communities Agency and its predecessor bodies were (a) retained by the body concerned, (b) remitted to her Department and (c) remitted to HM Treasury in each of the last five years. [270573]

Margaret Beckett: The predecessor bodies for the Homes and Communities Agency were English Partnerships, the investment arm of the Housing Corporation, and the Academy for Sustainable Communities. A range of departmental programmes also transferred to the agency from Communities and Local Government.

The Homes and Communities Agency has retained all of its receipts generated from the sale of development assets. These receipts have been used to fund the agency's property and regeneration programme.

The Housing Corporation and the Academy for Sustainable Communities did not dispose of any development assets.

The former English Partnerships consisted of the Commission for New Towns (CNT) and the Urban Regeneration Agency (URA). The URA retained all of its receipts generated from the sale of development assets, for use in funding the agency's programme. A total of £345 million of receipts from the CNT's sale of land was remitted to HM Treasury in 2008-09 in connection with the close down of the CNT and the launch of the HCA. It is not possible to disaggregate the proportion of these receipts that relate to the last five years without incurring disproportionate cost.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on how many occasions her Department has been contacted by the Homes and Communities Agency and its predecessor bodies about the writing-off of losses in excess of the delegated limits set out in its financial memorandum in each of the last three years; and if she will make a statement. [270577]

Margaret Beckett: The predecessor bodies for the Homes and Communities Agency were English Partnerships, the investment arm of the Housing Corporation, and the Academy for Sustainable Communities. A range of departmental programmes also transferred to the Agency from Communities and Local Government.

The Homes and Communities Agency has not written-off any losses in excess of the delegated limits. The write-off of losses in excess of the delegated limit for English Partnerships and the Housing Corporation can be found in their published Annual Report and Accounts, copies of which are available in the Library of the House. The Academy for Sustainable Communities did not write off any losses in excess of the delegated limits.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 5 May 2009, Official Report, column 133W, on housing: low incomes, (1) how much has been repaid to the Homes and Communities Agency in grants as a result of investment partners who are not registered social landlords seeking to sell a property outside the affordable housing sector in each of the last three years; [274884]

(2) how many homes (a) in the social sector and (b) owned by investment partners who are not registered social landlords which were initially intended for low cost home ownership have subsequently been removed from the affordable housing sector in each region; [274885]

(3) how many requests the Homes and Communities Agency and its predecessors received to sell properties outside the affordable housing sector from investment partners who are not registered social landlords in each of the last three years; and how many requests were granted. [274888]

Margaret Beckett: In the last three years no grant has been repaid to the Homes and Communities Agency as a result of non-registered social landlord investment partners seeking to sell a property outside the affordable housing sector.

In each region no homes owned by investment partners who are not registered social landlords have subsequently been removed from the affordable housing sector.

No requests have been received by the Homes and Communities Agency to sell properties outside of the affordable sector from non-registered social landlord investment partners in the last three years.

Homes and Communities Agency: Location

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what equality impact assessments the Homes and Communities Agency has carried out on its options for relocation; and what consultation with staff and other stakeholders it has held on these options. [273410]

Margaret Beckett: As a public body, the Homes and Community Agency has conducted an equality impact assessment (EIA) screening on the proposals for restructuring and location; a full EIA is in the process of finalisation and will be published in due course. The impact assessment addresses the equality duty areas of race, gender and disability—in addition to considering the equality strands of religion, sexual orientation and age.

In completing the EIA, the HCA has taken account of consultation with staff and best practice knowledge, in order fully to consider the impact of its decisions on equality outcomes. The HCA is in the process of evaluating feedback from its most recent consultation exercise and this information will inform the full EIA which will be published on the HCA website.

Staff and staff representatives were initially consulted on the proposals for changes in Regional office accommodation on 11 February 2009. This period of initial consultation lasted for one month. Firm proposals were then circulated to staff representatives and staff, for consultation, on 1 April 2009. This further period of consultation also lasted one month and during this time, Regional Directors have been holding group and one to one discussions with staff.

The HCA has also, in recent months, had a number of discussions with stakeholder partners about the options for relocation including my Department, Regional Development Agencies and local authorities.

Homes and Communities Agency: Public Relations

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield of 2 April 2009, Official Report, column 1505W, on the Homes and Communities Agency, which public affairs firms the Tenant Services Authority engaged; what the (a) duration and (b) monetary value of each contract is; and if she will place in the Library a copy of the (i) brief and (ii) contract for each item of work. [273455]

Margaret Beckett: The TSA engaged the public affairs company APCO to provide help in developing the core narrative and key messages of the TSA through work in the political environment and to engage key stakeholders to gain buy in and understanding of, and to test, the aforementioned. The brief was also to campaign with politicians to raise awareness of the TSA.

(a) APCO were initially employed from August 2008 to February 2009. An additional three months' work was then agreed, to a reduced specification.

(b) The fee for the initial project was a retainer of £9,500 per month for a period of seven months between August 2008 and February 2009, totalling £76,000. The additional three-month contract was for time spent up to the value of £1,500 per month.

(i) and (ii) I intend to place a copy of the briefs and contract in the Library once we have obtained agreement from APCO and removed any commercially sensitive information.

Housing

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the cost to her Department of the Working Group on Condition Information in the Home Buying and Selling Process has been. [274855]

Margaret Beckett: The cost of establishing and supporting the Working Group on Condition Information in the Home Buying and Selling Process is approximately 25 per cent. of an official's time and has been met as part of the normal working arrangements of the Department from within existing budgets.

Housing: Construction

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homes have been built in each millennium community to date. [274771]

Margaret Beckett: The number of houses which have been built in millennium communities since the programme began in 1997 to date are:

Millennium community	Completed homes
Greenwich Millennium Village	1,099
New Islington	179
Allerton Bywater	172
Kings Lynn	109
Telford	53
Hastings	0
Oakgrove	14
Total	1626

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homes have been built on surplus public sector land in each of the last five years; and what estimate has been made of the number which will be built on such land in each of the next three years. [274828]

Margaret Beckett: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Under-Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, my hon. Friend the Member for Hartlepool (Mr. Wright) on 23 March 2009, Official Report, columns 69-70W. However to clarify, the purpose of the Register of Surplus Public Sector Land is to record sites for disposal that have been identified as surplus, vacant or under-used by Government Departments and their agencies which can be used for redevelopment including housing.

Information on the number of homes built on public sector land since 2004 is not held centrally as the Register does not capture such details. However, the Homes and Communities Agency estimates that since 2004 some 19,000 homes may have been built on sites formerly owned by the public sector. The cost of providing a more accurate figure would be disproportionate. This estimate will include a proportion of the 59,505 homes built since 1997, referred to in the previous answer of 23 March 2009. I should remind the hon. Member that these figures are likely to under-represent the number of homes built on land formerly owned by Government bodies.

Our latest estimate, as at January 2009, is that about 51,000 homes could be built on public sector sites in the next three years. This will be subject to sites remaining surplus or underused and planning approval being obtained. This forecast is under review and may reduce in the future to reflect the challenging market conditions.

Housing: Empty Property

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of empty dwellings in each London local authority area in each tenure group; and what the percentage change was in the equivalent figures between 2002-03 and 2007-08. [276276]

Mr. Iain Wright: The table shows estimates made of the number of empty dwellings in each London local authority area in each tenure group; and the percentage change in the equivalent figures between 2002-03 and 2007-08.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average level of support has been under each of the HomeBuy schemes in each region. [272227]

Margaret Beckett: For 2008-09 provisional figures showing the average amount of grant per unit paid through the Homes and Communities Agency's Affordable Housing Programme for each of the HomeBuy schemes in each region are set out in the following table.

Average level of grant per completed unit

English region	New build HomeBuy	Open market HomeBuy	Social HomeBuy	Rent to HomeBuy
North East	21,590	22,610	9,000	38,810

Homes and Communities Agency's Investment Management System

Provisional figures indicate that there have been no homes completed under the HomeBuy Direct scheme in 2008-09.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) first-time and (b) key worker buyers have purchased a share of a property via (i) HomeBuy Direct, (ii) OwnHome, (iii) OpenMarket HomeBuy, (iv) the First-Time Buyers Initiative, (v) MyChoice HomeBuy, (vi) New Build HomeBuy, (vii) Social HomeBuy and (viii) Rent to HomeBuy since the inception of each scheme. [272817]

Margaret Beckett: The following is a breakdown of purchases from 1 April 2006 to 31 March 2009:

Schemes	Total purchases	Number Of which: key workers
Open Market Homebuy	11,165	4,117
Of which
Own Home	799	260
MyChoice	3,123	1,026
New Build Homebuy	36,544	4,159

Schemes	Total purchases	Number Of which: key workers
First Time Buyers Initiative	1,867	291

In addition there have been 306 purchases under Social HomeBuy but we do not collect data on key worker status for Social HomeBuy.

For New Build HomeBuy the table shows completions. Key worker figures are derived from the homes completed in specific Key Worker initiative schemes. It is possible that key workers have also bought homes on standard New Build HomeBuy schemes.

For HomeBuy Direct I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 27 April 2009, Official Report, column 1119W.

There have been no purchases under the Rent to HomeBuy scheme, which became operational in July 2008, and enables potential purchasers to rent a home for up to five years before buying a share.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average annual income was of a tenant purchasing a (a) registered social landlord and (b) local authority property in each region in each of the last five years. [273400]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department does not collect information on the income of tenants purchasing local authority property.

For average household income of tenants purchasing registered social landlord properties through HomeBuy schemes, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given today (PQ 272225).

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average price paid by a tenant purchasing a (a) registered social landlord and (b) local authority property was in each region in each of the last five years. [273406]

Mr. Iain Wright: The following table shows the average price paid by a tenant purchasing a local authority property under the right to buy scheme in England from 2003-04 to 2007-08, by region.

	Average price paid (£)
Region	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08

P1B returns from local authorities to Communities and local Government (CLG).

For the average price paid for registered social landlord properties purchased through HomeBuy schemes, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given today, (PQ 272226).

The average price paid figures are the amount paid by the purchaser which could be less than the total purchase price of the property as usually a share of the equity in the property is purchased.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many social homes have been empty for more than six months in each region in England. [274278]

Mr. Iain Wright: The term "social homes" has been interpreted as social rented dwellings let by local authorities or registered social landlords.

Estimates of the number of social sector domestic dwellings empty for more than six months in each region in England are shown in the following table.

Number of dwellings vacant for more than six months as at April 2008

	Local authority	Registered social landlord
North East	1,217	2,507
North West	1,788	4,279
Yorkshire and the Humber	2,065	1,583
East Midlands	533	542
West Midlands	912	2,169
East	712	631
London	5,010	2,962
South East	856	1,209
South West	379	859
England	12,895	16,741

Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix (HSSA) and Business Plan Statistical Appendix (BPSA) submitted to Communities and Local Government by local authorities; Regulatory Statistical Return (RSR) as reported to the Housing Corporation by registered social landlords.

Figures for registered social landlords are for self-contained general needs units only and are vacant properties reported as not being available for letting. Not available for letting has been taken as a proxy for properties vacant for six months or longer as this enables the data to be presented at a regional level. Of the total number of RSL properties that have been vacant for at least six months at 31 March 2008, 90 per cent. were recorded as not available for letting.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what targets her Department has set for take up of each Homebuy scheme. [274745]

Margaret Beckett: We have not set individual targets for each HomeBuy scheme to ensure flexibility within the Homes and Communities Agency's Affordable Housing programme 2008-11.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how frequently local authorities are expected to carry out valuations on social dwellings in relation to (a) Right to Buy and (b) Social Homebuy purchase prices. [274848]

Margaret Beckett: Local authorities are required to provide a valuation when a tenant applies to purchase their home under the Right to Buy or Social HomeBuy schemes. In the case of Social HomeBuy, they must do so when a tenant applies to purchase an initial share and when they subsequently apply to purchase an additional share.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what proportion of (a) local authorities and (b) registered social landlords participate in the (i) Social Homebuy, (ii) Right to Buy and (iii) Right to Acquire schemes; [274851]

(2) what proportion of (a) local authorities and (b) registered social landlords participated in the (i) Social Homebuy, (ii) Right to Buy and (iii) Right to Acquire schemes in each year since 1997. [274852]

Margaret Beckett: Landlords are not free to choose whether or not to participate in the Right to Buy or Right to Acquire schemes. If an eligible tenant applies to purchase under either scheme, and meets the scheme's criteria, the landlord is obliged to sell.

The Right to Buy is available to secure tenants of local authorities and registered social landlords and to those assured tenants of registered social landlords who held secure tenancies at the time their homes were transferred from a local authority to a registered social landlord as part of a large scale voluntary stock transfer.

The Right to Acquire is available to tenants of registered social landlords who live in a qualifying property.

For the position on Social Homebuy, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 6 May 2009, Official Report, column 241W.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many properties were purchased under the (a) Right to Buy, (b) Right to Acquire and (c) Social Homebuy schemes in each local authority area in each year since 1997. [274861]

Margaret Beckett: A table showing the number of local authority Right to Buy sales, Right to Acquire sales, and Social HomeBuy sales by local authority for each year from 1997-98 has been sent to the House Library.

Homes and Communities Agency Investment Management System (IMS), and quarterly PIB returns from local authorities to CLG

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 5 May 2009, Official Report, column 133W, on housing: low incomes, what calculation is used to decide how much is paid back by an investment partner who is not a registered social landlord who is seeking to sell a property outside the affordable housing sector. [274883]

Margaret Beckett: The majority of non-registered social landlords developing affordable housing enter into an "Agreed Transfer" grant agreement with the Homes and Communities Agency whereby grant is paid on condition that the ownership of the completed units is transferred to a registered social landlord.

A small number of non-registered social landlord investment partners developing affordable housing enter into a "Retention Model" grant agreement with the Homes and Communities Agency whereby grant is paid on the condition that they retain the ownership of the developed units and manage these within the affordable housing sector. The grant is secured by a rent charge registered against the freehold title of the affordable units and the non-registered social landlord partner would have to seek the Homes and Communities Agency's consent to sell the units.

If the non-registered social landlord investment partner sought to sell a unit outside of the affordable housing sector there would be an element of grant recovery. Where applicable, any increase in value would be recovered.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 5 May 2009, Official Report, column 133W, on housing: low incomes, how much has been recycled in grants as a result of registered social landlords gaining section 9 consent to dispose in each of the last three years. [274886]

Margaret Beckett: According to the annual returns received from registered social landlords the following amounts have been credited to the organisations' Recycled Capital Grant Fund. Figures for 2008-09 are not yet available.

	Total (£ million)
2005-06	29.26
2006-07	38.73
2007-08	34.13

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many buyers participating in the (a) HomeBuy Direct, (b) OwnHome, (c) OpenMarket HomeBuy, (d) the First Time Buyers Initiative, (e) MyChoice HomeBuy, (f) New Build HomeBuy, (g) Social HomeBuy and (h) Rent to HomeBuy schemes have increased their shares in the home subsequent to their initial purchase. [275565]

Margaret Beckett: Only New Build HomeBuy, Social HomeBuy and Rent to HomeBuy involve the purchase of a property through shares. Information on the number of buyers who have purchased subsequent shares to the initial purchase is not collected centrally.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects to be able to publish data on HomeBuy Direct sales. [275566]

Margaret Beckett: We expect to publish completions data on the new supply of affordable housing, including low cost home ownership, in December. The data will include HomeBuy Direct.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what data her Department holds on HomeBuy Direct sales; and if she will make a statement. [275567]

Margaret Beckett: The Department for Communities and Local Government does not hold data on HomeBuy Direct sales. The Homes and Communities Agency collects data on HomeBuy Direct sales to enable them to manage the Affordable Housing investment programme.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many Rent to Homebuy providers there are in each region. [275574]

Margaret Beckett: The following table shows the current number of Rent to HomeBuy providers by region.

Region	Number of providers
East Midlands	11
Eastern	10
London	13
North East	2
North West	7
South East	11
South West	8
West Midlands	5
Yorkshire and the Humber	6
Total	73

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many applications for support under the Rent to Homebuy scheme have been received in each year since the scheme was established. [275575]

Margaret Beckett: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 26 March 2009, Official Report, columns 719-720W.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how much funding will be available for the Rent to Homebuy scheme in each of the next three years; [275576]

(2) how much has been spent on Rent to Homebuy in each of the last three years. [275584]

Margaret Beckett: We have not allocated specific funds in 2009-10 and 2010-11 for homebuy products, including rent to homebuy so as to allow full flexibility within the National Affordable Housing programme operated by the Homes and Communities Agency. Future estimates levels of expenditure beyond 2010-11 will be dependent upon the next spending review.

Rent to homebuy was launched in July 2008, and the provisional figure from the Homes and Communities Agency for expenditure in 2008-09 is £88 million.

Housing: Regeneration

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what events have been held as part of the Homes and Communities Agency's Single Conversation. [275581]

Margaret Beckett: From September 2008 to November 2008, the HCA implementation team ran a series of seminars which included sessions on the Single Conversation. There were a total of 10 events (nine regional and one national) in this period.

Since 1 December HCA regional teams have continued to engage with local authorities on the Single Conversation but there have been no further HCA-led events with this specific aim.

As the Single Conversation is the HCA's main business process, whenever HCA representatives speak at events and conferences organised by other bodies, they use the opportunity to communicate with stakeholders the HCA's approach to and progress on implementing the Single Conversation.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what the budget of the Homes and Communities Agency's Single Conversation is in 2009-10; [275582]

(2) how many local authorities have taken part in the Home and Communities Agency's Single Conversation to date. [275583]

Margaret Beckett: There is no separate budget for the delivery of the Single Conversation.

The Single Conversation is being introduced via a phased approach. The target is a Single Conversation being initiated in half of the local authorities within each region by April 2010 and with all local authorities by April 2011. To date 141 local authorities have begun initial discussions.

Guidance on the Single Conversation has been published on the 12 May and is available from the HCA website and a copy will be placed in the House of Commons Library.

Housing: Sales

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average market value of a property owned by (a) a registered social landlord and (b) a local authority sold to a tenant was in each region in each of the last five years. [273416]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 7 May 2009]: The following table shows the average market value of local authority properties purchased under the Right to Buy scheme in England from 2003-04 to 2007-08, by region.

P1B returns from Local Authorities to Communities and Local Government (CLG).

For the average market value of Registered Social Landlord properties purchased through HomeBuy schemes, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given today, (PQ 272226).

The market value figures are based on the total property price, not the amount paid by the purchaser, which could be to purchase a share of the equity in the property.

Housing: Standards

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many dwellings in each London local authority area in each tenure category are deemed to be below the Decent Homes Standard. [276275]

Mr. Iain Wright: The information requested is provided in the following table. This is drawn from the Business Plan Statistical Appendix—Annual Monitoring data from Local Authorities for 2007-08 and from the Regulatory Statistical Return—Annual Monitoring data from Registered Social Landlords for 2007-08. The decent homes programme also covers non decent homes in the private sector occupied by vulnerable households but we do not have any figures at local authority level.

Lobbying

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will prohibit (a) executive agencies and (b) non-departmental public bodies sponsored by her Department from spending money on (i) lobbyists and (ii) public affairs agencies. [273454]

John Healey: The Department's Executive agencies and NDPBs are required to operate in accordance with "Managing Public Money" and other HM Treasury expenditure rules and guidance.

Mortgages: Government Assistance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the minimum amount of equity in a property is that a household must hold in order to qualify for the Mortgage Rescue Scheme; and whether the scheme is open to those in negative equity. [274913]

Margaret Beckett: There are two options available to eligible households under the Mortgage Rescue Scheme—Shared Equity and Government Mortgage to Rent. Under the Shared Equity option a household must have a minimum of 25 per cent. but no more than 40 per cent. equity in their property to be considered eligible. Under Government Mortgage to Rent, a household must have less than 25 per cent. equity and any negative equity should not exceed the market value of the property by more than 20 per cent.

It was announced in the Budget 2009 that the mortgage rescue scheme will be expanded to include households in negative equity where their mortgage and secured debts did not total more than 20 per cent. above the market value of their property. This change came into force from 1 May and demonstrates our commitment to keep the scheme under review to reflect market conditions and scheme demand.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on what date details of (a) the Homeowner Mortgage Support Scheme and (b) the Mortgage Rescue Scheme were added to the Directgov website; and if she will make a statement. [275564]

Margaret Beckett: Details were added to the DirectGov website on the Mortgage Rescue Scheme (MRS) on 16 January 2009 and on Homeowners Mortgage Support (HMS) on 21 April 2009.

DirectGov is the official Government website for citizens and is designed to provide easy access to information on public services and information, delivered by the UK Government.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what rates of interest will be applied by each mortgage lender to mortgages in circumstances where repayments are late under the Homeowner Mortgage Support Scheme. [275595]

Margaret Beckett: The rules governing the homeowners mortgage support scheme require lenders to maintain the rate of interest that is contracted with the borrower at the time of entry to the scheme. Before entering the scheme the borrower must seek independent money advice to help establish an affordable level of payment, provided that the borrower can pay at least 30 per cent. of the monthly interest due. This should substantially reduce the risk of late or missed payments. Should the borrower default while on the scheme the standard terms of their mortgage will govern the rate of interest that is applied.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her Department plans to produce an information leaflet on (a) the Homeowner Mortgage Support Scheme and (b) the Mortgage Rescue Scheme for dissemination in bank branches. [275655]

Margaret Beckett: An information leaflet on Homeowners Mortgage Support is currently available on the DirectGov website and has been distributed to delivery partners, including lenders and money advice agencies, for use in branches at their discretion. An information leaflet on the Mortgage Rescue Scheme is made available by local authorities to households who are likely to be eligible for the scheme during the application process, rather than by the lender. Additional information on both schemes is available on the DirectGov website.

Advice on the range of support available to homeowners is also available through a National Homelessness Advice Service (NHAS) leaflet "Are you worried about your mortgage?", which is widely available online and through money advice agencies, local authorities and lenders.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 8 May 2009, Official Report, columns 451-2W, on mortgages: Government assistance, on how many occasions in which an applicant under the Mortgage Rescue Scheme has been referred to a housing association, the organisation has decided not to purchase the dwelling since the implementation of the scheme; and if she will make a statement. [275656]

Margaret Beckett: The Government Mortgage Rescue Scheme has only been operational across the country since 1 January 2009, following successful 'fast tracking' by 80 local authorities in December 2008. The scheme is one part of a comprehensive package of measures to help households at risk of repossession.

Headline data from the first monitoring returns submitted by local authorities implementing the scheme were published on the CLG website on 30 April 2009 at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/housing/housingresearch/housingstatistics/housingstatisticsby/repossessions

Based on the January-March 2009 monitoring returns, housing associations did not proceed to complete the mortgage rescue process on eight properties during this reporting period—seven due to the property being in negative equity and one because of the property's condition.

In the Budget 2009 it was announced that the Mortgage Rescue Scheme criteria would be expanded from 1 May to include some eligible households in negative equity. Local authorities are encouraged to reconsider cases previously found ineligible.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 8 May 2009, Official Report, columns 451-2W, on mortgages: Government assistance, (1) when she next expects to publish monthly data on the Mortgage Rescue Scheme; [275657]

(2) when the data in relation to Live Table 1303 on her Department's website will next be updated. [276534]

Margaret Beckett: Headline data for April 2009 from the monitoring returns submitted by local authorities implementing the Government's Mortgage Rescue Scheme are due to be published on the CLG website on Friday 29 May 2009 at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/housing/housingresearch/housingstatistics/housingstatisticsby/repossessions

Similar to the publication of data for January-March 2009 published on 30 April, the published tables will be broken down by Government Office region. Updated data for March 2009 will also be published.

Non-domestic Rates

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to collect data on business turnover in order to manage the application of business rates on (a) independent, (b) chain and (c) out-of-town retail outlets. [275639]

John Healey: For the purpose of business rates, the Valuation Office Agency may collect data on business turnover in order to determine the rateable value for certain types of properties. These normally include leisure properties, the utilities and some specialist commercial and industrial properties. The Valuation Office Agency do not normally collect turnover information on retail premises.

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy to vary business rates according to (a) region, (b) local authority and (c) super output area to encourage business growth in areas of deprivation. [276024]

John Healey: We have no plans to change the current system of uniform business rates under which the same multipliers are applied to the rateable value of property in all parts of England, providing certainty to business. However, changes in the relative value of different sectors and regions are reflected in rates bills, as the rateable value of property is based upon annual rental values and reassessed every five years.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 31 March 2009, Official Report, column 48WS, on revenue protection, what proportion of business ratepayers are expected to spread payment of the increases in their business rates. [275778]

John Healey: The Government will publish an impact assessment when it tables the regulations implementing the deferral scheme in Parliament. Analysis of the benefits of the scheme for ratepayers will be included in that document.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 31 March 2009, Official Report, column 48WS, on revenue protection, what the estimated cost to the Exchequer is of spreading payment of business rate bills in each of the next three years. [275779]

John Healey: The 2010 Financial Statement and Budget report published figures estimating the costs of the scheme over the next three years. These were:

	£ million
2009-10	-700
2010-11	+335
2011-12	+320

Pay

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent by (a) the Tenant Services Authority and (b) the Homes and Communities Agency and its predecessor bodies on reimbursable staff expenses in each of the last three years. [275562]

Margaret Beckett: Please refer to the following table for expenditure incurred by the Tenant Services Authority and the Homes and Communities Agency (and its predecessor bodies) in relation to reimbursable staff expenses.

The figures contained in the table relate to staff and board members expenses for each of the last three years.

	Tenant Services Authority	Homes and Communities Agency	English Partnerships	Academy of Sustainable Communities	Housing Corporation[1]
2006-07	—	—	1,823,000	26,000	491,575

2008-09	81,584	928,000	1,538,000	21,000	287,200

[1] Housing Corporation expenditure cannot be disaggregated between personnel who transferred to the TSA and those to the HCA. As a result, these are quoted in total.

Prisons: Planning Permission

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what role the Thames Gateway Development Corporation will have in respect of any planning application to build a prison on the Beam Park West site. [275961]

Margaret Beckett: Assuming the proposed prison at Beam Park West has a volume of 2,500 square metres or more or covers a site area of more than one hectare, then the London Thames Gateway Development Corporation will have responsibility as planning authority for determining the planning application.

Rent to Homebuy Scheme

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which registered social landlords took part in the Rent to Homebuy pilot; and what contribution was made by each of them. [276141]

Margaret Beckett: All Homes and Communities Agency investment partners are able to bid for grant funding to provide Rent to HomeBuy. Those whose bids have been successful are set out in the following list.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many households participating in the Rent to Homebuy scheme have subsequently bought the property; and of those how many used each Homebuy scheme to make their purchase. [276142]

Margaret Beckett: The rent to homebuy scheme was introduced in July 2008 to help eligible households benefit from an affordable rent while they save for a deposit for a pre-specified period (up to five years). No households had yet purchased through the scheme.

Right to Buy Scheme

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the size of right to buy discounts as a percentage of average social property prices in each year since 1997. [274959]

Margaret Beckett: The following table shows the average discount as a percentage of the average market value for all local authority properties sold through the Right to Buy scheme.

	Average discount on sales (percentage)
1997-98	49
1998-99	50
1999-2000	48
2000-01	47
2001-02	44
2002-03	41
2003-04	37
2004-05	33
2005-06	31
2006-07	27
2007-08	24

Source:
Quarterly P1B returns from local authorities to CLG

CLG do not hold figures on average social property prices, so the figures are taken from the average market value of local authority properties sold through the RTB scheme. Around 80 per cent. of RTB sales in 2007-08 were local authority properties, while 20 per cent. are of properties owned by registered social landlords.

Shelter: Eco-Towns

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Mid Worcestershire of 25 November 2008, Official Report, column 1284W, on Shelter: Eco Towns, if she will place in the Library (a) a copy of the agreement between Shelter and her Department to produce the literature on eco-towns and (b) the proposal from Shelter received by her Department. [273460]

Margaret Beckett: I have placed in the Library a copy of the formal bid for funding that Shelter submitted in July 2008, together with a copy of the updated funding agreement made between Shelter and my Department. This agreement covers the period 1 April 2008 to 31 March 2010 and relates to the production of publications to provide factual information to local people about the housing situation in and around potential eco-town locations.

Social Rented Housing

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 5 May 2009, Official Report, column 133W, on housing: low incomes, how many applications for section 9 consent the Tenant Services Authority has received from registered social landlords since its establishment; and how many applications were granted. [274887]

Margaret Beckett: Since establishment to 31 March 2009, the TSA issued 1,124 Section 9 consents; of those 371 were private finance consents and 753 were consents to dispose of land/properties or an interest in land/property and in the same period three applications for Section 9 consent were rejected. In April 2009 the TSA issued 95 Private Finance Section 9 consents and 224 consents for disposal. No applications were rejected in April.

TREASURY

Child Benefit

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the cost to the Exchequer of child benefit payments in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11. [275148]

Mr. Timms: The estimated cost to the Exchequer of child benefit payments is given in the following table:

Estimated cost of child benefit

	£ billion
2008-09	11.3
2009-10	11.8
2010-11	11.8

The projections are based on indexation of the current first and subsequent child rates of child benefit and projections of the number of children in the UK from the Office for National Statistics.

Child Trust Fund: Plymouth

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many child trust funds have been established for children resident in Plymouth, Sutton constituency. [276357]

Ian Pearson: The most recent constituency level statistics on child trust fund accounts were published on 6 November 2008 and can be viewed on the HM Revenue and Customs' website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stf/cons-stats-oct08.pdf

Crown Estate Commissioners

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Peterborough of 12 March 2009, Official Report, column 717W, on the Crown Estate Commissioners, for what reasons the Crown Estate has not purchased any voluntary home condition reports. [275774]

Angela Eagle: The Crown Estate has not purchased any voluntary home condition reports in respect of residential sales to date because they have received no specific requests for them from would be buyers.

Economic Situation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether his Department has made an assessment of the effect of the recession on (a) blue and (b) white collar workers. [275769]

Angela Eagle: The UK labour market has weakened as the economy turned down through 2008. The Workforce Jobs Survey points to manufacturing, distribution and business services as the sectors where the number of jobs has fallen the most. Although the Office for National Statistics does produce estimates of claimant count unemployment by occupational category these do not provide specific estimates of employment of, "blue collar" and "white collar" workers.

Equity Release

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what (a) research and (b) investigations the Financial Services Authority has conducted into local authority home appreciation loans. [275799]

Ian Pearson: None. Local authority loans do not fall within the FSA's remit. Where a local authority equity loan is combined with a conventional loan from a lender, the FSA would regulate only the lender part, not the local authority part.

European Union

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will make an assessment of the effects on the (a) public purse and (b) economy of the UK's membership of the EU for the 2009-10 financial year. [275484]

Ian Pearson: The Government's latest forecast of UK net expenditure transfers to EC institutions in 2009-10 was published in Table C9 (page 238) of the 2009 Budget (HC 407).

The Single Market will continue to be a key driver for the UK economy in 2009-10 in particular in moving towards recovery, given the European Union's prominence as the UK's major trading partner.

Excise Duties: Diesel Fuel

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether an impact assessment was produced in relation to the guidelines issued in January 2008 on local authorities using red diesel in agricultural vehicles. [275753]

Angela Eagle: An impact assessment on the changes to the schedule of vehicles entitled to use rebated gas oil (red diesel) was published in December 2006, and is available on HMRC's website (www.hmrc.gov.uk). A memorandum of agreement published in January 2008 clarified this legislation in relation to agricultural vehicles.

Financial Institutions: Debt Collection

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the Financial Services Authority has produced guidance for financial institutions on their use of bailiffs to collect unpaid debts. [275868]

Ian Pearson: The matter raised in this question is the responsibility of the Financial Services Authority, whose day-to-day operations are independent from Government control and influence. The FSA will respond to the hon. Member directly

Government Departments: National Insurance Contributions

Mr. Gray: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reasons (a) employees of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and of the Department for International Development deployed overseas pay Class 3 national insurance after 12 months and (b) military employees deployed overseas pay Class 1 national insurance; and what consideration he has given to equalising their national insurance treatments. [273734]

Mr. Timms: Employees of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office and the Department for International Development deployed overseas, in common with most ordinary employees, are kept in the UK's social security system and pay Class 1 National Insurance by the UK's extensive network of international agreements. However, where they are sent abroad to countries where there are no agreements then they will no longer be entitled to pay Class 1 National Insurance after 52 weeks. After this period they can, if they meet certain residence conditions, choose to protect their UK basic state pension and entitlement to bereavement benefit cover, by paying Class 3 National Insurance.

There are special rules for certain groups, such as HM Forces that have no choice but to work outside the UK when required. Social security cover is vital as the nature of their work may be hazardous. These rules keep them in the UK Social Security scheme, paying Class 1 National Insurance Contributions towards the full range of social security benefits. Without this, such groups would need potentially expensive private insurance for themselves and their families, or could be left without income replacement when subsequently sick, disabled or unemployed.

The Government have no plans to change the National Insurance treatments of these two groups when deployed overseas.

Income Support: Mortgages

Ms Keeble: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people have been assisted by the Homeowners Mortgage Support Scheme. [276471]

Margaret Beckett: I have been asked to reply.

Official figures on numbers of households entering HMS will be published later this year. We are working closely with lenders and money advisors to monitor progress and ensure the scheme is working effectively.

Inheritance Tax: Tamworth

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the number of residents of Tamworth constituency who paid inheritance tax in 2008-09 who would have paid inheritance tax if the threshold had been increased to £1 million. [274135]

Mr. Timms: Estimated numbers of estates paying inheritance tax are not available at local levels.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire dated 9 February 2009, on mortgages and interest rates, PQ reference: 1/67151/2009. [275840]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 15 May 2009]: A reply has been sent to the hon. Member.

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to reply to the letter of 27 November 2008 from the hon. Member for Wycombe concerning his constituent, Armitabh Naik. [276446]

Ian Pearson: I have replied to the hon. Member.

Pensions

Jo Swinson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the merits of giving pensioners the ability to divide their pension between current income and capital as they wish. [275673]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 15 May 2009]: The Government provide generous pensions tax relief to support saving to produce an income in retirement. These generous reliefs include the ability to take up to 25 per cent. of a pension fund as a tax free lump sum. The remainder should be used to produce an income throughout retirement. Where funds are considered small the member may be able to take the whole fund as a lump sum. These rules are regularly reviewed.

Planning Permission

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what planning applications were made by his Department between May 1997 and May 1998; and for what purpose in each case. [275766]

Angela Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 2 February 2009, Official Report, column 899W, to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles).

Steering Committee on Harmonisation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of the (a) 47th and (b) 48th meeting of the Steering Committee on Harmonisation (Practice and Procedure) England, Wales, Scotland, Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland. [275754]

Mr. Timms: For minutes of the 47th meeting of the Steering Committee on Harmonisation I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 26 November 2008, Official Report, column 1923W, to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill).

A copy of the minutes of the 48th meeting of the Steering Committee has been placed in the Library.

Tax Havens: Crown Dependencies

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assistance the Government offered to each of the Crown Dependencies to facilitate (a) the completion of tax information exchange agreements and (b) inclusion in the OECD list of jurisdictions that had substantially implemented the internationally-agreed tax standard before the G20 Meeting in April 2009. [274395]

Mr. Timms: The negotiation of tax information exchange agreements with other jurisdictions, including the UK, is essentially a matter for the Crown Dependencies themselves. Such agreements are negotiated under entrustments granted by the UK. The UK offers assistance where appropriate and encourages dialogue between the Crown Dependencies and other countries.

Inclusion in the OECD list of jurisdictions that have substantially implemented the internationally agreed tax standard is based on assessments carried out by the OECD.

Taxation: Defence Equipment

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much revenue accrued to the Exchequer through taxation on the arms sector in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [275810]

Angela Eagle: The information is not available.

Valuation Office

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the Valuation Office Agency's generic Method of Work Statement. [275756]

Mr. Timms: The generic Method of Work Statement will be placed in the Library.

Valuation Office: Cole Layer Trumble

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Peterborough of 10 March 2009, Official Report, column 262W, on the Valuation Office: Cole Layer Trumble, whether the Valuation Office Agency holds a copy of the original agreement between Cole Layer Trumble and EDS. [275781]

Mr. Timms: The Valuation Office Agency does not hold a copy of the agreement.

Valuation Office: Geographical Information Systems

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) names and (b) job titles of senior staff of the Valuation Office Agency's installation of a geographical information system working group are; and what the job titles are of junior staff serving on the working group. [275867]

Mr. Timms: The Valuation Office Agency (VOA) does not have a geographical information system working group. However, the VOA does have a Project Board that oversees the development of their geographic information system (GIS). Members of the GIS Project Board include the following senior staff of the VOA: Paul Sanderson, Director of Data Strategy and Jon Wrennall, Chief Information Officer. The job titles of other VOA staff who sit on the GIS Project Board include: Business Project Manager; IT Project Manager; IT Business Analyst; Head of Portfolio Delivery; HR Learning Manager.

Valuation: Business Premises

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what the average rental value in pounds per square metre per year for a (a) type 1, (b) type 2 and (c) type 3 office premises was in England, according to Valuation Office Agency records, in the closest period to (i) April 2008 and (ii) April 2003 for which records are held; [275752]

(2) what the average rental value in pounds per square metre per year for a (a) type 1, (b) type 2, (c) type 3, (d) type 4 and (e) type 5 industrial premises was in England according to Valuation Office Agency records in the closest period to (i) April 2008 and (ii) April 2003 for which records are held; [275755]

(3) what the average rental value in pounds per square metre per year for a (a) type 1, (b) type 2 and (c) type 3 shop premises in England was, according to Valuation Office Agency records, in the closest period to (i) April 2008 and (ii) April 2003 for which records are held. [275771]

Mr. Timms: This information is not available and cannot be prepared without disproportionate cost. The Valuation Office Agency's Property Market Reports give average rental values for these categories in a number of different localities. National figures cannot be derived from these reports, as not all localities are included and there is variation in numbers of properties in each of the localities that are included.

HEALTH

Benzodiazepines and Antidepressants

Dr. Naysmith: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many prescriptions of (a) individual benzodiazepine drugs and (b) individual anti-depressants were dispensed in the community in 2008. [276025]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is in the following tables.

Benzodiazepines, British National Formulary chemical name	Items dispensed in 2008 (thousands)[1]
Alprazolam	<0.1
Chlordiazepoxide Hydrochloride	259.2

Blood

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the likely effect on blood supplies of implementing the recommendations contained within the Archer Report on levels of contaminated blood supplies; and if he will make a statement. [276385]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has given careful consideration to the recommendations contained in Lord Archer's report. We expect to publish the Government response to Lord Archer's report by the end of May.

Bowel Cancer: Screening

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what programmes his Department has for screening for bowel cancer; what estimates he has made of the cost of operating such programmes in the last 12 months for which figures are available; and how many people were screened for bowel cancer during that period. [276414]

Ann Keen: The NHS Bowel Cancer Screening Programme is co-ordinated by NHS Cancer Screening Programmes (NHSCSP) with funding and policy guidance from the Department. The NHSCSP developed the structure of the screening programme, comprising five regional programme hubs responsible for call and recall, laboratory processing of test kits, and the booking of clinic appointments. Each hub links to a number of screening centres within its region responsible for providing colonoscopy services to those with an abnormal screening result.

The first screening centre commenced operation in July 2006. As at 15 May 2009, there are 47 screening centres in operation across England, covering approximately 83 per cent. of the eligible population. The programme costs £1.40 per head of the total population per year. The structure of the programme has developed as planned and full roll out of the programme across the country is expected by the end of 2009.

From 27 April 2008 to 26 April 2009, 2,238,193 invitations for bowel screening were sent. For the same period, 2,159,497 kits were issued and 1,277,519 kits were returned.

Dental Services

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 24 April 2009, Official Report, columns 932-33W, on dental services, what form the consultations referred to took; and when those consultations took place. [275998]

Ann Keen: Barry Cockcroft the Chief Dental Officer wrote to all stakeholders quoted in the previous reply with a draft of the General Dental Services (GDS) Statement of Financial Entitlement (SFE) on 2 October 2008. The Department met the British Dental Association (BDA) on 11 November to discuss the proposed changes and incorporated the points raised by the BDA in the GDS SFE, which came into force on 1 April 2009.

Dental Services: Pay

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the Answer of 24 April 2009, Official Report, column 932W, on dental services, what consultation on the dental services statement of financial entitlement took place subsequent to the publication of the 38th Report of the Review Body on Doctors' and Dentists' Remuneration, Cm 7579. [276509]

Ann Keen: Following consultation on the content of the General Dental Services Statement of Financial Entitlements and subsequent to the publication of the 38th Report of the Review Body on Doctors' and Dentists' Remuneration, Cm 7579, representatives of the British Dental Association were consulted and agreed the uprated figures at a meeting on 31 March 2009, prior to the signing of the directions.

Drugs: Rehabilitation

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children under the age of 16 years sought treatment for the effects of cannabis use in (a) North West Cambridgeshire, (b) Cambridgeshire, (c) the East of England and (d) England in each of the last five years. [275919]

Dawn Primarolo: Data on those seeking treatment for drug use are not collected centrally. Data on those in treatment is collected and the following tables give figures for under 16-year-olds in treatment for cannabis, both for primary and adjunctive use, for England only, the East of England and Cambridgeshire. North West Cambridgeshire is not separately identifiable.

The increase in the numbers of young people in treatment for drugs (primarily cannabis) reflects both the growth in treatment services for young people, and our success in getting more young people into treatment, rather than any increase in the actual incidence of substance misuse.

	Primary	Adjunctive
2007-08
England	6,075	2,075
East of England	380	116
Cambridgeshire	23	5
2006-07
England	5,372	1,609
East of England	294	103
Cambridgeshire	10	[1]—
2005-06
England	4,723	1,128
East of England	194	57
Cambridgeshire	6	[1]—

[1] Used to suppress figures < 5

Notes:

1. If a client starts the year already in treatment, age is taken at 1 April, if they begin treatment during the year, age is taken at triage.
2. Figures are provided for primary use (the substance that brought the client into treatment) and adjunctive use (a substance additional to the primary drug used by the client).

National data capture on under-18s did not begin until April 2005.

Epilepsy

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make an assessment of the adequacy of arrangements for pre-conception counselling for women with epilepsy. [275874]

Ann Keen: Pregnancy should be planned with expert care and support from an epilepsy specialist. Preconception counselling will include discussion of:

the importance of healthy eating and taking 5mg of folic acid a day;

the possibility of early screening for foetal abnormalities at nine weeks of pregnancy rather than 12;

whether to continue to take anti-epileptic drugs; and what the risk of the medication is to the baby.

One of the main reasons to have preconception counselling is to have the best possible treatment. Detailed advice on epilepsy and pregnancy is available on the NHS Choices website at:

www.nhs.uk/livewell/epilepsy/pages/epilepsyandpregnancy.aspx

Influenza: Vaccination

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his most recent estimate is of the number of units of anti-influenza vaccines other than those prepared against swine influenza which will be available for distribution in the winter of 2009. [275946]

Dawn Primarolo: Based on current information, approximately 14 million doses of seasonal influenza vaccine will be available for winter 2009-10, which is similar to the number of doses available last year. This information refers to the United Kingdom.

Khat

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many (a) teenagers and (b) others have been treated by the NHS for addiction to khat in each of the last five years; [276246]

(2) how many (a) teenagers and (b) others were admitted to NHS psychiatric units for mental health disorders associated with khat usage in each of the last 15 years. [276247]

Dawn Primarolo: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Maternity Services

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment he has made of the adequacy of the level of provision of maternity services in (a) St Albans and (b) England. [276362]

Ann Keen: In July 2008, the Healthcare Commission published 'Towards better births, a review of maternity services in England' which assessed the quality, capability and efficiency of maternity services in England.

In late 2008, an independent review of maternity services in Hertfordshire was carried out by the National Clinical Advisory Team.

NHS: Standards

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many (a) independent and (b) internal investigations into the NHS there have been in the last (i) five years, (ii) two years and (iii) 12 months; [275126]

(2) how many (a) independent and (b) internal investigations into the NHS (i) nationally and (ii) in Leicester have found that an NHS trust has not acted with due care and attention in the last (A) five years, (B) two years and (C) 12 months. [275127]

Ann Keen: The information requested is not collected by the Department and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Osteoglophonic Dysplasia

Mr. Clelland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what medical research his Department has commissioned recently on methods to increase detection rates of development dysplasia of the hip in the first 12 weeks of a baby's life; [275883]

(2) how many children under the age of 10 years were diagnosed with development dysplasia of the hip in each of the last three years; [275885]

(3) what the cost to the NHS is of treating children under the age of 12 years with late-diagnosed development dysplasia of the hip. [275886]

Ann Keen: The number of children under the age of 10 years who are diagnosed with developmental dysplasia of the hip are not collected centrally.

Data relating to the specific cost to the national health service of treating children under the age of 12 years with late-diagnosed development dysplasia of the hip are not collected centrally.

The Department is not currently funding research into dysplasia of the hip in newborn children. However, there has been an Ultrasonography in the diagnosis and management of developmental hip dysplasia trial (UK Hip Trial) conducted at 33 hospitals in the United Kingdom and Republic of Ireland by researchers from Oxford and London Universities. This found no significant benefits in costs from screening with ultrasound rather than the Barlow and Ortolani tests used currently.

The Medical Research Council, one of the main agencies through which the Government support medical and clinical research, although not currently funding any research directly relating to developmental dysplasia of the hip, is funding the UK resource of new models of bone and mineral disorders, a £1.86 million research project, which may lead to further understanding of the condition.

Starthere Scheme

Alun Michael: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will publish in full the report provided to his Department on the effectiveness of Starthere as a means of expanding access to information for people who lack internet expertise. [276162]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 18 May 2009]: The report has recently been received by departmental officials and a decision on publication will be made in due course.

Stem Cells

Hilary Armstrong: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans his Department has to prevent the marketing and selling of unlicensed stem cell therapies to people diagnosed with multiple sclerosis and other neurological conditions; and if he will make a statement. [275917]

Dawn Primarolo: Within the United Kingdom, any use of an unlicensed stem cell medicinal product requires the approval of the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency. Organisations involved in collection, processing and storage of stem cells must also have a license from the Human Tissue Authority.

The Department is aware of a growing number of unlicensed and unproven stem cell products that are being marketed from overseas. Regrettably, such marketing falls outside the jurisdiction of the UK. The Department, NHS Choices and the Gene Therapy Advisory Committee have issued warnings and provided advice on their respective websites for anyone who may be considering such 'treatments'.

Surgery

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many operations were cancelled for non-clinical reasons in each strategic health authority area in each of the last three years; and what percentage of all scheduled operations this represents in each area. [276250]

Mr. Bradshaw: Data on last minute cancellations for non-clinical reasons in each strategic health authority in England are shown in the following table.

A last minute cancellation is one that occurs on the day the patient was due to arrive, after they have arrived in hospital or on the day of their operation.

The number of last minute cancellations is also included in the Care Quality Commission's annual health check assessments.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Departmental Carbon Emissions

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of carbon dioxide emissions from his Department's estate (a) in total and (b) per full-time equivalent member of staff in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08. [276133]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I can confirm the actual carbon emissions for the DEFRA office estate and carbon emissions per full-time equivalent member of DEFRA staff, for years 2006-07 and 2007-08 are presented in the following table.

	CO_2 emissions from DEFRA offices ($kgCO_2$)	Staff in post	CO_2 emissions per FTE
2006-07	16,150,226	9232	1749
2007-08	15,530,269	8171	1901

Departmental Water Consumption

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the level of water consumption on his Department's estate (a) in total and (b) per full-time equivalent member of staff in (i) 2005-06 and (ii) 2006-07. [276132]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I can confirm that the actual water consumption on the DEFRA office estate and water consumption per full-time equivalent member of DEFRA staff for 2005-06 and 2006-07 are presented in the following table:

	Office water consumption (m3)	Office water consumption per FTE (m3)
2005-06	87,518	6.74
2006-07	77,160	6.53

Departmental Energy

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the energy use per full-time equivalent member of staff in his Department in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08. [276134]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Energy Efficiency data for the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, for years 2006-07 and 2007-08 are presented in the following table. The increase in energy consumption per full-time equivalent member of staff is a result of improvements to DEFRA's space utilisation and a reduction in staff numbers. DEFRA staff now occupy a smaller footprint on the office estate which has resulted in an increase in energy useCO_2 emissions per FTE.

	Energy consumed by DEFRA estate (kWh)	Energy consumed per DEFRA FTE (kWh/FTE)
2006-07	154,005,682	13,036
2007-08	143,645,869	13,501

DEFRA has a programme in place to deliver operational carbon dioxide savings across its estate, with initiatives specifically targeted at improving energy efficiency:

DEFRA has installed 33 voltage regulation units on its estate. This technology significantly reduces energy consumption of a whole building by regulating the voltage level entering the building. Average electricity consumption has reduced by 12 per cent. per site as a result of installing this technology.

Other energy efficiency projects which have been implemented include upgrades to more efficient lighting, improvements to motor energy controls and gas boiler sequencing controls, all of which have delivered significant savings.

Thermal imaging surveys have been undertaken at a number of DEFRA properties. The results of the surveys will inform a programme of works to improve the thermal efficiency of buildings.

DEFRA is currently upgrading its electricity, gas and water meters to 'Smart meters' which will provide accurate and up to the minute consumption data. These data will be used to monitor and identify excessive consumption, providing a focus for strategic consumption reduction. The Carbon Trust estimate that savings of between 5 and 10 per cent. can be achieved through the identification of waste through Smart metering.

To further improve operational efficiency, DEFRA has recently revised its requirements for facilities management (FM) provision to incorporate a more sustainable approach to the FM service. The recent Sustainable Workplace Management contract awarded to Interserve, will further enhance DEFRA's capability to further embed sustainability in its operations.

DEFRA has adopted the Carbon Trust's Carbon Management Programme and the entire DEFRA estate, including laboratories, was awarded Energy Efficiency Accreditation Scheme (EEAS) certification in June 2007.

Departmental Recycling

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the (a) volume and (b) percentage of waste from his Department which was recycled in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08. [276273]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I can confirm that the actual volume and percentage of waste recycled or recovered by DEFRA, during years 2006-07 and 2007-08 are presented in the table.

	2006-07	2007-08
Waste recycled[1] (tonnes)	1,393	1,411
Percentage recycled	27	29
Waste recovered[2] (tonnes)	2,891	2,877
Percentage recovered	55	60

[1] Recycled—waste that is recycled, reused externally or composted.
[2] Recovered—waste that is recycled, reused externally, composted or incinerated with energy recovery.

It should be noted that DEFRA incinerates approximately 30 per cent. of its waste, from which significant quantity of heat and energy is recovered. Current Sustainable Development Commission reporting does not acknowledge energy recovery from waste incineration as recycling or waste recovery under current Sustainable Operations on the Government Estate (SOGE) guidelines.

Departmental Renewable Energy

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the percentage of electricity derived from renewable sources used in his Department in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08. [276135]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I can confirm that the actual percentage of electricity derived from renewable sources, by DEFRA, during years 2006-07 and 2007-08 is presented in the following table.

	Percentage of electricity derived from renewable resources
2006-07	44
2007-08	56

Departmental Waste

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the amount of waste from his Department (a) in total and (b) per full-time equivalent member of staff in (i) 2006-07 and (ii) 2007-08. [276269]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I can confirm that the actual waste arisings for DEFRA and waste arisings per full-time equivalent member of DEFRA staff, for years 2006-07 and 2007-08 are presented in the following table.

	Total waste (tonnes)	Waste per FTE (tonnes)
2006-07	5,252	0.44
2007-08	4,816	0.45

It should be noted that the waste figure also includes waste generated in DEFRA's laboratories as well as its offices.

Flooding Lessons Learned Review

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs by what date in June 2009 he expects his next six-monthly progress report on implementing the recommendations made in the Pitt report on flooding to have been published. [276240]

Huw Irranca-Davies: As we previously committed, I expect the Government's next progress report on the implementation of the Pitt recommendations to be published in June.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress his Department has made in implementing Recommendation 90 of the Pitt Report on flooding; and what recent discussions he has had with local authorities on this matter. [276242]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Government's Response to Sir Michael Pitt's review set out what had been implemented before December 2008 and the further steps required to implement its recommendations in the future. This response committed the Government to report further on implementation every six months, beginning in June 2009. The Government are on target to do this in June.

In April we followed up on a letter we issued last December to all local authorities asking chief executives about progress they have made on the Pitt recommendations, whether they have experienced any blockages or difficulties, and what further the Government can do to assist them.

Marine Management Organisation

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what provision he has made to ensure business continuity during the transition period from the Marine and Fisheries Agency to the Marine Management Organisation; [275640]

(2) whether any financial incentives are being offered to staff in the London headquarters of the Marine and Fisheries Agency who are unable to relocate to Tyneside to stay in post during the organisation's transition period for reasons of business continuity rather than to seek early redeployment to another Civil Service post in London. [275641]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Robust action is being taken by the Marine and Fisheries Agency (MFA) to ensure business continuity during the period of relocation of its headquarters to Tyneside and in preparing for the establishment of a new Marine Management Organisation. This includes plans for the timely recruitment of new staff to replace existing staff who will not be relocating. This recruitment will take into account the need for some periods of parallel running between the Tyneside and London offices for a number of teams to allow for training and knowledge transfer.

Recognising the need to retain key staff during the transition period in order to ensure the necessary knowledge transfer, the MFA has instigated a 'Transition Allowance'. This will be payable to those MFA HQ staff identified as being in key roles and/or with specialist knowledge/skills who have opted not to relocate with their posts and who are prepared to delay their redeployment to another civil service post. It recognises the need to retain key people within the agency's HQ for an extended period to ensure business continuity and help train new staff.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) if he will ensure that all staff in the new Marine Management Organisation will be eligible to apply for the same posts staff in the Marine and Fisheries Agency are eligible to apply for, with particular reference to posts advertised only within his Department; [275642]

(2) whether staff in the Marine Management Organisation will be eligible to apply for all posts in the Department of Energy and Climate Change. [275646]

Huw Irranca-Davies: There is an established scheme by which non-departmental public bodies, such as the new Marine Management Organisation (MMO), can be accredited to have access to civil service vacancies. My officials are applying for such accreditation on behalf of the MMO to become effective when the organisation is vested. Initial enquiries reveal that there is no reason why this should not be granted. This will enable MMO staff to apply, on merit, for civil service posts via the civil service 'Jobs Online' facility.

MMO staff will be able to apply for DEFRA vacancies that are advertised on the 'Jobs Online' site in the same way that MFA staff currently can. Similarly, staff in the MMO will be able to apply for posts in the Department of Energy and Climate Change advertised on 'Jobs Online' in the usual way.

The Cabinet Office Statement of Practice (COSOP) which governs the transfer of civil servants between Departments, suggests that departments should provide an opportunity for staff to return to their original department if they wish. The MFA is currently exploring with DEFRA how this opportunity might be provided to MMO staff in the future.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) when the first posts in the Marine and Fisheries Agency earmarked for transfer to the Marine Management Organisation will relocate from London to Tyneside; and when the remaining posts will relocate; [275643]

(2) when he expects to make an announcement of the specific location of the headquarters building for the Marine Management Organisation. [275685]

Huw Irranca-Davies: I hope to be able to announce the new headquarters building shortly.

The Marine and Fisheries Agency is developing a relocation and recruitment plan for the Tyneside headquarters office. Any relocation of existing staff from London to the new HQ site, or transfer of posts to be filled by newly recruited staff in Tyneside, will be progressed in line with this plan. Current thinking is that relocation and recruitment would take place between July and November 2009. This is a broad timeline and some individual relocations may need to happen either earlier or later in order to reflect, where appropriate, personal circumstances.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what provision has been made for (a) financial and (b) other assistance for staff in the coastal offices of the Marine and Fisheries Agency who are considering applying for vacancies in the new Tyneside headquarters of the Marine Management Organisation; [275644]

(2) whether his Department has offered financial assistance to headquarters staff in the Marine and Fisheries Agency to relocate from London to Tyneside. [275690]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Financial assistance is being offered to headquarters staff in the Marine and Fisheries Agency (MFA) to relocate with their existing posts from London to Tyneside. This assistance is in line with the relocation arrangements operated in my Department which are derived from, and consistent with, the financial assistance outlined centrally by the Cabinet Office for civil service relocations.

The operational need to provide assistance, financial or otherwise, to relocations sought by members of staff from the MFA coastal offices, will be considered as part of the detailed relocation and recruitment plans being developed by the Agency.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he has taken to ensure that the future management of the Marine Management Organisation meets commitments given to staff in the Marine and Fisheries Agency, with particular reference to (a) trade union recognition, (b) training and development opportunities and eligibility to apply for posts in the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs. [275645]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Staff would transfer to the MMO with the contractual terms and conditions applying at the time of transfer under either Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations (TUPE) or the equivalent Cabinet Office protocol for transfers of civil servants between departments.

Rights to trade union representation will remain exactly as they are now and although the issues around recognition and training and development would be matters for the new MMO management board to take forward, there are no intentions to change the existing arrangements. On eligibility to apply for posts in the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, I refer the hon. Member to my answer to his previous question numbered 275642.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what estimate he has made of the minimum time required for the shadow Marine Management Organisation body to exist before vestment of the Marine Management Organisation in order to ensure an effective transition from executive agency to non-departmental public body status; [275647]

(2) if he will make it his policy to ensure that no shadow body for the Marine Management Organisation will be established before Royal Assent has been given to the Marine and Coastal Access Bill; [275648]

(3) when he expects the shadow Marine Management Organisation body to be created; and when he expects the chair and the chief executive officer of the Marine Management Organisation to be appointed to the shadow body. [275688]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The chair, board and chief executive officer of the Marine Management Organisation will be formally appointed following commencement of Clause 1 of the Marine and Coastal Access Act.

In the meantime, I am seeking to appoint a chair and CEO "designate" contingent on the Bill receiving Royal Assent, to assist with the preparations for creating the Marine Management Organisation. There are existing principles which govern the setting up of shadow bodies and the appointments required, covered in Chapter 2 of HM Treasury's 'Managing Public Money' which can be found at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/psr_managingpublicmoney_publication.htm.

My Department will operate in accordance with these principles.

I recognise the importance of making these appointments in good time to assist with the creation of the Marine Management Organisation, in line with the principles outlined above. Plans are in place to ensure the effective transition from an executive agency to non-departmental public body status.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many days his officials and consultants in the (a) Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs and (b) Marine and Fisheries Agency spent in (i) Tyneside and (ii) each other candidate location before the announcement to relocate the headquarters of the Marine Management Organisation from London. [275649]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Following extensive research undertaken on each of the shortlisted locations, officials from DEFRA and the Marine and Fisheries Agency, accompanied by KPMG consultants, spent a day in each location, including Tyneside. The visits provided further insights into the business and quality of life indicators used to derive the short-list. Information on the findings from the visits is set out in the KPMG report, copies of which are in the House Library.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what the (a) grade and (b) salary is of each post in (i) his Department and (ii) the Marine and Fisheries Agency working to establish the Marine Management Organisation and its headquarters in Tyneside; and when these posts were created; [275686]

(2) which posts attract temporary additional responsibility allowance in relation to the creation of the Marine Management Organisation and the relocation of headquarters; for how long these allowances have been granted; how many have been granted for more than six months; and for what reasons these posts have not been advertised on promotion in fair and open recruitment competitions. [275687]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The work to prepare for the establishment of a new Marine Management Organisation (MMO) and to relocate the Marine and Fisheries Agency (MFA) Headquarters are two separate projects. The relocation of the MFA Headquarters would be taking place regardless of any decisions to create a new MMO. Both projects are being delivered by an Implementation Team based in the MFA. The breakdown of posts currently in the implementation team provided below reflects resourcing of both activities and includes the Programme Management Office.

	Salary range
1 x Senior Civil Servant	57,300	116,000
2 x Grade 6	56,139	67,504
3 x Grade 7	46,184	55,976
2 x Senior Executive Officer	34,336	41,851
2 x Higher Executive Officer	29,191	34,326
3 x Executive Officer	24,439	28,846
1 x Consultant Project Officers	—	—

Support for creation of the MMO, including preparations for cross-Government sponsorship arrangements, is also being provided by a further Grade 7 post based in DEFRA. Some limited specialist HR expertise is also being provided by DEFRA to support the recruitment of staff in Tyneside and redeployment of existing MFA staff where appropriate.

The Implementation Team has changed in size and profile at various stages of the project to reflect changing workloads, but broadly speaking a core project team consisting of six to eight posts has been in place in the MFA since the beginning of 2008-09. Additional resource has been recruited to the project since the beginning of 2009 to support activity during this implementation year.

Three of the above posts are being delivered by members of staff who are receiving Temporary Additional Responsibility Allowance (TARA), all of which have been granted for longer than six months. The decision was taken not to fill these posts permanently with members of staff at the substantive grade required because of the relocation of the MFA Headquarters and the time-limited need of the implementation work.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether there have been any recent changes to the timetable for the completion of the vestment of the Marine Management Organisation by 1 April 2010. [275689]

Huw Irranca-Davies: In common with any major programme of this type, the Marine Management Organisation (MMO) implementation activity is under constant review with minor revisions to plans, approaches, and specific delivery dates. However, there have been no significant changes to the timetable for vesting the MMO and my officials are still working to a vesting date of 1 April 2010.

Rivers

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department and its agencies have spent on the restoration of riverbeds in each of the last three years. [276261]

Huw Irranca-Davies: In the past three years the Environment Agency has spent the following on projects that delivered a substantial element of riverbed restoration:

	£ million
2006-07	0.819
2007-08	1.026
2008-09	1.176

River restoration schemes typically encompass several related activities such as the placement of spawning gravels, removal of debris, tree planting, bank protection and enhancement works, etc.

Rural Areas: Tourism

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the Answer of 25 March 2009, Official Report, column 381W, on tourism: rural areas, how much funding from the Rural Development Programme for England 2007-13 has been provided for support to encourage rural tourism in each region. [276426]

Huw Irranca-Davies [holding answer 19 May 2009]: Each region has set out in published Regional Implementation Plans, the indicative allocation for support for rural tourism over the period 2007-13. Regions have taken different approaches to how these are expressed, but the approximate indicative allocations are:

	£ million
East of England	6.4
East Midlands	2.7
North East	2.4
North West	4.5
South East	5.1
South West	10.9
West Midlands	2.5
Yorkshire and the Humber	3.3
Total	37.8

These figures include amounts that Local Action Groups are planning to spend on tourism through the Leader approach, which are not included in the figures programmed to the tourism measure in the Rural Development Programme document.

TRANSPORT

Blue Badge Scheme

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport with reference to the answer of 27 October 2008, Official Report, column 601W, on the blue badge scheme, what progress has been made in developing a project implementation plan for the blue badge reform scheme; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the implementation plan when finalised. [268401]

Paul Clark [holding answer 2 April 2009]: We are in the process of finalising the blue badge project implementation plan. A high level plan will be published on the Department for Transport's website shortly. This is being developed to provide stakeholders and other interested parties with further information on each element of the work programme and an indication of the associated likely timeframes for implementation. Copies of the high level plan will be placed in the Library, once published.

We also intend to publish regular Blue Badge Reform programme bulletins on the Department's website to provide progress updates.

Departmental Buildings

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much (a) his Department and its predecessor and (b) its agencies has spent on (i) refurbishment, (ii) maintenance and (iii) emergency repairs of its office estate in each year since 2001. [276452]

Mr. Hoon: The information is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Furniture

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department spent on office furniture in each of the last five years. [276487]

Mr. Hoon: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 14 May 2009, to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps) Official Report, columns 883-6W.

Departmental Lighting

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department spent on (a) lighting and (b) light fixtures in each of the last five years. [276488]

Mr. Hoon: The information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Pay

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many staff employed in London on work contracted out by his Department earn less than £7.45 per hour. [274698]

Mr. Hoon: The number of staff employed in London on work contracted out by the Department for Transport is 54.

Departmental Work Experience

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many work placements his Department offered to (a) school pupils, (b) university students and (c) graduates in each of the last five years. [274478]

Mr. Hoon: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 17 December 2008, Official Report, column 780-81W.

The information requested for 2004 and 2005 can only be provided at disproportionate cost.

Employment Tribunals Service

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many actions under employment law were brought against his Department in each of the last three years, broken down by category of action; and how many were contested by the Department at an employment tribunal. [275622]

Mr. Hoon [holding answer 14 May 2009]: The total number of employment law actions brought against the Department for Transport in each of the last three years is broken down by category in the following table:

	Category	Number of actions
2006-07	Unfair dismissal	5
2007-08	Disability discrimination	6
	Unfair dismissal	12

	Category	Number of actions
2008-09	Disability discrimination	7
	Race discrimination	6
	Sex discrimination	6
	Constructive dismissal	5

In addition, a further 31 claims were brought against the Department during 2006-07, 2007-08 and 2008-09. These cases have not been broken down further by category in order to protect the confidentiality of the persons concerned.

Overall, 12 cases were contested and decided at a full hearing of the Employment Tribunal.

18,600 people are employed by the Department for Transport and its agencies.

Industrial Health and Safety

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department spent on compliance with requirements of health and safety at work legislation in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274535]

Mr. Hoon: The information requested can only be provided at disproportionate cost.

M1: Speed Limits

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 17 March 2009, Official Report, column 989W, on M1: speed limits, what his latest estimate is of the timetable for the installation of speed cameras between junctions 8 and 9 on the M1. [276438]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The installation of speed cameras between junction 8 and junction 9 on the M1 is expected to take place in early 2010.

M18: Lorries

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 9 February 2009, Official Report, column 1603W, on M42: lorries, if he will introduce a restriction on overtaking by heavy goods vehicles on the M18; and if he will make a statement. [276437]

Paul Clark: There are currently no plans to introduce a restriction on overtaking by heavy goods vehicles on the M18, since it does not meet the relevant criteria.

As part of the Highways Agency's strategy to tackle congestion, the Agency has considered sites for implementing the HGV lane restrictions. Such sites should meet the following criteria namely; two lane motorway and all purpose trunk roads with gradients where HGVs represent a high proportion of traffic.

Railways: Carbon Emissions

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will make an estimate of the likely effects on levels of carbon dioxide emissions of the planned electrification work on the rail network. [276020]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport is working with the rail industry to assess the case for electrifying the Great Western and Midland Main Lines. Electrifying these two lines would reduce rail's carbon emissions by approximately 3 per cent. or 80,000 tonnes of carbon dioxide per year.

Roads: Accidents

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many fatalities resulting from reported personal injury road accidents there were on stretches of roads with a (a) 20, (b) 30, (c) 40 and (d) 50 miles per hour speed limit in each of the last five years. [275831]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of fatalities resulting from reported personal injury road accidents on urban/rural by speed limit of the roads in each of the last five years is given in the following tables:

Number of fatalities resulting from reported personal injury road accident, broken down by speed limit and rural/urban, 2003-2007 GB

Speed limit	2003				2004				2005
	Urban		Rural		Urban		Rural		Urban		Rural

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many road accidents in each of the last 11 years were caused by drivers who had been granted a full driver's licence less than one year prior to the accident. [276465]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is not available.

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many children (a) killed and (b) seriously injured in road accidents in each of the last 11 years were not wearing seat belts at the time of the accident. [276466]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is not available.

Speed Limits

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he has had with the Highways Agency on the reduction to 50 miles per hour of speed limits on single carriageway trunk roads under the Agency's control. [276296]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Highways Agency has been represented on a Steering Group responsible for the development a new road safety strategy for Great Britain. Aside from the Highways Agency, the Group comprises officials from the relevant Whitehall Departments and from the Scottish Executive and Welsh Assembly Government.

The work of the Steering Group led to the consultation document on a new road safety strategy which we published on 21 April. This contains proposals to encourage highway authorities, including the Highways Agency, to reduce speed limits from 60 mph on those rural single carriageways roads where accident risks are high, on a carefully targeted basis.

Travel: Personal Records

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether his Department has carried out an impact assessment of the Home Office's proposal to give the police powers to collect advance passenger data in respect of domestic air and sea journeys; and what recent discussions there have been between officials of his Department and officials of the Home Office on this matter. [275500]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Section 14 of the Police and Justice Act 2006 gives the police the power, subject to commencement through secondary legislation, to require a carrier, on request, to capture passenger and crew identity and other service data on domestic routes. The Home Office has not yet made a decision to carry out a formal public consultation on the proposals, which would include a full regulatory impact assessment, though the intention would be to focus the use of this power only on crossings between Great Britain and Northern Ireland. Department for Transport officials and those from the Home Office are in regular contact on the range of international counter-terrorism issues.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Jobcentre Plus

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many members of Jobcentre Plus staff in each (a) region and (b) Jobcentre Plus district participated in (i) Foundation Learning Routeway, (ii) Managers who Deliver—Leaders who Inspire and (iii) the Professional Skills for Government framework (A) in each year since the schemes were launched and (B) in each of the last 24 months; [264268]

(2) how much was (a) budgeted and (b) spent in each (i) region and (ii) Jobcentre Plus district on (A) Foundation Learning Routeway, (B) Managers who Deliver—Leaders who Inspire and (C) the Professional Skills for Government framework (1) in each year since the schemes were launched and (2) in each of the last 24 months. [264269]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions asking:

how many members of Jobcentre Plus staff in each (a) region and (b) Jobcentre Plus district participated in (i) Foundation Learning Routeway (ii) Managers who Deliver—Leaders who Inspire and (iii) the Professional Skills for Government framework (A) in each year since the schemes were launched and (B) in each of the last 24 months.

how much was (a) budgeted and (b) spent in each (i) region and (ii) Jobcentre Plus district on (A) Foundation Learning Routeway, (B) Managers who Deliver—Leaders who Inspire and (C) the Professional Skills for Government framework (1) in each year since the schemes were launched and (2) in each of the last 24 months.

This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The new foundation learning materials consist of 14 learning and development products. The suite of products includes elements of mandatory and non mandatory learning and development materials, depending on an individual's job role. Line Managers in consultation with an individual will agree a pathway of foundation learning targeted at addressing their job role requirements.

In April 2008, the foundation learning was reviewed and revised and therefore any historical information would not accurately reflect the number of individuals who undertook foundation learning over the last 24 months. Our systems are not set up to capture this type of management information, and it would need to be compiled clerically, which would incur disproportionate cost.

The Jobcentre Plus management and leadership development programme (called "Managers who deliver—Leaders who inspire") is a relatively new programme that was piloted in September 2007 and rolled out nationally from early 2008. It was designed to incorporate the skills required by the Professional Skills for Government (PSG) framework so the two are inextricably linked. There is no separate learning intervention on the PSG framework itself in relation to the middle managers covered by this development programme, however PSG is a framework that is integrated into the appraisal and development planning for such managers.

The available information regarding "Managers who deliver—Leaders who inspire" is attached at Annex 1. The volumes and costs data is broken down by region and operational arm, rather than just by Customer Service Directorate region and district as requested. This is because the Benefit and Fraud and Contact Centre Directorates do not have the same district based organisational structure. Information on how much was budgeted for this training is only collated at national level.

Jobcentre Plus: Manpower

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what roles he expects the planned additional 6,000 Jobcentre Plus staff to fill. [266130]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the right hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves dated 20 May 2009:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what roles we expect the planned additional 6,000 Jobcentre Plus staff to fill. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

In line with the recent Budget announcements, Jobcentre Plus will be able to recruit up to 10,000 more staff. This is on top of the 6,000 new staff already announced in Pre Budget Report. Some 6,000 staff have been recruited between October 2008 and April 2009.

All of this new resource will be applied to customer-facing services. More than half of these will be Personal Advisers with the rest in customer intervention and support roles within our customer service operations.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he plans to reply to the letter of 6 April 2009 from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Mrs. H Kennedy. [276506]

James Purnell: A reply was sent to my right hon. Friend on 17 May 2009.

Social Security Benefits

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what welfare reform milestones he has set following the publication of the White Paper on welfare reform in December 2008. [266122]

Mr. McNulty: We outlined a number of commitments in the White Paper 'Raising expectations and increasing support'. I have set these out in the following table.

'Raising expectations and increasing support' White Paper Milestones/commitments

2008	New benefit rules to help lone parents back into work.
	STAR rating results for employment zone contacts.

'Raising expectations and increasing support' White Paper

	Milestones/commitments
	ESA introduced.
	IES trials go live
2009	Housing benefit external review consultation to take place.
	Extension of 'Better off in work credit' if it proves successful.
	Right to bid, bidding process opened.
	Pilot personal health budgets.
	Employment advisers as a core component of the Increasing Access to Psychological Therapies programme.
2009, April	Drug co-ordinators introduced. ESA rate alignment commences.
	Income support and housing benefit extended to 21 for young persons in non-advanced full-time education by April 09.
2009, October	Phase one, FND launched.
2010	Work for your benefit introduced. Level one devolution by 2010, then fully embedded by 2010.
	Employ ability campaign widened by 2009-10.
	A 26 week minimum contribution period to national insurance in order to qualify for new ESA and JSA claimants.
	Progression to Work pathfinders for new ESA claims and lone parents with young children.
	Some level 2 activities with sub-regional partnerships operation by 2010 (joint-funded contracts with DWP retaining management of commissioning and contracts) in order to implement the 'multi-area agreement'. Skills screening fully operational.
	Pilot of the new regime for problem drug users implemented.
2010, April	Full child maintenance disregard in all income related benefits.
2010, October	New Specialist Disability Employment programme begins.
Late 2010	Work-focused interviews extended to the two year point of the claim for new ESA claimants.
2010-13	Migration of existing incapacity benefits recipients to ESA.
	JSA joint claims for couples with a youngest child aged who do not have a child under age seven or over, where both members are capable of work.
	As customers are migrated those under 50 will receive a Pathways to Work style approach and those under 50 will have a less intensive regime plus pilots to seek further evidence on what works best for this group.
	Skills health checks for lone parents.
2011	Right to control, personal budgets to be fully operational.
	Universal information, advice and advocacy service for both people who need services and for their carers, for those who need support to articulate their needs and utilise their budget.
2011, March	Invest to save pilots pathfinders are planned to go live. This will enable us to test out recommendations in the Gregg review, including progression to work conditionality.
	Personalised employment programmes go live. We will explore whether proposals for lone parents with children aged three to six can also be tested in this programme. We will also explore the feasibility of using the Accelerator funding model. These pilots will enable us to trial the conditionality framework recommended in the Gregg review, alongside his central recommendation that support should be personalised depending on need rather than the benefit someone receives 2012-13	JSA joint claims for couples with a youngest child aged seven or over. Income related support payable in respect of couples with at least one individual capable of work, will be paid via JSA only.
	Migration of existing IB recipients to ESA. As customers are migrated those under 50 will receive a Pathways to Work style approach and those under 50 will have a less intensive regime plus pilots to seek further evidence on what works best for this group.
2015	An expectation that where this makes good sense (i.e. will deliver more outcomes) some areas will be operating successfully City regions operating successfully at devolution level 3.
2020	Eradication of child poverty.

Unemployment Benefits

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 12 January 2009, Official Report, columns 2-4WS, on support for jobseekers, from what budget the funding to be made available to eligible customers will be drawn. [276541]

Mr. McNulty: The package of measures announced on 12 January is to be delivered by both the Department for Work and Pensions and the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills and is expected to cost £500 million over the two years to March 2011.

HM Treasury provided DWP with an additional £295 million of funding and the Department will fund the balance of its own expected costs through a package of savings, including consequential programme savings.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Age: Discrimination

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what steps the Government Equalities Office is taking to prevent age discrimination against 18 to 25 year olds. [275275]

Maria Eagle: The Government introduced protection from unjustifiable age discrimination in employment in 2006, which provided protection to employees of all ages including those aged 18 to 25. Our new Equality Bill, which had its second reading on Monday, will outlaw unjustifiable age discrimination against people 18 or over in the provision of goods and services and the exercise of public functions. It will also, as part of an extended public sector equality duty, require public authorities to consider the need to eliminate discrimination, advance equality of opportunity and foster good relations for people of different ages.

Departmental Mobile Phones

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many (a) BlackBerrys and (b) other mobile telephones have been provided to (i) Ministers, (ii) special advisers and (iii) civil servants in the Government Equalities Office in each year since its establishment. [268286]

Maria Eagle: The Government Equalities Office was established on 12 October 2007. Since then a total of 14 BlackBerry's and six mobile phones have been purchased for civil servants only. These purchases were made in the following financial years :

	BlackBerry's	Mobile phones

Equality and Human Rights Commission

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many completed cases originating in (a) Wales, (b) Scotland and (c) England the Equality and Human Rights Commission has taken up on behalf of individuals since its inception; and how many such cases concerned (i) disability discrimination, (ii) sexual discrimination and (iii) racial discrimination. [273630]

Maria Eagle: Between October 2007 and 31 March 2009, the Equality and Human Rights Commission undertook 203 completed cases on behalf of individuals:

(a) 191 cases originated from England;

(b) Eight cases originated from Scotland; and

(c) Four cases originated from Wales.

(i) 179 completed cases concerned disability discrimination;

(ii) 10 concerned sexual discrimination; and

(iii) 14 concerned racial discrimination.

Three cases concerned more than one strand of equality.

Equality and Human Rights Commission: Resignations

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many staff have resigned from the Equality and Human Rights Commission in the last 12 months. [274137]

Maria Eagle: From 1 April 2008 to 31 March 2009, 34 permanent members of staff resigned from the Equality and Human Rights Commission.

Equality: Legal Costs

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what the cost of the Equality and Human Rights Commission (EHRC) intervention in the case of (a) Basildon District Council v. McCarthy and Others [2009] EWCA and (b) Baker and Others v. Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government and the London Borough of Bromley was; and which barristers were retained by the EHRC in relation to each case. [274630]

Maria Eagle: (a) Baker and Others v. Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government and the London Borough of Bromley [2008]:

Cost—£13,605.00 including VAT

Barristers—Robin Allen QC and Catherine Casserley.

(b) Basildon District Council v. McCarthy and Others [2009]:

Cost—£7,840.00 including VAT

Barrister—Robin Allen QC.

TREASURY

Banks: Finance

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to his Department's press notice of 19 January 2009, on the asset protection scheme, if he will undertake further due diligence in respect of securities identified as triple-A rated before they are included in the scheme. [276234]

Ian Pearson: The Treasury and its advisers are continuing to work with participating banks to conduct due diligence on the assets intended for inclusion in the scheme.

Further detailed information will be provided after the final contracts are signed.

Child Tax Credit: Underpayments

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps HM Revenue and Customs has taken to inform people in cases where their child tax credits have been underpaid; and if he will make a statement. [275901]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 15 May 2009]: Tax credits is an annual system which is designed to be responsive to changes in families' circumstances. This is particularly important when income falls and around 355,000 households who were living on a lower income in March are receiving on average £35 more per week in tax credits.

HMRC calculates an initial award for claimants based on their income for the previous year and their current family circumstances. Awards can be adjusted if claimants tell the Department of a change in their circumstances during the year. After the end of a year, HMRC sends tax credits customers an annual renewal pack asking them to provide or confirm details of their income and circumstances. This information is necessary to determine whether claimants have received the correct amount of tax credits in the tax year just ended. Tax credits customers can complete the process by returning the annual declaration and renewal forms or by calling the tax credits Helpline, usually by 31 July. Detailed information can be found on the Department's website at www.hmrc.gov.uk/taxcredits/index.htm

Underpayments are calculated automatically and any amount still due is paid as a lump sum after a tax credits award is finalised and the customer is informed of the amount on their final award notice.

Child Trust Fund: Fife

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many Child Trust Fund vouchers have been issued in North East Fife constituency in the most recent year for which figures are available; how many accounts have been opened by residents of the constituency; and what his estimate is of the value of those accounts. [276535]

Ian Pearson: HM Revenue and Customs estimates that 640 child trust fund vouchers were issued in North East Fife to children born between 6 April 2006 and 5 April 2007 and that 450 child trust fund accounts were subsequently opened by the parents or guardians of those children.

HM Revenue and Customs does not have data on the value of child trust funds at constituency level.

Departmental Pay

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what proportion of staff in his Department and its agencies received bonus payments in 2008-09; how much expenditure his Department incurred in respect of staff bonuses in 2008-09; what the largest single staff bonus payment was in that year; and if he will make a statement. [270023]

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies paid in end-of-year performance bonuses to (i) all staff and (ii) senior Civil Service staff in 2008-09; and how many such payments were made. [275246]

Angela Eagle [holding answer 24 April 2009]: Audited out-turn figures for 2008-09 are not yet available. The Treasury Group's Annual Report and Accounts will include details of the performance payments made by the Treasury Group, divided by its member organisations, and on the performance pay awarded to individual members of the Treasury Board. Performance pay in this context refers to variable pay which is not consolidated into base pay and is non-pensionable.

Finance Act 1987

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) for what reason HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) has decided to close schemes permitted under section 58 of the Finance Act 1987; for what reason the decision was made with retrospective effect; what factors were taken into account in determining that the period of such retrospective effect would be seven years; and what the policy of HMRC is on charging interest on sums owed as a result of retrospective closure; [276192]

(2) what impact assessment HM Revenue and Customs has made of the effect of the retrospective closure of schemes permitted under section 58 of the Finance Act 1987; and if he will assess the effects of the closure on the financial situation of households operating such schemes. [276193]

Mr. Timms: Section 62 Finance (No. 2) Act 1987 retrospectively restored the principle that double taxation treaties do not affect a UK resident's liability to UK tax on their income or gains. HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) does not believe that any tax avoidance schemes were permitted under that legislation—although the tax avoidance schemes in question here purported to circumvent it.

Evidence emerged that a large number of people were using the scheme and in light of a number of factors (including the widespread use, aggressive nature and artificiality of the scheme, the deliberate attempt to flout the clear intention of Parliament in 1987 and the need to ensure fairness and certainty for all taxpayers), the Government introduced legislation at section 58 Finance Act 2008 to put beyond doubt that none of the schemes worked—and never had done.

Although, like the 1987 legislation, it is indefinitely retrospective, HMRC is not aware of any relevant schemes prior to 2001. Any tax paid late will be subject to interest in accordance with the relevant legislation on late payments.

Formal impact assessments are not published in respect of measures where the impact is only on those who are avoiding tax and thus one was not published for this particular measure. Such decisions on the production of an impact assessment are taken on a case-by-case basis. As indicated in the 2008 Financial Statement and Budget Report, it is estimated that the tax at stake on the schemes that purported to circumvent the 1987 legislation is around £200 million. Those who used those schemes are, like all other UK taxpayers, required to pay tax on the profits that they earned.

Financial Markets: Credit

Mr. Liddell-Grainger: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what oversight his Department exercises over credit default swap contracts with consortia in which it has a financial stake; what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of such oversight; if he will consider the merits of introducing independent scrutiny of such contracts; and if he will make a statement. [272316]

Ian Pearson: The Government's shareholdings in the Royal Bank of Scotland (RBS) and Lloyds Banking Group (Lloyds) are managed on a commercial basis by an arm's length company, UK Financial Investments Ltd (UKFI). UKFI's objective is to protect and create value for the taxpayer as shareholder with due regard to the maintenance of financial stability and to act in a way that promotes competition.

The framework document between HM Treasury and UKFI sets a requirement that UKFI will not intervene in the day-to-day management decisions or operational decisions of investee companies. The companies will retain their own independent boards, which will manage the banks and determine their strategy.

HM Treasury and UK Financial Investments does not comment on individual contracts offered by or commercial decisions taken by its investee companies.

Income Tax: Tax Rates and Bands

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what percentage of taxpayers in Lancashire were paying income tax at the higher rate on the latest date for which figures are available. [276309]

Mr. Timms: Around 54,000, or 9 per cent. of taxpayers in Lancashire, paid income tax at the higher rate for 2006-07. This information is based on the latest survey of personal incomes.

International Assistance: Sri Lanka

Tom Brake: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with (a) his international counterparts and (b) Ministerial colleagues on the cancellation of the IMF loan to Sri Lanka. [276125]

Ian Pearson: The Government are concerned about the continuing humanitarian crisis in Sri Lanka and is committed to helping Sri Lanka avoid an economic crisis that would hurt Sri Lanka's poor most. No IMF loans to Sri Lanka have been cancelled. The IMF has not yet presented a programme to the board for decision.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to reply to the email from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire of 15 April 2009, on green businesses. [276554]

Angela Eagle: Receipt of the correspondence referred to could not be traced. Copies have been requested from the hon. Member's office and will be dealt with as soon as possible following receipt.

Public Expenditure: Coventry

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect of the 2009 Budget on small businesses in Coventry. [272955]

Angela Eagle: Building on the £20 billion fiscal stimulus announced in the pre-Budget report, the Chancellor set out a Budget which will provide further targeted support for individuals and businesses through the current downturn, while ensuring the economy is able to make a strong and sustainable recovery.

Tax policies announced from the 2008 pre-Budget report are delivering £3 billion to improve business cash flow, complemented by £2 billion of lending support. Budget 2009 announced a further £3 billion to improve business cash flow and encourage future investment, as well as up to £5 billion of trade credit insurance support.

Budget 2009 also announced the expansion of HMRC's Business Payment Support Service to offer enhanced support for firms making losses now. Since the 2008 pre-Budget report this service has reached 490 agreements with businesses in Coventry to spread tax payments worth £10 million.

Details of the impact of Budget measures on the west midlands region can be found at http://budget.treasury.gov.uk/regions.htm

Redundancy: Government Assistance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what measures he introduced in the 2009 Budget to assist householders in circumstances where one or more wage-earners has been made redundant and levels of domestic indebtedness are increasing; [276194]

(2) what measures in the 2009 Budget assist members of black and minority ethnic communities in rural areas who have recently been made redundant. [276195]

Mr. Timms: To help provide support for individuals who have been made redundant, the Budget announced a one-off increase of £30 in the level of statutory redundancy pay, increasing the weekly rate to £380. Redundancy pay is a right for all employees who have worked continuously for their employer for two years and are made redundant. Subject to parliamentary approval, the Department for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform intends to implement this increase on 1 October 2009.

This builds on existing support such as the tax credit system, which is designed to respond quickly to changing circumstances, and has helped 355,000 households living on a lower income to receive an average of £35 per week more in tax credits. The pre-Budget report in November 2008 also announced a substantial package of support. This includes extending the Rapid Response Service, which provides a range of on-site personalised support through Jobcentre Plus; extending Local Employment Partnerships to assist the recently unemployed in their local labour market; and enhancements to Support for Mortgage Interest, to better help people out of work to meet the interest payments on their mortgage.

Revenue and Customs: Closures

Mr. Timpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what percentage of the budget for HM Revenue and Customs' Workforce Change programme has been spent to date; [273637]

(2) what percentage of HM Revenue and Customs' Workforce Change programme has been completed to date; [273638]

(3) what budget has been set for HM Revenue and Customs' Workforce Change programme. [273640]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 8 May 2009]: The aim of the Workforce Change programme is to match HM Revenue and Customs' (HMRC) staff resources and estate to the Department's future business needs and deliver improved efficiencies for the taxpayer. HMRC expects to realise over £230 million in sustainable savings as well as wider business efficiencies as a result of releasing surplus office space and re-organising into larger more efficient teams in fewer offices.

HMRC allocated and centrally funded £65 million for the Workforce Change programme in 2008-09. For 2009-10 individual lines of business within HMRC will fund business restructuring plans from their general funding allocations.

HMRC is aiming to reduce its estate by 500,000 sq m —approximately one third of the estate inherited from its predecessor departments—by March 2012. To date, HMRC has reduced its estate by 218 000 sq m, or approximately 43 per cent. of this target.

Taxation: Crown Dependencies and British Overseas Territories

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assistance the Government offered each UK Overseas Territory to facilitate (a) the completion of tax information exchange agreements and (b) inclusion in the OECD list of jurisdictions that had substantially implemented the internationally-agreed tax standard before the G20 Meeting in April 2009. [274396]

Mr. Timms: The negotiation of tax information exchange agreements with other jurisdictions, including the UK, is essentially a matter for the Overseas Territories themselves. Such agreements are negotiated under Entrustments granted by the UK. The UK offers assistance where appropriate and encourages dialogue between the Overseas Territories and other countries. In the case of jurisdictions with particular capacity constraints, the UK offers more extensive assistance.

Inclusion in the OECD list of jurisdictions that have substantially implemented the internationally agreed tax standard is based on assessments carried out by the OECD.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what correspondence he has had with the administrations of the UK Overseas Territories on removal of their tax haven status; [274703]

(2) when the Government first informed the administrations of the UK Overseas Territories of the requirement to conclude tax information exchange agreements prior to their removal from the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development list of the jurisdictions considered to be tax havens; [276009]

(3) what discussions he has had with the administrations of the UK Overseas Territories on the timetable for (a) their agreement to the tax information exchange grants required by the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) and (b) the inclusion of their jurisdictions on the OECD White List; and if he will make a statement. [276013]

Mr. Timms: The Government maintain continuing dialogue with the Overseas Territories on tax co-operation issues. A number of Overseas Territories began negotiating tax information exchange agreements some years ago following commitments they made to comply with OECD standards. The Government welcome progress made so far and encourages all jurisdictions to maintain their efforts to implement the internationally agreed standard.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what recent correspondence he has had with the administrations of the Crown Dependencies on removal of their tax haven status; [274397]

(2) when the Government first informed the administrations of the Crown Dependencies of the requirement to conclude tax information exchange agreements prior to their removal from the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development list of the jurisdictions considered to be tax havens. [276008]

Mr. Timms: The Government maintain continuing dialogue with the Crown Dependences on tax co-operation issues. The Crown Dependences began negotiating tax information exchange agreements some years ago following commitments they made to comply with OECD standards. The Government welcome the inclusion of the Crown Dependences in the OECD list of jurisdictions that have substantially implemented the internationally agreed tax standard.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the implication for the Government's policy on reducing tax avoidance of the progress made by the UK Overseas Territories towards signature of tax information exchange grants prior to the G20 Summit in April 2009. [276012]

Mr. Timms: Tax information exchange agreements play an important role in combating tax evasion and avoidance. Overseas Territories have recently concluded a number of agreements but it is too early to assess their impact.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what his policy is on the standards which Crown Dependencies should meet in respect of requirements for disclosure of information on tax regimes; [276010]

(2) what his policy is on the standards which UK Overseas Territories should meet in respect of requirements for disclosure of information on tax regimes. [276011]

Mr. Timms: The Government expect the Crown Dependencies and Overseas Territories to comply with international standards of transparency and exchange of information in tax matters as developed by the OECD and endorsed by the G20.

Taxation: Gambling

Mr. Betts: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect of changes to amusement machine licence duty announced in the 2009 Budget on (a) pubs, (b) seaside arcades, (c) bingo clubs and (d) the gaming machine industry. [274767]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury assess the broad impact of changes to gambling taxes and duties but the information collected by HMRC from amusement machine licence duty returns does not identify the sector in which the machine is located. Budget 2009 announced an increase in amusement machine licence duty, which is expected to add around one percentage point to gaming machines' effective tax rate. The costings implications can be found in table A1 of the Financial Statement and Budget Report.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Timpson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to provide a substantive answer to Question (a) 273637, (b) 273638, (c) 273640 and (d) 273641 on the HM Revenue and Customs Workforce Change Programme tabled on 5 May 2009 for named day answer on 8 May. [276545]

Mr. Timms: I have replied to the hon. Member.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Departmental Billing

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much (a) his Department and (b) its agency paid in interest to suppliers under the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998 in the last three years for which figures are available. [275206]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Interest payments to suppliers in respect of late payment of invoices are not centrally or separately recorded on the Department's or The Royal Parks' accounting systems and can only be identified at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department has spent on (a) conference services and (b) banqueting services in each of the last five years. [274509]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department's accounting system does not record costs relating to banqueting services discretely and to obtain these would incur disproportionate cost.

The costs relating to conference services are listed in the following table.

	Conference services costs (£)
2008-09	79,724
2007-08	148,034
2006-07	227,678
2005-06	151,093
2004-05	58,272

Departmental Stationery

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department has spent on branded stationery and gifts for (a) internal and (b) external promotional use in each of the last five years. [273778]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department has spent the following on branded DCMS stationery (letterhead, business cards and compliment slips) in the past five years:

	Spend (£)
2004-05	12,421.32
2005-06	13,904
2006-07	16,027.18
2007-08	9,891.86
2008-09	6,514.30

The Department has spent the following on branded gifts in the past five years :

		Spend (£)
2006-07	(a) Internal	446.74
2008-09	(b) External	3,738

Stress

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what percentage of sickness absence taken by staff in his Department was attributable to work-related stress in the last three years. [273063]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Our records do not distinguish between sickness caused by work-related stress and stress due to other causes and this information could be compiled only at a disproportionate cost.

Swimming Pools

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what financial support his Department has provided to (a) local authorities and (b) community groups for the construction of swimming pools in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [275553]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Sport England have advised that while they hold details of financial support for the redevelopment of leisure centres they cannot identify the support set aside for the construction of swimming pools. The information requested can only be provided at disproportionate cost.

In the 2009-10 planning round, under the Free Swimming Capital Modernisation programme, approximately £5.5 million of funding will support the construction of new pools.

Tourism: Scotland

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent steps his Department has taken to encourage tourists to visit Scotland. [275702]

Barbara Follett: DCMS supports UK tourism via its grant in aid sponsorship of VisitBritain who in turn promote Scotland as a holiday destination as part of its remit.

This promotion is undertaken through various platforms such press, public relations, the travel trade and the internet.

Currently VisitBritain is working in partnership with Visit Scotland and hosting a dedicated web page for the "Homecoming Scotland 2009" strategy. This is aimed at promoting tourism in Scotland via a year-long programme of events to celebrate some of Scotland's greatest contributions to the world.

Tourism: Standards

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the participation levels have been in Visit Britain's National Quality Assessment scheme in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274780]

Barbara Follett: VisitBritain have provided the following data about the participation levels in the National Quality Assessment scheme for the period April 2005 to April 2009.

As at April each year	All sectors of visitor economy	Holiday Cottage Group (franchise ratings)	Total assessed
2005	22,981	n/a	22,981
2006	22,626	n/a	22,626
2007	22,936	2,972	25,908
2008	23,577	2,797	26,374
2009	[1]23,997	3,270	27,267

[1] 4.4 per cent. increase in VisitEngland assessed since April 2005 (excluding Holiday Cottage Group ratings)

OLYMPICS

Departmental Furniture

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how much the Olympic Delivery Authority spent on furniture in each of the last five years. [273744]

Tessa Jowell: As a new organisation established in 2006, the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) purchased furniture for its offices in Canary Wharf and Stratford at a total cost of £1.7 million. The breakdown by year is: 2006 £0.9 million, 2007 £0.7 million and 2008 £0.1 million.

To secure better value for money, a cost sharing agreement is in place with the London Organising Committee of the Olympic games and Paralympic games who will use this furniture as their staffing increases in the build-up to the games and the role of the ODA diminishes.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many contracts have been let by the Homes and Communities Agency and its predecessor bodies to the Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment in each of the last five years; what the monetary value of each such contract was; and what services were supplied under each such contract. [276538]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Homes and Communities Agency and its predecessor bodies have not let any contracts to the Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment in the last five years.

The Homes and Communities Agency and its predecessor bodies have however, worked on a number of joint projects and programmes with the Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment to which the respective organisations have contributed appropriately under the Government's guidance for joint working between public bodies.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much has been spent by the Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment on tendering for contracts from the Homes and Communities Agency and its predecessor bodies in each of the last three years. [276539]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment (CABE) has not spent anything on tendering for contracts from the Homes and Communities Agency (HCA) or its predecessor bodies in each of the last three years. CABE is a statutory non-departmental public body. It has worked in partnership with the HCA and its predecessor bodies, the Housing Corporation and English Partnerships, on a number of joint projects. In these circumstances, each organisation contributes appropriately, in accordance with Government guidance for joint working between public bodies. This is to avoid duplication of effort and to ensure that each brings to the project the benefit of its distinct capabilities and separate and different statutory functions.

Council Tax: Valuation

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 23 April 2009, Official Report, column 879W, on council tax, how many homes were revalued for council tax purposes at the point of sale following property improvements in each region in each year since 1997; and how many such homes were revalued to (a) a higher, (b) a lower and (c) the same council tax band. [276551]

John Healey: The Valuation Office Agency is required to review council tax bands at the point of sale when a property has previously been improved. This review will result in either a band increase or the band remaining unaltered. The number of properties reviewed and the outcome of this review, for each year since 1997, broken down into Government regions for England, are as follows:

Housing: Low Incomes

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average net weekly income was of a household living in (a) registered social landlord and (b) local authority accommodation in each of the last five years. [273401]

Kitty Ussher: I have been asked to reply.

The available information is in the following table.

Median household income (£ per week), for council and housing association tenants, United Kingdom, 2003-04 to 2007-08, before and after housing costs

	Before housing costs		After housing costs
	Rented from council	Rented from a housing association	Rented from council	Rented from a housing association
2003-04	268	275	198	193
2004-05	271	284	205	207
2005-06	274	292	209	211
2006-07	277	288	211	209
2007-08	272	290	209	215

Notes:

1. These statistics are based on households below average income, sourced from the Family Resources Survey.
2. Small differences should be treated with caution as these will be affected by sampling error and variability in non-response.
3. The reference period for household below average income figures is single financial years.
4. The income measures used to derive the estimates shown employ the same methodology as the Department for Work and Pensions publication 'Households Below Average Income' (HBAI) series, which uses disposable household income, adjusted for "equivalised") for household size and composition, as an income measure as a proxy for standard of living.
5. The figures are based on OECD equivalisation factors.
6. Median household incomes are used as these are less affected by outliers. Incomes are presented in 2007-08 prices and have been rounded to the nearest pound sterling.
7. Figures have been presented on a before housing cost and an after housing cost basis. For before housing costs, housing costs (such as rent, water rates, mortgage interest payments, structural insurance payments and ground rent and service charges) are not deducted from income, while for after housing costs they are.
8. Separate council and housing association figures should be treated with caution. This is because a significant number of housing association tenants wrongly report that they are council tenants. The most common reason for this is where their home used to be owned by the council and although ownership has now transferred to a housing association, the tenant still thinks that their landlord is the council (local authority).

SCOTLAND

Departmental Work Experience

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many work placements his Department offered to (a) school pupils, (b) university students and (c) graduates in each of the last five years. [274479]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office is part of the Ministry of Justice and does not retain information on work placement opportunities to school pupils, university students and graduates.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Crimes of Violence

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many convictions for violent crime offences there were in Northern Ireland in each of the last three years; what the average sentence handed down for such offences was in each of those years; and how many of those so sentenced received the maximum possible sentence in each year. [276116]

Paul Goggins: The following table gives the number of convictions, the number sentenced to immediate custody, the average custodial sentence length (in months) and the number given the maximum sentence for violent offences.

Violent offences include the offence classifications of violence against the person, sexual offences and robbery. When sentencing convicted offenders, judges and magistrates take account of the characteristics of the offender including age, previous convictions and characteristics in terms of seriousness and the degree of culpability.

Data cover the calendar years 2004 to 2006 (the latest available years) and are collated on the principal offence rule; only the most serious offence with which an offender is charged is included.

Number convicted of violent offences (violence against the person, sexual and robbery offences), number sentenced to immediate custody, the average custodial sentence length (in months) and number given the maximum sentence 2004-06

	2004	2005	2006
Number convicted	2,308	2,280	2,606
Number sentenced to immediate custody[1]	510	517	648
Average custodial sentence length (in months)[2]	25	26	26
Number given the maximum sentence	16	17	15

[1] The number sentenced to immediate custody includes those given life imprisonment or a juvenile justice centre order.
[2] The average custodial sentence lengths exclude life sentences and juvenile justice centre orders.

Crimes of Violence: Foreigners

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many foreign nationals are serving sentences for violent crime in prisons in Northern Ireland. [276119]

Paul Goggins: At 14 May the Northern Ireland Prison Service held 123 foreign national prisoners of whom 54 were sentenced prisoners. Of these, 18 were serving sentences for violent crime and had received sentences from the courts ranging from two years to life.

Departmental Billing

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies paid in interest to suppliers under the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998 in the last three years for which figures are available. [275196]

Paul Goggins: The Department does not separately record details on interest for late payment of invoices under the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998.

The Department's agencies paid a total of £34,542.42 in 2008-09. No amounts were paid in 2007-08 or 2006-07.

Drugs: Misuse

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many community drug awareness campaigns have been undertaken by the Police Service of Northern Ireland in each of the policing districts in each of the last five years; and what assessment he has made of their effectiveness in each case. [276223]

Paul Goggins: That is an operational matter for the Chief Constable. I have asked him to reply directly to the hon. Member, and a copy of his letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Females

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent steps British forces in Afghanistan have taken to protect girls' schools and girls travelling to and from school from violent attacks; and what discussions his Department has had with its military allies on the matter. [276540]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: ISAF forces in Afghanistan continue to work hard, in conjunction with the Afghan National Security Forces, to afford all Afghan nationals a safe and secure environment in which to go about their daily lives. To comment further on operational planning would, or would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many service personnel injured in Afghanistan were admitted to UK hospitals as a result of their injury in each year since 2001; [276030]

(2) how many service personnel injured in Afghanistan have been hospitalised for more than (a) three months, (b) six months and (c) nine months as a result of their injury. [276041]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Prior to 8 October 2007, the information requested was not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. However, from 8 October 2007, the Defence Patient Tracking System (DPTS) has provided a centrally available record of locations where healthcare is being delivered along the care pathway of military patients.

Between 8 October 2007 and 14 May 2009, the DPTS shows 387 service personnel were admitted as an in-patient to one or more UK hospitals because of injuries sustained in Afghanistan. Of these personnel, 330 were admitted as an in-patient to one UK hospital only and 57 were admitted as an in-patient to more than one UK hospital.

11 of the 387 Service personnel were admitted to a UK hospital and were an in-patient for more than three months but less than six months.

None of the 387 Service personnel were admitted to a UK hospital and were an in-patient for more than six months but less than nine months.

None of the 387 Service personnel were admitted to a UK hospital and were an in-patient for more than nine months.

215 of the 387 Service Personnel included in this response still have open care pathways in the DPTS as they are still receiving specialist treatment. As such, some might require further periods as a hospital in-patient after 14 May 2009, leading to an increased cumulative length of time they have been admitted as an in-patient.

Some injured service personnel also receive out-patient hospital care and, or rehabilitation at the Defence Medical Rehabilitation Centre at Headley Court or at one of the MOD's Regional Rehabilitation Units.

Armed Forces: Eyesight

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) male and (b) female recruits to the Royal Navy Air Crew Pilot Branch were accepted with myopia of (i) -0.75 exactly, (b) less than -0.75 and (c) more than -0.75 are in both eyes in the last 12 months; and what the required eyesight standards for similar disciplines in other parts of the armed forces. [1] [274348]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The number of male and female recruits to the Royal Navy Air Crew Pilot Branch accepted with myopia in both eyes in the last 12 months are provided as follows.

MYOPIA

	Male	Female
<-0.75	1	0
-0.75>	0	0

The Aircrew Entry Visual Standard for myopia of -0.75 is common across all three services. However the nature of secondary duties undertaken by Royal Navy personnel requires their pilots to pass an additional colour perception test.

AWE Aldermaston

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the reasons are for rescheduling the nuclear accident planning exercise at AWE Aldermaston from 13 May to 3 June 2009. [276107]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The site exercise at the Atomic Weapons Establishment (AWE) Aldermaston planned for 13 May 2009 was rescheduled as associated restrictions would have clashed with planned activities elsewhere on the site. The rearranged date of 3 June 2009 was agreed with the regulator, the Nuclear Installations Inspectorate.

Departmental Public Appointments

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which former (a) hon. Members who left Parliament since 1997 and (b) Members of the House of Lords from each party have been appointed to positions on public bodies within his Department's responsibility; and who made each appointment. [267539]

Mr. Kevan Jones [holding answer 27 March 2009]: Information on board membership and remuneration is published in individual bodies' annual report and accounts.

Departmental Stationery

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how much his Department spent on the purchase of (a) recycled office supplies in the last 12 months and (b) printer ink cartridges in each of the last five years; [274204]

(2) what proportion of office supplies purchased by his Department were recycled products in the latest period for which figures are available. [275348]

Mr. Kevan Jones: In financial year 2008-09, the MOD spent a total of £20.3 million on its corporate office supplies contracts. Of that figure, 54 per cent. (£11 million) was spent on products that contained recycled material.

Until 1 October 2007 MOD office supplies, including printer consumables, were purchased under a number of separate contracts.

Information relating to spend prior to this date is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The amount spent since 1 October 2007 is provided in the following table.

£ million

	FY 2007-08	FY 2008-09
Recycled office supplies (excluding printer ink/toner cartridges as shown below)	0.3	0.7
Printer ink/toner cartridges
(a) Remanufactured (i.e. with 100 per cent. recycled content)	0.6	1.3
(b) Containing approximately 10 per cent. recycled material	4.0	9.0
(c) Containing no recycled material	0.5	1.0
Total spend on printer ink/toner cartridges	5.1	11.3

Ex-servicemen: Military Decorations

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what information his Department holds on the number of people who have applied for a veterans' badge. [276500]

Mr. Kevan Jones: As at 14 May 2009 over 717,000 veterans badges have been issued. This total includes those issued as a result of individual application and also badges now awarded automatically to those leaving the services.

Ex-servicemen: Pensions

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many veterans are not able to join either the AFPS75 or AFPS05 pension scheme; and how many veterans who left the armed forces before 1975 receive a preserved pension. [276522]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The number of veterans who are not able to join either the AFPS75 or AFPS05 pension scheme is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

As preserved pensions were introduced from 1975, no veterans who left prior to this would be in receipt of a preserved pension.

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what minimum level of hearing loss from active service is necessary for a veteran to receive a disablement pension on the grounds of hearing loss. [276523]

1. [Official Report, 10 June 2009, Vol. 493, c. 7MC.]

Mr. Kevan Jones: No fault compensation for disorders caused by service before 6 April 2005 is provided by the War Pensions Scheme. Its legislation sets out the method of assessment and provides that disablement pensions are paid where disablement is assessed at 20 per cent. or more. For hearing loss this equates to 50dB loss in each ear averaged over 1, 2 and 3 kHz.

The Armed Forces Compensation Scheme applies to disorders caused on or after 6 April 2005. This scheme is tariff based with lump sum awards linked to specific descriptors. For more serious disorders there is an additional Guaranteed Income Payment payable for life. The lowest award for hearing loss alone is the descriptor 'bilateral permanent hearing loss of 50-75dB averaged over 1, 2 and 3 kHz with mild or no tinnitus'. In addition a Guaranteed Income Payment becomes payable where hearing loss alone exceeds 75dB averaged over 1, 2 and 3 kHz in each ear.

The Ministry of Defence's approach to the assessment of service related sensorineural hearing loss for both the War Pensions Scheme and Armed Forces Compensation Scheme is based on contemporary scientific evidence and understanding. This approach has been confirmed in recent years by several reviews carried out by independent audiological experts.

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he next plans to review the eligibility criteria for entitlement (a) to a preserved pension and (b) to pensions for those who served in the armed forces prior to 1975; and if he will make a statement. [276524]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Ministry of Defence currently has no plans to review the eligibility criteria for entitlement to a preserved pension and to pensions for those who served in the armed forces prior to 1975.

Military Bases: Aviation

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many logistic movers there are at each military airport; and what the full establishment is in each case. [276235]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The amount of Logistics (Mover) Tradesmen and full establishment figures at each military airport is provided in the following table.

Unit	Establishment	Strength
RAF Brize Norton[1]	269	225
RAF Lyneham[1]	308	286
RAF Akrotiri	54	54
RAF Aldergrove	7	6
RAF Ascension Island	7	7
RAF Benson	6	6
RAF Coningsby	13	13
RAF Cottesmore	7	7
RAF Gibraltar	9	9
RAF Kinloss	5	5
RAF Leeming	6	6
RAF Leuchars	6	6
RAF Lossiemouth	7	7
RAF Marham	13	13
RAF Northolt	26	26
RAF Odiham	32	32
RAF Wittering	6	5
RAF Waddington	6	6
Out of Area
Herrick[2]	42	42
Telic[2]	47	47
Falkland Island[2]	9	9
Logs officers[3]	57	51

[1] The deficit in personnel is met by the Royal Auxiliary Air Force and Contractors to ensure operational output is maintained.
[2] Out of Area positions in theatre have Logistics (Mover) personnel that are drawn from across all RAF stations.
[3] Logistic Branch Officers also undertake Movement roles, however they are not part of the Logistic (Mover) Trade but are a Branch. Therefore, they have been tabled separately from the Units.

Military Exercises

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of his Department's military training exercises has (a) been cancelled and (b) been cancelled because of a lack of appropriate equipment in each year since 2001. [276550]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The armed forces conduct a wide variety of overseas military exercises each year. All overseas exercises are conducted in order to generate, or maintain military capability in line with the tasks outlined in Defence Strategic Guidance. On occasion, exercises are cancelled for reasons that include effectiveness of delivery; value for money constraints; international policy dimensions and circumstances; changed priorities; operational constraints; and focus on current operations. The proportion of MOD exercises cancelled since 2003 is in the following table.

	Scheduled training events	Cancelled events	Percentage	Conducted
2008-09	542	80	14.7	462
2007-08	722	76	10.5	646
2006-07	680	64	9.4	616
2005-06	533	58	10.8	475
2004-05	379	79	20.8	300
2003-04	350	151	43	199

Since 2003, there have been no exercises cancelled due to a lack of appropriate equipment.

Details of the exercises cancelled prior to 2003 are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Pakistan: EU Action

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what contribution his Department made to the EU's Pakistan Country Strategy Paper 2007 to 2013; and if he will make a statement. [270101]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Department for International Development has the UK Government lead for the European Commission's Pakistan Country Strategy Paper

2007 to 2013 which focuses on poverty reduction in Pakistan. The Ministry of Defence made no contribution to this strategy paper.

Trident

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which potential aggressors he expects to be deterred by the Trident nuclear deterrent programme in 2024. [276260]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The 2006 White Paper: The Future of the United Kingdom's Nuclear Deterrent (Cmd 6994), section three, paragraphs 3-8 to 3-13, states that over the next 20 to 50 years we can foresee nuclear risks in three areas: Re-emergence of a major nuclear threat; emerging nuclear states and state-sponsored terrorism.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Departmental Accountancy

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's internal audit department report to the accounting officer for every financial year since 1997-98. [258018]

Mr. Michael Foster: Internal audit reports are produced for internal management purposes and releasing them would risk undermining the integrity and effectiveness of the audit process, as well as the safe, secure and effective operation of the Department for International Development (DFID).

UN Development Programme

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) how much non-core funding his Department has provided to the United Nations Development programme in each financial year since 1997-98; and to which projects in each country of operation such funding was allocated; [275986]

(2) how much core funding his Department has provided to the United Nations Development programme in each financial year since 1997-98; [275987]

(3) if he will place in the Library a copy of each agreement between his Department and the United Nations Development programme (UNDP) on (a) financial, (b) technical and (c) other means of co-operation with the UNDP. [275988]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The "Statistics on International Development" publications, available in the House of Commons Library and at:

http://www.dfid.gov.uk/About-DFID/Finance-and-performance/DFID-Expenditure-Statistics/provide details of total external assistance through multilateral agencies from all official UK sources. Country-level information on DFID funding for UNDP cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate costs.

The UNDP/UK/Denmark Institutional Strategy (IS) 2008-11 sets out how the UK Government will work with the United Nations Development programme (UNDP) over the period 2008-11. It is available at:

http://www.dfid.gov.uk/Documents/publications/undp-is-2008-2011.pdf

The DFID Annual Report outlines the levels of financial support which supports this Institutional Strategy. This is available in the House Library or at:

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Aung San Suu Kyi

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations (a) he and (b) the Prime Minister's Special Envoy to Burma have made to the Burmese regime on the health of Aung San Suu Kyi; and if he will make a statement. [276351]

Caroline Flint: We were greatly concerned by reports that Aung San Suu Kyi was suffering from low blood pressure and dehydration at the beginning of May. However, latest reporting suggests that her condition has improved. Mrs Suu Kyi was reported to be in good spirits during a visit by an assistant to her regular doctor on Monday 11 May 2009. We have also received reports that she appeared to be in good health on arrival for her trial on 18 May 2009. Nonetheless, we remain concerned that Mrs Suu Kyi has been under house arrest for a considerable period and has not had the level of medical care that can be enjoyed by a free individual. In striking contrast, senior military leaders go out of Burma for medical treatment whenever the need arises.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions (a) he and (b) the Prime Minister's Special Envoy to Burma has had with governments of ASEAN countries on the arrest and detention of Aung San Suu Kyi by the Burmese regime on 14 May 2009; and if he will make a statement. [276355]

Caroline Flint: We are in regular contact with Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) countries regarding Burma's actions, including on Mrs Suu Kyi's arrest. We support the strong statements issued by a number of member countries, including Singapore, Indonesia, the Philippines and Thailand.

My hon. Friend the Minister for Foreign Affairs, Bill Rammell, and European colleagues will be attending the EU-ASEAN Foreign Ministers' meeting in Phnom Penh on 27-28 May 2009, where he will raise Aung San Suu Kyi's arrest and our collective response with our Asian counterparts.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government have taken to seek to secure the release of Aung San Suu Kyi following her arrest and detention by the Burmese regime on 14 May 2009; and if he will make a statement. [276356]

Bill Rammell: The arrest of Aung San Suu Kyi on 14 May 2009 is of serious concern and shows how determined the regime are to silence her. Our embassy in Rangoon was in contact with the Burmese Ministry of Foreign Affairs immediately on 14 May. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister issued a statement on the morning of 14 May, condemning the regime's actions. The UK actively pursued a statement issued on behalf of the EU and my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary discussed with EU counterparts in Brussels on 19 May 2009 further steps the EU should take.

We are continuing to discuss the situation with our international colleagues in the UN. Once the outcome of the trial is known, we will actively consider how best to engage members of the UN Security Council further on the situation in Burma.

China: Christianity

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Chinese government on the detention of two Chinese Christians, Alimiyiang Yimih and Wusiman Yiming; and if he will make a statement. [276434]

Bill Rammell: The case of Alimjan Himit (who we believe is also known as Alimujiang Yimiti) was raised at the UK-China Human Rights Dialogue in January as part of an individual case list. We urged the Chinese to consider freeing Alimjan, and to ensure he had access to a defence lawyer. The Chinese responded that Alimjan was detained in Kashgar Detention Centre, and that his physical conditions were normal and he enjoyed the rights to family visits and to hire a defence lawyer according to law.

The case of Osman Imin (known as Wusiman Yiming in Chinese documentation) was also raised at our bilateral Human Rights Dialogue in January as part of the case list. We asked for information on the nature of the charges brought against Osman, information on where he is being held and his expected release date. To date we have not yet had a response.

We will continue to monitor both of these cases and raise them wherever appropriate. We will also continue to raise broader issues of religious freedom and to urge the Chinese Government to ratify the International Covenant of Civil and Political Rights.

Departmental Contracts

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which services his Department has outsourced in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274448]

Gillian Merron: The provision for UK based language training for Foreign and Commonwealth Office,(FCO) officers was outsourced in 2007 after the completion of a tender process in accordance with Government guidelines. A framework agreement was signed with 15 providers. Within the framework, each newly commissioned course is subject to competition between these providers.

Information and data covering the FCO's global outsourcing of services are not held centrally and could, therefore, be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Data Protection

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department is taking to maintain the security of its databases; and if he will make a statement. [274085]

Gillian Merron: The Security Policy Framework, the Data Handling Report and the National Information Assurance Strategy produced by the Cabinet Office provides a strategy for protecting information that government handles and puts in place a set of mandatory measures which Departments must adhere to.

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office is compliant with the security policies contained in the Government Security Policy Framework including those for information security.

Departmental Pay

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many staff employed in London on work contracted out by his Department earn less than £7.45 per hour. [274947]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 12 May 2009]: Details for every Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) directorate are not held centrally, and to give a comprehensive answer would incur disproportionate cost. However, among those FCO directorates that principally contract out work in this way, there are currently 70 staff performing work which is contracted out and who earn less that £7.45 per hour.

Those contracted on a temporary basis and sourced via an agency, rather than being contracted by the FCO, remain employees of and paid for by the agency concerned. The FCO pays an hourly rate to the agency for the provision of the service which includes the agency's management fee, mandatory employers' contributions, and a remuneration element, but the FCO does not necessarily have sight of the breakdown detailing the exact remuneration element.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to his answer of 27 April 2009, Official Report, column 1032W, on departmental public expenditure, how many overseas posts received overseas price mechanism uplifts in 2008-09; and how much uplift funding each such post received. [272912]

David Miliband: The following table highlights the posts that received an uplift in 2008-09. The exchange rate risk for posts in the Americas is managed by a devolved budget holder. The budget holder received a total £7.595 million uplift to maintain post budgets in 2008-09.

Departmental Training

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much his Department spent on staff training in the most recent 12 month period for which figures are available. [271704]

Gillian Merron: During the 12 month period 1 April 2008 to 31 March 2009, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) spent approximately £9.4 million centrally on learning and development including language training, core skills and specialist human resources training.

The FCO also devolves training funds to overseas posts, geographical and thematic directorates. Information on these funds is not held centrally and could not be provided without incurring disproportionate cost.

Gambia: Politics and Government

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on how many occasions consular staff in the Gambia have visited David and Fiona Fulton in detention; and what consular services have been provided to David and Fiona Fulton. [275331]

Gillian Merron: I cannot comment on Mrs. Fiona Fulton as she has not given permission for the Foreign and Commonwealth Office to discuss her case with third parties. Consular staff have visited Mr. Fulton 13 times. We are monitoring this case closely and will continue to make regular visits. Our primary concern when British nationals are detained overseas is for their welfare. We have provided Mr. Fulton with support and information and liaised with the Gambian authorities as appropriate, and continue to keep his family updated on progress.

Government Hospitality Fund

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 20 April 2009, Official Report, column 511W, on the Government Hospitality Fund, how much the Government Hospitality unit of his Department's Protocol Directorate has spent on (a) linen, (b) china, (c) silver and (d) glassware in each of the last five years. [271727]

Gillian Merron: Government Hospitality (GH) recorded the following expenditure on items of linen, china, silver and glassware between 2004 and 2008:

	2004	2005	2006	2007	£ 2008
Linen	0	0	2,455	824	560
China	17,207	0	0	0	0
Silver	700	520	1,406	514	1,202
Glass	0	0	0	0	0

Most of the equipment held by GH is several decades old, and was purchased at the time of Her Majesty the Queen's accession to the throne. GH purchases replacement stock, for example purchase of china in 2004 to replace 50-year-old dinner plates, produced by Wedgewood as a special commission. GH also buys new stock items when required for one-off occasions, for example the G8 summit in 2005 at Gleneagles.

Israel: Nuclear Weapons

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether matters in respect of Israel's nuclear weapons capability and regional non-proliferation opportunities were discussed at his meeting with his Israeli counterpart on 13 May 2009 in London. [276305]

Caroline Flint: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary did not discuss these matters with Israeli Foreign Minister Lieberman during their meeting on 13 May 2009.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make an assessment of the likely effect on the Middle East peace process of the release of kidnapped Israeli soldier Corporal Shalit. [276494]

Caroline Flint: We judge that Corporal Shalit's release would prove to be a positive step for the Middle East Peace Process.

The UK continues to call for the immediate, unconditional and safe release of Gilad Shalit. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary reiterated this most recently in his statement to the UN Security Council on 11 May 2009. We have also shown our support to Corporal Shalit's family by meeting his parents on several occasions.

Official Hospitality

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much was spent on entertainment by each British (a) Embassy, (b) High Commission and (c) Consulate in 2008. [273702]

Gillian Merron: The direct entertainment expenditure figure available for the financial year 2008 (April 2007 to March 2008) is £6,470,379.11.

Our accounting reports do not allow us to separate the spend on entertainment into the categories requested and it would involve disproportionate cost to interrogate them further.

This figure includes all items, for example catering and set up costs that are directly attributable to functions, events and receptions held at posts throughout the world and in the UK.

Somalia: Piracy

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with his European counterparts on disrupting information networks used by Somali pirates. [276002]

Gillian Merron: Working Group 1 of the Contact Group on Piracy off the Coast of Somalia, which includes some EU member states, met for the second time on 7 and 8 May 2009 at the International Maritime Organisation. The Working Group, which is chaired by the UK, was attended by Interpol. In his conclusions, the Chair welcomed the engagement of Interpol with the work of the Contact Group and Interpol's willingness to engage with the military operations on information and intelligence sharing. Work in this area will continue.

Sri Lanka: Human Rights

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of reports that members of the armed forces in Sri Lanka have been involved in serious human rights abuses in recent weeks; and if he will make a statement. [275313]

Bill Rammell: We are very concerned at the reports of human rights abuses linked to both sides of the conflict in Sri Lanka. It is very difficult to confirm these worrying reports, given the lack of access for independent monitors and the media. We take every opportunity to raise our concerns with the Sri Lankan Government and we have consistently called for full access by independent monitors. We have also called for an early investigation as to whether crimes have been committed against civilians.

USA: Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty Review Conference

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will publish the written material (a) produced for and (b) obtained by his Department at the Preparatory Committee meeting for the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty Review Conference in New York; and which Ministers and officials attended that Conference. [276105]

Caroline Flint: This year's Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) Preparatory Committee (PrepCom) achieved a great deal, including agreeing an agenda for the 2010 Review Conference by consensus for the first time in 15 years. It was attended by a broad UK delegation headed by John Duncan, Ambassador for Arms Control and Disarmament. The delegation included officials from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO), Ministry of Defence, Department of Energy and Climate Change and our mission to the Conference on Disarmament, as well as an academic adviser.

Written documents agreed at the PrepCom are already in the public domain see:

http://www.un.org/disarmament/WMD/Nuclear/NPT2010Prepcom/PrepCom2009/index.html and the FCO does not intend to publish any internal documents which were written or obtained by our delegation. However, as promised in the Prime Minister's 17 March 2009 speech, we will publish a "Road to 2010" plan this year.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he plans to answer question 260887, tabled on 2 March 2009, on UK visas for sporting events. [271071]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 5 May 2009, Official Report, columns 43-44W.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he plans to answer question 261736, tabled on 4 March 2009, on UK visas for sporting events. [271072]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 11 May 2009, Official Report, columns 542-43W.

HEALTH

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what records he holds on the medical conditions which created the need for abortions to be performed in emergency to save the life of the mother in those cases which have arisen in each year since 1986; and how many times each such condition has been the relevant factor. [275609]

Dawn Primarolo: In the 17 years between 1986 and 2002, there were 59 abortions performed under section 1(4) of the Abortion Act 1967, as amended, in an emergency to save the life of the pregnant woman. Numbers for each year between 2003 and 2007 were less than 10 (between nought and nine) and are suppressed, for confidentiality reasons, in line with the Office for National Statistics' guidance on the disclosure of abortion statistics (2005). No further details about the specific medical conditions can be given as total figures are less than 10 (between nought and nine) in all cases.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which Directorate in his Department has responsibility for the (a) formulation and (b) implementation of policy on (i) abortion, (ii) sexual and reproductive health and (iii) euthanasia and assisted dying; how many officials in his Department at each pay band are employed in this Directorate; what other posts in his Department each such official has held; and if he will make a statement. [275610]

Dawn Primarolo: The Directorate with responsibility for the formulation and implementation of policy on abortion, sexual and reproductive health and euthanasia and assisted dying is the Health Improvement and Protection Directorate. It is one of the biggest in the Department and covers a wide range of policy areas including: Health and Wellbeing, Pandemic Flu, International and Public Health, Immunisation, Emergency Preparedness, Health Promotion, Analytical Services and Health, Science and Bioethics.

The whole time equivalent total of staff and their grade is:

Senior Executive Officer	48
Higher Executive Officer	36.50
Executive Officer	41
Administrative Officer	20

Information about the career histories of individuals working in the Health Improvement and Protection Division, or elsewhere in the Department, is not held centrally and it is not our practice for such information to be retained locally by a directorate. To establish this would incur disproportionate cost.

Aerotoxic Syndrome

Ms Gisela Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department is conducting research into the condition referred to as aerotoxic syndrome. [274680]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government's interest in issues to do with aerotoxicity rests primarily with my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Transport. The Department has not commissioned research on the topic.

Cancer: Alcoholic Drinks

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) pursuant to the answer of 5 May 2009, Official Report, column 102W, on cancer: alcoholic drinks, what statistical evidence his Department holds of a relationship between alcohol consumption and female breast cancer; [274634]

(2) what statistics his Department holds on links between alcohol use and different forms of cancer in (a) men and (b) women. [274677]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department does not maintain a library of the numerous academic publications on the health harms, including cancer, associated with alcohol consumption, however it is important to note that as part of the policy making process the Department seeks expert advice from relevant health experts.

In addition to the scientific papers referenced in the answer of 5 May 2009, Official Report, column 102W, on cancer and alcoholic drinks, the Department holds copies of the following:

Committee on Carcinogenicity (COC) analysis into the consumption of alcohol and breast cancer. This analysis was published by the COC in their 2004 annual report;

"Alcohol, tobacco and breast cancer—collaborative reanalysis of individual data from 53 epidemiological studies, including 58,515 women with breast cancer and 95,067 women without the disease", by Hamajima N, et al and published in the British Journal of Cancer 87 (11): 1234-1245;

"Meta-analysis of Studies of Alcohol and Breast Cancer with Consideration of the Methodological Issues", by Key J, et al and published in Cancer Causes Control 17: 759-770; and

"Alcohol-attributable fractions for England: Alcohol-attributable mortality and hospital admissions", Jones L et al., North West Public Health Observatory (2008). This reviews the relationships between alcohol consumption and alcohol-related harms and estimates the proportion of deaths and hospital admissions that are caused by alcohol, including cancer.

Dental Services: Hertfordshire

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his estimate is of the ratio of NHS dentists to residents in (a) St. Albans and (b) Hertfordshire; and if he will make a statement. [276361]

Ann Keen: Information is not available in the format requested.

Information on national health service dentists per 100,000 of the population is available in Table G1 of Annex 3 of the NHS Dental Statistics for England: 2007-08 report. This information is based on the new dental contractual arrangements and is provided by primary care trust and strategic health authority covering the years ending 31 March, 2007 and 2008. This information is not available at constituency level.

This report, published on 21 August 2008, has already been placed in the Library. It is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dental0708

Dental Services: South Yorkshire

Mr. Ilsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of (a) adults and (b) children are registered with an NHS dentist in (i) Barnsley, (ii) Rotherham, (iii) Doncaster, (iv) South Yorkshire and (v) England. [276420]

Ann Keen: The information is not available in the format requested.

Under the new dental contractual arrangements, introduced on 1 April 2006, patients do not have to be registered with a national health service dentist to receive

NHS care. The closest equivalent measure to 'registration' is the number of patients receiving NHS dental services ('patients seen') over a 24-month period.

Information on patients seen as a percentage of the population, in England, is available in table D6 and D8 of annex 3 of the "NHS Dental Statistics, Quarter 2: 30 September 2008" report. Information is split for adults and children and is available at quarterly intervals, from 31 March 2006 to 30 September 2008. This is split by primary care trust and strategic health authority.

This report has already been placed in the Library. It is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/pubs/dentalstats0809q2

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding has been allocated for dentistry in (a) Barnsley, (b) Rotherham and (c) Doncaster in each of the last three years. [276421]

Ann Keen: The primary dental service funding allocations made to the Barnsley, Rotherham and Doncaster Primary Care Trusts (PCTs) for the three years 2006-07 to 2008-09 are shown in the following table. These are net of income from dental charges paid by patients, which are retained locally to supplement the resources available for dentistry. Actual expenditure levels are determined by the pattern and type of services commissioned by each PCT. PCTs may also dedicate some of their other national health service resources to dentistry if they consider this an appropriate local priority.

Primary dental service net funding allocations for Barnsley, Rotherham and Doncaster PCTs

	2006-07	2007-08	2008-09
Barnsley	8,210	8,720	9,688
Rotherham	7,361	7,838	8,787
Doncaster	13,710	14,574	16,058

Notes:
1. The allocation figure for 2006-07 for Doncaster is the aggregate of the allocations made initially to Doncaster Central, Doncaster East, and Doncaster West PCTs before they merged to form the Doncaster PCT, with effect from 1 October 2006.
2. PCTs are awarded separate funding allocations to meet the cost of any dental vocational trainees who may be placed with dental practices in their area.

Mr. Illsley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what allocation of orthodontic units of activity has been awarded to practitioners in (a) Barnsley, (b) Rotherham and (c) Doncaster in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [276422]

Ann Keen: The information is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Health Education: Influenza

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many households he expects to receive informational material on swine influenza. [273842]

Dawn Primarolo: Distribution of the swine flu information leaflet to a total of 28,098,871 addresses in England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland began on 5 May 2009.

Health Services: Coventry

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent steps have been taken to improve (a) heart healthcare, (b) cancer healthcare, (c) influenza prevention and (d) mental healthcare for pensioners in Coventry. [276322]

Ann Keen: It is for primary care trusts (PCTs), in partnership with strategic health authorities and other stakeholders to commission health services for their local population, including vascular, cancer, influenza prevention, and mental health services.

The Department recommends that all people aged 65 and over, and those under 65 years who are in specific clinical at-risk groups, receive the seasonal influenza vaccine. Carers who are in receipt of a carer's allowance or are the main carer for an elderly person are also recommended influenza vaccine. The uptake information for Coventry is shown in the following table.

Influenza vaccine uptake 2008-09, Coventry Teaching PCT

	Percentage uptake
Influenza vaccine uptake in people aged 65 and over	69.1
Influenza vaccine uptake in people aged under 65 at-risk	46.9

Information for each PCT is contained in 'Influenza vaccine uptake among the 65 years and over and under 65 years at risk in England, Winter season 2008-09' which has been placed in the Library. This information covers those who received the vaccine as part of the national health service influenza programme.

Human Papilloma Virus: Vaccination

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reason the human papilloma virus vaccination campaign cut-off date was set in order to target those born before September 1990. [275849]

Dawn Primarolo: The ages of girls and young women eligible for human papillomavirus (HPV) vaccination in the national health service vaccination programme are in accordance with the recommendations of the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI). The JCVI recommended a routine HPV vaccination programme for girls aged 12 to 13 years and a time-limited 'catch up' vaccination of girls aged 13 to under 18 years. The programme started in September 2008. The NHS is providing HPV vaccination to the first 'catch-up' cohort of young women aged 17 to 18, with birth dates between 1 September 1990 and 31 August 1991.

The JCVI statement on 'Human papillomavirus vaccines to protect against cervical cancer' is published at www.advisorybodies.doh.gov.uk/jcvi

A copy has been placed in the Library.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his policy is on (a) vaccinating students from overseas in all schools in England against the human papilloma virus and (b) requiring contributions from such students towards the cost of such vaccinations. [275850]

Dawn Primarolo: Primary care trusts (PCTs) are obliged by directions to offer the human papillomavirus (HPV) vaccine free of charge to all girls aged 12 to 13 years who are registered with a general practitioner (GP) or resident in their area, including any such girls from overseas. Girls and young women of other eligible ages up to 18 years old, including female students from overseas, who are registered patients of a GP are also entitled to receive HPV vaccine free of charge. PCTs are responsible for delivering the HPV programme in their area.

Influenza

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans his Department has to assist (a) hospitals, (b) GP practices and (c) chemists in the event of a swine influenza pandemic. [273307]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has already provided a great deal of support to hospitals, practices and chemists in the form of guidance and on-going workshops to ensure that contingency and business continuity issues had been thought through in advance of a pandemic and addressed.

Copies of the relevant guidance have been placed in the Library. Guidance for pharmacists is in the process of being finalised and will be placed in the Library as soon as it is published.

We also supported the British Medical Association (BMA) and Royal College of General Practitioners (RCGP) in producing guidance for general practitioner practices which is available on the BMA and RCGP website at:

www.bma.org.uk/health_promotion_ethics/influenza/panfluguiddec08.jsp

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department has taken to implement its national framework for responding to an influenza pandemic. [276392]

Dawn Primarolo: Since November 2007 (when the National Framework was published) the following key milestones have been delivered:

stockpiles of antivirals to cover 50 per cent. of the population have been ordered and are now in place. Contracts have been signed for the development of the 'Flu Line' which will ensure rapid deployment of antivirals to patients. Orders have been placed to increase the United Kingdom antiviral stockpile from 33.5 million to about 50 million, which would be enough to cover 80 per cent. of the population; on 14 May the Government announced the signing of agreements with vaccine manufacturers for up to 90 million doses of a pre-pandemic vaccine based on the current H1N1 strain. The agreements could provide enough vaccine to protect the most vulnerable groups in our population before a pandemic is likely to arrive;

we are on course to have sufficient antibiotic stocks to cover 31 per cent. of the United Kingdom population (19.6 million courses) by the end of September 2009, with the stockpile reaching over 40 per cent. (6.3 million courses) by the end of May 2009;

we have placed orders for 226 million additional facemasks and 34 million additional respirators, to be delivered over time, for the use of frontline health and social care staff; significantly, enhanced local planning is in place. Every NHS trust and Local Resilience Forum in England has validated pandemic specific plans in place. All LRF plans are available in the public domain, and can be accessed on the internet at:

www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/ukresilience/pandemicflu/plans/regiona_plans.aspx

a suite of guidance documents have been published to aid planners in their preparations for an influenza pandemic. Most notably guidance has been published on the management of excess deaths, school closures, the local response, the health response, infection control, the judicial system and a checklist to aid businesses in pandemic planning. These are available on the UK resilience website at:

www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/ukresilience/pandemicflu/guidance.aspx

the Government launched its pandemic preparedness international strategy in November 2008. This strategy is the first of its kind and sets priorities for the UK Government's work with international organisations over the next three to five years. A copy has already been placed in the Library.

Mental Health Services

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 8 May 2009, Official Report, column 467W, on health services, in respect of which elective mental health services patients have the right to choose the organisation that provides their treatment; and what account will be taken of advance statements in the provision of care for those detained under the Mental Health Act 1983. [276018]

Phil Hope: The majority of patients, including those with mental health problems, are entitled to choose their provider when they are referred for their first consultant-led out-patient appointment. The right to choice does not extend beyond first out-patient appointment. Those detained under the Mental Health Act 1983 are excluded from the right to choice, but the code of practice to the Act specifies that "[Decision-makers] must consider the patient's views, wishes and feelings (whether expressed at the time or in advance), so far as they are reasonably ascertainable, and follow those wishes wherever practicable and consistent with the purpose of the decision."

Mentally Ill: Prisoners

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of prisoners diagnosed with a mental illness in (a) Leeds and (b) England in each of the last three years. [276556]

Phil Hope: This information is not collected centrally.

Nutrition: EU Action

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proposals he has put forward at EU level to minimise the cost to UK industry of implementation of the EU Nutrition and Health Claims Regulation. [276129]

Dawn Primarolo: The Food Standards Agency (FSA), speaking on behalf of the United Kingdom, has made a number of proposals in relation to the Nutrition and Health Claims Regulation aiming to achieve consumer protection through proportionate controls and help minimise the cost to UK industry. Highlights of these proposals include better definition of the scope of the regulation, focusing only on beneficial claims in a commercial context; a solution to dealing with trade marks that are also claims with effective transitional arrangements; elimination of disproportionate prohibitions of claims about general well-being, references to psychological and behavioural functions, slimming and weight control, recommendations by health charities and claims aimed at children.

The UK argued for a process to reduce the burden of authorisation of health claims already on the market, and for new claims pushed the European Commission to meet its duty to make available technical guidance and tools to assist small and medium sized businesses in the preparation and presentation of applications for assessment of health claims by the European Food Safety Authority (EFSA). More recently, the UK proposed better transparency of EFSA's scientific assessment of health claims and secured a commitment from the Commission to improve access to the procedure.

Guidance to interpretation of the regulation from the Commission has helped industry understand how to apply some of the more ambiguous areas of the regulation and this grew from the FSA's own detailed guidance to compliance, which is used widely across the European Union.

We have also been successful in achieving appropriate transition periods to allow industry to adapt to the new regulations and we continue to champion better regulation as unforeseen issues arise during the implementation of this complex measure.

Prescriptions: Fees and Charges

Mr. Bailey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent estimate he has made of the savings which have accrued from the implementation of the new capacity improvement programme prescribing system since its introduction. [274735]

Dawn Primarolo: Current planning indicates that the National Health Service Business Services Authority's (NHSBSA) prescription processing service will deliver savings in financial year 2009-10 of £16 million compared with the cost of processing prescriptions using the previous system. Over the three financial years 2007-08 to 2009-10 the NHSBSA will accrue aggregate savings in operating costs of £25.8 million as a result of implementing the capacity improvement programme, based on 2006-07 operational cost.

Mr. Bailey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were employed by the Prescription Pricing Division in (a) 2005 and (b) 2008. [274736]

Dawn Primarolo: The total number of people employed by the former Prescription Pricing Authority on 1 April 2005 was 2,782 and by the National Health Service Business Services Authority's Prescription Pricing Division on 31 March 2008 was 2,492. This decrease partly reflects the incorporation of the former Prescription Pricing Authority into the NHS Business Services Authority during this period.

Mr. Bailey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many compulsory redundancies have been made within the Prescription Pricing Division consequent upon the implementation of the new capacity improvement programme prescribing system. [274737]

Dawn Primarolo: Redundancies that occurred as a result of the implementation of the capacity improvement programme did not impact until after March 2008. Since then, there have been 686 redundancies resulting from the implementation of the capacity improvement programme. It is not possible to provide a precise figure on the number of redundancies defined as 'compulsory' because of the complex criteria agreed for achieving the reduction.

Mr. Bailey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many staff have been recruited by the Prescription Pricing Division to implement the new capacity improvement programme prescribing system. [R] [274738]

Dawn Primarolo: Around 40 information technology specialists were recruited to assist with the development and implementation of the new capacity improvement programme prescription processing system.

Mr. Bailey: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects the new capacity improvement programme prescribing system for the Prescription Pricing Division to be fully operational. [R] [274739]

Dawn Primarolo: Over 90 per cent. of the prescription processing workload, was processed on the national health service business services authority's new capacity improvement programme processing system from November 2008. There are plans for prescriptions dispensed by dispensing doctors and prescriptions personally administered by doctors to be processed on the new system from July 2009. Additionally, there are plans for appliance contractors' dispensing to be processed on the new system from April 2010. In aggregate, this represents approximately 99.5 per cent. of prescription processing work.

Rehabilitation: Lincolnshire

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding is being provided to the Middlegate detoxing and residential rehabilitation unit in Lincolnshire in 2009-10. [275903]

Beverley Hughes: I have been asked to reply.

Places at Middlegate Lodge and other young people's substance misuse residential treatment facilities are primarily commissioned and funded by local authorities.

Government are providing £24.7 million to local authorities in 2009-10 to support such drug and alcohol treatment through the Pooled Treatment Budget and this is matched by additional funds from the area based grant according to local need.

Social Services

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he plans to publish his Department's Green Paper on the future of adult social care. [276709]

Phil Hope: The Government announced in the Budget report that the Green Paper on care and support reform will be published in June 2009.

Swine Flu

Mr. O'Hara: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what quantities of pathogen-inactivated, a1H1N1-free blood products are held in the UK; whether his Department plans to adopt pathogen inactivation for all blood products for civilian and military use if the World Health Organisation designates the a1H1N1 outbreak a pandemic; and if he will make a statement; [276497]

(2) what his Department's plans are to ensure protection against the H1N1 strain of influenza type A; if he will take steps to ensure that UK blood stocks are H1N1-free; if his Department will fast-track consideration of pathogen inactivation for blood products by the Advisory Committee on the Safety of Blood, Tissues and Organs; and if he will make a statement. [276498]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the written answers I gave the hon. Member for Colchester (Bob Russell) and the hon. Member for Brighton Kemptown (Dr. Turner) on 15 May 2009, Official Report, column 1084W.

Tranquillisers

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance his Department issues on the safe half-life of a drug intended for use as a sleeping tablet; what the half-life of nitrazepam is; and how many nitrazepam prescription items were dispensed in 2008. [276004]

Dawn Primarolo: Nitrazepam belongs to the class of medicines known as benzodiazepines. It is licensed for the short-term treatment of severe insomnia which is considered to be disabling or subjecting the individual to unacceptable distress, where daytime sedation is acceptable.

Nitrazepam acts in 30 to 60 minutes to produce sleep lasting six to eight hours. The half-life is, on average, 24 hours but depending on the individual can range from 16 to 38 hours. As a result nitrazepam has a prolonged action and may give rise to residual effects the following day, and repeated doses tend to be cumulative. Shorter acting agents are therefore preferable for the majority of patients requiring treatment for insomnia.

The half-life of a drug intended for use as a sleeping tablet is only one of many factors that influences the safe use of a medicine. Information to aid the safe use of nitrapezam is provided in the product information which consists of the Summary of Product Characteristics for healthcare professionals and the Patient Information Leaflet. These are available on the internet at www.medicines.org.uk/

Additional prescribing advice is provided in the British National Formulary, which is sent to all doctors within the national health service.

Guidance on the safe use of benzodiazepines has been issued by the Department on a number of occasions; the focus of this advice has been on the need for restriction of use to short-term only. In the case of nitrazepam the recommended treatment period varies from a few days to two weeks with a maximum of four weeks including the tapering off process.

Based on information obtained from the Prescription Cost Analysis database it has been estimated that 1,172,799 prescription items of nitrazepam were dispensed in the community in England during 2008. This figure does not include items which may have been dispensed within a hospital setting.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many staff his Department shares with the Department for Children, Schools and Families. [274066]

Mr. Simon: 13 members of staff work in the Joint Apprenticeships Unit which reports to both DIUS and DCSF. They are employed by DIUS on DIUS terms and conditions.

Since DIUS was established, the DCSF has also provided some services under a shared agreement.

Departmental Training

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much his Department has spent on IT training for its staff in each year since its creation. [274219]

Mr. Simon: The information is not available in the form requested and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Work Experience

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many work placements his Department offered to (a) school pupils, (b) university students and (c) graduates in each year since its creation. [274482]

Mr. Simon: The information is stated in the following table.

	School pupils	University students and graduates
2007	4	4
2008	5	5

The Department is currently in the process of planning its own work experience programme for 2009.

Education: Statistics

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what data on education and skills his Department collects at lower layer super output area level. [275353]

Mr. Simon: DIUS collects a variety of information which in theory is capable of being analysed at lower layer super output area (SOA) as it includes the postcode of the business, provider or learner (see Table 1). In many cases, however, the data is not suitable for analysis, or not routinely made available, at this geographic level.

Lower layer SOA is generally only used as a building block to aggregate data to higher level geographies. Very few datasets allow for meaningful analysis to be produced by lower layer SOA (there are over 32,000 lower layer SOAs in England). Even where this is possible, significant work may be involved in establishing a suitable method for presentation and in resolving other statistical issues such as avoiding disclosure. Therefore, data may not be fit for purpose at lower layer SOA under National Statistics protocols.

Table 1 provides details of education and skills data collected by, or on behalf of, the Department which includes information by postcode of business, provider or learner. It also provides information on the level of geography which is currently released.

Table 1: Data used by DIUS which could in theory be analysed at lower layer super output area

Data	Collected by	Geographies available
UK Innovation Survey	ONS on behalf of DIUS	Not published below regional level although independent analysts have derived various sub-regional geographies.
Individualised Learner Record (Further Education, Work Based Learning, Train to Gain learner information)	Data Service	Published by parliamentary constituency, local authority, region, England.
Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA) Student Record	HESA	Published by parliamentary constituency, local authority, region, England, UK. Can produce data on Lower and Middle Layer SOAs. This is not generally published although the HESA Information Provision Service can provide this to customers on request.
Student Support Applications from Student Loans Company (SLC) data	SLC	Generally published for England. Some local authority figures can be produced.
Applicants to full-time undergraduate HE courses	Universities and Colleges Admissions Service (UCAS)	Published by parliamentary constituency, local authority, region, England, UK. UCAS has provided SOA level information to organisations (e.g. local authorities) on request and some of those have published reports based on the information.

JUSTICE

Antisocial Behaviour: Fixed Penalties

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what arrangements are in place to verify addresses given by recipients of penalty notices for disorder. [276121]

Mr. Straw: The Government issue operational guidance on the issuing of penalty notices for disorder (PNDs) to police forces under the Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001. This guidance sets out the criteria which should be considered by police officers before issuing PNDs and includes a section on identification, making it clear that a PND may be issued only where sufficient evidence of place of residence exists. The guidance says:

"Accurate identification of suspects and their place of residence are...critical to the effectiveness of the [PND] scheme...address checks must be rigorous" (emphasis in original).

Children: Abuse

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people aged 21 years and over with a previous conviction have been (a) prosecuted and (b) convicted for offences relating to child abuse in each year since 1997. [276187]

Mr. Straw: The information requested is shown in the following table.

Number of offenders aged 21 and over convicted for offences relating to child abuse England and Wales, and the number with previous convictions, 2000 to 2007[1,2,3]

		Number of convictions
		Of which:
	Convictions for offences relating to child abuse[1,2,3]	Number of convictions where the offender had one or more previous convictions for offences of any kind
2000	617	362
2001	554	306
2002	616	340
2003	701	383
2004	808	437
2005	1,012	536
2006	1,143	628
2007	1,175	639

[1] Figures are counts of primary offences only.
[2] An offender convicted on several occasions will appear in the table more than once.
[3] Includes cruelty or neglect of a child; abandoning a child under two years; rape or sexual assault of a child or sexual activity involving a child, under the Sexual Offences Act 2003 (which came into effect on 1 May 2004); causing or allowing the death of a child or vulnerable person (introduced on 21 March 2005).

These figures have been drawn from the police's administrative IT system, the police national computer (PNC), which, as with any large scale recording system, is subject to possible errors with data entry and processing. The figures are provisional and subject to change as more information is recorded by the police. PNC data has been used here rather than court proceedings data, which is the usual source of published conviction statistics, as the PNC provides information on the criminal history of offenders. Figures before 2000 have not been provided as the extract of PNC data held by the Ministry of Justice is incomplete before that date.

Equivalent figures for offenders who have been prosecuted are not available.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what proportion of those aged 21 years or over convicted of offences relating to child abuse received (a) immediate custody, (b) a suspended sentence, (c) a community sentence, (d) a fine, (e) a conditional or absolute discharge and (f) other treatment in each year since 1997. [276231]

Mr. Straw: The requested information is shown in the table, the proportion of those given various disposals is shown as a percentage of those sentenced. Lags in time between conviction and sentencing may mean that the total numbers convicted and sentenced in a year may not match. Data held by the Ministry of Justice record the age of the offender at the time of sentencing, the figures show all offenders aged over 21 and over at that point.

There is no specific offence of 'child abuse'. The term 'child abuse' describes harm caused to a child arising from emotional, physical and sexual abuse or neglect caused by a parent or carer.

The statistics provided in this answer are for those offences currently identified as such, including causing or allowing the death of a child, sexual assaults against under 16s, and cruelty or neglect of a child. Not included are other forms of abuse for which there is no separate legal category, offences where the victim cannot be identified as a child from the type of offence, and cases of abuse which cannot be identified because they were proceeded against under more general offences such as physical assault.

These data are on the principal offence basis. The figures given in the table on court proceedings relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the offence selected is the one for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Children: Protection

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much Francis Plowden will be remunerated for leading the review of the effect of court fees in child protection. [274256]

Mr. Straw: Francis Plowden's remuneration is likely to be approximately £40,000, depending on the total number of days work needed to complete the review.

Convictions: Somalis

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what proportion of criminal convictions were handed down to Somali nationals in the last year for which figures are available. [276255]

Maria Eagle: Information collected centrally by the Ministry of Justice on the Court Proceedings Database does not include nationality of the defendant.

Departmental Assets

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when his Department last reviewed its assets and land and property holdings with a view to identifying and disposing of surpluses. [269865]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice reviews its assets both regularly throughout the year and annually as part of its year end closure. For the year 2008-09 the annual review was completed in early April 2009. The review was not undertaken specifically for the purpose of identifying disposals, but informs the Department's approach to asset management and disposal.

Family Proceedings: Legal Aid

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what impact assessment his Department undertook before taking the decision to reduce the family legal aid budget; and what the outcomes of that assessment were; [273675]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effects on the Department for Children, Schools and Families' long-term expenditure commitments of his Department's decision to reduce the budget for family legal aid; [273663]

(3) what discussions he had with Treasury Ministers before the decision was taken to reduce the family legal aid budget. [273666]

Bridget Prentice: We have not reduced the family legal aid budget. The cost of family legal aid increased by 46 per cent. from £399 million in 2001-02 to £582 million in 2007-08, while the number of funding certificates fell by 11 per cent., from 129,000 to 115,000 over the same period. We clearly stated our intention to make reforms to family fees in 'Legal Aid Reform: The Way Ahead', published in November 2006, following Lord Carter's review of legal aid procurement. The 'Way Ahead' proposals were subject to Cabinet committee clearance and were integral to MOJ's spending review settlement.

My noble Friend Lord Bach announced changes to the Family Graduated Fee Scheme for barristers in February, following a 30 per cent. rise in costs in just five years. The consultation response included a full impact assessment. More recently, the consultation, 'Family Legal Aid Funding from 2010', published by my Department and the Legal Services Commission, closed on 3 April 2009. The Legal Services Commission is currently analysing the responses. The consultation covers two payment schemes, the 'Private Family Law Representation Scheme', and the 'Family Advocacy Scheme', which will cover representation by solicitors and counsel in independent practice. This consultation document included a draft impact assessment.

Our aim is to help as many people as possible within existing resources. In both cases the impact assessments have demonstrated that failing to address the significant increases in fees paid in recent years could risk leading to reductions in services for clients.

Land Registry: Fraud

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many convictions there have been for offences of property title theft in respect of (a) mortgaged, (b) non-mortgaged and (c) vacant properties in each of the last 10 years; [275156]

(2) how many convictions there have been for offences of fraud in relation to property leases in each of the last 10 years; [275157]

(3) how many convictions for offences of property transfer fraud there have been in each of the last 10 years; [275161]

(4) how many convictions for offences of mortgage fraud there have been in each of the last 10 years; [275162]

(5) how many convictions for offences related to property fraud there were in each of the last 10 years. [275168]

Maria Eagle: The number of defendants found guilty at all courts for 'obtaining a property by deception' in England and Wales, for the years 1998 to 2007 is shown in the following table.

The Fraud Act 2006 which was implemented in January 2007 repealed eight sections of the Theft Acts 1968-1996, including section 15 of the Theft Act 1968, Obtaining property by deception.

The statistics provided in this answer are for fraud offences where either the statute or the offence description identifies the fraud as solely relating to either 'property fraud' or 'mortgage fraud'. A number of other fraud offences may include 'property or mortgage fraud', but as the individual circumstances of the offence are not held on the court proceedings database maintained by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform, it is not possible to separately identify them.

These data are on the principal offence basis. The figures given in the table on court proceedings relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the offence selected is the one for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Court proceedings data for 2008 will be available in the autumn of 2009.

The number of defendants found guilty at all courts for offences under the Theft Act 1968 Section 15, in England and Wales, 1998 to 2007[1,2,3,4]

Statute	Offence description	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007[r]
Theft Act 1968 Sec 15	Obtaining property by deception	11,438	11,478	10,430	9,438	9,354	8,457	7,519	6,472	5,080	2,470

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.
[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete.
[3] However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts, and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.
[4] The Fraud Act 2006 repealed S15 of the Theft Act 1968 and was implemented in January 2007.
[5] Staffordshire police force were only able to submit sample data for persons proceeded against and convicted in the magistrates' courts for the year 2000. Although sufficient to estimate higher orders of data, these data are not robust enough at a detailed level and have been excluded from the table.

National Offender Management Information System

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which Minister authorised the appointment of each Senior Responsible Owner of the C-NOMIS project. [276031]

Mr. Straw: Ministers are not normally involved in the appointment of Senior Responsible Owners and this was the case in regards to the C-NOMIS Project and its successor, the NOMIS Programme.

Negligence: NHS

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) in how many legally-aided clinical negligence claims cases the Legal Services Commission was unable to reclaim costs from the NHS Litigation Authority in the last 12 months; [276032]

(2) how many legally-aided clinical negligence claims in 2008 related to incidents in each of the previous 10 years; [276033]

(3) in how many clinical negligence claims the claimant received legal aid in the last year for which information is available. [276034]

Mr. Straw: The Legal Services Commission's case management system, does not record defence organisations. A manual examination of all clinical negligence case files closed in the last 12 months might not identify the NHS Litigation Authority in every instance, and such an exercise could be undertaken only at disproportionate cost.

In 2007-08, 1,926 certificates were issued to take proceedings in clinical negligence cases and 65 per cent. resulted in a substantive benefit to the client with costs recovered. The remaining 2,714 cases were funded up to an investigation stage, without proceedings being issued.

The Legal Services Commission's case management system does not record the date(s) on which an incident took place in clinical negligence cases. A manual examination of all case files closed in 2008 might not reveal the date(s) on which the incident took place in every instance, and such an examination could be undertaken only at disproportionate cost.

3,883 claims for clinical negligence received legal aid funding in the financial year 2008-09.

Offences Against Children: Sentencing

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many offenders aged 21 years or over received (a) immediate custody, (b) a suspended sentence (c) a community sentence, (d) a fine, (e) a conditional or absolute discharge and (f) other treatment for rape or attempted rape of a child under the age of 13 years in each year since 2004. [276444]

Mr. Straw: The available information is shown in the following table.

Figures for year 2008 will be available in autumn 2009.

Data provided relate to offences of rape and attempted rape of a child less than 13 years of age under the Sexual Offences Act 2003 s.5 which commenced for offences committed from 1 May 2004 and replaced what was called prior to that unlawful sexual intercourse with a girl under 13.

Records on offences of rape and attempted rape committed before the new provision came into force do not identify separately children under 13 years from those aged under 16 and therefore they are not included. The increased numbers over the years reflect the transition to the new legislation. As data held by the Ministry of Justice record the age of the offender at the time of sentencing, the figures show all offenders aged over 21 and over at that point.

Rape of a male child under 13 by a male.
Attempted rape of a female child under 13 by a male.
Attempted rape of a male child under 13 by a male.
[3] Introduced by the Criminal Justice Act 2003 came into force on 4 April 2005 and replaced the previous fully suspended sentence. It applies only to persons aged 18 and over.
Notes:
The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. Prison Accommodation

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he plans to take to provide additional prison capacity if his proposed new prisons do not obtain planning permission. [276048]

Mr. Straw: As is normal, we would consider the options available to us in the event we are unable to obtain planning permission for the new prisons.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners in England were held in cells shared with two or more other inmates in 2008. [276257]

Mr. Hanson: On Friday 27 June 2008 2,676 prisoners out of 83,243 were recorded as sharing any accommodation such as cells, rooms, wards and dormitories with two or more people in prisons in England.

The data available does not allow for a breakdown of prisoners sharing by individual accommodation types.

Data on HMP/YOI Ashfield is not held centrally and therefore information relating to this establishment is not included in these figures.

Male Prisoners

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many male prisoners were recategorised as a result of Prison Service Instruction 2008-007. [276036]

Mr. Straw: The information requested is not recorded centrally. To provide this would require the manual examination of individual prisoner records which could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Prisons: Dagenham

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what plans there are for providing emergency service access to the proposed prison at Beam Park West; [276047]

(2) how many prison service vehicles will require access to the Beam Park West site on a daily basis. [276049]

Mr. Straw: Emergency service access to the proposed prison at Beam Park West will be considered during the design process.

This prison would be a closed prison, holding category B or C prisoners. It is not intended that it should hold any category A (high security) prisoners, nor category D prisoners (low security, open prison). However, no decisions have yet been made on the function of the proposed prison. We are therefore currently unable to estimate how many HMPS vehicles will require access to the site each day.

Prior to the submission of planning permission, a public exhibition will be held detailing the proposals.

Remand Centres

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which premises in each primary care trust area have been approved for holding those on remand. [276019]

Stannary Law

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer of 29 March 2007, Official Report, column 1673, on politics and government: South West region, whether any parts of Stannary Law still exist as part of the law of England and Wales. [276568]

Mr. Wills: The body of Stannary customary law has not been systematically repealed. It is likely however that such customary law has been superseded by modern legislation. There were also provisions in 19th century primary legislation relating to the stannaries, but these have largely been repealed.

Voting Methods

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what discussions he has had with (a) the European Commission and (b) his European counterparts in other EU member states on voting methods for Parliamentary and local government elections in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [276176]

Mr. Wills: Neither the Secretary of State nor I have held any discussions with either the European Commission or our counterparts in other EU member states on methods of voting for parliamentary and local government elections in the UK.

Young Offenders

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many of those aged under 18 years were sentenced for (a) drug offences and (b) criminal damage in each year since 1997. [276228]

Mr. Straw: The information requested is shown in the table:

Offenders aged under 18 sentenced for drug offences or criminal damage at all courts, 1997 to 2007

	Offence type
	Criminal damage	Drug offences
1997	2,255	1,845
1998	2,290	2,748
1999	2,682	3,107
2000	2,576	3,739
2001	2,897	4,342
2002	2,908	4,958

2005	3,274	4,626
2006	3,678	4,460
2007	3,623	5,263

Notes:
1. These data are based on the principle offence. Where an offender has been sentenced for more than one offence the principle offence is the one for which the heaviest sentence was imposed; where the same sentence has been imposed for two or more offences the principle offence is the one for which the statutory maximum is most severe.
2. These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems.
3. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system.

Young Offenders: Crime Prevention

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much the Youth Justice Board allocated to preventive programmes in each year since 1999. [276227]

Mr. Straw: Information from the Youth Justice Board shows that they allocated the following sums for programmes working to prevent offending and antisocial behaviour by young people.

	£ million
1999-2000	1
2000-01	6
2001-02	8
2002-03	18
2003-04	10
2004-05	10
2005-06	13
2006-07	26
2007-08	38
2008-09	36

Note:
Figures are all rounded to the nearest million pounds

These programmes include Youth Inclusion and Support Panels, Youth Inclusion Programmes, Safer Schools Partnerships, Splash Cymru, work to prevent antisocial behaviour (including Individual Support Order interventions) and parenting provision.

The figures do not include funding for the Youth Justice Board programmes for reducing reoffending such as the Intensive Supervision and Surveillance programme and Intensive Fostering.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Children: Databases

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the data fields on the ContactPoint database are; and if he will make a statement. [268459]

Beverley Hughes: The data fields in ContactPoint contain information supplied by each data source. The data sources are listed in schedules 4 and 5 of the ContactPoint regulations and section 12(9) of the Children Act 2004. Some fields can hold multiple entries; for example where two addresses are known. Every ContactPoint record is made up of the information from each supplying source. The data fields listed here are collected from these data sources.

Contact details of the practitioner who has completed the most recent assessment under the Common Assessment Framework (if any).

Citizenship: Education

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what assessment has been made of the effectiveness of training for teachers on the teaching of citizenship in the last three years; [275907]

(2) whether any recent assessment has been made of the consistency of the standard of citizenship education in schools; [275912]

(3) what steps have been taken to improve the teaching of citizenship in secondary schools following the finding by Ofsted in September 2006 that one in four secondary schools failed to offer pupils adequate citizenship teaching; [275913]

(4) what recent assessment he has made of the quality of teaching of citizenship in schools; and what steps he is taking to improve the standard of such teaching; [275925]

(5) what steps his Department has taken in response to the finding in the February 2005 Ofsted Report, Citizenship in Secondary Schools: Evidence from Ofsted Inspections that the provision of citizenship education was unsatisfactory in one in four schools. [276495]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Government are committed to providing high quality training for teachers of citizenship.

In 2006, we introduced a nationally funded programme of continuing professional development for teachers, including a 'Certificate in the Teaching of Citizenship', which is available to all citizenship teachers.

The certificate is designed to help serving teachers improve their knowledge, skills and understanding of the citizenship curriculum Ofsted has recently evaluated the national CPD programme. Its report, published in February 2009 commented on the high quality of the training, but noted a shortfall in recruitment. We have appointed the university of Plymouth, a specialist provider of Citizenship education, to develop and promote improved take up of the programme better to meet the needs of teachers and schools.

Ofsted's next report on Citizenship as a subject is due to be published in the autumn.

A three-year package of support for the effective implementation of the new secondary curriculum, including Citizenship, has been made available to all secondary schools from September 2008.

The Training and Development Agency TDA has designed a Self-Evaluation for providers of initial teacher training (ITT) courses. Information from providers' self-evaluation, including those offering the Citizenship postgraduate certificate in education (PGCE), is used to inform Ofsted inspections.

13 Higher Education Institutions provide secondary Citizenship ITT. 11 of these have been categorised as good or very good by Ofsted.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what training is available for (a) primary and (b) secondary school teachers on the teaching of citizenship; [275908]

(2) what plans he has to encourage the recruitment of specialist trained citizenship teachers by secondary schools; [275926]

(3) what guidance his Department gives to local authorities on (a) the recruitment of specialist trained citizenship teachers by secondary schools and (b) specialist training for secondary school teachers in the teaching of citizenship. [275927]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Since the introduction of citizenship education in 2002, over 800 teachers have completed initial teacher training courses to become specialist citizenship teachers. We have maintained the number of places available for citizenship secondary initial teacher training, for 2009/10 academic year, despite the decline in the number of pupils in schools. In primary initial teacher training, Citizenship is addressed as part of the full spectrum of the primary curriculum. The Training and Development Agency for Schools (TDA) also supports the quality of Citizenship ITT by providing access to specialist subject knowledge for ITT tutors, mentors and trainees.

The Department has funded, since 2006, the national Citizenship continuing professional development (CPD) programme designed to help teachers deepen and broaden their knowledge and confidence in delivering the citizenship curriculum effectively.

The TDA is also supporting the continuing professional development of citizenship teachers by enabling them to identify appropriate training and development. They are currently piloting a CPD database—designed to be a first port of call for anyone looking for CPD opportunities, from teachers and support staff to those who search for CPD on their behalf, such as CPD leaders and local authority coordinators.

The Department does not provide guidance on the recruitment or training of Citizenship teachers.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps have been taken to ensure effective teaching of the Identity and Diversity: Living Together in the UK strand of citizenship education in all secondary schools. [275911]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: We have strengthened citizenship education to ensure that young people explore their own identity and issues around diversity. Schools are encouraged to embed citizenship across the school and to integrate themes such as cultural diversity in all subjects. A three-year package of support for the effective implementation of the new secondary curriculum, including the new Identity and Diversity strand of the Citizenship curriculum, has been made available to all secondary schools from September 2008.

Last year, the Department supported a project to develop identity and diversity resources for schools to help them to develop this aspect of the curriculum by taking part in "Who Do We Think We Are" week. The week, which took place in June 2008, encouraged schools to help their pupils to explore shared values and what it means for different religions, cultures and ethnicities to live together in an inclusive British society. Around 500 schools across the country took part in the project and we are encouraging all schools, to participate in the "Who Do We Think We Are" week in June 2009.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what guidance his Department provides to maintained faith schools on the teaching of citizenship; [275914]

(2) what proportion of maintained faith schools teach citizenship. [275915]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Citizenship is part of the statutory national curriculum for secondary schools. All maintained secondary schools, including maintained faith schools, are required to teach the issues set out in the key stage 3 and 4 programmes of study.

The Department does not provide guidance on teaching Citizenship, but the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) provides a range of guidance on all curriculum subjects, including Citizenship, to support schools.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many written pieces of guidance to schools were issued by his Department in each of the last nine years. [276510]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The information requested by the hon. Member was provided on 28 April 2008, Official Report, column 181W, and remains unchanged.

Departmental Reviews

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) review and (b) taskforce projects his Department has commissioned in each of the last five years; what the purpose of each such project is; when each such project (i) began and (ii) was completed; what the cost of each such project was; and if he will make a statement. [275976]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The requested details of review and taskforce projects commissioned by the Department and its predecessor cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate cost.

Departmental Stationery

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department and its predecessors spent on the purchase of (a) recycled office supplies in the last 12 months and (b) printer ink cartridges in each of the last five years. [274207]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) was created as a result of the Machinery of Government changes in June 2007. Prior to June 2007, it was Department for Education and Skills (DFES). The spend figures are from office supplies purchased via the Department's contract with Banner Business Services (BBS) in the last five years was as follows:

	Recycled office supplies	Printer Ink Cartridges
2008-09	74,277	34,845
2007-08	141,081	141,731
2006-07	17,348	27,217
2005-06	[1]	[1]
2004-05	[1]	[1]

[1] Only available at disproportionate costs

The figures for 2004-05 and 2005-06 have been archived by the contractor and can only be obtained at disproportionate costs.

The figures since June 2007 also includes a portion of spend for Department for Universities and Skills DIUS (former DFES staff only). To separate this data would involve disproportionate cost.

The figures for printer ink cartridges also include remanufactured products.

Industrial Health and Safety

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department and its predecessors spent on compliance with requirements of health and safety at work legislation in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [274548]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: It is not possible to separately identify what the Department spends on health and safety compliance. The management of health and safety in the Department involves a number of differing elements, each of which forms part of a wider service function.

Primary Education: St Albans

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent assessment his Department has made of the potential to increase the number of primary school places in central St Albans; and if he will make a statement. [276363]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department has not made any assessment of the potential to increase the number of primary school places in central St. Albans. That is the local authority's role. Hertfordshire local authority is responsible for planning school places in St. Albans. It is under a duty to ensure sufficient school places are available to meet local needs.

Pupils: Nationality

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what information his Department collects on the nationality of pupils in schools. [276436]

Jim Knight: The Department does not collect information on the nationality of pupils in schools.

Young People: Voluntary Work

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 11 May 2009, Official Report, columns 598-9W, on young people: voluntary work, what criteria will apply in the selection of local authorities to pilot options to increase the proportion of young people participating in community service. [276180]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: We envisage running the pilots with local authorities (LAs) in partnership with their secondary schools, the voluntary and community sector in their areas and with relevant agencies. Criteria for selection will include evidence that schools are keen to take part, evidence of the existing level of community service among 14 to 16-year-olds and the prospects for building on that to create a universal expectation and credible plans for involving young people in designing the local arrangements for community service.

Schools: Bullying

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many students were suspended from schools following racist incidents in (a) Leicester City local education authority and (b) England in each of the last five years. [273582]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The available information on the number of fixed period exclusions (not the number of students) where the reason for exclusion is "racist abuse" is shown in the following tables. This is the only reason for exclusion that relates specifically to racism; however, racist incidents could be included in other categories, such as "physical assault against a pupil". A pupil can be excluded more than once and these can be for different reasons.

Reasons for exclusions were recorded for the first time in 2003/04, and the most recent year available is 2006/07; information for 2007/08 is scheduled to be published in the summer. Data collected in 2003/04 and 2004/05 via the Termly Exclusions Survey did not include non-maintained special schools; data collected in 2006/07 via the School Census included both maintained and non-maintained special schools. This difference in scope and the change in collection mechanism mean that caution is needed when comparing results from the two sources. In 2005/06, data on fixed period exclusions were collected from secondary schools only.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Asylum

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applications within the Legacy Directorate programme have yet to be processed; and what her latest assessment is of performance under the programme. [276161]

Mr. Woolas: As of 9 January the UK Border Agency had concluded 155,500 older asylum cases. The previous Home Secretary informed Parliament in July 2006 of "the Immigration and Nationality Directorate's case load of around 400,000 to 450,000 electronic and paper records". These documents are riddled with duplication and errors, and include cases of individuals who have since died or left the country, or are now EU citizens. It is, therefore, not possible to provide an accurate assessment of how many cases are yet to be processed. The Chief Executive of the Agency will update the Home Affairs Select Committee on case conclusion performance in the summer.

Asylum: Bahrain

Mr. Purchase: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 23 April 2009, Official Report, column 850W, on asylum: Bahrain, what sources of information about Bahrain were used in assessing the applications for asylum of (a) Abdul Raouf Shayeb and (b) Musa Abd Ali Mohammed, in the absence of UK Border Agency country specific guidance. [273800]

Mr. Woolas: Information from individual records is confidential and cannot be disclosed to a third party without the authority of the individuals concerned. In the absence of specific country guidance, UK Border Agency case owners have access to country of origin (COI) information produced by the Home Office COI Service from a wide range of reliable external information sources including the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, human rights organisations, inter-governmental organisations, non-governmental organisations such as Amnesty International, news media and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO).

Borders: Security

Mr. Plaskitt: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many IRIS machines are installed at UK borders; how many were working throughout the first three months of 2009; how many instances of equipment failure have been recorded since the installation of these machines; and how many people have registered on the IRIS system. [274297]

Mr. Woolas: There are 12 IRIS machines in operation at 10 airport terminals: Heathrow terminals 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5; Manchester terminals 1 and 2; Birmingham terminal 1 and Gatwick North and South.

The recorded barrier availability figures for the first three months of 2009 are:

	Percentage availability
January	97.31
February	98.02
March	98.90

It is not possible to isolate the number of instances of equipment failure from other faults. However, between January 2008 and March 2009, the overall availability of the IRIS system has been 95.36 per cent.

The number of passenger crossings has now reached the 2 million milestone. To date, 299,975 people have enrolled on the IRIS system.

Crime Prevention

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what timetable she has set for introduction of public service agreements on (a) making communities safer and (b) reducing the harm caused by alcohol and drugs. [273030]

Jacqui Smith: The delivery agreements for the public service agreements (PSA) for the Comprehensive Spending Review 2007 were published by HM Treasury in October 2007 and came into effect in March 2008. This included a PSA for making communities safer and reducing the harm caused by alcohol and drugs.

Progress towards delivery is reported annually in the Departmental Annual Report and the Autumn Performance Report.

Departmental Pay

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff employed in London on work contracted out by her Department earn less than £7.45 per hour. [275177]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 13 May 2009]: We do not hold the information requested. The pay received by temporary staff and other contractors engaged in London and elsewhere through supply agencies is a matter between the suppliers and their employees, subject to employment laws.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much (a) her Department and (b) its agencies paid in end-of-year performance bonuses to (i) all staff and (ii) senior Civil Service staff in 2008-09; and how many such payments were made. [275253]

Mr. Woolas: In the Home Office HQ and the UK Border Agency, non-consolidated performance related payments are awarded to individuals at Grade 6 and below who have made an exceptional contribution throughout the year. Under the current arrangements up to 35 per cent. of staff in these grades may receive a non-consolidated performance related payment. The total amount paid to staff in 2008-09 was £3,486,925 and the number of payments made was 6,036 (relating to staff performance for the year 2007-08). The total pay bill was c.£750 million, of which 0.5 per cent. was used for non-consolidated performance payments to staff.

Staff in the Identity and Passport Service (IPS) can receive end of year corporate non-consolidated performance related payments and change agent payments (for Grade 6 and 7's only). The total amount paid to staff in 2008-09 was £1,537,113 and the number of payments made was 4,054 (relating to staff performance for the year 2007-08). The total pay bill was £103,690,330 of which 1.48 per cent. was used for non-consolidated performance payments.

Staff in the Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) do not receive end of year performance related payments.

The criteria for awarding senior civil servants with end of year non-consolidated performance payments are set by the Prime Minister following independent advice from the Senior Salaries Review Body (SSRB). The level of these payments takes into account a number of factors including individual performance against agreed priority business objectives and targets. The total amount paid to SCS staff in the Home Office and its Agencies in 2008-09 was £1,264,000 and the number of payments made was 128 (relating to staff performance for the year 2007-08). The total pay bill was £14,330,946 of which 8.6 per cent. was used for non-consolidated performance payments. The Government have responded to current economic conditions by freezing the size of the SCS non-consolidated pot (for 2008-09).

All such non-consolidated performance related payments in the Home Office and its agencies are funded within existing pay bill controls, have to be re-earned each year against pre-determined performance standards and targets and, as such, do not add to future pay bill costs.

Departmental Stationery

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department spent on the purchase of (a) recycled office supplies in the last 12 months and (b) printer ink cartridges in each of the last five years. [274577]

Mr. Woolas: The information is as follows.

(a) All available information for the last 12 months is set out as follows:

Product type	Cost (£)
Paper products April 2008-March 2009	644,000
General stationery June 2008-April 2009	137,716
Computer consumables June 2008-January 2009	611,333

(b) The requested information is not held centrally in the Home Office and cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate cost.

Deportation

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her policy is on the deportation of women to countries where forced genital mutilation is practised. [274003]

Mr. Woolas: UKBA may enforce the removal of any individual whose claim to remain in the UK has failed.

An individual makes a claim to remain in the UK, setting out the reasons for their claim, including any fear of genital mutilation. That claim is considered in full and a decision is made as to whether the individual would qualify for refugee status or humanitarian protection because of a well-founded fear that she will be subjected to female genital mutilation on her return to the country of origin, and there is evidence that this practice is knowingly tolerated by the authorities or they are unable to offer effective protection, and that there is no reasonable possibility that she would be able to avoid the threat by moving elsewhere within the country.

If this claim is refused and the courts do not uphold any appeal against such a decision the individual will be expected to leave the United Kingdom. If she does not do so voluntarily we will seek to enforce return.

Detection Rates

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on what date her Department's public service agreement target in relation to detections will be amended to provide that minor crimes will no longer count towards the target. [272991]

Jacqui Smith: There is no public service agreement target on police detections.

Public Service Agreement 24, that came into effect in March 2008, seeks the efficiency and effectiveness of the Criminal Justice System in bringing offences to justice by improving Criminal Justice System performance in bringing serious violent, serious sexual and serious acquisitive offences to justice.

Dual Nationality

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many British passport holders also hold Pakistani nationality. [272916]

Mr. Woolas: The information requested is not available.

Although applicants for British passports who have registered or naturalised are required to send in a registration or naturalisation certificate with their application, including any foreign passports held, these are returned after identity has been confirmed and no statistical record is kept of their country of origin or previous nationality.

Foreign Workers: Health Services

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the effects of the implementation of the points-based immigration system on the employment of foreign nationals as nurses in the NHS. [275060]

Mr. Woolas: The UK Border Agency has worked closely with the Department of Health and external stakeholders in the sector, including NHS Employers, throughout the development of the Points Based System (PBS). Where vacancies for nurses exist which cannot be filled by workers from within the European economic area (EEA), NHS trusts that are licensed sponsors under Tier 2 of the PBS are able to bring nurses to the UK to fill these posts. Some specialist nursing posts have been included on the Government's shortage occupation list.

Human Trafficking

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions she has had with the airline industry on responsibility for the cost of returning to their country of origin persons trafficked by air into the UK. [275296]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 14 May 2009]: There are no specific arrangements for assigning responsibility of the costs of returning trafficking victims to their country of origin. I am not aware that this has been raised as an issue by the airline industry. It is our policy to encourage voluntary returns wherever possible, which in most cases would not result in a cost being incurred by a carrier.

Identity Cards: Foreigners

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many identity cards had been issued to non-EEA foreign nationals who are subject to immigration control on the latest date for which figures are available. [269226]

Jacqui Smith: As of the end of April 2009, the UK Border Agency had issued over 34,120 identity cards for foreign nationals.

Identity Cards: Greater Manchester

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the rate at which voluntary take up of identity cards will occur under the Manchester pilot. [274195]

Mr. Woolas: No estimates have been made of the rate of voluntary take up of identity cards for the Manchester roll-out.

The take up in Manchester will provide an indication of the likely rate of take up to inform further roll out strategy for the National Identity Service.

Immigration Controls

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many appeals were made by applicants under the Highly-Skilled Migrants programme where applications were refused because their savings fell below the required level; and how many such appeals were successful in each year that the scheme has operated. [272237]

Mr. Woolas: The information requested is not available for either in country appeals or out of country administrative reviews. This is because the UK Border Agency's Case Information Database is unable to extract data on the specific reasons why an application is initially refused. This information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost by the examination of a large number of individual case files.

Offenders: Deportation

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many of the 5,589 suspected immigration offenders arrested in 2007-08 have subsequently been (a) charged, (b) convicted and (c) deported. [273738]

Mr. Woolas: The UK Border Agency records details of the number of individuals arrested as suspected immigration offenders, details of prosecutions, and the details of those removed on three separate systems. In order to achieve the required level of data quality, the cross-referencing of data between the three systems could only completed by the detailed examination of individual case records at disproportionate cost.

The Home Office publishes statistics on the number of persons removed and departed voluntarily from the UK on a quarterly and annual basis, as well as statistics on persons proceeded against for offences under Immigration Acts in England and Wales annually. National Statistics on immigration and asylum are placed in the Library of the House and are available from the Home Office's Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration-asylum-stats.html

It should be noted, however, that the UK Border Agency would normally seek to remove an individual under such circumstances, rather than to prosecute them, as the former presents a more cost effective alternative.

Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects to publish the next statistical bulletin on the operation of certain powers under the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984. [274718]

Mr. Coaker: The latest publication, "Police Powers and Procedures, England and Wales 2007/08", was published on 30 April 2009.

Chapter 2 contains statistics on stops and searches and certain other powers under the Police and Criminal Evidence Act.

The bulletin can be accessed from the following link:

www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs09/hosb0709.pdf

Publication of the 2008-09 bulletin is expected be within the next 12 months but a date has not yet been announced.

Police Custody: Death

Mr. Meacher: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what persons in respect of which any inquests and other legal proceedings have been concluded have died in police custody since 1990; what the (a) date, (b) place and (c) cause of each death was; and what the coroner's verdict was in each case where there was an inquest. [274434]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 11 May 2009]: The Home Office was responsible for publishing statistics relating to death following police contact which included date, place, cause of death and the verdict from any coroner's inquest until 31 March 2004. Since 1 April 2004 the Independent Police Complaints Commission has been responsible for the collation and publication of such data.

The statistics between 1990-2000 are contained within Police Complaints and Discipline Bulletins and separately from 1997 on the Home Office and IPCC websites.

Links are as follows:

From 1990:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/hosbarchive.html

From 1997:

http://police.homeoffice.gov.uk/publications/operational-policing/deaths-in-police-custody

And from 1 April 2004:

http://wwwiipcc.gov.uk/index/resources/research/reports_policustody.htm

Police: Complaints

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what funding she plans to provide to the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) in each of the next three years; what discussions she has had with the IPCC on its future funding since January 2009; and if she will make a statement. [273867]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office is providing funding of £36.7 million to the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) for 2009-10. This includes funding for its remit in respect of serious complaints made against staff of the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA). In addition, the IPCC also receives funding from the UK Border Agency, and HM Revenue and Customs to fund its complaints investigation work in respect of those organisations.

Funding levels for future years have not yet been determined. The Home Office works closely with the IPCC to review its financial position and its performance on a regular basis to ensure that it can continue to deliver its statutory role and that it is making best use of its resources.

Police: Essex

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many (a) police officers and (b) civilian staff of each (i) age group and (ii) sex were employed by Essex police in (A) 2007, (B) 2008 and (C) 2009 to date; [275588]

(2) how many (a) police officers and (b) civilian staff were employed by Essex Police Authority in (i) 2007, (ii) 2008 and (iii) to date in 2009, broken down by (A) age and (B) sex. [275603]

Mr. Coaker: The information collected centrally shows the number of police officers and civilian staff employed by Essex police on 31 March 2007 and 31 March 2008, broken down by four age groups (25 and under; 26 to 40; 41 to 55; and over 55) and sex. It is shown in the following table. Corresponding figures for 31 March 2009 will be available when the National Statistics bulletin Police Service Personnel, England and Wales, 31 March 2009, is published on 23 July 2009.

Separate figures for officers and staff employed by Essex police authority are not collected centrally.

Number of police officers and staff employed by Essex police: 2007-08

	Age group (HC)					Gender (FTE)
	25 and under	25-40	41-55	Over 55	Total (HC)[1]	Male	Female	Total (FTE)[1]

Police staff[2]	391	802	954	594	2741	989	1512	2501

[1] Age group figures presented in terms of head-count (HC) as the more commonly used full time equivalent (FTE) measures not collected.
[2] Police staff figures include police community support officers, designated officers and traffic wardens.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) police officers and (b) operational police officers per head of population there are in Essex Police; what recent discussions she has had with the chief constable of Essex police on this issue; and if she will make a statement. [275589]

Mr. Coaker: Latest available figures for police officers and operational police officers per head of population as at 31 March 2008 are shown in the following table. Deployment is not an issue that we would discuss. It is for the chief constable and the Essex Police Authority to reach decisions on the allocation of resources. We understand from the chief constable that over the next three to five years Operation Apex will increase the number of police officers by around 600.

Number of officers and operational officers employed by Essex police on 31 March 2008

	Number (full-time equivalent)	Rate per 100,000 population
Total police officers	3,385	203

Number of officers and operational officers employed by Essex police on 31 March 2008

	Number (full-time equivalent)	Rate per 100,000 population
Of which:
Operational police officers[1]	3,265	196

[1] Any officer whose primary role (i.e. over 50 per cent. of their time) is directly to deliver the overarching aims of the police service.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she next plans to visit Essex Police Authority area; and if she will make a statement. [275590]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Secretary has no current plans to visit Essex, having visited the force in November last year. I visited Colchester in April this year.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when representatives of her Department last visited Essex Police Authority area; what issues were discussed; and if she will make a statement. [275592]

Mr. Coaker: I visited Essex on 9 April this year, while there I saw the SOS bus and visited Colchester police station.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions representatives of her Department have had with representatives of Essex Police Authority since December 2008 on the release of information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000; and if she will make a statement. [275593]

Mr. Coaker: There have been no conversations between Home Office Ministers or officials and Essex police authority on the release of information under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 since December 2008.

Police: Information and Communications Technology

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on how many and what proportion of police authority computers malware was detected in 2008. [275391]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not held centrally by the Home Office.

Police: Powers

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 23 February 2009, Official Report, columns 7-8WS, on policing: publication of reports by Sir David Normington and Jan Berry, what steps her Department is taking to review charging procedures to help police use their discretion more. [272985]

Jacqui Smith: The Home Office is committed to returning discretion to police forces and frontline officers by streamlining performance management, reducing bureaucracy, and improving supervision at all levels of the service.

Sir David Normington's review set out how the Home Office will reduce burdens on police forces by removing or reducing the amount of information we collect from them, thus allowing police forces to spend less time filling out paperwork for the centre.

Jan Berry, the Reducing Bureaucracy Advocate, was appointed to help us cut the bureaucracy coming out of Whitehall and to challenge both Government and the service itself to make further reductions in unnecessary bureaucracy. Along with a reference group comprising frontline police officers and support staff she has been analysing common procedures undertaken by frontline officers and staff with a view to reducing the bureaucracy involved.

One of the areas that she has been looking at is the custody process, including charging practices. As I announced at the Police Federation Conference on 13 May, Jan Berry is now working with the Director of Public Prosecutions and the Attorney General on the scope for streamlining the charging process so that the police get the best possible service and a quicker turnaround on decisions from the Crown Prosecution Service, and that police officers receive the appropriate advice to enable them to use their discretion confidently in making charging decisions.

Police: Standards

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the (a) status and (b) delivery timetable is of the National Policing Improvement Agency's project to (i) create a common operating environment for police officers and (ii) create innovative information services for citizens and partners of police forces. [273020]

Jacqui Smith: Following a commission from the National Policing Board, the National Policing Improvement Agency has established the Information Systems Improvement Strategy (ISIS). This programme of work will create both a common operating environment for officers and innovative information services. The ISIS programme is scheduled to be completed in 2015.

The programme's focus for 2009-10 includes:

Delivery of a national crime mapping solution by September 2009

New national procurement agreements that will deliver cost savings

Working with police forces to develop a new digital evidence strategy that will contribute to improvements across the criminal justice system.

The ISIS plan for 2009-10 will shortly be published and distributed to police forces and police authorities and the programme will report on progress to myself and the National Policing Board in June.

Police: Stun Guns

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the written ministerial statement of 24 November 2008, Official Report, columns 37-8W, on Tasers, how many Tasers each police force has; and how much expenditure her Department has incurred in supplying Tasers to each police force in the last 12 months. [273525]

Mr. Coaker: Taser has been available for use by authorised firearms officers in all forces since 2004. At 31 March 2008, there were 6,780 authorised firearms officers in England and Wales.

In extending the use of Taser to specially trained units the Home Office has so far provided £8 million to the National Policing Improvement Agency to support the purchase of 7,000 Tasers which have been distributed to force. The breakdown by force is in the following table.

Police force	Tasers requested and provided

UK Border Agency: Disciplinary Proceedings

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many staff of the UK Border Agency were (a) investigated, (b) disciplined and (c) removed from duty in 2008. [271368]

Mr. Woolas: The following figures relate to the calendar year 2008.

	Number
(a) Staff investigated	394
(b) Staff disciplined	176
(c) Staff removed from duty:
(i) Suspended	64
(ii) Dismissed	91

Notes.
1. This does not include attendance management and performance management related figures.
2. The figures for 'removed from duty' include 64 staff who were suspended and 91 who were dismissed. The dismissed figure is not included in the 'staff disciplined' category.
3. Out of the 64 staff suspended, some staff were subsequently dismissed and are included in the 'dismissed' figures. The remaining staff either received a disciplinary outcome less than dismissal e.g. first formal warning, final formal warning and penalty short of dismissal or are still on suspension pending the outcome of the investigation.

United Kingdom Human Trafficking Centre

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the budget of the UK Human Trafficking Centre was in each of the last three financial years. [272046]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 30 April 2009]: The budget for the UK Human Trafficking Centre for the last three years is as follows:

2007-08	834,000
2008-09	1.7 million
2009-10	1.6 million

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Departmental ICT

John Thurso: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps he has taken to reduce the levels of carbon dioxide emissions arising from the operation of ICT systems in his Department under the Greening Government ICT Strategy. [273554]

Ian Pearson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my right hon. Friend the Minister for Employment Relations and Postal Affairs gave on 21 April 2009, Official Report, column 522W, to the hon. Member for Cardiff, Central (Jenny Willott).

Departmental Responsibilities

John Penrose: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) which Minister has responsibility for the Energy and Climate Change Unit in his Department; [276290]

(2) when he expects the Energy and Climate Change Unit's administration budget for 2009-10 to be finalised. [276291]

Ian Pearson: I am the Minister responsible for the Unit but it provides support to all Ministers within the Department. The administration budget for 2009-10 for the Unit is expected to be finalised by the end of June.

LDV: Birmingham

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what discussions the Secretary of State has had with LDV on restarting production at its plant in Birmingham. [275148]

Ian Pearson: None. I deal with matters relating to LDV.

Parliamentary Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Andrew Turner: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when he plans to answer Question 264097, tabled on 16 March 2009 on complaints on handling of requests for mobile telephone service cancellations. [271613]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 28 April 2009]: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my right hon. Friend the Minister for Employment Relations and Postal Affairs gave on 11 May 2009, Official Report, column 560W.

Regional Development Agencies

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of the regional development agencies in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09. [271275]

Ian Pearson: The RDAs expenditure in 2007-08 was £2,265 million and in 2008-09 expenditure is forecasted (subject to audit) at £2,179 million. This expenditure takes account of the cost of delivery for various programmes (e.g. Business Links) and of administration. These figures do not include EU programme monies associated with ERDF and RDPE.

Small Businesses: Government Assistance

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many small businesses have applied for a loan through the Enterprise Finance Guarantee scheme since its creation; what criteria are used by his Department on deciding suitability for a loan under the scheme; under what circumstances such a loan would be refused; how many applications have been (a) accepted and (b) refused; what the average loan was; whether interest is charged on each loan; how much has been allocated by his Department to the scheme; and if he will make a statement. [259063]

Ian Pearson: The Enterprise Finance Guarantee (EFG) came in to operation on 14 January. A 75 per cent. Government guarantee for loans will support bank lending of three months to 10 year maturity. Eligible businesses should have a turnover of up to £25million. The scheme will enable them to secure loans of between £1,000 and £1 million through the Government guarantee. The scheme can also be used to convert an existing overdraft into a loan, enabling small and medium sized enterprises (SMEs) to use these overdraft facilities to meet working capital demands. A Premium of 2 per cent. per annum (1.5 per cent. during 2009) on the outstanding balance of the loan is also payable to BERR, in addition to the loan repayments and any interest set and charged by the lender.

Decisions on individual lending rests with the lender, whose decision will follow a commercial assessment of the viability of the proposition and the ability to service the loan and other charges, the suitability of EFG as opposed to lender's other commercial lending products, and the EFG eligibility criteria (including sector restrictions as detailed on the BERR website).

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Civil Service Reform

8. Paul Rowen: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what recent discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Justice on proposals for reform of the civil service to be contained in legislation on constitutional reform. [276402]

Mr. Byrne: The Government continues to develop its proposals on constitutional renewal, including those for the civil service.

Charities

9. Julie Morgan: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what steps he plans to take to assist charities in the current economic situation. [276404]

Kevin Brennan: In addition to "Real Help for Communities" we will shortly be announcing details of the £16.7 million fund announced in the Budget to help third sector organisations facing hardship as a result of the global economic crisis.

I am continuing to listen to the sector, for example, by co-chairing a follow-up recession summit with that National Council for Voluntary Organisations on 10 June, to understand the ongoing effects of the recession.

Voter Registration

10. Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what data the Office for National Statistics gathers on the level of voter registration. [276405]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 20 May 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your question asking what data the Office for National Statistics gathers on the level of voter registration. (276405)

The Office for National Statistics collects annual counts of the number of people who are registered to vote - in Parliamentary, European and Local Government Elections - from Electoral Registration Officers in each local authority in England and Wales.

In Scotland the counts of registered voters are collated by the General Register Office for Scotland (GROS). In Northern Ireland the counts are collected by the Electoral Office for Northern Ireland (EONI).

The Office for National Statistics collates all these data to produce annual Electoral Statistics for the UK by Parliamentary Constituency and Local Authority.

ONS also produces annual estimates of the mid-year resident population of the UK. These figures can be compared to annual estimates of the mid-year resident population to provide an approximation to voter registration rates.

This is not a precise figure for voter registration rates because not everybody who is usually resident is entitled to vote and on the other hand some people may be registered in more than one area (e.g. some people with more than one address).

Charities: Government Assistance

Dan Norris: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what financial and other support his Department is giving to charities during the economic downturn. [276395]

Kevin Brennan: Up to £42.5 million was announced in "Real Help for Communities" in February; a £16.7 million Hardship fund was announced in the Budget, as well as a £1.2 billion jobs fund which the third sector will be able to access.

Civil Servants: Codes of Practice

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what changes have been made to the Civil Service Management Code provisions on (a) blogging and use of social media by civil servants, (b) guidance on access to papers of a previous administration and (c) civil servants publishing memoirs in the last six months. [271964]

Mr. Watson: The "Civil Service Management Code" has been revised to reflect updated rules for civil servants on the publication of memoirs, and to provide a link to guidance for civil servants' on their participation in social media and on-line activity. The guidance on access to papers of a previous administration has not been revised, but the "Code" text covering this issue has been shortened and now links to further guidance in the "Directory of Civil Service Guidance".

A copy of the "Civil Service Management Code" can be found in the Library of the House and online at:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/Assets/CSMC_April08_tcm6-3222_new_tcm6-6433.doc

Civil Servants: Vacancies

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many and what proportion of (a) central government and (b) Civil Service vacancies were advertised via the public and private parts of the Civil Service Recruitment Gateway in the last year for which figures are available. [271965]

Mr. Watson: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer I gave on 17 March 2009, Official Report, columns 1057-1058W. In the past 12 months, 47 per cent. of all Civil Service vacancies were advertised internally online and 53 per cent. were advertised externally online to the general public.

Civil Service: Recruitment

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what criteria the (a) Cabinet Office, (b) Government Communications Network and (c) the Central Office of Information uses to determine whether a job is advertised (i) publicly on the Civil Service Recruitment Gateway external site, (ii) the Civil Service Recruitment Gateway internal site and (iii) internally only. [269949]

Mr. Watson: Civil service recruitment follows the Civil Service Commissioners' Recruitment Principles.

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what guidance the Civil Service Commissioners have issued on the circumstances in which Civil Service vacancies are advertised to the general public. [269950]

Mr. Watson: It is for departments to determine the route for filling their vacancies.

Selection for appointment to the Civil Service is required to be on merit on the basis of fair and open competition. The Civil Service Commissioners' Recruitment Principles provide detail on how the Commissioners interpret this requirement, which must be followed by departments.

A copy of the Civil Service Commissioners Report can be found in the House of Commons Library or at:

www.civilservicecommissioners.org.

Departmental Air Travel

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many (a) officials of each grade and (b) special advisers in 10 Downing Street have flown with British Airways on official business in each month since June 2007; what the (i) destination and (ii) cost of the ticket was in each case; what policy governs the use of British Airways by officials in 10 Downing Street; and if he will make a statement. [270554]

Kevin Brennan: For the purposes of this answer, the Prime Minister's Office is part of the Cabinet Office.

The Cabinet Office does not hold a breakdown of the information required since June 2007.

Cabinet Office policy requires officials to use the most cost effective class of air travel appropriate to the business need which takes account of the level of work that needs to be done during the flight and the importance of minimising fatigue. Standard class should normally be used but where the circumstances are justified, including longer flights, officials may travel in a higher class. Seats may be up-graded to a higher class where this does not involve additional cost. All travel is undertaken in accordance with the requirements of the civil service management code and the ministerial code.

Departmental Freedom of Information

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many requests under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 submitted to the Cabinet Office more than six months ago are being assessed for their public interest implications. [271961]

Mr. Watson: The Ministry of Justice publishes statistics, on a quarterly basis, which give details of the number of requests that have had their deadline extended to consider the balance of public interest. Copies of the statistics are available in the Library of the House and are on the Ministry of Justice's website:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/freedomofinformationquarterly.htm

Departmental Logos

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for North-East Hertfordshire of 31 October

2006, Official Report, column 323W, on departmental branding, what the Cabinet Office's policy is on the (a) re-use and (b) disposal of departmental-branded goods which become out of date following machinery of Government changes; and in what manner the sign of the Deputy Prime Minister's Office was disposed of. [270294]

Mr. Watson: The Cabinet Office logo is used as a corporate image and is included on the majority of material produced by the Department. Wherever possible the Department would make use of any branded material that was outdated, or recycle any items that could not be reused.

The Department for Communities and Local Government have confirmed that the sign of the Deputy Prime Minister's Office was given to my right hon. Friend the Member for Kingston upon Hull, East (Mr. Prescott) when he left office. The used value of the sign was minimal.

Departmental Mobile Telephones

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 23 February 2009, Official Report, columns 392-93W, on departmental mobile telephones, (1) whether any of the 14 damaged mobile telephones had been allocated to individuals who work in 10 Downing Street; [269953]

(2) what the cost to the public purse was of replacing the 14 damaged mobile telephones; [270170]

(3) what the (a) make and (b) model of each of the 14 damaged mobile telephones was. [270171]

Mr. Watson: None of the 14 phones that were damaged had been issued to individuals who work in Downing street.

Under the terms of the contract the Department has with Vodafone, damaged handsets are replaced free of charge on a 'like for like' replacement policy.

The make and models of the 14 damaged mobile phones mentioned in my answer of 23 February 2009, Official Report, columns 392-93W, to the right hon. Member are given in the table:

Make	Model	Number
Sony Ericsson	P990i	1
Sony Ericsson	K530i	1
Motorola	Razr	1
Nokia	6822	1
Nokia	6300	1
Nokia	6230	2
Nokia	3109	2
Blackberry	8800	3
Blackberry	7130e	1
Blackberry	8100	1

Economic Situation: Disadvantaged People

Anne Moffat: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment his Department has made of the effects on socially-excluded people of the recession. [276397]

Kevin Brennan: The Government are acutely aware of the importance of helping those who are socially excluded, which is why it is one of our top 30 priorities under PSA 16. In addition to "Real Help Now" measures, the Social Exclusion Task Force has started a project to identify further practical help to protect those on the cusp of a downward spiral into social exclusion and ensure that they come through the recession stronger.

Employment: Logistics

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) how many people in each region work in the logistics sector; [276153]

(2) how many people worked in the logistics sector in each region in each quarter of 2008. [276154]

Kevin Brennan: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated May 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Questions:

How many people in each region work in the logistics sector? (276153)

How many people worked in the logistics sector in each region in each quarter of 2008? (276154)

The attached table shows the number of employee jobs for transport, storage and communication activities (Section I of the Standard Industrial Classification 2003) in each UK Government Office Region (GOR) from 2007Q1 to 2008Q4, the most recent estimate available. The quarterly series are not seasonally adjusted and so estimates for 2007 have been included in order to produce series of annual change.

These estimates are produced from employer surveys and are subject to sampling variability. They exclude self-employed jobs and government supported trainees, which are not available by region by industry. Section level is the lowest industry level available by region for quarterly employee jobs. Section I has been deemed to best represent the 'logistics sector' and this includes land transport, water transport, storage, warehousing, post and telecommunications. A more detailed breakdown of employee jobs by industry by region is available from ONS's Annual Business Inquiry, although the most recent estimates are for 2007.

Gifts and Endowments

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what financial threshold applies to (a) Ministers, (b) senior civil servants and (c) special advisers for the registering of hospitality or gifts with their Department. [271954]

Mr. Watson: The requirements on Ministers in relation to the registering of hospitality and gifts is set out in the ministerial code. For civil servants, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 26 March 2009, Official Report, column 712W.

Copies of the ministerial code can be found in the Library of the House or on the Cabinet Office website at:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/media/cabinetoffice/propriety_and_ethics/assets/ministerial_code_current.pdf

Public Bodies

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many public sector regulatory bodies have been (a) created and (b) abolished since May 1997. [272017]

Mr. Watson: The annual Cabinet Office publication "Public Bodies" provides information on all non-departmental public bodies (NDPBs), including those with regulatory functions. In 1997 there were 857 NDPBs sponsored by UK Government. By 2008 the number had fallen to 790. Copies of "Public Bodies" dating back to 1997 are available in the Libraries of the House.

Public Sector: Public Consultation

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment has been made of the effectiveness of the use of citizens' juries. [271956]

Mr. Watson: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer my right hon. Friend the then Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (Edward Miliband) gave to the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban) on 3 March 2008, Official Report, column 2206W.

In relation to the last citizen's jury held by the Cabinet Office, on the Draft Legislative programme in October 2007, the Government's assessment was that it was helpful both in informing the development of that document and in shaping the consultation process for future draft programmes.

Trade Unions

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 2 February 2009, Official Report, columns 943-4W, on trade unions, whether the office working space provided by the Cabinet Office to trade union representatives may be used for political activities. [270167]

Mr. Watson: Union Representatives are all civil servants and as such are bound by the Civil Service Code.

The rules relating to civil servants' involvement in political activities, including trade union representatives, are set out in the Civil Service Management Code.

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster with reference to the answers to the hon. Member for Chichester of 25 February 2008, Official Report, column 1185W, on trades unions, and of 2 February 2009, Official Report, columns 943-44W, on trades unions, what the (a) location and (b) size of the office facilities provided for the exclusive use of each of the recognised trade unions in (i) his Department, (ii) Government Communications and (iii) the Central Office of Information is; and what the notional monetary value of such provision was in 2008-09. [271911]

Mr. Watson: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer given on 2 February 2009, Official Report, columns 943-44W.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Biofuels

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of whether the practice of attributing carbon neutrality to all biomass is compliant with Article 3.3 of the Kyoto Protocol. [249617]

Joan Ruddock: The practice of attributing carbon neutrality to biomass at the point of use is consistent with article 3.3 of the Kyoto Protocol because the carbon stock changes reported under this article take account of biomass harvesting for subsequent use.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the emissions to air of (a) carbon dioxide and (b) nitrogen oxides which would arise if the UK were to achieve its targets for the usage of biomass as fuel as set in the Renewable Energy Strategy consultation 2008. [249619]

Joan Ruddock: If the UK were to achieve the estimated potential for the use of biomass for heat and power, as set out in the Renewable Energy Strategy consultation 2008, and assuming that biomass is carbon neutral, this could save around 20 Mt carbon dioxide compared to the fossil fuel alternative. This methodology does not account for losses of carbon dioxide during production, processing and transport, whose impact will vary on a case by case basis. Some of these savings will occur within the Emissions Trading Scheme. On nitrogen oxides, Government has modelled the potential impact of an increase in use of biomass in the domestic sector against a range of scenarios. We estimate this could result in an additional 0.8-9.1 ktonnes NOx over a baseline for 2020 of 87.1 ktonnes, depending on the amount of heat produced and the level of performance of the biomass unit.

British Nuclear Fuels

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the salary of the chief executive of British Nuclear Fuels plc was in each of the last 10 years. [267062]

Ian Pearson: I have been asked to reply.

The salary paid to the chief executive in each of the last 10 full years is as follows:

Year ending 31 March	Salary (£)
2008	518,450
2007	510,800
2006	486,450
2005	470,000
2004	450,000
2003	375,950
2002	365,000
2001	350,000
2000	247,056
1999	239,861

Full details of the remuneration paid to the chief executive are published in BNFL's annual report and accounts.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change pursuant to the Answer of 22 April 2008, Official Report, column 557 on departmental records, what estimate he made of the cost of answering the Question; and if he will make a statement. [272248]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The cost of answering the hon. Member's question, in terms of expenditure incurred and the time and effort spent by officials to retrieve the relevant files, is estimated to exceed the current disproportionate cost threshold of £750.

Fuel Poverty

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many households were estimated to be in fuel poverty in each (a) region and (b) London local authority area in (i) 1997 and (ii) the most recent year for which figures are available. [276268]

Joan Ruddock: Regional fuel poverty figures are not available prior to 2001. The following table shows a regional breakdown of fuel poverty for 2006, the most recent year for which data are available.

Region	Number of fuel poor households 2006 (thousand)
North East	179
Yorks and Humber	273
North West	415
East Midlands	236
West Midlands	304
South West	256
East England	224
South East	291
London	254
Total	2,432

Local authority data on fuel poverty are not available for 1997. The most recent year for which local authority levels of fuel poverty are available is 2003 and the following table shows these for local authorities in London.

Local authority	Number of fuel poor households 2003 (thousand)
Barking and Dagenham	3,900

Housing: Carbon Emissions

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change if he will bring forward legislative proposals to require private building companies to reduce their carbon dioxide emissions; and if he will make a statement. [274425]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 11 May 2009]: In future, the Carbon Reduction Commitment will incentivise all private and public sector organisations that consume at least 6,000 MWh of half hourly metered electricity per year, including private building companies, to reduce their CO_2 emissions. The final details of the scheme are currently subject to public consultation which closes on 4 June and it will come into force in 2010.

The Department for Communities and Local Government (Communities) is responsible for setting minimum standards for the energy and carbon performance of building works through the building regulations in England and (currently) Wales. Communities has announced that all new homes in England will be NET zero carbon from 2016, with progressive tightening of part L of the Building Regulations towards that outcome in 2010 and 2013. Communities expect to consult shortly on part L changes for 2010.

Government have also announced their ambition for new non-domestic buildings to be zero carbon from 2019. Communities has recently consulted on the definition of zero carbon homes and non-domestic buildings. The need for new legislation to give effect to these policies will be considered at a later stage. The devolved Administrations are working on their own proposals for low and zero carbon development.

Nuclear Power Stations: Safety

Colin Challen: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent discussions his Department has had with the Nuclear Installations Inspectorate on the safety control systems for the design of the generic European Pressurised Water Reactor; and what the timetable is for the assessment of generic design candidate reactors for new nuclear power stations in the United Kingdom. [274631]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Nuclear Installations Inspectorate of the HSE is in the process of assessing EDF/AREVA's UK European Pressurised Water Reactor (EPR) as part of their Generic Design Assessment (GDA). During this process the NII has informed officials from DECC's Office of Nuclear Development (OND) that it has raised issues with EDF/AREVA on the Control and Instrumentation (C&I) systems of the EPR design.

The NII has raised this matter with EDF/AREVA, both verbally and as a Regulatory Issue (the highest level of technical issue that can be given under GDA), sent on 16 April 2009.

Having a GDA process in the UK allows the regulators to raise these types of issues at an early stage of the assessment process, which is what the NII has been able to do. This then allows the company involved to identify solutions that can be implemented at an early stage of the conceptual design, prior to construction.

We expect the GDA process to be completed by June 2011.

Warm Front Scheme: East Midlands

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change who the approved suppliers to the Warm Front scheme in the East Midlands are. [274364]

Warm Front Scheme: Lighting

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many energy efficient light bulbs have been provided under the Warm Front scheme in each of the last 10 years; and what the cost to the public purse was in each such year. [255874]

Joan Ruddock: The number of households receiving two light bulbs under Warm Front since 2000 is detailed as follows:

	Number of households	Total cost (£)
2000-01	215,238	1,016,999.55
2001-02	475,780	2,248,060.50

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Freedom of Information

Mr. Winnick: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how much the House of Commons (a) has paid and (b) remains liable to pay in respect of the costs of legal actions concerning freedom of information since the Freedom of Information Act 2000 came into effect. [276329]

Nick Harvey: Legal actions to the end of April 2009 have incurred external costs of £142,838. There are no outstanding liabilities. All internal costs have been absorbed within the cost of running the House Administration and cannot be separately identified.

Members: Allowances

John Mann: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what estimate the House of Commons Commission has made of the number of leaks to outside bodies of information on hon. Members' expenses claims for 2007-08; what assessment the Commission has made of the effects of those leaks, and the subsequent publication of information; and if he will make a statement. [276045]

Nick Harvey: It is clear that there has been unauthorised disclosure of a large amount of data relating to Members' claims, including claims relating to 2007-08. The Commission is monitoring the effects of those disclosures.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission for what reasons the information on hon. Members' expenses which has been leaked was not processed solely on paper, prior to scheduled publication by the House authorities in redacted electronic form. [276389]

Nick Harvey: The information to be published was taken from a dataset approaching one million separate pieces of paper. The editing of such information in paper format would have required copies to be made and the application of ink or tape to obscure the information and then recopied to ensure that the data remained unreadable. This solution was considered to be impracticable.

Members: Data Protection

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission if he will make it his policy that unredacted private data relating to hon. Members will in future be processed solely on paper until all redactions have been made, prior to publication in electronic form online. [276390]

Nick Harvey: Given the need correctly to process, record and account for claims and expenditure it is inevitable that electronic records are created and maintained. However, from the start of this financial year the way in which such data are collected and processed has been restructured. These processes will be kept under review.

Security

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission whether information is retained by the House authorities on where and when an hon. Member uses their House of Commons pass; and if he will make a statement. [276410]

Nick Harvey: It is not the policy of the Commission to comment on security matters.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Police: Assaults

7. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Solicitor-General what her most recent assessment is of the performance of the Crown Prosecution Service in prosecuting cases of assault against police officers in (a) England and (b) Northamptonshire. [276611]

The Solicitor-General: In 2008-09 the Crown Prosecution Service prosecuted 21,260 cases of assault specifically against police officers in the execution of their duty, under section 89(1) of the Police Act 1996 in England and Wales, of which 185 cases were in Northamptonshire. The outcomes of these prosecutions could be ascertained only by examining individual case records, which would incur disproportionate cost. More serious assaults on police officers may result in other offences being charged, but the nature of the victim is not sufficiently identified by the CPS records.

Government Departments: Legal Profession

Anne Moffat: To ask the Solicitor-General what the policy of the Law Officers' Departments is on encouraging Government lawyers to undertake pro bono work. [276608]

The Solicitor-General: All Government Departments encourage their staff to take an active role in volunteering in the community. The Law Officers' departments support this policy and the provision by lawyers of legal advice and assistance pro bono. As a Law Officer's department, the Treasury Solicitor's Department, through the Government Legal Service Pro Bono network, encourages Government lawyers who wish to provide advice and representation pro bono. In addition to raising awareness and supporting lawyers working at diverse law clinics, the GLS pro bono network operates an advice clinic at the Treasury Solicitor's Department on Tuesday nights, which focuses on employment law issues. A new initiative from the Crown Prosecution Service is a pro bono and volunteering network, which will be launched formally on 10 June 2009.

Members: Allowances

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Solicitor-General what discussions she has had with the Director of Public Prosecutions on the convening of a joint panel with the Metropolitan Police to assess allegations relating to claims for allowances payments made by hon. Members. [276606]

The Solicitor-General: None. Decisions about whether a criminal investigation is called for or not in an individual case fall to the police, with advice from the Crown Prosecution Service. The panel will establish whether there are cases that merit investigation and determine priorities. This will speed up the process. The panel will ensure that decisions in individual cases are taken on a fair and consistent basis with the benefit of advice from the CPS.

PRIME MINISTER

Members: Allowances

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister pursuant to the Answer of 6 May 2009, Official Report, column 183W, on Members: allowances; for what reason he did not reply to the part of the Question relating to the sequence of events. [276762]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 6 May 2009, Official Report, column 183W. I also refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the right hon. Member for Witney (Mr. Cameron) at Prime Minister's Questions on 1 April 2009, Official Report, column 910-911.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Northern Ireland Compensation Agency: Official Hospitality

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much the Compensation Agency spent on hospitality and entertainment in each of the last five years. [276365]

Paul Goggins: The following table shows the Compensation Agency's expenditure on hospitality in the last five years:

	Hospitality expenditure (£)
2008-09	228.93
2007-08	618.66
2006-07	34.31
2005-06	293.91
2004-05	703.52

The Compensation Agency does not have any entertainment expenditure.

SCOTLAND

Borders: Personal Records

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what recent discussions officials of his Department have had with officials of the Home Office on the proposal to give the police powers to collect advance passenger data on domestic air and sea journeys. [275501]

Ann McKechin: Scotland Office and Home Office officials have had a number of recent exchanges on this proposal. Police powers to require a carrier, on request, to capture passenger data on domestic routes were provided through the Police and Justice Act 2006. These provisions have not been commenced. A formal public consultation will take place prior to the secondary legislation necessary to implement the powers. It is intended that this will focus on crossings between Great Britain and Northern Ireland only.

Departmental Dismissal

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many members of staff in his Department were dismissed (a) for under-performance and (b) in total in each of the last 10 years. [274315]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office was established on 1 July 1999. Since this date no members of staff have been dismissed for under-performance.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Leader of the House when she plans to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire dated 19 February 2009, on lobbying. [276696]

Chris Bryant: We have no record of receiving such correspondence from the hon. Member, but would be happy to supply an early response on receiving a copy of the original letter.

TRANSPORT

Aviation: Human Trafficking

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what discussions he has had with the airline industry on responsibility for meeting the cost of returning persons trafficked by air into the UK to their country of origin. [275414]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Minister of State for Borders and Immigration on 20 May 2009, Official Report, column 1463W, to the hon. Member for Totnes (Mr. Steen).

Departmental Conditions of Employment

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if he will place in the Library a copy of the risk register for his Department's flexible benefits project. [276673]

Mr. Hoon: The risk registers held by the Department for Transport on this matter are either commercial, confidential or sensitive documents and it would not be appropriate to place them in the House Library.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what his Department's response is to the recommendations to standardise processes in areas such as travel and subsistence claims and annual performance appraisals as set out at page 8, paragraph 15f of the National Audit Office report on Shared Services in Department for Transport. [276674]

Mr. Hoon: The Department for Transport agrees that standardisation of processes is an important contributor to the operation of Shared Services and that this will be achieved appropriately where it meets business need.

The NAO has highlighted travel and subsistence, and annual performance appraisals as areas where standardised processes should be considered. The Department will be considering these areas, as well as other areas where work is already under way, such as developing e recruitment, to gain the greatest benefit from shared services.

Departmental Official Cars

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many vehicles over six years old are (a) owned and (b) leased by (i) his Department and (ii) its agencies. [276685]

Mr. Hoon: The requested information on cars owned or leased over six-years-old is provided in the table.

Organisational unit	(a) Owned	(b) Leased
Air Accidents Investigation Branch	0	0
Marine Accident Investigation Branch	0	0
Rail Accident Investigation Branch	0	0
Driving Standards Agency	24	0
Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency	0	0
Government Car and Despatch Agency	7	0
Highways Agency	237	0
Maritime and Coastguard Agency	223	0
Vehicle and Operator Services Agency	125	0
Vehicle Certification Agency	2	0

The Government Car and Despatch Agency provide vehicles for to a number of Government Departments.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much his Department has spent on (a) conference services and (b) banqueting services in each of the last five years. [274497]

Mr. Hoon: The requested information is as follows:

	(a) Conference services	£ (b) Banqueting services
2008-09	1,203,551	0
2007-08	1,007,578	0
2006-07	870,300	0
2005-06	483,717	0
2004-05	343,977	0

Notes:
1. Excludes spend in respect of DfT HQ and the Highways Agency as this is the responsibility of local business units/is not centrally collected and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.
2. In some cases spend includes associated costs and not conference costs alone.

The Department for Transport is a federated organisation comprising a central Department and seven Executive Agencies. Conferences are organised in support of strategic objectives and the above data includes associated costs, such as stands and equipment.

The increase in costs is due to the hosting of conferences for Executive Agency stakeholders (where no such conferences previously existed) and increases in the frequency and scope of other conferences.

All expenditure was incurred in accordance with the principles of Managing Public Money and the Treasury handbook on Regularity and Propriety.

Disability Discrimination Act 1995

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment he has made of the effect of the provisions of the Disability Discrimination Acts 1995 and 2005 on the process of (a) reopening and (b) upgrading railway stations. [276298]

Paul Clark: No direct assessment of the effect of the provisions of the Disability Discrimination Acts on the process of reopening and upgrading of railway stations has been made by the Department for Transport.

However, the Department recognises that the Disability Discrimination Acts have driven greater improvements to the accessibility of railway stations, both through infrastructure improvements, such as those funded through the Department's £370 million Access for All programme, as well as through improvements in the policies and practices in place for the delivery of rail services.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate he has made of the additional cost of works to (a) reopen and (b) upgrade railway stations incurred as a result of the provisions of the Disability Discrimination Acts 1995 and 2005 in the latest period for which figures are available. [276299]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport has not made any assessment of additional costs incurred as a result of the provisions of the Disability Discrimination Acts.

The Disability Discrimination Acts have required rail station operators to make reasonable physical alterations at stations since 2004, so that disabled people do not find it impossible or unreasonably difficult to access rail services. What is reasonable is for the Courts, not the Department for Transport, to determine.

In addition, since 2002 new infrastructure works at stations have been required to follow the standards set out in the Department's code of practice on accessible train and station design for disabled people. However, these requirements are not directly attributable to the Disability Discrimination Acts.

Lorries

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent assessment his Department has made of the effect on road maintenance costs of the use of the road network by heavy goods vehicles. [276451]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport has recently produced estimates of the effects of articulated heavy goods vehicles on road maintenance costs as part of the work to produce new Mode Shift Benefit (MSB) values for use in the allocation of freight mode shift grants. The estimates, and the methodology used to produce them, are described in "Mode Shift Benefit Values—Technical Report":

www.dft.gov.uk/adobepdf/165226/443908/msbtechpaper.pdf

The underlying relationships between HGV traffic and highways maintenance were investigated in "Lorry Track and Environmental Costs":

www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/roads/environment/nera/which the Department for the Environment, Transport and the Regions published in April 2000.

M606 and M62

Mike Wood: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness in improving road travel conditions of the high occupancy vehicle lane on the M606 and M62. [276633]

Paul Clark: The M606-M62 high occupancy vehicle (HOV) lane has been operating for a year and the Highways Agency is investigating the benefits to road users. Initial results suggest that those using the HOV lane are saving around eight minutes in the weekday morning peak compared with before the HOV lane was built. Those approaching the junction and not using the HOV lane are saving around five minutes in the weekday morning peak. These results are broadly as anticipated. A detailed report of performance will be published in the summer.

Railways: East Midlands

Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many Sunday train services operated by East Midland Trains between 14 December 2008 and 11 May 2009 ran on time; and how many such services were subject to alteration between Derby and London. [276665]

Paul Clark: This information is not held by the Department for Transport in the form requested. Reliability data for train services are held in the form of the Public Performance Measure which records the percentage of trains arriving punctually at their destination.

More detailed train performance data for the rail network are collected and held by Network Rail. The hon. Member may wish to contact Network Rail's chief executive at the following address for a response to his question:

Railways: Franchises

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport which rail franchise contracts provide for a time extension; what time extension is available in each case; and what conditions govern the extension. [276328]

Paul Clark [holding answer 19 May 2009]: With the exception of Southern Railway which is due to terminate on 19 September 2009, all English and Welsh rail franchises have an option for a time extension based on certain criteria. The criteria may be seen in the following table:

Franchise name	Trading name	Start date	Nominal end date	Extension
First Capital Connect Ltd.	First Capital Connect	April 2006	March 2010	The full term of the franchise is for nine years until 2015, but this depends on meeting performance targets. At the end of the fourth year these were met which gave an automatic two-year extension, and a further extension for up to three years is at the discretion of DfT.
London Eastern Railway Ltd.	National Express East Anglia (NXEA)	April 2004	March 2011	There is the possibility of a three-year extension to March 2014 based on a Continuation Review. If NXEA passes, DfT will extend, but NXEA can decide not to take up extension. If NXEA fails, DfT can decide to offer to extend the franchise but NXEA has the right to refuse. DfT can extend by up to seven periods at either expiry date.
c2c	c2c	May 1996	May 2011	There is a potential seven period extension at DfT's discretion, or 26 period extension by mutual agreement.

Franchise name	Trading name	Start date	Nominal end date	Extension
Northern Rail Ltd.	Northern	December 2004	September 2011	There is the possibility of a two-year extension to September 2013 based on a Continuation Review. If Northern passes, DfT will extend, but Northern can decide not to take up extension. If Northern fails, DfT can decide to offer to extend the franchise but Northern has the right to refuse. DfT can extend by up to seven periods at either expiry date.
West Coast Train (WCT)	Virgin Trains	March 1997	March 2012	There is a potential seven period extension at DfT discretion.
London and South Eastern Railway Ltd.	Southeastern	April 2006	March 2012	There is the possibility of a two-year extension to March 2014 based on a Continuation Review. If LSER passes, DfT will extend, but LSER can decide not to take up extension. If LSER fails, DfT can decide to offer to extend the franchise but LSER has the right to refuse. Dates are dependent on introduction of SLC2.
First/Keolis TransPennine Express Ltd.	TransPennine Express	February 2004	December 2012	There is a potential seven period extension at DfT discretion or 65 period extension by mutual agreement.
First Greater Western Ltd.	First Great Western	April 2006	April 2013	There is the possibility of a three-year extension to March 2016 based on a Continuation Review. If FGW passes, DfT will extend, but FGW can decide not to take up extension. If FGW fails, DfT can decide to offer to extend the franchise but FGW has the right to refuse. DfT can extend by up to seven periods at either expiry date.
London and Birmingham Railway Ltd.	London Midland	November 2007	November 2013	There is the possibility of a two-year extension to September 2015 based on a Continuation Review. If LM passes, DfT will extend franchise. If LM fails, DfT can impose an extension. DfT can extend by up to seven periods at either expiry date.
East Midlands Trains Ltd.	East Midlands Trains	November 2007	November 2013	There is the possibility of an 18-month extension to April 2015 based on a Continuation Review. If EMT passes, DfT will extend franchise. If EMT fails, DfT can impose an extension. DfT can extend by up to seven periods at either expiry date.
Arriva Trains Cross Country Ltd.	Crosscountry	November 2007	November 2013	There is the possibility of a two-and-a-half year extension to March 2016 based on a Continuation Review. If XC passes, DfT will extend franchise. If XC fails, DfT can impose an extension. DfT can extend by up to seven periods at either expiry date.
NXEC Trains Ltd.	NXEC	December 2007	December 2013	There is the possibility of an 18-month extension to March 2015 based on a Continuation Review. If NXEC passes, DfT will extend franchise. If NXEC fails, DfT can impose an extension. DfT can extend by up to seven periods at either expiry date.
Stagecoach South West Trains Ltd.	Stagecoach South West Trains	February 2007	February 2014	There is the possibility of a three-year extension to February 2017 based on a Continuation Review. If SSWT passes, DfT will extend franchise. If SSWT fails, DfT can impose an extension. DfT can extend by up to seven periods at either expiry date.
Arriva Trains Wales/ Trenau Arriva Cymru Ltd.	Arriva Trains Wales	December 2003	October 2018	Franchise Managed by Welsh Assembly Government. ATW has five-yearly efficient operator reviews which ATW must pass to continue to operate for another five years.

Franchise name	Trading name	Start date	Nominal end date	Extension
The Chiltern Railway Company Ltd.	Chiltern	March 2002	December 2021	There is no extension period for Chiltern Railways but DfT has the right to "shrink back" the franchise term to June 2014 if infrastructure schemes submitted by Chiltern are not deemed to be "sufficient".

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for what maximum period of time a rail passenger service can be temporarily withdrawn before (a) the service must be fully restored and (b) closure provisions are enacted. [276725]

Paul Clark: No maximum time period is specified under the Railways Act 2005 for which a rail passenger service can be temporarily withdrawn.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether it is permissible for a rail passenger service to be temporarily withdrawn for an indefinite period when there is no time-scaled plan to restore the service or enact closure provisions. [276726]

Paul Clark: Under the Railways Act 2005 a rail passenger service can be temporarily withdrawn. No maximum time period is specified.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what provisions exist to allow a referral to be made to the Office of Rail Regulation to determine whether changes to a rail passenger service constitute (a) temporary withdrawal of that service and (b) its closure. [276727]

Paul Clark: There are no provisions under the Railways Act 2005 to allow such a referral to be made.

Road Traffic Control: Urban Areas

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what information local authorities provide to his Department on their traffic management in conurbations; and if he will make a statement. [277239]

Paul Clark: English local authorities outside London provide information on their delivery of traffic management measures, and relevant outcomes, through the Local Transport Plan (LTP) process. LTPs, and LTP progress reports, are available on local authority websites. At the request of the Department for Transport, LTP progress reports from 2006 and 2008 included information from these authorities on their delivery of the Network Management Duty, as introduced by the Traffic Management Act 2004.

Roads: Per Capita Costs

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how much per head of population was spent from the public purse on roads in (a) rural and (b) urban areas in (i) 2007-08 and (ii) 2009 to date; [276461]

(2) how much his Department spent on (a) new building, (b) maintenance and (c) lighting in respect of roads in (i) rural and (ii) urban areas in each of the last 11 years. [276462]

Paul Clark: The information is not available in the form requested.

Funding for investment, maintenance and operation of strategic roads is the responsibility of the Highways Agency. These roads pass through both rural and urban areas, but it is not possible to allocate the spend between them. Details of Highways Agency expenditure are included in their Annual Report and Accounts at:

http://www.highways.gov.uk/aboutus/documents/Revised_Annual_Report_Accounts_25_[illegible]_08.pdf

Expenditure on non-strategic roads is for local authorities and Transport for London. The Department for Transport provides some support for this expenditure, but it is for local authorities to decide the proportion of their overall available resources to be spent on roads, and the allocation of resources to different parts of their area. Statistics on local government expenditure are available at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/localgovernment/financialstatistics182008

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Females

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment the Government has made of the likely effect of the proposed Afghan Shia family law in Afghanistan on the rights of Afghan women; and if he will make a statement. [276146]

Caroline Flint: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister raised our concerns with President Karzai. We welcome President Karzai's decision to ask the Minister of Justice to review the legislation in question and his announcement on 27 April 2009 that the 'Shia Family' law would be changed to bring it in line with the constitution, which guarantees equal rights for women, and the international treaties to which Afghanistan is a party. We will continue to follow the progress of this issue closely.

As my noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch-Brown, has said, the Afghans obviously have the right to write their own laws. However, we were dismayed that some reported provisions of the Bill as it was drafted ran counter to Afghanistan's international human rights obligations. This Bill, if it had become law as drafted, would have had a significantly detrimental impact on the rights of women.

Afghanistan: Politics and Government

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the Government has made to the Afghan Government on the proposed Shia Personal Status Law; and what discussions he has had with his (a) EU and (b) US counterparts on the appropriate international response to this legislation. [271012]

David Miliband: We continue to urge the Afghan Government to uphold the Afghan Constitution, which demands equal treatment of men and women, and to adhere to Afghanistan's international legal obligations under the human rights conventions it has signed up to, including the Convention on the Elimination of Discrimination Against Women.

As my noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, Lord Malloch-Brown, has said, the Afghans obviously have the right to write their own laws. However, we were dismayed that some reported provisions of the Bill as it was drafted ran counter to Afghanistan's international human rights obligations. This Bill, if it had become law as drafted, would have had a significantly detrimental impact on the rights of women.

My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister raised our concerns about the law with President Karzai. We welcome President Karzai's decision to ask the Minister of Justice to review the legislation in question, and his announcement on 27 April 2009 that the law would be changed to bring it in line with the constitution, and the international treaties to which Afghanistan is a party. We will continue to follow the progress of this issue closely.

European Court of Human Rights

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what costs have been incurred in each case in which the Government was taken to the European Court of Human Rights after the entry into force of the Human Rights Act 1998. [274037]

Caroline Flint: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office do not hold a record of the overall cost of the Government's defence of each application to the European Court of Human Rights since the entry into force of the Human Rights Act.

Human Rights: EU Action

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the Written Ministerial Statement of 5 May 2009, Official Report, columns 4-7WS, on the General Affairs and External Relations Council, what proposals the Swedish Foreign Minister made for publicising the EU's work on human rights; and to which officials the Presidency referred further work. [275453]

Caroline Flint: The Swedish Foreign Minister proposed that the EU should consider the following: consolidating on one easily recognisable website a range of information about the EU's human rights work; strengthening the EU Annual Report on Human Rights; reinforcing the EU's day-to-day public diplomacy in respect of human rights; and issuing public reports on human rights situations in third countries.

The presidency referred the matter to the Political and Security Committee for further consideration.

Mikhail Khodorkovsky

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what recent representations his Department has made to the Russian Government on the trial of Mr. Mikhail Khodorkovsky; and if he will make a statement; [274597]

(2) what steps his Department is taking to monitor the trial of Mr. Mikhail Khodorkovsky; and if he will make a statement. [274598]

David Miliband: We regularly raise our concerns regarding the case of Mikhail Khodorkovsky, bilaterally and through the EU. The issue was raised bilaterally at the UK/Russia human rights consultations in January in Moscow. Our concerns include the arbitrary application of the rule of law, due process and fair treatment of Khodorkovsky and others who have been arrested or prosecuted in the Yukos Affair, access to lawyers and medical care, conditions of detention and the alleged harassment of defence teams and witnesses.

My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister did not specifically raise Mr. Khodorkovsky's situation during his bilateral with President Medvedev at the G20 summit. However, during their bilateral the Prime Minister and President Medvedev agreed that both governments should continue to work together to resolve the areas on which the UK and Russia differ. The Government will continue to raise specific human rights cases, not only through the bilateral human rights consultations.

The UK is participating in trial monitoring with EU partners and the US. We will continue to follow developments in Mr. Khodorkovsky's case.

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he discussed the case of Mr. Mikhail Khodorkovsky with President Medvedev at the G20 summit; and if he will make a statement. [274601]

David Miliband: During my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister's bilateral with President Medvedev before the G20 Summit, a number of issues of concern to the UK were raised.

Sri Lanka: Armed Conflict

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate his Department has made of the number of civilians (a) injured and (b) killed in northern Sri Lanka between 8 and 11 May 2009; and if he will make a statement. [275963]

Caroline Flint: As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary said at the UN on 11 May 2009, we are appalled at the recent reports of civilian casualties. The ongoing conflict makes it difficult to be certain of the facts of the present situation, which is compounded by the lack of access for international agencies and the media, so it remains difficult to confirm the exact number of casualties. Estimates vary wildly, depending on the source. We have made clear to the Government of Sri Lanka our concerns over the disturbing reports of the continued use of heavy weapons and civilian casualties. Following the Foreign Secretary's discussions with US Secretary of State Hillary Clinton on 12 May 2009, they released a joint statement calling for the Government of Sri Lanka to abide by its commitment of 27 April 2009 to end major combat operations and the use of heavy weapons. They called on all sides to end hostilities immediately and allow for the safe evacuation of the tens of thousands of civilians trapped within the safe zone.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has had discussions with the Sri Lankan Government on civilian deaths during the recent fighting in the north east of the island. [276263]

Caroline Flint: As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary said at the UN on 11 May 2009, we are appalled at the recent reports of heavy fighting and civilian casualties. We condemn the killing of civilians in the strongest possible terms. During his recent visit to Sri Lanka with French Foreign Minister Kouchner, the Foreign Secretary made clear to the Sri Lankan Government that the safety of civilians must be paramount and that hostilities must end immediately. Most recently, the Foreign Secretary spoke to Sri Lankan Foreign Minister Bogollagama on 10,11 and 13 May 2009 to express our grave concern over the continued reports of heavy fighting and civilian casualties and to underline the urgent need for a pause in fighting to allow civilians to leave the conflict area safely.

Sri Lanka: Press Freedom

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions his Department has had with the government of Sri Lanka on the arrest and expulsion of Channel 4 journalist Nick Paton Walsh and two of his colleagues; and if he will make a statement. [275959]

Caroline Flint: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary spoke to Foreign Minister Bogollagama on 10 May 2009, expressing our disappointment at the detainment and deportation of three Channel 4 journalists from Sri Lanka the day before. The Foreign Secretary made clear our view that there is an overwhelming need for greater transparency, not less. We have consistently called for access for international monitors and the media. Our high commission in Colombo has lodged a formal protest with the Sri Lankan Ministry of Foreign Affairs about the incident.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he plans to answer Question 268581 tabled on 30 March 2009 on the G20 Summit; and if he will make a statement. [275528]

Gillian Merron: This question was answered on 18 May 2009, Official Report, column 1149W. The delay in replying was due to an administrative error.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he plans to answer question 272621, tabled on 30 April 2009, on the number of records stored on the Overseas Territories Regional Crime Intelligence System. [276795]

Caroline Flint: This question was answered on 19 May 2009, Official Report, column 1322W. The delay in replying was due to an administrative error.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Apprentices: Management

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many apprenticeship (a) starts and (b) completions in management there were at each level in each of the last five years. [268146]

Mr. Simon: Table 1 shows the number of apprenticeship and advanced apprenticeship starts in management-related frameworks (business administration and management) in the last five years.

Table 2 shows the number of apprenticeship and advanced apprenticeship completions in management-related frameworks (business administration and management) in the last five years.

Table 1: Number of apprenticeship starts in business administration and management by level, 2003/04 to 2007/08

Notes:
1. Numbers are rounded to the nearest hundred, therefore figures may not sum to the totals shown as they are calculated using unrounded data.
2. Figures under 50 have been suppressed and replaced with a "–".
3. Figures for advanced apprenticeships include higher level apprenticeships (HLA) to be consistent with the information published in statistical first releases. HLA numbers are currently too small to include as a separate category.
4. Tables use programme starts/completions as a measure for comparative purposes. Full-year numbers are a count of the number of starts/completions at any point during the year. Learners starting/completing more than one course will appear more than once.

Source:
Work Based Learning Individualised Learner Record (WBL ILR)

The Government are committed to rebuilding apprenticeships. Since 1997, we have witnessed a renaissance in apprenticeships from a low point of 65,000 to a record 225,000 apprenticeship starts in 2007/08. Completion rates are also at a record high with 64 per cent. successfully completing an apprenticeship—up from 37 per cent. in 2004/05.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills when he plans to reply to the letter of 19 March 2009 from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Mr. J. Harris, transferred from the Department for Work and Pensions. [276505]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: I have been asked to reply.

A response to the letter, from the Minister for Schools and Learners was sent to the right hon. Member on 15 May.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Ms Abbott: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress his Department has made in implementing the provisions of UN Security Council Resolution 1325 in UK and international military programmes in Afghanistan in the last 12 months. [275862]

Caroline Flint: I have been asked to reply.

The UK is committed to the full implementation of UN Security Council Resolution 1325, to protect the rights of women and girls in areas suffering conflict, and to incorporate their perspectives in conflict resolution and peacekeeping planning. In Afghanistan, the impact on women is routinely considered as we take forward our military, stabilisation, governance and reconstruction activity. In support of this resolution the UK is funding various programmes to promote women's equal participation in governance and to build awareness of women's rights among civil society and policy makers. This includes two bilateral programmes that address issues of violence against women. The Government contribute £737,000 to the UN Development Fund for Women (UNTFEM)'s Elimination of Violence against Women Special Fund. Through this programme, Government partners and non-governmental organisations (NGOs) are being supported to improve protection and assistance to women at risk and victims of violence. The UK is also supporting a five-year Women's Empowerment programme from 2005-10, implemented by the NGO Womankind. This £500,000 initiative focuses on promoting women's equal participation in governance; building awareness of women's rights among civil society and policy makers; and on providing educational, health, community and counselling support for victims of violence.

Despite the challenges, progress has been made:

Over a third of children now enrolled in school are girls.

We have committed over £35 million to support the Afghan government's micro-finance programme, giving women in particular better access to finance.

Following the adoption of a quota system, 27 per cent. of seats in the lower house of the Afghan Parliament are now held by women.

Armed Forces: Housing

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many and what proportion of service single accommodation properties in Scotland are unoccupied; [274994]

(2) how many and what proportion of service family properties in Scotland are unoccupied. [274996]

Mr. Kevan Jones: As at 1 May 2009, 577 (18 per cent.) out of 3,227 service family accommodation (SFA) properties in Scotland were unoccupied.

Single living accommodation is classed as unoccupied when it is not routinely used overnight. However, this includes, for example, rooms which are assigned to individuals on operational deployments and not available for reassignment.

As at September 2008, the latest date for which figures are centrally held, 3,720 (43 per cent.) out of 8,530 single living accommodation (SLA) bed-spaces in Scotland were unoccupied.

Service accommodation can be unoccupied for various reasons, such as, being held pending due to planned moves of service personnel, is subject to major maintenance, modernisation, demolition or disposal work.

Defence Storage and Distribution Agency: Disciplinary Proceedings

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reasons the Chief Operating Officer and Financial Director of Defence Storage and Distribution Agency has been suspended. [276716]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Defence Fraud Analysis Unit has conducted an investigation into commercial activities at the Defence Storage and Distribution Agency. While fraud has not been identified, the report raises potentially serious issues and an internal investigation has therefore been commissioned. The chief executive and former finance director, now director corporate services, have been suspended on full pay pending the outcome of this investigation.

Defence: Fife

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the number of jobs in the defence sector in Dunfermline and West Fife constituency in each of the last five years. [276667]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The information is not held in the format requested, therefore the MOD is not able to provide these figures at constituency level. However, figures can be provided for the numbers of MOD civilian and service personnel who are directly employed at MOD establishments/bases located in the Fife local authority area, which includes West Fife and Dunfermline, for each of the last three years. This information is provided in the following table.

	All MOD service personnel	MOD civilian personnel	Total
2006	1,790	790	2,580
2007	1,670	770	2,440
2008	1,540	730	2,270

Estimates for those people in Scotland employed directly and indirectly in industry, commerce and those companies that receive contracts directly from MOD and indirectly through the supply chain supporting such contracts, for each of the last five years, is provided in the following table.

This information is not held in the format requested, i.e. broken down by constituency.

	Direct	Indirect	Total
2002-03	10,000	2,500	12,500
2003-04	10,000	2,500	12,500
2004-05	9,000	2,500	11,500
2005-06	9,000	2,500	11,500
2006-07	7,000	2,000	9,000

Note:
Figures rounded to the nearest 500 jobs.

Departmental ICT

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he has taken to reduce the level of carbon dioxide emissions arising from the operation of ICT systems in his Department under the Greening Government ICT Strategy. [273566]

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what estimate he has made of the (a) energy consumed by, (b) energy cost of and (c) carbon dioxide emissions from each category of IT device in each division of his Department in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement; [269548]

(2) what steps his Department has taken to address the effect on levels of carbon dioxide emissions from his Department of its ICT purchases since the publication of the Greening Government ICT Strategy; and if he will make a statement. [269575]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The MOD Sustainable Development Strategy identifies Green ICT as a key enabler in reducing the emissions from our estate and we remain committed to achieving the stated targets provided as follows.

1 January 2009

Green ICT Roadmap to deliver Government targets developed (completed).

January 2010

Be ready to report on the progress made towards ICT Carbon Neutrality.

2012

Energy consumption of Government ICT on the office estate will be Carbon Neutral by 2012.

2020

All new MOD ICT will be Carbon Neutral across its lifecycle.

MOD played a key role in creating and chairing Government's Green ICT Delivery Unit for the Chief Information Officer (CIO)/Chief Technology Officer (CTO) Councils.

We established an internal Sustainable Procurement Programme Office in 2008 that has incorporated all of the key steps from the Greening Government ICT Strategy into our overarching policies and guidance for procurement. We have also run the challenging Green ICT Scorecard against our current and future infrastructure service.

Additionally, MOD has produced a CIO Green ICT Roadmap. This is being followed in delivering the ongoing rollout of DII(F).

Information about energy consumption, energy cost and carbon dioxide emissions from our ICT equipment for each of the past five years is not been held in the format requested and so any retrospective estimate could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Pay

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department paid to its civil servants in bonuses in each year since 1997; and (a) how many bonuses were paid, (b) what the aggregate monetary value of the bonuses was and (c) what the highest bonus paid was in each such year. [275003]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Bonus arrangements for senior civil service (SCS) staff were changed in 2002-03, and for staff below the SCS, new bonus arrangements were introduced in 2003. Therefore, information between 1997 and 2003 is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The amounts paid to civil servants in each year, the number of bonuses paid and the aggregate monetary value of the bonuses and the highest bonus in each year since the 2003-04 FY are shown as follows. Figures for payment in FY 2009-10 are not yet available.

Financial year	Number of bonuses paid	Value of bonuses paid (£)	Maximum bonus (£)
2008-09	64,831	48,264,950	50,000
2007-08	60,830	44,762,633	50,000
2006-07	59,629	41,430,104	12,546
2005-06	49,091	43,310,700	14,340
2004-05	46,267	34,998,823	11,358
2003-04	39,522	24,901,150	9,822

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies paid in end-of-year performance bonuses to (i) all staff and (ii) senior Civil Service staff in 2008-09; and how many such payments were made. [275261]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The information requested is provided in the following table. These figures include staff in MOD agencies but exclude trading funds.

2008-09

	Number of payments made	Value of payments made (£)
End of year performance payments made to:
Senior civil servants	187	1,500,000
Fixed term appointees	26	652,327
Staff below the level of the SCS	60,137	40,196,000

For the SCS, the size of the non-consolidated performance pay pot is based on recommendations by the independent Senior Salaries Review Body. For performance year 2007-08 to which the information refers, the limit was set at 8.6 per cent. of the SCS pay pot. The median payment was £8,000. The Government have responded positively to current economic conditions by freezing the size of the pot for payments to be made in 2009-10.

The total paybill for staff below the senior civil service, excluding trading funds, covered by the main pay award is £1.827 billion, of which, up to 2.7 per cent. is for non-consolidated performance awards to staff. The median payment in 2008-09 was £775.

EH101 Helicopters

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the performance and effectiveness of the UK's current fleet of AW101 Merlin helicopters; for how long he estimates those aircraft will remain in service in the UK armed forces; and if he will make a statement. [276729]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The UK operates two basic variants of Merlin helicopter; the Merlin Mk1, which entered service in 1999, delivers a variety of maritime roles and the Mk3/3a, which entered service in 2000 (Mk3) and 2008 (Mk3a), is operated in a battlefield support role. Since introduction into service, the Merlin helicopter has proved itself to be a very capable modern operational platform, having already provided excellent support to operations in Iraq and ongoing maritime and anti-piracy operations. We expect to deploy the Merlin to Afghanistan later this year.

Our Merlin aircraft are expected to remain in service for at least another 20 years, and we are exploring opportunities to extend this further. The Merlin Mk1 is already undergoing a major capability sustainment activity and we are currently investigating the optimum means of maintaining Merlin Mk3/3a capability.

Ex-Services Mental Welfare Society

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much funding from the public purse has been provided to the Ex-Services Mental Welfare Society Combat Stress in (a) 2004-05 and (b) 2008-09. [276668]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The following table shows the funding received by Combat Stress for the years requested.

	Funding received by Combat Stress (£ million)
2004-05	2.0
2008-09	3.5

Funds are provided through the War Pensions Scheme's discretionary power to meet the cost of any necessary expenses in respect of medical, surgical or rehabilitative treatment of ex-members of the armed forces that arise from a disablement due to service before 6 April 2005 where it is not provided for under other UK legislation. This includes the individual costs of war pensioners undergoing "remedial treatment" at homes ran by Combat Stress for conditions related to their individual pensioned disablement and of related expenses such as travel costs.

In October 2007, my hon. Friend the Member for Halton (Derek Twigg) announced a 45 per cent. increase to the fees paid to Combat Stress by the MOD and the Scottish Executive.

Military Bases

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which military (a) bases and (b) other sites owned by his Department containing accommodation areas are (i) redundant and (ii) shortly to become redundant for his Department's purposes; on what date each became or is due to become redundant; what area each covers; what sanitation facilities each has; how many separate sleeping rooms there are; what perimeter fences there are; what the postal address of each site is; and what estimate he has made of the market value of each site. [276765]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Radioactive Waste: Waste Management

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Blaenau Gwent of 12 May 2009, Official Report, column 753W, on radioactive waste: waste management, if he will place in the Library a copy of his response to the hon. Member when it is issued. [276312]

Mr. Quentin Davies: A copy of my response will be placed in the Library of the House.

Rescue Services

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether UK Search and Rescue (SAR) services will continue to provide a 24 hour service for the UK SAR region from 12 bases in the UK when the Maritime and Coastguard Agency service contract ends in 2012. [276542]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Yes.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Construction: Manpower

Lorely Burt: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many of the 100,000 jobs the Government expects to be created early this year are expected to arise in the construction industry. [247820]

Yvette Cooper: I have been asked to reply.

The pre-Budget report announced the Government's commitment to providing timely, targeted and temporary support to the economy by bringing forward £3 billion of capital spending from 2010-11 into 2008-09 and 2009-10. This additional investment is already supporting a number of industries and employing people across the country.

As the update on the capital fiscal stimulus provided at Budget showed, the majority of the public sector capital projects being brought forward involve construction activity. It is therefore expected that the bulk of the resulting employment impact will be in the construction sector. There are no centrally-prescribed rules for how the additional jobs will be allocated: the Departments concerned are responsible for determining how the funding is most effectively spent.

As set out at Budget 2009, the total announced policy support for the UK economy is expected to protect up to half a million jobs through the fiscal stimulus, together with MPC decisions to cut the Bank of England interest rate and quantitative easing.

TREASURY

Bank Services

John Battle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of the proportion of households with a bank account in each region of the UK. [272718]

Ian Pearson: The Government are committed to reducing financial exclusion and increasing the number of people who can manage their money by using a bank account.

The Family Resources Survey data for 2006-07, published in June this year, show that the number of adults without access to a bank account fell from 2.8 million in 2002-03 to 2.1 million in 2006-07. The survey data also show that around 95 per cent. of households in the UK are 'banked'. The profile of banked households by Government office region are as follows:

Government office region	Banked households (Percentage)
East Midlands	86
Eastern	93
London	92
North East	93
North West	91
Northern Ireland	86
Scotland	91
South East	96
South West	95
Wales	93
West Midlands	91
Yorks and Humberside	91

Government office region	Banked households (Percentage)
Total count	92

The Financial Inclusion Taskforce recently published its third annual report on access to banking. The report contains profiles of the number of people in the UK without access to a bank account, including breakdowns by region. The report is on the taskforce's website at:

http://www.financialinclusion-taskforce.org.uk

Banks: Finance

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what position the Government holds in relation to other shareholders in the ranking for settlement in (a) Bradford and Bingley and (b) Northern Rock. [276679]

Ian Pearson: Shares in both banks were transferred to the Treasury when the banks were taken into public ownership. The amount of any compensation due to former shareholders will be decided by an independent valuer. The valuer for Northern Rock has already been appointed and further information can be found on his website at:

http://www.northernrockvaluer.org.uk/

The valuer for Bradford and Bingley will be appointed shortly.

Bradford and Bingley

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 7 May 2009, Official Report, column 417W, on Bradford and Bingley, whether his Department proposed changes to the business plan before agreeing it with the Board. [276504]

Ian Pearson: Treasury officials worked co-operatively with Bradford and Bingley in keeping with the shareholder relationship framework document over a number of months as the bank developed its business plan.

Building Societies: Credit Rating

Ms Keeble: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effects of downgrading of the credit rating of some UK building societies; and if he will make a statement. [276472]

Ian Pearson: The Government note the recent ratings downgrades for some UK building societies and will continue to do what is necessary to protect depositors and consumers, ensure financial stability, protect public funds and support the wider economy. The Government welcome the role that mutuals play in the wider community, and in ensuring the diversity of the UK financial services sector.

Housing: Expenditure

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proportion of Government expenditure was spent on housing in each year since 1997. [275948]

Yvette Cooper: Government expenditure on housing and community amenities from 1987-88 is laid out in the Budget 2009 National Statistics functional tables available at the following link:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/d/bud09_functionaltables.xls

Total managed expenditure is a measure of public sector expenditure on a National Accounts basis and is included at the above link.

Job Creation

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many of the planned 100,000 new jobs will be in the public sector; and what the timetable is for their creation; [250508]

(2) how many of the up to 100,000 new jobs he plans to create will be in (a) the private sector and (b) the public sector; and over what period of time the jobs will be created. [258728]

Yvette Cooper: The 2008 pre-Budget report announced the Government's commitment to providing timely, targeted and temporary support to the economy by bringing forward £3 billion of capital spending from 2010-11 into 2008-09 and 2009-10. This additional investment is already supporting a number of industries and employing people across the country.

As the update on the capital fiscal stimulus provided at Budget showed, the majority of the public sector capital projects being brought forward involve construction activity. It is therefore expected that the bulk of the resulting employment impact will be in the construction sector. There are no centrally-prescribed rules for how the additional jobs will be allocated: the Departments concerned are responsible for determining how the additional funding is most effectively spent.

As set out at Budget 2009, the total announced policy support for the UK economy is expected to protect up to half a million jobs through the fiscal stimulus, together with MPC decisions to cut the Bank of England interest rate and quantitative easing.

Mortgages: Complaints

Grant Shapps: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many complaints the Financial Services Authority received on (a) mortgages and (b) repossession of homes by mortgage lenders in each of the last five years. [266283]

Ian Pearson: The matters raised in this question are the responsibility of the Financial Services Authority, the day-to-day operations of which are independent from Government control and influence. The FSA wrote to the hon. Member on 13 May.

National Insurance Contributions: Local Authorities

Robert Neill: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the cost to local authorities of the increase in national insurance contributions for employers announced in the pre-Budget report 2008. [246393]

Yvette Cooper: The total employers' national insurance contributions (NICs) for English local authority staff in 2007-08, including police, fire and rescue staff and teachers is set out in the Local Authority Revenue Expenditure Final Outturn 2007-08, which can be found at:

http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/stats/ro0708fin.pdf

The additional cost of national insurance contributions incurred by councils from 2011 onwards will be considered in the normal way in the next spending review. This will be made in the proper spending review process alongside a holistic view of all additional costs experienced by the sector at this time.

Public Finance: Migration

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will recalculate Table 4.1 on page 36 and Table 4.2 on page 42 of his Department's report of March 2008 on long-term public finance: an analysis of fiscal sustainability assuming long-term average annual net migration of (a) 50,000 a year, (b) 60,000 a year, (c) 100,000 a year, (d) 6 per cent. below the principal migration projection each year, (e) 5 per cent. below the principal migration projection each year and (f) zero. [276279]

Yvette Cooper [holding answer 18 May 2009]: Table 4.3 on page 45 of the 2008 long-term public finance report shows the sensitivity of spending projections to alternative assumptions on fertility, life expectancy and migration. The next Long-term public finance report will be published in 2009.

Public Sector: Pensions

Steve Webb: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to paragraph C.76, page 242 of the 2009 Budget, if he will place in the Library a copy of the actuarial advice he has received on public sector pensions; and if he will make a statement. [272645]

Yvette Cooper: The actuarial advice referred to in paragraph C.76 is that received by individual schemes, reflecting the particular scheme characteristics.

Public Sector: Recruitment

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps the Government is taking to increase public sector employment in deprived areas. [275477]

Yvette Cooper: The Budget announced a Future Jobs Fund, which will provide funding for an additional 50,000 jobs in areas of high unemployment across the country. A further 100,000 jobs, as well as work placements and work-focused training, will be offered to all young people aged 18-24 who have claimed jobseeker's allowance for 12 months. We expect many of the jobs, made available through the Future Jobs Fund, to be provided by local authorities.

Stock Market: Regulation

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with representatives of the Financial Services Authority on the regulation of the stock market. [275438]

Ian Pearson [holding answer 14 May 2009]: Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings and discussions with colleagues in the Financial Services Authority on an ongoing basis. It is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings and discussions.

Taxation: Self-assessment

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer for what reasons HM Revenue and Customs decided not to issue PA10 forms for the tax year 2008-09; and what measures are in place to ensure that taxpayers who are not required to file self-assessment returns do not pay an incorrect amount in tax. [273111]

Mr. Timms: The P810 (Tax Review) form is a non-statutory form and acts as a reminder for customers to advise HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) if they have any additional tax liabilities or unclaimed expenses.

P810 forms are issued on a three-year cycle so there is leeway in the process to control their issue. By not issuing the P810 forms, HMRC will be able to focus its resources on the delivery of the PAYE service, which replaces the current IT PAYE system introduced in the early 1980s. Priority will be given to repayment claims and other unsolicited correspondence from customers. HMRC will resume the issue of P810 forms from April 2010.

Customers are obliged to tell HMRC of any such changes regardless of the issue of a form P810. This is set out on the P2 Notice of Coding, which details the allowances and deductions that have been included in an individual's tax code. P2 notices are issued when HMRC is told of any changes to a customer's circumstances or as part of the annual coding review each January.

Unpaid Taxes

John Battle: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his estimate is of the outstanding cost to the Exchequer of unpaid tax over each of the last five years. [271112]

Mr. Timms: Figures for the outstanding amount of tax debt and revenue losses (tax and duty written off each year) are published in HM Revenue and Customs' Annual Accounts, available at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/about/reports.htm

Administration costs incurred in recovering tax debt and interest paid on additional Government borrowing as a result of unpaid tax represent additional costs to the Exchequer.

Valuation Office

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 2 February 2009, Official Report, column 902W, on Valuation Office, when he plans to place in the Library a copy of the Valuation Office Agency's (a) Introduction to Inspections Workbook, (b) CT Referencers Manual and (c) NDR Referencers Manual; [276671]

(2) pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Peterborough of 6 May 2009, Official Report, column 178W, on Valuation Office: conferences, when he plans to place in the Library copies of the presentations and handouts from the International Property Tax Institute conference held in Pretoria in March 2009; [276693]

(3) pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Peterborough of 6 May 2009, Official Report, column 179W, on Valuation Office: conferences, when he plans to place in the Library copies of the presentations and handouts from the European Valuation Standards conference held in Warsaw on 1 April 2009; [276694]

(4) pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Peterborough of 7 May 2009, Official Report, column 424W, on Valuation Office: overseas visits, when he plans to place in the Library copies of the presentations given at the (a) Russian Society of Appraisers conference in Moscow and (b) International Property Tax Institute conference in Beijing. [276695]

Mr. Timms: These documents have now been deposited in the Library of the House.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar of 9 January 2008, Official Report, column 636W, on Valuation Office: training, when he plans to place in the Library a copy of the e-learning dwelling house coding module. [276672]

Mr. Timms: Due to the volume of data the document can only be deposited in CD Rom format. Arrangements are being made for this to be deposited in the Library of the House.

Valuation Office: Cole Layer Trumble

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Peterborough of 10 March 2009, Official Report, column 262, on the Valuation Office: Cole Layer Trumble, how much has been paid to Cole Layer Trumble and Tyler Technologies for work undertaken on behalf of the Valuation Office Agency to date. [275853]

Mr. Timms: Over the past six years, a total of £3.71 million has been paid to Cole Layer Trumble/Tyler Technologies for this work. This figure excludes non-recoverable VAT.

Valuation Office: Technical Forecasts

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what payments the Valuation Office Agency (VOA) has made to Technical Forecasts Limited in the last 12 months; and to what types of properties the forecast models developed by the company for the VOA relate. [275765]

Mr. Timms: The Valuation Office Agency (VOA) has a contract with Technical Forecasts Limited to provide property value forecasts on behalf of HM Treasury.

The contract runs until 31 December 2009 and is subject to a confidentiality clause that prevents details of the payments for this service being disclosed. The types of property for which forecast data have been prepared are as follows: agricultural land, residential building land, and offices.

Forecasts are also provided for future movements in the prices of office equipment.

The forecasts are then incorporated in indices prepared for HM Treasury by the VOA for use in updating property asset valuations for capital accounting purposes.

Valuation Office: Training

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what (a) e-learning programmes and (b) modules the Valuation Office Agency has. [275784]

Mr. Timms: There are currently 26 e-learning programmes available to all Valuation Office Agency staff. These are listed as follows and broken down by module.

1. Creation (Address Application)

Welfare Tax Credits: Overpayments

Judy Mallaber: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much he expects to write off relating to tax credit overpayments made in (a) 2003-04 and (b) 2004-05; and if he will make a statement. [275379]

Mr. Timms: Overpayments will be written off where there has been a mistake by HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) and the customer has met all their responsibilities, or where the practicality of collecting overpayments does not provide value for money for the taxpayer. On this last set of grounds, HMRC currently intends to write off £230-240 million of debt for the tax year 2003-04 to date. This will be reflected in the Department's Annual Accounts, which are published annually. A breakdown by tax year is not currently available.

Judy Mallaber: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many families (a) in the UK and (b) in Amber Valley with outstanding tax credit overpayments from 2003-04 and 2004-05 had an income at the time of overpayment of (i) up to £5,000, (ii) £5,000 to £10,000, (iii) £10,000 to £15,000, (iv) £15,000 to £20,000, (v) £20,000 to £30,000, (vi) £30,000 to £40,000, (vii) £40,000 to £50,000 and (viii) over £50,000; and if he will make a statement; [275380]

(2) how many families have outstanding tax credit overpayments originating in (a) 2003-04 and (b) 2004-05 (i) in the UK and (ii) in Amber Valley; and if he will make a statement. [275381]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is available only at a disproportionate cost.

However, estimates of the number of families with tax credit awards, including information on overpayments at country, regional and constituency level, are available in the HMRC publications, 'Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics. Finalised Annual Awards. Supplement on Payments. Geographical Analysis'. These numbers are based on final family circumstances and incomes and are available for the years 2003-04 to 2006-07 on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-geog-stats.htm

Further information on overpayments at UK level is also available on the same website in the HMRC publications, 'Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics. Finalised Annual Awards. Supplement on Payments', also for the years 2003-04 to 2006-07.

Information for 2007-08 is not yet available at parliamentary constituency level. The geographical finalised awards publications have been delayed following a problem identified with the delivery of geographical information, although this does not affect the UK level statistics, which were published on 19 May 2009. More information can be found on the HMRC website:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/tc-delay-07-08.htm

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Departmental Buildings

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much his Department has spent on building maintenance since its creation; and if he will make a statement. [274557]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department has spent £666,967 on facilities management services for its two buildings since its creation. These services include building maintenance but we do not record this separately.

Departmental Stationery

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much his Department has spent on branded stationery and gifts for (a) internal and (b) external promotional use since its establishment. [273780]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The information is as follows:

A. Internal

£6,783 for establishing electronic DECC branded stationery files to date. Establishing these electronic templates means we are able to keep ongoing stationery costs to a minimum.

£2,454: the cost of a mug for each member of staff, and low-cost pens.

B. External

£69,089 excluding VAT for various promotional items, including branded bags and stand-by savers, to support events and other PR activity as part of the Act on CO_2 campaign to encourage genuine and sustained carbon reduction behaviour change. This covers the period September 2008 and March 2009. Costs include some storage and distribution.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much his Department has spent on the purchase of (a) recycled office supplies in the last 12 months and (b) printer ink cartridges since its creation. [274203]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The information is as follows:

(a) DECC do not hold the cost of purchasing recycled office supplies at this level of detail.

(b) To date, printer cartridges have been supplied as part of IT or facilities management service contracts with BERR and DEFRA. The cost of purchasing cartridges is not available as they are not identified separately for DECC usage.

Energy: Meters

Janet Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what programme he has established for the roll-out of the installation of domestic smart meters; and what opportunities contractors will have to bid for contracts to install such meters. [276022]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Government published a consultation on smart metering on 11 May 2009. The consultation is available on the open consultations section of the DECC website.

The consultation document includes discussion of the preparation programme that will be needed before the roll-out of smart meters can begin. It also sets out the Government's preference for delivery model under which suppliers would procure and install smart meters and a national communications network would be put in place to support smart meter communications. Final decisions on both areas will be taken once the consultation is complete.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when he plans to respond to the hon. Member for Billericay's letters of 20 February and 26 March 2009 on his constituent, Mr J. Adams. [272312]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I responded to the hon. Member on 6 May 2009.

Natural Gas: Wales

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what funding his Department has provided to National Grid for the Felindre to Tirley pipeline. [276769]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: None.

Wind Power

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many wind farms there are in England and Wales; how much electricity each produced in 2008; and if he will make a statement. [275031]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: There are currently 120 operational wind farms in England and Wales (112 onshore and eight offshore)[1].

This Department do not hold generation data from individual wind farms on a yearly basis. However, at present, we have a provisional figure of 7,124.8 GWh for wind power generation in the UK as a whole in 2008.[2, 3]

Data for wind farms in England and Wales in 2007 can be found in our regional Renewables article[4] in the September 2008 edition of Energy Trends at:

WORK AND PENSIONS

Adviser Discretion Fund

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) whether the Adviser Discretion Fund provides funding to train an individual jobseeker in the preparation of a curriculum vitae; [272936]

(2) how much was made available for each activity funded by the Adviser Discretion Fund in 2008-09. [272937]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your questions asking whether the Adviser Discretion Fund provides funding to train an individual jobseeker in preparation of a curriculum vitae; and how much was made available for each activity funded by the Adviser Discretion Fund in 2008-09. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The Adviser Discretion Fund is not ordinarily used for assisting people with their curriculum vitae as this type of support is provided through alternative means, for example, the recently announced additional support for newly unemployed people and Programme Centres. Access to these services is available as soon as a person has made a claim.

The Adviser Discretion Fund is not allocated on the basis of specific activities, so the information you seek is not available. District Managers are allocated a share of the overall allocation (£23 million in 2009/10), which is used flexibly and at the Adviser's discretion to address individual customer needs.

Departmental Fraud

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much has been lost by (a) each section of his Department and (b) each of his Department's agencies because of internal fraud in each of the last five years. [245255]

Jonathan Shaw: Information is not available in the exact format requested. I refer the hon. Member to the answers given on 3 June 2008, Official Report, column 804W. We are able to provide the breakdown of losses in each agency in 2003-04 and 2004-05 as set out in the following table. From 2005-06 onwards HM Treasury reporting requires details at departmental level only. This analysis is consistent with the way in which the Department reports to HM Treasury on internal fraud.

Drugs: Rehabilitation

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will make it his policy to involve third party drug treatment providers in assisting problem drug users identified by Jobcentre Plus. [273801]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 8 May 2009]: Yes. From 27 April individuals who identify themselves as problem drug users to Jobcentre Plus staff in England are being referred to local drug treatment services to discuss the help and support available to them. In addition to this the Welfare Reform Bill includes provisions to pilot a mandatory referral and support regime for problem drug users.

Employment Schemes

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what support his Department provides to assist people who have been unemployed for less than six months to find new employment. [268204]

Mr. McNulty: The Government are doing all they can to help those who become unemployed to get back into work as quickly as possible. Although the claimant count is rising that does not mean people are not also moving off benefit—in April, 290,900 people flowed off unemployment benefits. Most people leave jobseeker's allowance quickly: over half of new claims last less than three months and around three quarters last less than six months.

In November we invested an extra £1.3 billion to ensure that through Jobcentre Plus we continue to provide personal help and advice to everyone who needs it—help in finding a job, filling in job applications and in writing CVs and advice on re-training and skills. In the Budget we committed a further £1.7 billion to support Jobcentre Plus and providers so that everyone can continue to receive high quality support.

Furthermore, on April 6 we introduced new support for newly unemployed customers who require support to update their job search skills. The new support will be available to customers following their initial interview at Jobcentre Plus, and can be tailored for those who have recently left a professional or executive job.

In addition, also from April, we have increased funding to the Adviser Discretion Fund (ADF), making it available from day 1 to any new customer who has made a successful claim to jobseeker's allowance. The ADF allows personal advisers to make discretionary payments to help jobseekers overcome barriers to applying for jobs.

The Government have also increased their engagement and access to Local Employment Partnership vacancies to help unemployed customers find work. People who have been out of work for more than 13 weeks may also get help with paying the interest on their mortgage.

Income Support: Interviews

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many mandatory six-month interview demands have been sent out to income support claimants in the last 12 months; how many of these have subsequently been (a) deferred and (b) waived; and if he will make a statement. [271780]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking how many mandatory six-month interview demands have been sent out to income support claimants in the last 12 months; and how many of these have subsequently been (a) deferred and (b) waived. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The only Income Support customers required to attend an interview at the six-month point of their claim are lone parents. In the 12 months ending November 2008, we invited 141,600 lone parents to an interview with a personal adviser at the six-month point of their claim. Of these, 2,800 were deferred and 5,800 were waived.

Jobcentre Plus: Standards

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the performance of Jobcentre Plus in each (a) region and (b) Jobcentre Plus district against its customer service target for (i) timeliness, (ii) professionalism and (iii) information in each year since the target was launched, and in each of the last 24 months. [264237]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is not collated to Jobcentre Plus region and district level. It could only be provided at National level from April 2002 to March 2007 and at National and Jobcentre Plus Directorate level from April 2007. National level information is published in the Jobcentre Plus Annual Reports which are available in the Library.

Jobseeker's Allowance

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how long on average it took to process a claim for jobseeker's allowance in each (a) region and (b) Jobcentre Plus district in each month since November 2008; and if he will make a statement; [269506]

(2) how many unprocessed jobseeker's allowance claims there were in (a) total and (b) each region in each month since November 2008; and if he will make a statement. [269759]

Mr. McNulty: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to respond to your questions asking how long on average it took to process a claim for Jobseeker's Allowance in each (a) region and (b) Jobcentre Plus district in each month since November 2008 and if he will make a statement; and how many unprocessed Jobseeker's Allowance claims have been made in (a) total and (b) each region in each month since November 2008 and if he will make a statement. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The target for Jobseeker's Allowance (JSA) Average Actual Clearance Time (AACT) is 11.5 days. This is calculated from the customer's initial date of contact to the date a decision is made on their claim. Our benefit processing system calculates the AACT by taking the clearance time of each individual claim, using the dates as described, and calculates an average across the volume of claims processed. We no longer gather data at a district level but at Benefit Delivery Centre (BDC) level. Information on AACT since November 2008, in month, per region and BDC has been placed in the Library.

Jobcentre Plus calculates the number of unprocessed JSA claims on a monthly basis by carrying out a count across the benefit processing system on the last working day of the month. On any given day a small number of claims will be in transit between offices, so the count will slightly understate the total number of unprocessed claims. Information on the number of outstanding claims since November 2008, in month, the total for Jobcentre Plus and per region has been placed in the Library.

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 13 May 2009, Official Report, columns 860-1W, on jobseeker's allowance, what the equivalent planning assumption is in respect of income-based jobseeker's allowance. [276433]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 19 May 2009]: The Department does not publish an official forecast for claimant unemployment, whether in total or separately for the contributory, income-based and credits-only sections of the caseload.

The Budget report published HM Treasury's planning assumption for the UK claimant count, which is used for public finance projections. This is based on an average of around 30 forecasts by academic and City institutions, and is audited by the National Audit Office, but does not constitute an official Government forecast. The numbers within this assumption which are assumed to be income-based cases in Great Britain are shown in the following table.

Financial year	Number of claimants of income-based jobseeker's allowance
2009-10	1,449,000
2010-11	1,830,000

Notes:

1. The figures quoted above relate to jobseeker's allowance claimants in Great Britain. Information regarding Northern Ireland is a matter for the Northern Ireland Office. They are rounded to the nearest thousand claimants, and include the impact of welfare reform measures, which will bring additional claimants onto jobseeker's allowance from other benefits.
2. The figures for 2009-10 are lower than the total claimant count published by the Office for National Statistics since those figures related to the United Kingdom, and include people who only receive contributory jobseeker's allowance or national insurance credits without any benefit being in payment. Similarly, both figures quoted are lower than the claimant count assumption published in the Budget report.
3. The figures presented above include 31,000 claimants in 2009-10 and 38,000 claimants in 2010-11 who are also claimants of contributory jobseeker's allowance. These are claimants who receive an income-based top up to their contributory allowance.
4. These figures are the average number of claimants over the financial years shown.
5. The figures quoted in the Budget and pre-Budget reports are for seasonally adjusted claimant unemployment in the UK. This is a cautious assumption based on the average of external forecasts and is not the Treasury's economic forecast.
6. The Budget report 2009 can be found at http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/bud_bud09_repindex.htm The latest assumption can be found on page 221 (boxC1).

Jobseeker's Allowance: Fife

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions for how long on average claimants resident in (a) Fife and (b) North East Fife constituency received jobseeker's allowance in each of the last five years. [270860]

Mr. McNulty: The information requested is shown in the following table.

Jobseeker's allowance off-flows by median (weeks) duration in the last five years

	Fife local authority	North East Fife parliamentary constituency
April 2004 to March 2005	9.1	9.0
April 2005 to March 2006	10.0	9.8
April 2006 to March 2007	11.5	11.3
April 2007 to March 2008	10.1	10.4

Jobseeker's allowance off-flows by median (weeks) duration in the last five years

	Fife local authority	North East Fife parliamentary constituency
April 2008 to March 2009	8.5	8.0

Notes:
1. Median durations are rounded to one decimal place.
2. This information is published on the Nomis website at www.nomisweb.co.uk
3. The information in the table relates to Jobseeker's Allowance claims completed in the relevant year, and does not include claimants still receiving jobseeker's allowance at the end of the year.
Source:
Count of unemployment-related benefits, Jobcentre Plus computer systems (computer held cases only).

These figures are affected by changes in the overall composition of claimant unemployment, which during periods of rising or falling unemployment can dominate any changes in the average length of time that individuals can expect to remain on the count. Recent changes in the median duration of jobseeker's allowance off-flows will have been influenced by increases in claimant unemployment that have mainly reflected higher inflows to jobseeker's allowance. This has had the effect of reducing the median duration of the stock of jobseeker's allowance claimants and of the off-flows from that stock.

Jobseeker's Allowance: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of young people in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire claimed jobseeker's allowance in each of the last 10 years. [272790]

Mr. McNulty: Information for Hemel Hempstead is not available.

Information for Hertfordshire is shown in the following table:

Pathways to Work

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the code of conduct relating to Pathways to Work programmes for (a) prime contractors and (b) sub-contractors; and how many complaints his Department has received from sub-contractors relating to breaches of the code. [268937]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 20 April 2009]: The Code of Conduct is an integral part of the Department for Work and Pensions Commissioning Strategy which was published in February 2008. Although both the Strategy and supporting Code were published by the time Pathways contracts were implemented, the procurement process did not include formal compliance with the Code, as was subsequently the case with the flexible New Deal.

Flexible New Deal will be the first provision commissioned fully under the Commissioning Strategy. Wherever possible, the Department has been working to the standards set out in the Strategy in advance of flexible New Deal implementation. Although the Code of Conduct formally forms part of the flexible New Deal contracts, the principles of the Code apply to all our supply chains.

Effective working arrangements between prime contractors and their sub-contractors are important to the Department in the delivery of Provider Led Pathways. All providers and their sub-contractors have a routeway for any complaints via the Department for Work Pensions website direct to the supplier inquiry team. We currently do not classify complaints by whether they are from providers or subcontractors but deal with them on an individual basis.

Social Security Benefits

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many benefit payments were paid (a) by direct debit into bank accounts and (b) via the Post Office network through the Post Office card account in each of the last three years. [273082]

Mr. McNulty: The following table shows the number of benefit payment transactions paid (a) by direct payment into bank accounts and (b) via the Post Office network through the Post Office card account in each of the last three years.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many recipients of benefits were paid (a) by direct debit into bank accounts and (b) via the Post Office network through the Post Office card account in each of the last three years. [273083]

Mr. McNulty: Information is not available in the precise format requested.

The following table shows the number of benefit accounts paid (a) by direct payment into bank accounts and (b) via the Post Office network through the Post Office card account in each of the last three years for which figures are available.

	Bank account	Million Post Office card account
2008	16.1	4.0
2007	15.5	4.2
2006	15.2	4.4

Notes:
1. Figures are rounded and refer to GB benefit payment accounts live and in payment as at June of each year. Customers with more than one benefit account will be counted for each account.
2. Child benefit and war pensions are no longer administered by DWP and have therefore been excluded.

Social Security Benefits: Fraud

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many cases of potential fraud were investigated where the Department considered there to be a high probability of prosecution in each of the last five years for which information is available; how many cases of potential fraud were taken to court; and how many cases achieved a conviction. [244731][1]

Mr. McNulty: The available information for DWP administered benefits is in the following table.

	Number of cases referred for prosecution	Number prosecuted	Number of convictions	Number of cases taken to court that accepted an alternative sanction
2003-04	10,048	10,358	9,027	n/a

2007-08	10,288	10,274	7,745	278

n/a = Not available
Notes:
1. All cases for criminal investigation are taken forward as having the potential to result in prosecution; alternative sanctions of caution and administrative penalty are only offered on the basis that, if refused, prosecution remains an option for the Department. Decisions on whether a sanction and which type is appropriate are, rightly, only made when an investigation has been completed.
2. The number of cases prosecuted each year may exceed the number of cases referred for prosecution due to the length of time that can occur between referral and an available court date.

Social Security Benefits: Prisoners

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether procedures are in place to review the entitlement to welfare benefits of prisoners sentenced to custody. [275490]

Mr. McNulty [holding answer 19]: Prisoners convicted of a criminal offence and given a term of imprisonment do not get benefits. An exception is made in certain cases of housing benefit and council tax benefit where the overall absence will not exceed 13 weeks, on the grounds that loss of the home or falling into arrears of council tax in these circumstances would be an indirect and unjustified consequence of the punishment. Additionally payment of certain War Pensions and Industrial Injuries Disablement Benefits is suspended for up to a year and paid on release, the reason being that these particular benefits are paid by way of compensation rather than to meet specific or general needs or to provide a measure of income-maintenance.

Details of all newly convicted prisoners in England, Scotland and Wales are sent weekly to the Department for Work and Pensions to check if any are receiving benefits or national insurance credits and for the appropriate action to be taken.

State Retirement Pensions

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many pensioners received state pension (a) overpayments and (b) underpayments in each of the last five years. [272473]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Information about the number of pensioners who are overpaid or underpaid state pension is not held.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Departmental Procurement

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst of 24 March 2009, Official Report, column 214W, on departmental procurement, which items were purchased for the Deputy Prime Minister's Office; and if she will place a copy of each invoice in the Library. [272242]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) by my hon. Friend the Member for Tooting (Mr. Khan) on 30 March 2009, Official Report, column 970W.

All expenditure in the Deputy Prime Minister's Office was conducted in accordance with the principles of "Government Accounting" and the Treasury handbook on "Regularity and Propriety".

Derelict Land: Property Development

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homes for (a) social rent and (b) intermediate affordable housing were built on surplus public sector land in each of the last five years. [274831]

Mr. Iain Wright: This Department does not hold this information centrally. However, we are working with the Homes and Communities Agency and Government Departments to develop a robust system of data collection so that we can identify and record what housing development is taking place on public sector sites. The Homes and Communities Agency is also seeking the help of local authorities in establishing this database.

Employment Tribunals Service

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many actions under employment law were brought against the Department in each of the last three years, broken down by category of action; and how many were contested by the Department at an employment tribunal. [275626]

John Healey [holding answer 14 May 2009]: In each of the last three years the Department for Communities and Local Government have received less than five actions under employment law. As a consequence, this information is not disclosed on grounds of confidentiality.

Empty Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many vacant social sector dwellings there were in each region in each of the last three years; [271763]

(2) how many dwellings owned by (a) local authorities and (b) registered social landlords in each region were vacant in each of the last five years; and what percentage of the total number of unoccupied dwellings in each region that figure represents in each year. [273896]

Mr. Iain Wright: The term social sector dwellings has been interpreted to mean "social rented" dwellings.

A table showing estimates of the number of social sector domestic empty dwellings in the last three years, and estimates for each of the last five years of the numbers of dwellings owned by local authorities and registered social landlords in each region which are vacant, and the percentage of all vacant dwellings that these represent, is provided in the following table.

Total vacant dwellings reported by local authorities through council taxbase returns include long term and short term empty dwellings.

Figures for registered social landlords are for self-contained general needs units only.

Council Taxbase and Council Taxbase Supplementary (CTBR and CTBRS) returns from local authorities, Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix (HSSA) submitted to Communities and Local Government by local authorities, Regulatory Statistical Return (RSR) as reported to the Housing Corporation by registered social landlords.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many vacant dwellings in each region were (a) local authority-owned, (b) registered social landlord-owned and (c) privately-owned in each of the last five years. [275577]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him today, Official Report, (PQs 273763 and 273896).

HomeBuy Scheme

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what percentage of the MyChoice HomeBuy budget for each region for 2010-11 has been allocated; and if she will make a statement; [273569]

(2) what funding was allocated to MyChoice Homebuy in (a) 2008-09 and (b) 2009-10; and how much has been spent from each year's allocation; [276740]

(3) how many allocations of funding were provided by MyChoice Homebuy for 2009-10; and how many have so far been taken up; [276741]

(4) how much funding is available for the MyChoice Homebuy scheme in 2010-11; and if she will make a statement; [276742]

(5) what assessment she has made of whether to reallocate funds from one Homebuy scheme to another; [276743]

(6) whether she plans to redistribute MyChoice Homebuy funding to reflect demand for the scheme in each region; and if she will make a statement; [276744]

(7) how many Homebuy agents had stopped accepting new applications for the MyChoice Homebuy scheme by 18 May 2009; [276745]

(8) how many Homebuy agents were accepting applications for the MyChoice Homebuy scheme on 18 May 2009. [276747]

Margaret Beckett: I refer the hon. Member to the answers he was given on 24 March 2009, Official Report, column 218W, and on 18 May, Official Report, columns1194-5W.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homes were available under the (a) HomeBuy Direct, (b) OwnHome, (c) OpenMarket HomeBuy, (d) the First Time Buyers Initiative, (e) MyChoice HomeBuy, (f) New Build HomeBuy, (g) Social HomeBuy and (h) Rent to HomeBuy schemes in each region in each of the last six months. [276384]

Margaret Beckett [holding answer 19 May 2009]: We do not hold centrally the number of homes available for Open Market HomeBuy, in each region in each of the last six months. The scheme enables purchasers to buy any property on the open market with the help of an equity loan. Ownhome and My Choice HomeBuy are subsets of Open Market HomeBuy.

Again for HomeBuy Direct we do not centrally collect the number of homes available to purchase by region.

On the First Time Buyers' Initiative, the following table shows the number of homes available in each month. These figures do not include homes that were purchased "off plan".

	November	December	January	February	March	April
East of England	73	82	91	104	120	94
East Midlands	105	107	107	113	113	121

The number of completed homes each month for NewBuild HomeBuy has been provided in the following table. In each month there are likely to be more homes available than just those newly completed, as some homes can take a few months to sell and others come back on the market as occupants change.

We do not hold centrally data on the number of properties on which Social HomeBuy is offered by landlords participating in the scheme.

HomeBuy Scheme: Finance

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much has been spent on (a) HomeBuy Direct, (b) OwnHome, (c) OpenMarket HomeBuy, (d) the First Time Buyers Initiative, (e) MyChoice HomeBuy, (f) New Build HomeBuy, (g) Social HomeBuy and (h) Rent to HomeBuy in each region in each of the last three years. [273898]

Margaret Beckett: The following table shows the spend through the Homes and Communities Agency's Affordable Housing Programme for Open Market HomeBuy which includes on OwnHome and MyChoice HomeBuy; New Build HomeBuy; First Time Buyers Initiative; Social HomeBuy; and Rent to HomeBuy in each region in 2006-07, 2007-08 and 2008-09. Figures for 2008-09 are provisional.

OwnHome and MyChoice HomeBuy are subsets of the Open Market HomeBuy scheme and did not commence until 2008-09. Rent to HomeBuy was also introduced in 2008-09.

There were no approved allocations on HomeBuy Direct in any of these years as the scheme was only introduced towards the end of 2008-09.

Homes and Communities Agency: Contracts

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 5 May 2009, Official Report, column 131W, on the Homes and Communities Agency: Finance, (1) for what reason the Homes and Communities Agency let each of the six contracts identified by single tender; which organisation received each contract; and what the purpose of each contract was; [274880]

(2) for what reason the Academy for Sustainable Communities let each of the five contracts identified by single tender; which organisation received each contract; and what the purpose of each contract was. [274881]

Margaret Beckett: Pursuant to the answer of 5 May 2009, Official Report, column 131W, the contracts entered into by the Homes and Communities Agency on a single tender basis were as follows:

Organisation contracted	Purpose of contract	Reason given for single tender action
Terry Farrell and Partners	Specialist advice to the Chief Executive of the Homes and Communities Agency	Recognised provider of specialist advice (unique provider)
KPMG	Specialist advice on developing a new delegations framework	This contract had previously been let by competitive tender under the Department for Work and Pensions framework. This new time-limited appointment was made to extend this contract pending a competitive process under the HM Treasury framework
Sheffield Hallam University	HCA Academy provision and completion of foundation degree	Time limited extension of arrangement previously competitively procured but with no option to extend (unique provider and IPR issues)
Dr. Simon Bell	HCA Academy provision of modular training	Time limited extension of arrangement previously competitively procured but with no option to extend (unique provider)
John Langford	Executive management coaching and support	Services required to facilitate a number of workshops with the new Executive Management team of the recently established Agency. Appointed on an interim basis in order to ensure timely delivery. A subsequent competitive procurement process has been undertaken. At the time of writing no appointment has been made

Pursuant to the same answer of 5 May 2009, the contracts let by the Academy for Sustainable Communities on a single tender basis were as follows:

Organisation contracted	Purpose of contract	Business justification given for single tender action
Glasgows Group	Organisation of regional masterclass	A contractor was required at short notice. Glasgows had previously been through two competitive tenders for similar jobs winning both
JSA Regeneration Ltd.	Organisation of online workshops—"In A Nutshell"	Time limited extension of arrangement previously competitively procured but with no option to extend (unique provider)

Organisation contracted	Purpose of contract	Business justification given for single tender action
Billings Enterprises Ltd.	Appointment of an advisor to the Academy Board	The supplier had previous experience and had demonstrated expertise in working in this area (with Communities and Local Government)
Dean Knight Partnership	Cover for Learning and Skills Manager Post	Following a national recruitment exercise the Academy was unable to recruit to this fixed term post. The transition to HCA also put the post at risk of contractual delays. The consultant concerned has previous knowledge of the Academy for Sustainable Communities (ASC) and could fill the role until the ASC could recruit under HCA on a permanent basis
IBP Academy	To run the "Raising Our Game" programme in the short term	ASC took over the programme from the North West Development Agency. Award of this contract allowed for the programme to continue in the short term until a commissioned options appraisal could take place on a delivery model for the future

Homes and Communities Agency: Finance

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 5 May 2009, Official Report, column 130W, on the Homes and Communities Agency: finance, for what reason the Housing Corporation made a termination payment to (a) the administrator of Elonex plc and (b) the contractor. [274797]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Housing Corporation (HC) paid a total of £39,697.64 as an out of court settlement to the administrators of Elonex following the earlier termination of that contract due to a material breach in that contract arising from poor service delivery. Since this was a payment to a supplier that gave no tangible benefit to the HC it was declared as a loss/special payment.

The HC paid a total of £11,162 to terminate the contract. The reasons for the termination are commercial in confidence. Since the contractor did not work their notice, the HC did not receive any benefit from this payment. It was, therefore, declared as a loss/special payment.

Housing Revenue Accounts

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made on the Housing Revenue Account review; and when the expected consultation paper will be issued. [276521]

Mr. Iain Wright: We expect the Review of Council Housing Finance to report to the Chief Secretary and to the Minister for Housing and Planning early in the summer. Consultation will follow thereafter.

Housing: Construction

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government in which Government Office regions the Homes and Communities Agency reached 80 per cent. of its start of year targets for (a) starts and (b) completions for 2008-09. [270120]

Margaret Beckett: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave her on 24 April 2009, Official Report, column 913W.

Housing: Low Incomes

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 24 March 2009, Official Report, columns 217-18W, on the HomeBuy scheme, how many transactions under her Department's HomeBuy Direct scheme have been completed. [274188]

Margaret Beckett: To the end of April 2009, three transactions had been fully completed under the HomeBuy Direct scheme. However, a number of participating developers are reporting high levels of pre-registrations for their HomeBuy Direct properties.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the cost to her Department of the (a) Homebuy Direct, (b) OwnHome, (c) OpenMarket HomeBuy, (d) the First Time Buyers Initiative, (e) MyChoice HomeBuy, (f) New Build HomeBuy, (g) Social HomeBuy and (h) Rent to HomeBuy schemes has been since the beginning of financial year 2009-10. [275570]

Margaret Beckett: The following table shows provisional expenditure by the Homes and Communities Agency on each of the categories listed.

	Spend in April 2009[1] (£ million)
Homebuy Direct	0.07
New Build Homebuy	0.64
Rent to Homebuy	5.53
Open Market Homebuy	7.07

The figure shown for Open Market HomeBuy is the total for that product. The sums for MyChoice HomeBuy and OwnHome are subsets of this total.

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield of 8 May 2009, Official Report, columns 448-49W, on housing: low incomes, how many New Build Homebuy properties were vacant at the latest date for which figures are available; [276923]

(2) how many low-cost home ownership homes in each Government Office region have not yet been sold. [277020]

Margaret Beckett: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 14 May 2009, Official Report, column 1004W.

A regional breakdown of the figures is not available.

Local Development Frameworks

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of local planning authorities in England have in place an up-to-date local development framework. [276571]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Local Development Framework is a suite of development plan documents (DPDs) which should have regard to a 15-year time horizon and can evolve over time and respond to changing circumstances. This means that there is no definition of what constitutes up-to-date.

However, since the introduction of local development frameworks in 2004, the Planning Inspectorate who independently examine all DPDs have found 112 DPDs sound, including 43 core strategies. Between 2000 and 2007, 109 local authorities adopted old-style plans. All local planning authorities, including those with sound core strategies, can continue to use saved policies from old-style plans as part of their statutory development plan until such time as they are superseded by one of the suite of documents within the Local Development Framework.

Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what plans she has (a) to bring into force and (b) to make regulations under Part 6 of the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007; [276757]

(2) when she plans to publish the summary of responses to the consultation, Real People, Real Power: The Making and Enforcement of Byelaws, which closed on 20 November 2008. [276758]

John Healey: As indicated in our final Local Government Implementation Plan, published on 19 March 2009, we intend to have secondary legislation, made under Part 6 of the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007, implementing our proposals on byelaws, in place by summer 2009.

Prior to making any such legislation, we will publish a summary of responses to the consultation exercise.

Planning Permission: Appeals

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what definition the Planning Inspectorate will use of householder development for the purposes of the expedited procedure for household appeals. [276967]

Mr. Iain Wright: "Householder development" means:

(a) an application for planning permission for development of an existing dwelling house, or development within the curtilage of such a dwelling house for any purpose incidental to the enjoyment of the dwelling house, or

(b) an application for any consent, agreement or approval required by or under a planning permission, development order or local development order in relation to such development but does not include:

(i) an application for change of use, or

(ii) an application to change the number of dwellings in a building.

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the Householder Appeals Service will receive representations from those who objected to a planning application which is the subject of an appeal. [276968]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Householder Appeals Service will continue to receive all representations made at the planning application stage from those who objected. However, there is no longer a specific stage during the appeal where those who objected at the planning application stage can then make further representations.

Robert Neill: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the Householder Appeals Service will consider applications to demolish a dwelling house and construct another building in its place. [276969]

Mr. Iain Wright: No, the demolition and replacement of a dwelling with another falls outside terms of what is 'Householder Development' and therefore as a result also falls outside the definition of the Householder Appeals Service.

Rent to HomeBuy Scheme

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) registered social landlords and (b) households are taking part in the Rent to HomeBuy scheme. [276143]

Margaret Beckett: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 19 May 2009, Official Report, column 1357W, and on 26 March 2009, Official Report, column 719-720W.

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many applications under the Rent to HomeBuy scheme have been received; and if she will make a statement. [276144]

Margaret Beckett: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 26 March 2009, Official Report, column 719W.

Retail Trade: Planning

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the proportion of new retail development which was located in town centres in each of the last three years; and what information her Department holds on projected trends in the location of proposed retail development in the next three years. [276569]

Mr. Iain Wright: The latest available estimates give the proportion of retail properties that existed on 1 April 2007 and were built in town centres and edge of town centre locations in 2004, 2005 and 2006.

The estimates are set out in the following table:

Year of build	Percentage of retail floor space built in town centres plus edge of centre locations
2004	41.9
2005	43.0
2006	42.1

The Department produces no statistics on trends for future years.

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she expects the revised approach to retail planning in local plans proposed by draft Planning Policy Statement 4 to be integrated into local development frameworks throughout England. [276570]

Mr. Iain Wright: There is no set timetable for local planning authorities to take the final PPS 4 into account as they prepare and revise documents within their Local Development Frameworks. They will need to consider the extent to which emerging local development documents should have regard to the policies in the final PPS but they should not, in seeking to reflect new policies in plans, delay the plan-making process. However, before development plans can be reviewed to reflect the policy statement, the policies in the final PPS may be material, depending on the particular circumstances of the case, to decisions on individual planning applications and appeals.

Social Rented Housing: Empty Property

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many vacant (a) local authority and (b) registered social landlord dwellings there were in each local authority area in each of the last three years. [275875]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 15 May 2009]: A table showing the number of vacant local authority and registered social landlord dwellings and dwelling stock in each local authority area in each of the last three years has been placed in the Library of the House.

Tenant Services Authority: Public Relations

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 29 January 2009, Official Report, column 784W, on the Tenant Services Authority: publicity, with which stakeholders the authority engaged through the expenditure on public relations activities; and what the output was of each project funded by the expenditure on branding. [273456]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Tenant Services Authority's expenditure on public affairs consultancy funded APCO's consultancy to assist the TSA with the development of their strategy for engaging with stakeholders. No stakeholder engagement was undertaken in relation to this particular expenditure.

The TSAs expenditure on branding funded a single project to develop a new brand identity. The outputs included research via consultation with tenants and stakeholders and development of the brand identity covering everything related to the brand, including the TSA logo, publication styles and development of the TSA mission statement, exhibition signage and promotional items.

Yorkshire and Humber Regional Assembly: Costs

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the residual costs of the Yorkshire and Humber Regional Assembly in 2009-10. [276734]

Mr. Iain Wright: There will be no residual costs for the Yorkshire and Humber regional assembly in 2009-10. The assembly ceased to exist on 31 March 2009. The assets of the assembly along with the majority of staff have transferred to successor bodies who will undertake the work previously undertaken by the assembly and as set out in the agreed Regional Business Plan funded by CLG.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport which grants of more than £1,000 his Department has made to outside bodies in the last 12 months. [261052]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I am arranging for a list of all grants made in the financial year 2008-09 to be placed in the House Libraries.

A breakdown of individual grant awards under the Listed Places of Worship and Memorial Grants Schemes could be provided only at disproportionate cost as grant claim records are held on separate databases. Expenditure on these schemes in 2008-09 amounted to £16,340,000 and payments in the year relate to eligible expenditure spanning several financial years.

Licensed Premises: Performing Arts

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport with reference to the Sixth Report of the Culture, Media and Sport Committee of Session 2008-09, on the Licensing Act 2003, if he will take steps to make it easier for licensed premises to have live entertainment; and if he will make a statement. [276408]

Mr. Sutcliffe: We will look closely at the Culture, Media and Sport Select Committee's recommendations and respond formally in due course. However, it should be remembered that the Licensing Act 2003 has already made it easier for licensed premises to provide live entertainment by removing the need for a separate 'public entertainment licence', with its annual renewal exercise and widely variable fee levels. The Act also introduced a new, light touch system for small temporary events.

However, we recognise that some stakeholders, including those that gave evidence to the Select Committee, see opportunities for further liberalisation and we will continue to seek ways to reduce burdens as part of our commitment to better regulation.

Members: Correspondence

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he plans to reply to the letter of 3 February 2009 from the hon. Member for Mid Worcestershire on consultation on changes to the licensing regime for circuses; what plans he has to change the regime; and if he will make a statement. [276519]

Mr. Sutcliffe: As I have previously discussed with the hon. Member, a number of simplification measures we are pursuing in relation to the Licensing Act 2003 (the 2003 Act), such as the minor variation process which is currently before the other House, should benefit circuses which require permissions under the 2003 Act. In addition, I remain committed to looking at possible options for a portable licence for travelling circuses and I will write to the hon. Member very shortly, in response to his previous correspondence, to set out how I think we should progress this matter.

Wirral Library Service

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his timetable is for making a decision on the Wirral Library Service following receipt of the report of the Charteris Review into the service. [276055]

Barbara Follett: When the Secretary of State announced the Wirral Library Inquiry in April he said it would not be a "long, drawn-out affair", and the momentum has been maintained. The local inquiry, which has now been announced, will be convened at the Floral Pavilion, New Brighton, on 9 June 2009 at 9.30 am. As lead on the inquiry, Sue Charteris will then write a formal report and submit it to the Secretary of State. The Secretary of State's decision as to whether Wirral metropolitan borough council's plans are consistent with their statutory duties will follow as soon as he has had the opportunity to consider the evidence. DCMS will publish Sue Charteris's report at the same time.

OLYMPICS

Inspire Mark

Mr. Andy Reed: To ask the Minister for the Olympics pursuant to the answer of 25 March 2009, Official Report, column 393W, on the Inspire mark, which projects have been awarded the Inspire Mark; where each is located; and if she will make a statement. [272404]

Tessa Jowell: The Inspire Mark is awarded to high quality, non-commercial projects and programmes, which have been inspired by the Olympic and Paralympic Games, and deliver outcomes in sport, culture, volunteering, the environment, and promoting business opportunities. The following projects have been awarded the Mark to date.

Note:
Scotland's Creative Programmer was not appointed until September 2008. However, Scotland is looking to have one of its four UK Legacy Trust projects awarded with the Inspire Mark, within the next two weeks, with another three following suit over the next 12 months.

Olympic Games 2012: Essex

Mr. Amess: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what steps her Office (a) has taken and (b) plans to ensure that local authorities in Essex share in benefits arising from the 2012 Olympic Games; what discussions her Office has had with local authorities in Essex on the matter; and if she will make a statement. [275612]

Tessa Jowell: We are fully committed to ensuring that everyone in the UK can be part of the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. We aim to do this through cultural events across the country, more opportunities to take part in sport and to be physically active, and a range of volunteering, jobs and skills initiatives as well as business opportunities. The Legacy Action Plan which I published in June last year sets out more details on how we propose to deliver this vision.

I am also keen for regions to identify what is important to them. At a regional level this work is being taken forward by the Nations and Regions Group (NRG) who are working hard to optimise local benefits of the games. Additionally, the Local Government Association (which is represented on the group) is supporting local authorities across the UK in the lead up to the games.

Cllr Stephen Castle, who is the regional representative on NRG, chairs the Nations and Regions East (NRE) Board. This board has representation from each of the six county areas in the East of England and each county has a 2012 working group. In Essex a strategic board has been set up and is supported and led by Essex county council. The board is chaired by Gary Sullivan, also chair of the Thames Gateway South Essex Partnership. The board has the full involvement and representation from both Thurrock and Southend unitary authorities and provides relevant and appropriate activity to maximise the benefits from 2012.

In March 2009 I was delighted to award Essex county council a Beacon Award for its work on Olympic and Paralympic Legacy. This award recognised the council's excellent efforts to use the opportunity of hosting the games to encourage local communities to be more active.

Furthermore, East of England will be experiencing first hand the excitement of the games as Hadleigh Farm in Essex will be hosting the mountain biking competition.

Olympic Games 2012: Northern Ireland

Dr. Alasdair McDonnell: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what her objectives are for the legacy for Northern Ireland from the London 2012 Olympic Games. [276114]

Tessa Jowell: We are fully committed to ensuring that everyone in the UK can be part of the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. We aim to do this through cultural events across the country, more opportunities to take part in sport and to be physically active, and a range of volunteering, jobs and skills initiatives as well as business opportunities. The Legacy Action Plan which I published in June last year sets out our objectives and more details on how we propose to deliver this vision.

I am also keen for devolved Administrations to identify what is important to them. At a local level this work is being taken forward by the Nations and Regions Group (NRG) who are working hard to optimise the benefits of the games. The Northern Ireland interim NRG member is Hazel Campbell, Director of Sport, Museums and Recreation Division. A Northern Ireland Strategy for the games has been prepared to maximise the benefits of 2012. This can be found on the Department of Culture, Arts and Leisure (DCAL) website:

http://www.dcalni.gov.uk/index/events_unit/2012_games.htm

DCAL is the lead Department for 2012 with responsibility for co-ordinating and facilitating the Northern Ireland Strategy in partnership with key stakeholders across the seven themes of sport, culture, volunteering, education, skills and employment, business and tourism.

Progress on legacy in Northern Ireland is already being made. 26 Olympic and eight Paralympic facilities from Northern Ireland are included in the official London 2012 Pre-Games Training Camp Guide, including three in the Belfast South constituency itself: Olympia Leisure Centre, Queens University and the Mary Peters Track. Additionally, March 2009 saw the successful culmination of the Pied Piper project—the first in Northern Ireland to be awarded the prestigious Inspire Mark for cultural projects which align with the values and aims of London 2012.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Fruit and Vegetables

8. Mary Creagh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will take steps to encourage people to produce their own fruit and vegetables. [276582]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA has provided £400,000 to support a campaign that promotes growing your own fruit and vegetables and eating seasonal produce. The campaign is being delivered by a coalition of businesses and civil organisations. The campaign website, Eat Seasonably, was launched on 29 March and features advice and events to help people grow their own food.

Food Labelling

9. Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the European Commission on country of origin food labelling. [276584]

10. Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent progress has been made in discussions with the European Commission on proposed new rules on the labelling of food with its country of origin. [276585]

Jane Kennedy: A proposed Regulation on general food and nutrition labelling is being negotiated in Brussels. This proposal includes provisions on country of origin labelling.

The Government are keen to see clearer origin labelling rules and will be pressing this point as negotiations progress.

Compulsory Set-aside

11. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the likely effect of proposals for compulsory set-aside from September 2010 on existing environmental stewardship schemes for farmers. [276588]

Hilary Benn: The Government supported the abolition of set-aside in the CAP Health Check last year, but we wish to recapture the range of environmental benefits it provided. As part of our consultation on alternative approaches we published an impact assessment earlier this year, and the possible effect on existing Environmental Stewardship schemes is one of the factors we will consider in reaching a decision.

Bovine Tuberculosis

12. Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to deal with tuberculosis infection in cattle in East Sussex. [276589]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA'S cattle testing and slaughter policy is the same in East Sussex as it is for the rest of England. It includes zero tolerance regime for overdue tests; pre-movement tests; the extended use of the gamma test; and encouraging good husbandry practice.

Waste

13. Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues on the use of waste as a source of energy; and if he will make a statement. [276590]

Jane Kennedy: Waste wood, waste food and the biomass element of un-recyclable waste represent large untapped sources of renewable energy. Ways to encourage the recovery of renewable heat and power from this waste have featured in recent discussions between Ministers and officials from DEFRA, DECC and BERR in relation to reform of the Renewable Obligation Order (2009), led by BERR, and are continuing in relation to development of Feed-in Tariff's, a Renewable Heat Incentive and the Government's forthcoming Renewable Energy Strategy, led by DECC.

Marine Management Organisation

14. Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress has been made on the establishment of the Marine Management Organisation; and if he will make a statement. [276591]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The necessary preparatory work is in hand to allow the MMO to be established by the earliest possible date, subject to the successful passage of the Marine and Coastal Access Bill.

Rural Economy

15. Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the effect of the recession on the rural economy. [276592]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Government recognise that the economic downturn is having impacts in both urban and rural areas. Regular reports, received from the Commission for Rural Communities and Regional Development Agencies, continue to suggest that the impacts on rural areas are very similar to those in urban areas and, when compared to urban areas, the emerging picture in rural England is of lower risk, higher resilience and higher recovery prospects.

Animal Health

16. Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent progress his Department has made in reducing risks to animal health. [276593]

Jane Kennedy: The health of animals is central to DEFRA's work of protecting livestock and controlling and eradicating disease.

We encourage good biosecurity, through the 'give disease the boot' campaign and carry out risk based post import testing to help prevent disease spreading.

DEFRA's animal health agency implements policies to prevent and manage outbreaks of serious animal diseases, thus supporting the farming industry, protecting the welfare of farmed animals and safeguarding public health from animal borne disease.

Agriculture: Subsidies

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what discussions he has had with the (a) Country Land and Business Association, (b) National Farmers Union and (c) others on the proposal to implement a de minimis size holding for eligibility for payment of the 2010 Single Farm Payment; [275799]

(2) what discussions his Department has had on its proposals for implementing the de minimis size of holding for the payment of the 2010 Single Farm Payment. [275800]

Jane Kennedy: Under the terms of the EU CAP Health Check agreement, member states must implement a minimum claim size for direct payments, including those under the Single Payment Scheme, from 2010. Possible options to meet this requirement in England were discussed both during and subsequent to the Health Check agreement with stakeholder groups. Membership of those groups included the National Farmers Union and Country Land and Business Association as well as other industry stakeholders such as the Tenant Farmers Association and environmental and consumer bodies. The options are now part of a consultation which was sent directly to over 100 organisations and is publicly available on the DEFRA website at:

www.defra.gov.uk/corporate/consult/sps/index.htm

This consultation runs until 22 July.

Agriculture: Waste Disposal

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the take-up of anaerobic digestion will count towards the UK's recycling targets under the revised Waste Framework Directive. [275902]

Jane Kennedy: Article 11(3) of the revised Waste Framework Directive (2008/98/EC) requires the European Commission to establish detailed rules on the application and calculation methods for verifying compliance with the directive's targets. The Commission has not yet established these rules. However, the Commission confirmed in its December 2008 Green Paper on biowaste management that anaerobic digestion may be classified as recycling when digestate is used on land for the production of growing media. The UK's response to the Green Paper asked the Commission to clarify whether all biowaste from households consigned to anaerobic digestion may be classified as recycling, where part of the output is biogas from which energy is recovered.

Anaerobic Digestion Task Group

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs who the members of the Anaerobic Digestion Task Group are; and which organisations are represented in the group. [275791]

Jane Kennedy: Members of the Anaerobic Digestion Trade Group are appointed on a personal basis. The full list of members is given as follows:

Steve Lee (Chair), Chief Executive Officer, Chartered Institution of Wastes Management (CIWM)

David Bellamy, Sustainability Manager, Food and Drink Federation (FDF)

Paul Bettison, Chair of Environment Board, Local Government Association (LGA)

Michael Chesshire, Technology Director, BiogenGreenfinch and Chair, Renewable Energy Association (REA) Biogas Group

Samantha Fuller, Waste to Energy Development Manager, Scottish and Southern Energy

Bob Gordon, Environment Policy Executive, British Retail Consortium (BRC)

Jim Haywood, Environment Director, Business in the Community (BITC)

Keith Riley, Managing Director-Technical Services Director, Veolia

David Sillett, Rural Development Manager, East of England Development Agency (EEDA)

Richard Swannell, Director of Retail and Organics Programmes, Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP)

Pamela Taylor, Chief Executive, Water UK

Jeremy Tomkinson, Chief Executive, National Non-Food Crops Centre (NNFCC)

John Varley, Estate Director, Clinton Devon Estates

Michael Warhurst, Senior Campaigner, Resources and Waste, Friends of the Earth (FoE)

Owen Yeatman, Managing Director, Biogas Nord UK Ltd.

Animal Products: Waste Disposal

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether tallow used in production of leather is classified by his Department as a waste product. [276378]

Jane Kennedy: The handling and use of animal by-products including tallow is governed by Regulation (EC) 1774/2002 commonly referred to as the EU Animal By-products Regulation. Article 6 of the regulation sets out the uses of low-risk (category 3) material derived from animals slaughtered for human consumption. Only tallow that falls into category 3 may be used in the production of leather.

DEFRA does not classify substances as waste. Whether or not a substance is classified as waste within the meaning of Article 1(1)(a) of the Waste Framework Directive (2006/12/EC) must be determined on the facts of each case and the competent authorities such as the Environment Agency are responsible for the implementation of the directive's waste management controls.

Animal Welfare: Agriculture

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many prosecutions for offences relating to the welfare of farm animals have (a) been brought and (b) resulted in convictions in each of the last five years. [275945]

Jane Kennedy: The number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for offences under the Agriculture (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1968, and relevant parts of the Animal Welfare Act 2006, in England and Wales, 2003 to 2007 can be viewed in the following table.

The Agriculture (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act 1968 was repealed by the Animal Welfare Act 2006, which came into force on 6 April 2007.

It is not possible to separately identify from the Animal Welfare Act 2006, farm and non-farm animals.

Centralised records are not kept of prosecutions made under secondary legislation such as the Welfare of Farmed Animals (England) Regulations 2007.

Notes:

1. These data are on the principal offence basis.
2. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts, and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Animals: Imports

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the potential health threat to native British wildlife from the illegal importation of wildlife; and if he will make a statement. [275943]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA publishes an 'International Disease Monitoring Report' every month and where necessary produces 'Preliminary Outbreak Assessments (POA)' and 'Qualitative Risk Assessments (QRA)', which consider the likely effect of the disease outbreak on the UK. The QRA also assesses the likelihood of the disease entering the UK through the legal or illegal movement of animals affected by the disease in question.

The nature of illegal activity means that it is difficult to quantify the risk posed. That is why the UK has robustly enforced import requirements for pets and commercially traded animals.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Disease Control

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department has allocated to scientific research into the causes of and vaccination against bovine tuberculosis in 2009-10. [276586]

Hilary Benn: DEFRA has allocated £9.4 million to scientific research into the causes of, and vaccination against, bovine tuberculosis in 2009-10.

Compost: Mushrooms

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent representations he has received on odour emissions from the mushroom composting industry. [276587]

Jane Kennedy: I have received representations on the subject from my hon. Friend and also from Misson parish council.

Flood and Water Management Bill (Draft)

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what timetable he has set for consideration of responses to the consultation on the draft Flood and Water Management Bill; and if he will make a statement. [276583]

Huw Irranca-Davies: We published the draft Bill on 21 April. The public consultation period closes on 24 July and we hope that the Environment, Food and Rural Affairs Select Committee will be able to report on its pre-legislative scrutiny of the Bill before the summer recess. The Government would then intend to respond to both exercises when the House returns in the autumn.

Food Supply

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what recent discussions he has had on the inclusion of proposals to address hunger and food scarcity in his Department's forthcoming White Paper on food security; [275827]

(2) what recent discussions he has had in relation to the inclusion of relief and social protection measures in his Department's forthcoming White Paper on food security. [275828]

Jane Kennedy: DEFRA has responsibility within Government for leading the development and delivery of policy on food production and supply across the UK, and works closely with DFID which leads on delivery of global food security. DFID is currently preparing a white paper on International Development—"Building our common future", and the Secretary of State has recently written to Douglas Alexander highlighting the importance of ensuring that food security and sustainable natural resource management are covered in it. DEFRA will also be producing an assessment of the UK's food security later this year and this will include some assessment of food security at the household level.

Grocery Trade: Competition

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received on the Competition Commission's proposal for an ombudsman to monitor and enforce compliance with a groceries supply code of practice. [276577]

Hilary Benn: The Competition Commission is seeking undertakings from the grocery retailers covered by the new Groceries Supply Code of Practice (GSCOP) to establish an ombudsman to monitor and enforce compliance with the GSCOP. The deadline for replies to its consultation exercise is 28 May.

The creation of an ombudsman currently remains with the Competition Commission and no formal recommendation has been made to the Government. If the Competition Commission is unsuccessful in establishing the ombudsman within a reasonable period of time, the Competition Commission will formally return the matter to the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform for consideration.

Representatives of Sainsbury's and Waitrose have met DEFRA officials to give their view of the proposals. On the same basis the NFU has provided officials with a paper from Cardiff Business School, and Asda and the Association of Convenience Stores have provided their views by correspondence.

Recycling: Greater London

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much waste was recycled in each London local authority area (a) in total and (b) on average per head of the population in (i) 2005-06 and (ii) 2007-08. [276211]

Jane Kennedy: The following table shows, for each local authority in London for the financial years 2005-06 and 2007-08, municipal waste sent for recycling, composting and reuse as both tonnages and quantity generated per person per year in kilogrammes.

	Tonnes of municipal waste collected for recycling, composting and reuse		Municipal waste collected for recycling, composting and reuse per person per year (kg)

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Adoption: Greater London

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which local authorities have received Government funding for adoption target levels in each of the last three financial years for which figures are available; and how much Government funding was granted in each such year. [274811]

Beverley Hughes: A total of £970,547.40 has been claimed to date against the three year local public sector agreement (LPSA) adoption targets agreed by the then Department for Education and Skills and local authorities that ended in 2007-08. Since LPSA Performance Reward Grant (PRG) is claimed and paid in two instalments, to date half of this amount has been paid, with the remainder due in 2009-10.

Local authority	Total PRG paid (£)
East Riding of York	328,409.38
Hammersmith and Fulham	489,810.42
Lewisham	152,327.60
Total	970,547.40

For funding prior to 2007-08, I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 3 September 2007, Official Report, column 1702W.

Children: Care homes

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the effect on provision of welfare beds in secure children's homes of the decision of the Youth Justice Board to reduce the number of justice beds in such homes. [274995]

Beverley Hughes: It is the responsibility of local authorities to assess the need for, and availability of, welfare beds in secure children's homes as part of their duty to ensure that there is sufficient children's home provision. Local authorities can obtain support in this role from the DCSF Commissioning Support Programme which will offer Children's Trusts bespoke support based on their needs and focus on key areas of concern.

It is likely that following the Youth Justice Board's decision some homes may decide to close. However, the effect on the overall provision of welfare beds will depend upon the decisions made by the providers of the remaining homes about the number of welfare beds they wish to provide, taking into account likely demand from local authorities. DCSF is working closely with the YJB and the providers of the homes to monitor future developments and the YJB has made funding available to support those homes who lost contracts to help them develop sustainable provision of welfare beds.

Children: Day Care

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many out-of-school and holiday play scheme places were available for children aged (a) four and under, (b) five to 11 and (c) 11 years and over in each London local authority in: (i) 1997 and (ii) 2007-08. [276182]

Beverley Hughes: Information is not available specifically for the age groups requested. Available information on children aged under eight is shown in the following table.

Children: Expenditure

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what pilot schemes his Department has initiated to assist families with children in each year since 2001; what the cost was of each such scheme; how many families were involved in each such scheme; what evaluation was undertaken in respect of each such scheme; and if he will make a statement. [276431]

Beverley Hughes: We have undertaken a wide range of pilots since 2001 which have added considerably to our understanding of what works to improve outcomes for families and children. The key pilots targeted specifically at families are listed in the following table.

Name of pilot	Period it ran for	Total spent or committed for pilot period	Number of families benefiting	Where the evaluation is published
Parent support adviser pilot	September 2006 to August 2008 in 20 LAs.	£40 million	20,000+ parents were formally recorded as working with a PSA.	Interim reports were published in 2007 and 2008, (access reports here). The final evaluation report will be published summer 2009.
Family pathfinder	May 2008 until March 2011	£16 million	To develop and test the think family approach in 15 areas, ensuring that adult and children's services work together more effectively in supporting families with complex needs, and testing the approach in supporting young carers to prevent them taking on inappropriate caring roles.	Evaluation currently being carried out by York consulting. Final evaluation due to be published spring 2011.
Parenting early intervention pathfinder	September 2006 to March 2008	£10 million	425 courses involving 3,575 parents of children and young people (aged 8-13 years old) at risk of poor outcomes.	Evaluation report can be accessed here
Family intervention projects	53 projects set up over January 2006 to March 2008; now being rolled out to all local authorities.	£15 million	1,195 families most at risk of anti-social behaviour supported January 2006 to March 2008.	Report published in December 2007 on DCSF website.
Child poverty family intervention projects	Ongoing October 2008 to March 2011.	£12.5 million	Testing the family intervention project model with a wider range of families where there are significant barriers to work such as substance misuse and domestic violence.	Evaluation just started, plans for publishing still to be finalised.
Netmums parent support advisers	February 2008 to June 2009	£484,000	[1]44,542	To be published summer 2009.
The couple connection	February 2008 to June 2009	£472,000	[1]17,292	To be published summer 2009
Dads space	February 2008 to June 2009	£517,000	[1]19,760	To be published summer 2009
One space	February 2008 to June 2009	£275,000	[1]11,472	To be published summer 2009
Got a teenager	February 2008 to June 2009	£571,000	[1]48,989	To be published summer 2009
Contact a family	March 2008 to June 2009	£128,000	[1]41,249	To be published summer 2009
Dad talk	February 2008 to June 2009	£190,000	[1]8,365	To be published summer 2009
Relate SMS and livetalk	March 2008 to June 2009	£372,000	[1]1,081	To be published summer 2009
Ask ACE	January 2008 to June 2009	£566,000	[1]1,644	To be published summer 2009
Parentline plus extended telephone support	1 April 2008 to 31 March 2011	£1,603,000	[1]6,610	Evaluation due July 2009
Transition information sessions demonstration project	2006 to 2008	£7 million	The pilot ran in up to 50 schools, serving a cohort of parents with a child joining reception class or year 7, in each of nine LAs in 2006/2007 and 20 LAs in 2007/2008.	An evaluation report by Ecotec Research and Consulting Limited is posted on the DCSF Research site.
The early learning partnerships project	October 2006 to March 2008	Approximately £6 million	Nine voluntary sector agencies used 12 different approaches across 20 demonstration sites to encourage and develop practices which could help parents of children aged one to three (who were at risk of learning delay) to engage with their children's learning. Number of individual families/parents reached not known.	Published on 25 June 2008 as DCSF-RR039/ DCSF-RB039 available on DCSF website.

Children: Protection

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what timetable he has set for revising (a) statutory guidance on Working Together to Safeguard Children and (b) the guidance and systems used by hospital accident and emergency departments in relation to safeguarding children in response to Lord Laming's recommendations. [274249]

Beverley Hughes: As stated on page 6 of 'The protection of children in England: action plan—The Government's response to Lord Laming', published on 6 May, revised statutory guidance, 'Working Together to Safeguard Children', will be completed by the end of 2009 following consultation. Page 34 explains that the Department of Health and the Department for Children Schools and Families will work with the College of Emergency Medicine and others to take forward work to ensure that systems, guidance and training are in place so that all A and E departments are playing their full part in identifying and dealing appropriately with children at risk. Recommendations will be produced by December 2009 that take account of the cost and affordability of implementation.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether there is a statutory duty on schools to designate a child protection teacher. [275235]

Beverley Hughes: Although there is no specific statutory duty on schools to designate a child protection teacher, schools do have a duty under sections 175 and 157 of the Education Act 2002 to have regard to any guidance given to them from time to time by the Secretary of State when considering what arrangements they need to make with regard to the welfare of children. Guidance contained in Safeguarding Children and Safer Recruitment in Education 2007 makes clear that a senior member of the school's leadership team should be designated to take lead responsibility for dealing with child protection issues.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent estimate he has made of the number of schools with a designated child protection teacher; and if he will make a statement. [275269]

Beverley Hughes: The Department do not collect this information. School governing bodies and proprietors of independent schools are responsible for ensuring that their establishment has effective policies and procedures in place to safeguard and promote the welfare of children in accordance with guidance issued under sections 157 and 175 of the Education Act 2002. Guidance in Safeguarding Children and Safer Recruitment in Education 2007 makes clear that a senior member of the school's leadership team should be designated to take lead responsibility for dealing with child protection issues. In some schools it may be necessary to have more than one designated person, and in all schools a deputy should be available to act in the designated person's absence.

Departmental Correspondence

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent steps his Department has taken to ensure that all its correspondence conforms to the font size requirements of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995. [274785]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Department appreciates that clear, concise and legible communications are critical to promoting equality for disabled people. The Department is committed to ensuring that all its communications, both internal and with people beyond the Department, are accessible. Our business correspondence system requires that all e-mails and letters sent by the Department are in a 12-point font size and we have published guidance to encourage all staff to comply.

Pupil Referral Units

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which pupil referral units were placed in special measures in each year since 1997. [256422]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for Ofsted. The information was included in HMCI Christine Gilbert's reply given on 2 March 2009, Official Report, column 1312W.

Schools Recruitment Service

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) when the Schools Recruitment Service was originally planned to be launched; when he expects it to be launched; and what the reasons are for the difference; [276669]

(2) how much his Department has spent on the procurement, development and implementation of the Schools Recruitment Service. [276670]

Jim Knight: The Schools Recruitment Service was originally scheduled for launch in spring 2009. This has now been rescheduled to launch in September 2009. There have been delays as a result of the Department ensuring the need for this service is robust and fit for purpose for our schools and local authorities to use and a request from prospective suppliers during the procurement process for more time to respond to the requirement.

It is not possible to give an exact figure on the costs for the Schools Recruitment Service as it forms part of the wider Education Sector Shared Services programme. The budget for this programme for 2008-09 was £647,500.

Social Work: Education

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many people have enrolled on a social work degree course in each year since 2003; [269664]

(2) how many people have graduated with a degree in social work in each year since 2003; [269665]

(3) how many social work graduates have entered the social work profession in each year since 2003. [269666]

Beverley Hughes: The General Social Care Council registers both social work students and practicing social workers.

The number of social work graduates entering the social work profession is not recorded by the General Social Care Council; however they do record the number of students enrolled on the course each year (line A in the following table) and the number that have graduated with a degree since 2003 (line B). The Council also holds information on the year in which all social workers who are currently registered with them achieved their qualification.

Line C in the table shows the year of graduation for currently registered social workers who hold the social work degree.

		2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
A.	Number of people enrolled on the social work degree since 2003	2,582	4,748	6,065	5,731	5,323
B.	Number of people who have graduated with a social work degree since 2003	—	4	1,037	2,976	4,439
C.	Number of graduates currently registered as social workers	—	4	955	2,754	3,925

Social Workers: Assessments

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether he has made a recent assessment of the standard required to achieve a pass mark in social work degree examinations for those who work with children. [275684]

Beverley Hughes: Higher Educational Institutions (HEIs) determine the requirements for a pass mark in accordance with their internal academic quality assurance procedures which validate degrees and ensure they are fit for purpose. The internal quality assurance procedures are overseen by the Quality Assurance Agency (QAA).

The General Social Care Council (GSCC) regulates and promotes standards of delivery of the social work degree and quality assures social work education. It also accredits HEIs offering social work qualifications at both qualifying and post-qualifying levels.

The Secretaries of State for Children, Schools and Families and for Health are committed to ensuring that social worker training is highly effective. They have established a Social Work Task Force which will make recommendations on how to drive forward long term reform of social work, including in response to many issues raised in Lord Laming's recent report "The Protection of Children in England" on the areas of training, practice, recruitment and leadership.

Social Workers: Pay

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average (a) starting salary and (b) salary of a child social worker is. [276381]

Beverley Hughes: Children and families' social workers are employed in a range of organisations in the statutory, private and third sectors. Their salaries are determined at a local level and the Department for Children, Schools and Families does not directly collect information about this.

In their 2006 Children's, Young People's and Families' Social Care Workforce Survey, the Local Government Analysis and Research group (LGAR) estimated the average (mean) minimum salary for a children and families' social worker employed in a local authority in England to be £22,513.

In their Children's, Young People's and Families' Social Care Pay and Workforce Survey 2007, LGAR estimated the average (mean) salary for all social workers employed by local authorities in England and Wales to be £28,389.

Young People: Crime Prevention

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) pursuant to the answer of 23 February 2009, Official Report, columns 478-81W, on the youth inclusion programme, which (a) primary, (b) secondary and (c) special schools are situated on each estate; [275596]

(2) which schools are taking part in the youth inclusion programme in each local authority area. [275650]

Beverley Hughes: The names of schools engaged in Youth Inclusion Programmes (YIPs) are not collected centrally.

All YIPs work with the schools in their catchment area. These will usually be secondary schools, unless it is a Junior YIP (for eight to 12-year-olds). A representative from each of the schools in the area is invited to the multi-agency meeting which identifies the 50 young people for the programme. These are the 50 young people who are deemed to be most at risk of exclusion, truancy or offending in their area.

Some YIPs employ teachers and deliver an education programme to those who are excluded from school, or on the verge of exclusion, so that the young people are reintegrated into school on a full-time basis. YIP workers also work on a one-to-one basis with young people in school in some cases.

JUSTICE

Appeals: Incapacity Benefit

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average waiting time for adjudication on appeals made by individuals removed from eligibility for incapacity benefit payments was in the last period for which figures are available. [276379]

Bridget Prentice: The average waiting time for incapacity benefit appeals for the financial year 2008-09 was 10.9 weeks.

Bribery Bill: Draft

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 6 May 2009, Official Report, column 220W, on Bribery Bill: draft, if he will place in the Library a copy of the letter from the Secretary-General of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development. [276543]

Maria Eagle: A copy of the letter was placed in the House of Commons Library on 6 May 2009.

Departmental ICT

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice on how many and what proportion of computers in his Department malware was detected in 2008. [275396]

Mr. Straw: It is not in the interests of the UK's national security for Departments to confirm this information.

The Ministry of Justice complies with Mandatory Requirement 39 of the Security Policy Framework which requires a policy on managing risks posed by all forms of malicious software ("malware").

Departmental Internet

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) page impressions and (b) visitors his Department's website received in each of the last three financial years. [276428]

Mr. Straw: The figures given in the table are for the departmental website www.justice.gov.uk for the last two financial years since the creation of the Ministry of Justice in May 2007. Visits are included in these figures as they provide a more accurate measure of website usage.

	Number
9 May 2007 to 31 March 2008
Page impressions	7,783,155
Visits	2,361,813
Visitors	1,689,202
1 April 2008 to 31 March 2009
Page impressions	12,942,753
Visits	4,231,791
Visitors	3,225,310

Departmental Mobile Phones

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) BlackBerry devices and (b) mobile telephones have been lost by (i) Ministers, (ii) special advisers and (iii) civil servants in his Department and its predecessor in each year since 2005. [274462]

Mr. Straw: Mobile phones are managed at a local level across much of the Department. Consequently, full records are not available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The following table shows mobile phone losses for MOJ HQ, National Offender Management Service (NOMS) (including Her Majesty's Prison Service (HMPS)) and the Office of Criminal Justice Reform (OCJR) only. Blackberry loss figures cover Ministry of Justice (MOJ) HQ, NOMS, HMPS, NPS and OCJR:

	BlackBerry	Mobile phones
2005	0	24
2006	0	19
2007	1	20
2008	14	42
2009 (to 31 March)	6	14

The above information relates to losses by civil servants. As a matter of process, all mobile phones and BlackBerrys that are registered as lost (or stolen) are blocked, making it impossible for them to be used.

2008-09 records show that one BlackBerry was lost by a Minister. No losses of BlackBerrys or mobile phones for special advisers were recorded in the 2008-09 period. Records for previous years do not separate out this information, which therefore cannot be provided without incurring disproportionate cost.

Departmental Stationery

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much his Department has spent on branded stationery and gifts for (a) internal and (b) external promotional use in each of the last five years. [273786]

Maria Eagle: Figures are not held centrally across the Ministry of Justice as within business groups expenditure is not routinely separately recorded; to provide the information on spend on branded stationery and gifts for internal/external promotional use would be disproportionate to cost.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many questions for written answer have been tabled to his Department in Session (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09 to date; and how many in each case have been (i) answered substantively and (ii) not answered on grounds of disproportionate cost. [276481]

Mr. Straw: 5,304 questions were tabled to the Ministry of Justice (MOJ) in the 2007-08 Session. The information requested on how many were answered and not answered due to disproportionate cost is not held centrally and would require a manual check of the answer to each of the 5,304 questions.

However, the database was adapted at the start of the current session and the information gathered shows that MOJ has had 2,562 questions tabled from 3 December 2008 to 15 May 2009 of which 2,257 have been answered substantively, 104 have been answered with partial information or with disproportionate cost answer, 191 have been transferred to other Departments and 10 have been withdrawn.

Driving Offences: Foreigners

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many foreign nationals in charge of (a) cars, (b) heavy goods vehicles and (c) light goods vehicles have been prosecuted for causing (i) death and (ii) injury to (A) pedestrians, (B) cyclists and (C) other drivers in each of the last five years; [276456]

(2) how many foreign nationals in charge of (a) cars, (b) heavy goods vehicles and (c) light goods vehicles have been (i) charged with and (ii) prosecuted for driving offences in each of the last five years. [276457]

Maria Eagle: Information collected centrally by the Ministry of Justice on the Court Proceedings Database does not include nationality of the defendant.

Lindholme Prison

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) UK and (b) foreign national prisoners were in detention in Lindholme prison in each of the last 12 months. [275524]

Mr. Straw: The following table gives the numbers of (a) UK national and (b) foreign national prisoners there were at quarter-year intervals between March 2008 and March 2009 in Lindholme prison.

	Total population	Foreign nationals	UK nationals	Nationality not recorded
March 2009	1,122	226	896	0

	Total population	Foreign nationals	UK nationals	Nationality not recorded
December 2008	1,101	176	876	49
September 2008	1,108	162	900	46
June 2008	1,069	135	897	37
March 2008	1,093	152	898	43

These figures include foreign national prisoners serving their sentence, those on remand pending prosecution and those being held under immigration powers pending deportation action.

A prisoner's nationality in respect of these records is self declared. For a period of time the system will always show that a number of prisoners have unrecorded nationality, although in reality this is either undeclared nationality or a refusal to disclose one's nationality.

Data on foreign national prisoners are published quarterly in the population in custody bulletin, again on the Ministry of Justice website:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/populationincustody.htm

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Offences Against Children

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 13 May 2009, Official Report, column 833W, on offences against children, what proportion of offenders aged 21 years or over convicted of offences of sexual activity with a child under 13 received (a) immediate custody, (b) a suspended sentence, (c) a community sentence, (d) a fine, (e) a conditional or absolute discharge and (f) other treatment in each year since 1997. [276383]

Mr. Straw: The available information is shown in the following table. The Sexual Offences Act 2003 significantly modernised and strengthened the laws on sexual offences in England and Wales to provide extra protection to children from sexual exploitation. This makes direct comparisons with previous legislation very difficult. Many new offences created by the Act will not have a direct equivalent under the old legislation.

The table shows those sentenced from 2004, the first year in which anyone was sentenced under the relevant sections of the 2003 Act. Offenders who committed such offences before 1 May 2004 will have been sentenced under previous legislation and do not appear in the table: therefore the increased numbers over the years reflect the transition to the new legislation.

The proportion of those given various disposals is shown as a percentage of those sentenced. Lags in time between conviction and sentencing may mean that the total numbers convicted and sentenced in a year may not match. Data held by the Ministry of Justice records the age of the offender at the time of sentencing, the figure's show all offenders aged over 21 and over at that point.

[2] These offences were an enacted by the Sexual Offences Act 2003 and came into force on 1 May 2004, there were no separately identifiable equivalent offences in the Sexual Offences Act 1956.
Notes:
1. These data are based on the principal offence. Where an offender has been sentenced for more than one offence the principal offence is the one for which the heaviest sentence was imposed; where the same sentence has been imposed for two or more offences the principal offence is the one for which the statutory maximum is most severe.
2. These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system.

Prisoners

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) male and (b) female prisoners on whole life tariffs are in (i) Category B, (ii) Category C and (iii) Category D prisons. [276659]

Mr. Hanson: There are currently seven male prisoners serving whole life tariffs within in category B and less than five in category C. There are no whole life tariff prisoners in category D prisons.

There are no female prisoners serving a whole life tariff in closed, semi-open or open prisons.

Prisoners: Males

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many male prisoners were categorised as category (a) A, (b) B, (c) C and (d) D in each month since January 2008. [276037]

Mr. Straw: The following table shows the number of male prisoners held as Category A in each month since January 2008.

The information requested on the number of adult male prisoners categorised as Category B, C and D is not recorded centrally. To provide this would require contacting individual prison establishments, which could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Prisoners: Religion

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will publish the text of Prison Service Order 4550 on religion in the form it took before its amendment by Prison Service Instruction 2009-016. [276660]

Mr. Hanson: The Prison Service Order (PSO) 4550 Religion remains extant and has been amended by Prison Service Instruction (PSI) 16/2009. A hard copy of all PSOs and PSIs is sent to the House of Commons Library and a copy of the original document can be found there. Copies of current PSOs and PSIs may be found on the Prison Service website:

www.hmprisonservice.gov.uk

A PSO only expires when it is revised or revoked; it is usual, when revised, for the PSO to then be replaced. PSIs are temporary documents that contain mandatory actions and are often issued to introduce amendments to PSOs. I am happy to send the hon. Member a copy of the previous and the current documents.

Prisons: Barking and Dagenham

Jon Cruddas: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many representations have been made to his Department in opposition to the proposed construction of a prison at Beam Park West; [275824]

(2) what arrangements his Department made for public consultation prior to the decision to build a prison on the Beam Park West site. [275936]

Mr. Straw: We have received a small number of representations opposing the prison development at Beam Park West.

We will discuss with my hon. Friend and with representatives from the London Thames Gateway and the London borough of Barking and Dagenham the scope, location, date and time of a public exhibition to be held prior to the submission of planning permission. We will also discuss with them which specific groups of local people, councillors and others should receive a special presentation to.

Prisons: Construction

Mr. Jack: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether New Hall Farm Lea, near Preston and Kirkham, has been under consideration by his Department as a site for a new prison; whether it is still under consideration; and if he will make a statement. [276531]

Mr. Hanson: As my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Justice announced on 27 April 2009, Official Report, columns 569-80, we will not be proceeding with the 2,500 place "Titan" prisons, but we will be building 1,500 place prisons instead.

The site at New Hall Farm Lea was one of a number of sites brought to the attention of the National Offender Management Service as part of the site search exercise for "Titan" prisons to hold 2,500 prisoners. It was assessed, but not considered suitable for development as a Titan. There are no current plans for prisons on any of the sites listed other than those named in Parliament on 27 April.

Prisons: Discipline

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 8 May 2009, Official Report, columns 483-84W, on prisons: discipline, which prisons in England and Wales do not have officers qualified to act as Tornado support. [275413]

Mr. Straw: As of 18 May, a total of 23 prisons in England and Wales have no permanent trained staff on site who are qualified to act as Tornado support, either because of the size of the establishment, or because of the prison's security category and characteristics. Arrangements are in place for nearby prisons to provide Tornado qualified staff to these establishments should this be necessary.

Prisons: Mental Health Services

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners in (a) England and (b) Leeds have been transferred from prison to a secure mental health unit in each of the last three years. [276555]

Mr. Hanson: The number of prisoners in England and Leeds who have been transferred from prison to a secure mental health unit in each of the last three years is set out in the table.

	England	Leeds
2006	903	8
2007	899	12

Reoffenders

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the re-offending rate was for people who (a) received reprimands, (b) were subject to dispersal orders and (c) received custodial sentences in (i) Wales, (ii) England, (iii) Dyfed Powys police area, (iv) Gwent police area, (v) South Wales police area and (vi) North Wales police area in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [266083]

Mr. Hanson: The Government are committed to tackling youth crime across the country. We published the Youth Crime Action Plan in July 2008 which is a comprehensive analysis of what further we need to do to tackle youth crime. It sets out a 'triple track' approach of enforcement and punishment where behaviour is unacceptable, non-negotiable support and challenge where it is most needed, and better and earlier prevention.

The rates of reoffending in England and Wales of juveniles receiving a reprimand or final warning for the last three years for which data are available are shown in Table 1.

Table 1: Reoffending of juveniles receiving reprimands and final warnings, 2004, 2005, 2006

Cohort	Number of offenders	Proportion of offenders reoffending (percentage)	Number of offences per 100 offenders
Q1 2004	26,614	26.5	63.3
Q1 2005	28,225	27.1	61.4
Q12006	30,784	27.8	64.7

Disaggregated data for reprimands and final warnings are not collated. These data cannot be broken down by geographical area.

The Ministry of Justice does not collate data on reoffending by offenders given dispersal orders.

The rate of reoffending in England and Wales of juvenile offenders released from custody for the last three years for which data are available are shown in Table 2.

Table 2: Reoffending of juveniles discharged from custody, 2004, 2005, 2006

Cohort	Number of offenders	Proportion of offenders reoffending (percentage)	Number of offences per 100 offenders
Q1 2004	815	76.4	414.8
Q1 2005	844	73.1	409.5
Q1 2006	817	77.0	404.0

These data cannot be broken down by geographical area.

While juveniles released from custody have the highest reoffending rates, between 2000 to 2006, we have seen a 16.2 per cent. fall in the frequency rate of reoffending of juveniles (both male and female) released from custody. The Government have pledged additional funding of over £100 million for measures which will cut youth crime in the short-term and prevent it in the long-term.

Regimes in the under-18 secure estate reflect the principal aim of the youth justice system, which is to prevent offending. All young offender institutions accommodating under 18 year olds are required to put in place a local strategy that will deliver a portfolio of programmes to address the offending behaviour and associated needs of the young people. For every young person, an individual assessment is undertaken to identify the factors that have contributed to their offending and that will need to be addressed in order to reduce the risk of re-offending when they are released into the community.

The rates of reoffending in England and Wales of adult offenders released from custody for the last three years for which data are available are shown in Table 3.

Table 3: Reoffending of adults discharged from custody, 2004, 2005, 2006

Cohort	Number of offenders	Proportion of offenders reoffending (percentage)	Number of offences per 100 offenders
Q1 2004	15,761	51.9	253.1
Q1 2005	14,595	49.1	228.5
Q1 2006	14,380	46.5	208.4

Data on the reoffending of adults under probation supervision broken down by probation area and local authority (upper tier only) are now available. For further details please see 'Local reoffending results 1 October 2007-30 September 2008 England and Wales' available at http://www.justice.gov.uk/docs/local-adult-reoffending-oct07-sept08.pdf

This is the first time that reoffending data at the local level have been made available.

Sentencing

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what individuals sentenced to two months custody or less served in custody during each of the last five years. [275489]

Mr. Hanson: The average time served in days, including time on remand, for all prisoners sentenced to two months or less is shown in the following table.

	Average time served (days)
2003	35
2004	34
2005	34
2006	35
2007	33

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Supreme Court: Costs

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what his most recent estimate is of the cost of the Supreme Court building; [276262]

(2) what the original estimate of the cost of the Supreme Court building was. [276493]

Mr. Straw: As announced in June 2007 the original estimated set-up costs were £56.9 million, made up of £36.7 million for capital construction, which will be met over a 30-year period through rental payments of £2.1 million per annum, increasing at a rate of 2.5 per cent. per annum; plus £20.2 million of other set-up costs (also announced in June 2007 and including provision of library and visitor facilities).

The current estimated set-up costs are £58.9 million; £56.9 million as described above, plus an additional £2 million of repairs to Middlesex Guildhall (as announced in July 2008). We also expect a separate cost for new security measures to bring the building into line with other high profile central Government and court buildings in central London (as announced in July 2008). I will give the House a final update on costs at the end of the programme.

Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans his Department has to monitor the effect of implementation of section 93 of the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007 on the number and proportion of negotiated settlements between creditors and debtors. [276738]

Bridget Prentice: Last year my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Justice and Lord Chancellor asked for a reassessment to ensure the enforcement provisions in the Tribunals, Courts and Enforcement Act 2007 remain appropriate. The Government announced, on 17 March 2009, Official Report, column 46WS, that it will not implement Part 4 of the Act which contains section 93.

Young Offenders

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many under 18-year-olds have been prosecuted for (a) sexual offences and (b) robbery in each year since 1997. [276229]

Mr. Straw: The number of persons aged 10 to 17 years proceeded against at magistrates courts for sexual offences and robbery in England and Wales from 1997 to 2007 (latest available) is given in the following table.

The figures given relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. For example, when a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the offence selected is the one for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Court proceedings data for 2008 will be available in the autumn of 2009.

Number of persons aged 10 to 17 proceeded against at magistrates courts for sexual offences and robbery, England and Wales, 1997 to 2007[1, 2]

[1] These data are on a principal offence basis.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when these data are used.

Youth Custody

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many beds in each unit in each secure (a) children's home and (b) training centre were block-contracted by the Youth Justice Board in each year since 2002; [276468]

(2) how many secure placements in secure (a) children's homes and (b) training centres were purchased by the Youth Justice Board by (i) block contract and (ii) spot purchase in each year since 2002. [276469]

Mr. Hanson: The data requested about block-purchase of places in secure children's homes and secure training centres are provided in the tables. The data have been provided by the Youth Justice Board and relate to the contractual position as at 1 April in each year. Actual contracted places may vary through the year where a contractor fails to meet the requirements of the contract and places are declared unavailable until the issues have been addressed.

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) males and (b) females of (i) 15, (ii) 16 and (iii) 17 years of age who were classified as vulnerable have been placed in young offender institutions in each year since 2002. [276473]

Mr. Hanson: When a young person is remanded or sentenced to custody by the courts, the Youth Justice Board (YJB) places him or her in the most appropriate accommodation, taking account of a number of factors including his or her age, sex and any known vulnerabilities such as mental health problems or drug or alcohol abuse.

More-vulnerable young people are normally placed in secure children's homes or secure training centres, but young offender institutions are able to care for some young people identified as vulnerable. For example, the Keppel Unit at Wetherby young offender institution is a special unit providing 48 places for more-vulnerable 15 and 16-year-old boys.

Placement decisions are based on information provided in the young person's ASSET form. The information asked for is not available in the form requested. Vulnerability includes a wide range of possible factors and it would be necessary for the Youth Justice Board to search through each young person's record; that would be a large exercise, involving disproportionate cost.

Youth Justice

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate he has made of the likely effects of the implementation of proposals for a Young Offenders' Academy on numbers of custodial places elsewhere in the juvenile estate. [276783]

Mr. Hanson: East Potential is an organisation that works with young offenders in East London. Its proposal to develop a young offenders academy is still at the development stage. It is too early to discuss the Government's possible response to, or the likely effects of, a more fully developed plan.

Any proposals regarding use of custody for young people under 18 who offend would be considered in the light of the Government's overall approach to youth justice, which focuses on prevention; reducing offending and reoffending; and public safety, with custody available as a last resort where no other option is realistic. It would also be necessary to look at the capacity of the under-18 secure estate and the likely future demand for places in it.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Burma: Storms

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what international aid has so far been brought into the Irrawaddy delta region following Cyclone Nargis by (a) the international community and (b) the UK. [276756]

Mr. Michael Foster: More than 30 countries and international organisations have provided aid to Burma following Cyclone Nargis. However, the financial value of their contributions has not been recorded systematically. By 30 April 2009, nearly US$315 million had been committed to the United Nations Emergency Appeal for Cyclone Nargis. Many donors, including the United Kingdom, have also made significant contributions through other channels such as non-governmental organisations.

In 2008-09 the United Kingdom committed £45 million towards the Cyclone Nargis relief effort, over 90 per cent. of which has now been delivered through the United Nations and non-governmental organisations. In March 2009, the Secretary of State for International Development agreed to provide a further £20 million for Burma over the next two years in addition to previously planned spending. Approximately £12 million of this extra funding will be spent on cyclone-related assistance.

Departmental Reviews

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many (a) review and (b) taskforce projects his Department has commissioned in each of the last five years; what the purpose of each such project is; when each such project (i) began and (ii) was completed; what the cost of each such project was; and if he will make a statement. [275974]

Mr. Michael Foster: Summary information on taskforces and other standing bodies is available in the annual Cabinet Office publication 'Public Bodies'. Copies of 'Public Bodies 2008' are available in the Libraries of the House. Detailed information on ad hoc advisory bodies is available in the Department for International Development's (DFID) Annual Resource Accounts, which are available on the DFID website:

www.dfid.gov.uk

Overseas Aid: Public Consultation

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will take steps to involve members of diaspora communities from developing countries who are resident in the UK in formulation of his Department's policy in relation to the those countries. [275097]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: There is country-level consultation with United Kingdom-based diaspora groups on the Department for International Development's (DFID) strategies and country assistance plans (CAPs). For instance, in 2008 we consulted Somali, Pakistani, Nepali and Bangladeshi diaspora groups. Later this month DFID is organising a series of outreach events with the Bangladeshi diaspora in various locations in the UK.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Departmental Stationery

Sarah Teather: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much (a) 10 Downing Street and (b) the Office of the Minister for the Olympics has spent on branded stationery and gifts for (i) internal and (ii) external promotional use in each of the last five years. [273770]

Kevin Brennan: The information is not held in a format that would enable the question to be answered without incurring disproportionate cost.

Local Government

Janet Anderson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what his policy is on co-operation between local authorities and community associations; what representations he has received on the recent decision of Blackburn with Darwen Borough Council on its relationship with community associations and the future payment of grants committed to such associations; and if he will make a statement. [276021]

Kevin Brennan: The Government's policy on the relationship between local authorities and the third sector is to promote partnership working in order to achieve better outcomes for local communities. Local compacts agreed between local public agencies and the local third sector set out the principles and undertakings to relationships at a local level.

The Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act, 2008 set out the new local government performance framework including the role of the third sector. A key part of this is national indicator (N17) which measures the performance of local statutory bodies in creating an environment for a thriving third sector. All local areas will be assessed on this by the new comprehensive area assessment.

The Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster has received no representations on this but the Office of the Third Sector has been made aware of the matter.

Public Sector: Recruitment

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what recent representations he has received on levels of advertising of public sector jobs and statutory notices in local newspapers. [256398]

Mr. Watson: In my ministerial role I receive representations on many things.

I can confirm that I have received a number of representations regarding levels of advertising of public sector jobs and statutory notices in local newspapers.

HEALTH

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will place in the Library a copy of each document in his Department's file CPO 14/7 Abortion Laws in Other Countries; and if he will make a statement; [274758]

(2) if he will place in the Library a copy of each document in his Department's file CPO 5/5 Publicity Material and Publications from Anti Abortion Organisation; and if he will make a statement; [274759]

(3) if he will place in the Library a copy of each document in his Department's file CPO 3/6 Abortion Act 1967 Correspondence between Sir Bernard Braine MP and Minister of Health on matters concerning abortions in NHS hospitals; and if he will make a statement; [274760]

(4) if he will place in the Library a copy of each document in his Department's file CPO 2/16—Bill to Reduce Time Limit on Abortion; and if he will make a statement; [276233]

(5) if he will place in the Library a copy of each document in his Department's file CPO 2/17 Consideration of Abortion Measures In Warnock Bill (Confidential); and if he will make a statement; [276858]

(6) if he will place in the Library a copy of each document in his Department's file CPO 2/18 Abortion—Private Members' Bills 1989; and if he will make a statement; [276859]

(7) if he will place in the Library a copy of each document in his Department's file CPO 2/10 Abortion (Amendment) Bill Committee Stage Briefing; and if he will make a statement; [276860]

(8) if he will place in the Library a copy of each document in his Department's file CPO 2/27 Select Committee on the Abortion (Amendment) Bill; and if he will make a statement; [276861]

(9) if he will place in the Library a copy of each document in his Department's file CPO 2/11 Nicholas Winterton—Abortion (Financial Benefit) Bill; and if he will make a statement; [276862]

(10) if he will place in the Library a copy of each document in his Department's file CPO 2/12 Edward Leigh—Abortion (Treatment of Non Resident Women) Bill; and if he will make a statement. [276863]

Dawn Primarolo: We can confirm that the Department does hold these files. It will take some time to review the information requested and we shall endeavour to do so within 20 working days, which is the period of time that would apply had the hon. Member submitted his questions as freedom of information requests. I will write to the hon. Member in due course and place a copy of my letter in the Library.

Animals: Imports

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment he has made of the potential harm to public health from illegal wildlife imports; and if he will make a statement. [275942]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, working where appropriate with the Department of Health, produces regular assessments of the risk to Great Britain of various different animal diseases, a number of which are "zoonotic" and can therefore be passed to humans. Copies of these veterinary risk assessments are published at:

www.defra.gov.uk/animalh/diseases/monitoring/riskassess.htm

These assessments include the animal disease risk of illegal imports, although the nature of that activity means that it is difficult to quantify the risk. That is why the Government have robustly enforced import requirements for pets and commercially traded animals.

Colorectal Cancer

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people resident in England and registered at GP practices in Wales are awaiting bowel cancer screening; and how many GP practices in Wales have such patients registered. [277128]

Ann Keen: There are approximately 3,000 eligible people resident in England with a general practitioner (GP) in Wales. These individuals are served by 29 different Welsh GP practices.

The NHS Cancer Screening Programmes and Connecting for Health are working actively to ensure that, once bowel cancer screening is established in the areas where they are resident, services will be provided to these individuals.

Departmental Dismissal

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many members of staff in his Department and its agencies were dismissed (a) for under-performance and (b) in total in each of the last 10 years. [274305]

Mr. Bradshaw: Prior to 2006 records were not held centrally for the core Department, and are not available. Since then the core Department has not dismissed any civil servants for poor performance, although other sanctions, including demotion, have been used in cases of poor performance. In the last year less than five individuals have been dismissed from the core Department for reasons other than performance.

In NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency (PASA) no civil servants have been dismissed for poor performance since the organisation was founded in 2000. In the years 2000, 2003, 2004, 2005 and 2006 no civil servant was dismissed from NHS PASA. In each of 2001, 2002, 2007 and 2008 a small numbers of individuals (under five in each year) were dismissed from NHS PASA for reasons other than performance.

In the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency less than five individuals were dismissed for poor performance in the past year. Total dismissals in each year since 2004 have been greater than zero but less than five.

Departmental Reviews

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) review and (b) taskforce projects his Department has commissioned in each of the last five years; what the purpose of each such project is; when each such project (i) began and (ii) was completed; what the cost of each such project was; and if he will make a statement. [275971]

Mr. Bradshaw: Summary information on taskforces and other standing bodies is available in the annual Cabinet Office publication "Public Bodies". Copies of "Public Bodies 2008" are available in the Library.

Detailed information on the Department's advisory bodies can be found on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Aboutus/Organisationsthatworkwith DH/Otherorganisations/DH_4105904

Information about reviews commissioned in the last five years could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Stationery

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of office supplies purchased by his Department were recycled products in the latest period for which figures are available. [275345]

Mr. Bradshaw: During the year April 2008 to March 2009 the proportion of office supplies purchased by this Department equated to 30.9 per cent.

The Department's stationery contract does not presently require the supply of recycled supplies. The Office of Government Commerce Buying Solutions are currently tendering for a pan-government collaborative office supplies framework, which we hope will achieve a more sustainable framework.

Epilepsy

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department has taken to reduce the number of avoidable epilepsy-related deaths in childhood since the National Sentinel Audit of Epilepsy-Related Deaths in 2002. [275871]

Ann Keen: The risk factors associated with sudden unexpected death in epilepsy (SUDEP) are poorly controlled epilepsy and a history of seizures at night. Detailed information on epilepsy, and the risk factors associated with SUDEP, has been made available on the NHS Choices website

in a form which can be easily accessed and understood by those with epilepsy, their families and carers.

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children (a) under the age of 12 and (b) aged between 12 and 16 years had been diagnosed with epilepsy on the latest date for which figures are available. [275889]

Ann Keen: This information is not collected centrally.

Mr. Truswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he has taken to assess his Department's progress against the recommendations of its 2003 Epilepsy Action Plan; and if he will make a statement. [275891]

Ann Keen: The National Service Framework for Long-Term Conditions is now the key policy document for improving health and social care services for people with neurological conditions including epilepsy.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department has taken to address the serious weaknesses in the care of people with epilepsy referred to in the Chief Medical Officer's Annual Report of 2001. [275872]

Ann Keen: There is a wide range of initiatives under way to improve services for patients with epilepsy. The National Service Framework for Long-Term Conditions and clinical guidance published by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence provide local national health service organisations with evidence-based markers of good practice to support service improvements. In addition, wider policy developments, including the Next Stage Review, World Class Commissioning, the information and choice agenda, the Transforming Community Services programme and work on care planning for people with long-term conditions, are continuing to contribute to improvements to epilepsy services.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department has taken to reduce levels of misdiagnosis of epilepsy. [275873]

Ann Keen: Epilepsy can be difficult to diagnose because there are many other conditions that can cause seizures, such as migraines or panic attacks. There are no specific tests for epilepsy, however in some cases tests can highlight an underlying medical condition which may be causing the seizures.

Detailed medical advice, suitable for health professionals, on the issues surrounding the problems in diagnosis of epilepsy has been made available at the NHS Evidence website:

www.evidence.nhs.uk/Search.aspx?t=epilepsy

Fertility: Medical Treatments

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many assisted conception treatments were carried out by (a) the NHS and (b) a private provider in each region in each of the last five years; and how many such treatments were given by (i) in vitro fertilisation, (ii) intracytoplasmic sperm injection and (iii) intrauterine insemination; [276755]

(2) how much the NHS spent on assisted conception treatment in each region in each of the last five years; [276763]

(3) how many assisted conception treatments were commissioned by each primary care trust in each of the last five years. [276764]

Dawn Primarolo: We do not hold this information centrally. We are currently carrying out a survey of primary care trusts' policies on the provision of fertility treatment which will be published when finalised.

Health Services: Elderly

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make an estimate of the cost per year to the public purse of providing (a) personal and (b) nursing care free of charge to those over the age of 65 years. [275448]

Phil Hope: In England, the Government accepted each of the recommendations of the Royal Commission on Long Term Care, except for the recommendation to provide free personal care in all settings. Making all personal care free would incur substantial additional cost. This was estimated in 2003-04 at an additional £1.5 billion; it can only increase in future years.

Since April 2003, all residents of care homes providing nursing care, including those placed by local authorities, have received national health service funding of the nursing element of their care, rather than that element of their care being provided by the local council and subject to means testing. Information on the costs to the NHS of free nursing care in nursing homes is not collected centrally.

We will publish the 'Care and Support' Green Paper in June 2009. It will lay out a series of options around reforming the care and support system, to ensure that care is high quality and cost-effective; that people have choice and control over the care they receive and that the funding system is fair, sustainable, and affordable for individuals and the state.

Health Services: Waiting Lists

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what each measured waiting time in each NHS organisation serving residents of Westminster was in each of the last 10 years. [276210]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department collects a range of waiting times returns to monitor national health service waiting times performance. These returns cover referral to treatment, in-patient and out-patient stage of treatment, diagnostics, accident and emergency, coronary heart disease, genito-urinary medicine and direct access audiology. In addition, the cancer national database is used to monitor progress on cancer waits.

Data on the waiting times in Westminster in all these areas has been placed in the Library.

Heart Diseases

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many grown-ups with congenital heart disease are being treated by paediatricians. [276572]

Ann Keen: The following table and notes shows how many grown-ups with congenital heart disease are being treated by paediatricians and other clinicians.

Notes

1. The NHS Information Centre has provided the count of finished consultant episodes for congenital heart disease* for those aged 16 and over, by consultant specialty, for the period 2007-08.
2. They have provided a list of the main specialty of consultants for each episode, not just paediatricians.

Consultant Main Specialty

This defines the specialty under which the consultant responsible for the care of the patient at that time is registered. Care is needed when analysing Hospital Episode Statistics (HES) data by specialty, or by groups of specialties (such as "acute"). Trusts have different ways of managing specialties and attributing codes so it is better to analyse by specific diagnoses, operations or other patient or service information.

Ungrossed data

Figures have not been adjusted for shortfalls in data (i.e. the data are ungrossed).

Finished Consultant Episode (FCE)

A finished consultant episode (FCE) is defined as a continuous period of admitted patient care under one consultant within one health care provider. FCEs are counted against the year in which they end. Please note that the figures do not represent the number of different patients, as a person may have more than one episode of care within the same stay in hospital or in different stays in the same year.

Primary diagnosis

The primary diagnosis is the first of up to 20 (14 from 2002-03 to 2006-07 and seven prior to 2002-03) diagnosis fields in the (HES) data set and provides the main reason why the patient was admitted to hospital.

* The following ICD-10 codes have been used:

Q20—Congenital malformations of cardiac chambers and connections
Q21—Congenital malformations of cardiac septa
Q22—Congenital malformations of pulmonary and tricuspid valves
Q23—Congenital malformations of aortic and mitral valves
Q24—Other congenital malformations of heart

Data quality

HES are compiled from data sent by more than 300 NHS trusts and primary care trusts in England. Data is also received from a number of independent sector organisations for activity commissioned by the English NHS. The NHS Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.

Hospitals: ICT

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps are being taken to achieve a national interface between the Centricity and Medway x-ray providers; and when it is anticipated that the interface will be complete. [275992]

Mr. Bradshaw: Integration of radiology reports and digital images captured via picture archiving and communications (PACS) systems as a component of the national health service care record is a key requirement for national programme for information technology local service providers (LSPs) for their fully-developed patient administration solutions (PAS) in acute hospitals.

Where local PAS systems remain in place, as in the case of the Medway product, the integration process with the PACS is managed as an additional local service by the LSP at the instigation of the trust concerned.

Hospitals: Infectious Diseases

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what criteria are used to determine the efficacy of healthcare associated infection control products adopted for use by the NHS in the absence of a recommendation from the Rapid Review Panel. [276612]

Ann Keen: The national health service makes its own local decisions regarding products that have not been considered by the Rapid Review Panel.

The NHS are free to choose which products to purchase.

Human Papilloma Virus: Vaccination

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many children have been vaccinated against human papilloma virus in (a) England, (b) the North East, (c) the Tees Valley and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency. [276623]

Dawn Primarolo: The Human Papillomavirus (HPV) vaccination is a three-dose schedule. The vaccination programme started in September 2008. Provisional HPV vaccine uptake information is provided monthly by primary care trusts (PCTs) and is published on the website:

www.immunisation.nhs.uk/Professional_Information/Key_vaccine_information/HPV

Information is not available for the hon. Member's constituency. Provisional data at the end of March 2009 are shown in the following tables.

Cohort 1: routine 12 to 13-year-olds school year 8

Note:
Tees Valley is not a single administrative or health area. It is an area which comprises Hartlepool PCT, Middlesbrough PCT, Redcar and Cleveland PCT, Stockton-on-Tees Teaching PCT and Darlington PCT.

The provisional data for all PCTs in England at the end of March 2009 have been placed in the Library.

Incontinence

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether proposed walk-in health centres will provide access to incontinence stores. [276332]

Mr. Bradshaw: It is up to the commissioning primary care trust to determine locally what services will be provided to patients at new general practitioner-led health centres or national health service walk-in centres.

My hon. Friend may wish to approach local NHS organisations for further information.

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) if he will initiate a cost-benefit analysis on the provision of integrated continence services; [276333]

(2) how many primary care trusts provide an integrated incontinence service. [276334]

Phil Hope: We have no plans to initiate a cost-benefit analysis on the provision of integrated continence services.

Information on the number of primary care trusts that provide an integrated continence service is not collected.

Influenza

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps his Department has taken to ensure that patients showing symptoms of swine influenza are able to receive antiviral treatment within 12 hours; [273381]

(2) what tests his Department has conducted of the system of (a) access to and (b) UK-wide distribution to the public of antiviral drugs; [273382]

(3) whether primary care trusts plans for the location of collection points of antivirals in the event of an influenza pandemic have been finalised; and whether a stock management system for the distribution of antivirals has been established; [273383]

(4) what tests his Department has conducted on the proposed National Flu Line prior to its entry into service; [273384]

(5) what arrangements his Department has put in place for the distribution of antivirals before autumn 2009; [273385]

(6) what estimate his Department has made of the number of calls to the proposed National Flu Line at peak times; and when he expects the proposed National Flu Line to reach this level of operability; [273387]

(7) how many call centres are planned for the proposed National Flu Line; and when he expects the National Flu Line to reach this level of operability; [273388]

(8) pursuant to his statement of 29 April 2009, Official Report, column 987, on the swine flu update, what plans he has to consult on the list of key infrastructure workers identified as potentially in need of a prophylaxis against influenza. [273390]

Dawn Primarolo: Antiviral drugs are effective so long as they are administered within 48 hours of the onset of symptoms. Currently, patients showing symptoms of swine influenza who contact their local general practitioner (GP) or call NHS Direct are prescribed antivirals from stocks held at local Health Protection Agency (HPA) health protection units. National health service organisations have arrangements in place to handle collection of antivirals from the HPA and to ensure patients can readily collect them. The algorithm for diagnosing swine influenza and rapidly accessing and prescribing antiviral drugs where appropriate has been sent to all GPs and is also in use by NHS Direct.

We have provided detailed guidance to primary care trusts (PCTs) on the setting up of the antiviral collection points which will be used by 'Flu Friends' on behalf of symptomatic individuals. All PCTs have received an initial supply of antiviral drugs. PCTs and strategic health authorities (SHAs) have been identifying the number and location of antiviral collection points that would be appropriate to their local health economy. PCTs and SHAs are reviewing existing plans to enable an immediate local response if required.

An essential element of the mitigation phase will be a system for ordering and distributing antivirals. The 'Flu Line' is a groundbreaking system and the first of its kind in the world. It will be able to assess people via either the internet or telephone, co-ordinate the distribution of antivirals and feed back to local health services. The 'Flu Line' will be ready for the autumn and will have been thoroughly tested so that staff, patients and the public can have full confidence in its efficacy.

In the event of a need to distribute antivirals more quickly, an interim service is being put in place to supplement the assessment and authorisation processes. This system is being thoroughly tested and we expect the online aspect of it to be fully operational as soon as it is needed.

In the present containment phase, antivirals are being provided as post-exposure prophylaxis to the close contacts of confirmed cases. We will keep this under review as the situation develops.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment his Department has made of the implications for the UK of an influenza pandemic in developing countries; and what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for International Development on healthcare assistance to developing countries affected by such a pandemic. [273389]

Dawn Primarolo: The "National framework for responding to an influenza pandemic" sets out the potential impact of a pandemic on the United Kingdom and makes it clear that flexible strategies will be needed in deciding how best we respond, irrespective of where the virus actually originates. A copy of the framework has been placed in the Library.

There continues to be on-going collaboration between Department of Health and Department for International Development (DFID) officials. Last year both Departments worked closely in producing the first cross-government "UK international preparedness strategy" for pandemic influenza (a copy of which has been placed in the Library). One of its objectives is to support detection and surveillance activity in countries at risk so that accurate reporting data can be provided and, where feasible, humanitarian assistance can be provided. Officials of both Departments are working closely together to now take this forward, including on-going engagement with the Pandemic Influenza Contingency team in the United Nations Office for Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs.

At a series of international conferences since 2006, the UK has pledged to date £37 million to help improve preparedness for avian and pandemic flu. The World Health Organization has set up an emergency fund for the current swine flu outbreak and DFID has announced a donation of £5 million towards this.

Influenza: Drugs

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many doses of Tamiflu the NHS holds; [274045]

(2) what contingency arrangements his Department has made for a re-emergence of swine influenza in the autumn. [274047]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has been planning for a possible influenza pandemic for some time and has robust plans in place. We have enough antiviral stocks to cover 50 per cent. of the population (some 33.5 million courses); we are further increasing the stockpile so that it is enough to cover 80 per cent. of the population (some 50 million courses).

We also expect Flu Line, which will be used to assess symptoms and authorise antivirals for individuals, to be operational by the autumn, thus ensuring we have additional capability to respond to a re-emergence of the virus.

On 15 May, the Government also announced the signing of agreements with vaccine manufacturers for up to 90 million doses of a pre-pandemic vaccine based on the current H1N1 strain. The agreements could provide enough vaccine to protect the most vulnerable groups in our population before a pandemic is likely to arrive. In the event of a pandemic, the Advanced Purchase Agreements previously signed with Baxter and GlaxoSmithKline will be activated; these will enable the United Kingdom to purchase enough vaccine to cover 100 per cent. of the UK population.

In addition, we are increasing our stocks of facemasks, respirators and antibiotics to ensure we have sufficient stocks of countermeasures to tackle a re-emergence of swine influenza later in the year.

We are also ensuring that the national health service is well prepared to handle the consequences of any re-emergence.

Liver Diseases

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the age of the youngest (a) girl and (b) boy admitted to hospital with an alcohol-related liver condition was in each of the last three years. [270217]

Dawn Primarolo: Due to data quality concerns we are unable to provide the data requested. The NHS Information Centre for health and social care have advised that the maximum or minimum values are more susceptible to error than other values and that if the data were supplied on the youngest girl and boy admitted to hospital with an alcohol-related liver disease it may be erroneous and therefore misleading.

Maternity Services

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 30 March 2009, Official Report, columns 956-57W, on childbirth, what estimate he has made of (a) the number of midwives that will be required and (b) the resource budget of paediatric medical services in each year to 2031 assuming the number of births to be as set out in the table; and what estimate he has made of (i) marginal cost and (ii) capital value of the maternity services required to manage that volume of births. [276285]

Ann Keen: No such estimates have been made. Strategic health authority plans to increase midwifery numbers up to 4,000 by 2012 have factored in future forecast birth rates.

Meals on Wheels

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what expenditure his Department has incurred on the provision of meals on wheels services in each local authority area in each of the last 10 years. [277202]

Phil Hope: The Department has not incurred expenditure on the provision of meals on wheels services by local authorities.

Local authorities pay for publicly-funded adult social care services, including meals on wheels, out of their general funds. Local authorities receive central Government funding from Her Majesty's Treasury, which is distributed to them by the Department for Communities and Local Government, as well as income from local taxation—via council tax receipts—and from other Government Departments and private contributions.

It is not possible to say how much, if any, of the Department's monies councils use to fund meals on wheels services, as this funding is part of a larger sum of money received by councils.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he plans to reply to the letters from the hon. Member for the Forest of Dean of 23 March and 11 May 2009, on bowel cancer screening, reference FD5531. [276770]

Mr. Bradshaw: I apologise for the delay in responding to this correspondence. A response will be sent to the hon. Member as soon as possible.

NHS: Information and Communications Technology

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what criteria the local service providers for the National Programme for IT will be required to meet by November 2009; and what circumstances will trigger the launch of his Department's new plan for delivering health informatics to healthcare. [276051]

Mr. Bradshaw: The role of national programme local service providers (LSPs) is to deliver information technology (IT) systems and services across the national health service within defined groups of strategic health authorities. LSPs ensure the integration of existing local systems and, where necessary, implement new systems so that the national applications can be delivered locally, while maintaining common standards. All LSPs have contracted to develop and deliver a fully integrated NHS care record solution, and are in the process of doing so. This role was established at the outset of the programme, and will not change between now and end November 2009.

The Department's Chief Information Officer has recently made clear our commitment to opening up the health care IT market to new suppliers and new technological developments, to inject more pace into the programme. Our aim is to help trusts configure systems to best meet their local needs, as well as taking advantage of market developments to make more use of the information they hold. Officials will be working closely with the NHS and current suppliers to improve the pace of delivery. We will be prepared to consider alternative arrangements in the event that significant progress has not been demonstrated before the end of 2009.

NHS: Pay

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which NHS employees have a salary exceeding that of the Prime Minister. [269717]

Ann Keen: The salary of my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister is £194,250 a year from 1 April 2009. Direct comparisons between this figure and the salaries of national health service employees for 2009-10 are not yet possible. However, using data from the Electronic Staff Record, the NHS Information Centre's analysis of monthly salary payments suggests that there were 56 medical and non-medical NHS staff with estimated annual earnings of over £194,250, as at December 2008.

Details of NHS pay rates under the national frameworks are available as follows:

The rates for doctors and dentists, and for staff employed under Agenda for Change, are set out in Pay Circulars which are published on the NHS Employers' website at:

www.nhsemployers.org

The rates for very senior NHS managers employed in strategic health authorities, primary care trusts, special health authorities and ambulance trusts are set out in the relevant pay framework issued by the Department. This is updated annually, and a copy of the document for 2009-10 has been placed in the Library. It is also available at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_097599

NHS: Standards

Gordon Banks: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when the Quality Outcomes Framework targets will next be reviewed. [276836]

Mr. Bradshaw: Following a public consultation, the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) is now responsible for overseeing an independent process for developing and reviewing clinical and health improvement indicators in the Quality Outcomes Framework in general practice for England. NICE is expected to provide initial recommendations on indicators in the summer.

Scarborough and North East Yorkshire Healthcare NHS Trust

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to ensure that Scarborough and North East Yorkshire Healthcare NHS Trust pays invoices within 10 days. [276761]

Mr. Bradshaw: David Nicholson, NHS chief executive, wrote to all NHS trust chief executives on 21 October 2008 asking them to examine and review existing payment practices and payment performance, and to move as closely as possible to the 10-day payment commitment that has been set for Government Departments wherever practical.

National health service prompt payment performance against the 30-day payment target is reported in annual accounts. We are advised that the 2008-09 accounts for the Scarborough and North East Yorkshire Healthcare NHS Trust recorded a 95 per cent. achievement against the 30-day payment target for non-NHS payments.

Strokes

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people (a) were admitted to and (b) died in hospital following a stroke in each hospital in England in each of the last three years. [276415]

Ann Keen: A table and footnotes which shows how many people were admitted to hospital following a stroke and subsequently died at the hospital in each hospital in England in each of the last three years has been placed in the Library.

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his most recent assessment is of the progress of the national stroke strategy for England in facilitating the rapid diagnosis of strokes; what estimate he has made of the number of stroke patients who receive a specialist assessment including a brain scan within (a) 24 and (b) 48 hours in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [276723]

Ann Keen: Data on the provision of brain imaging for suspected stroke within 24 hours and electrocardiography (ECG) within 48 hours for transient ischaemic attack (TIA) are not collected centrally. However, the National Sentinel Stroke Audit, prepared by the Royal College of Physicians, which is based on clinical data collected directly from national health service trusts, details the latest evidence on the provision of stroke services including specialist assessment and scanning. The most recent audit is available at the college's website at:

www.rcplondon.ac.uk/clinical-standards/ceeu/Current-work/stroke/Pages/Audit.aspx

The Department will commission an independent evaluation of the implementation of the stroke strategy later this year which will cover the whole stroke pathway from awareness to long-term care and support. Our intention is to publish the evaluation report.

Surgery

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what mechanisms are in place to enable an individual to elect to postpone an operation beyond the 18-week target waiting time. [276017]

Mr. Bradshaw: From 1 January 2009, no one should wait more than 18 weeks from the time they are referred by their general practitioner to the start of their consultant-led treatment unless it is clinically appropriate to do so or they choose to wait longer. Key to this is clear communication between the patient and the hospital at all stages of treatment.

As set out in the published 18 weeks rules, a patient's 18-week waiting time clock can only be paused when a patient, who will be admitted for treatment, decides in discussion with their clinician to delay when they have their treatment. This might be for personal or social reasons, for example, to fit around work commitments or school holidays, or perhaps attend an important family event such as a wedding.

National health service performance against the 18 weeks waiting time standard is measured against the published minimum operational standards of 90 per cent. for admitted patients and 95 per cent. for non-admitted patients. The tolerances of 10 per cent. and 5 per cent. respectively allow for patients who choose to wait longer than 18 weeks or where this is clinically appropriate.

Swine Flu

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what plans his Department has for (a) the distribution of and (b) inoculation by the T1N1 vaccination to ensure herd immunity against swine influenza by the autumn; [274618]

(2) whether (a) illegal migrants and (b) visitors normally resident overseas will be eligible for inoculation with the T1N1 influenza vaccine, should vaccination become necessary. [274619]

Dawn Primarolo: On 14 May the Government announced the signing of agreements with vaccine manufacturers for up to 90 million doses of a pre-pandemic vaccine based on the current H1N1 strain. The agreements could provide enough vaccine to protect the most vulnerable groups in our population before a pandemic is likely to arrive. In the event of a pandemic, the Advanced Purchase Agreements (APAs) previously signed with Baxter and GlaxoSmithKline (GSK) will be activated; these will enable the United Kingdom to purchase enough vaccine to cover 100 per cent. of the UK population.

The plans for the implementation of a mass vaccination strategy are set out in guidance published by the Department for primary care trusts (PCTs) in December 2008. A copy has been placed in the Library. It sets out the key national responsibilities of the Department and the arrangements needed to be put in place to administer vaccinations through local national health service organisations.

The guidance referred to above assumes that the vaccination will be delivered at PCT level through general practitioner surgeries or mass vaccination centres. The currently identified groups for pandemic influenza vaccination include: frontline health and social care workers, children under 16, older people and those clinically at risk. Persons eligible within those groups may include overseas visitors and illegal migrants. However, the priority groups will be reviewed in light of emerging evidence on the virulence and severity of the new virus in different groups.

Tranquillisers

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what reports he has received on the outcome of litigation in the Scottish courts against the manufacturers of nitrazepam. [276003]

Dawn Primarolo: We have received no such reports.

Vaccination: Side Effects

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many reports of adverse reaction to the bacillus calmette guérin vaccination there were in each year since 1985; [276220]

(2) how many reports of adverse reaction to vaccinations against (a) measles, (b) rubella, (c) polio, (d) whooping cough, (e) tetanus, (f) diphtheria and (g) mumps there were in each year since 1985; [276221]

(3) how many reports of adverse reaction to the Haemophilus Influenza Type B vaccination there were in each year since 1985. [276222]

Dawn Primarolo: The numbers of reports of suspected adverse reactions (ADRs) submitted via the Yellow Card Scheme between 1 January 1985 and 31 December 2008 associated with the following vaccines: Bacillus Calmette Guérin (BCG), measles, mumps, rubella, polio, whooping cough (bordetella pertussis), tetanus, diphtheria and Haemophilus Influenza Type B (HIB) are shown in the following tables. This includes combinations of the above vaccines. As a single Yellow Card report may contain more than one suspect vaccine, the total number of reports differs from the sum of the number of suspected adverse reactions to individual vaccines.

Data from the Yellow Card Scheme are continually reviewed to identify new safety issues with medicines and vaccines, and where safety issues are identified appropriate action is taken to protect public health. It is very important to note that the report of a suspected ADR via the Yellow Card Scheme and inclusion in the tables does not necessarily mean that a reaction was caused by the vaccine. Yellow Card reports are suspicions that a vaccine or medicine may have caused a reaction and are not proof of a causal association.

During this time period, tens of millions of children and adults have been immunised with these vaccines. The balance of benefits and risks of these vaccines is overwhelmingly favourable.

Total number of suspected ADR reports reported with the vaccines; bacillus calmette guérin (BCG) to the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency between 1 January 1985 and 31 December 2008 associated, diphtheria, tetanus, measles, mumps, rubella, polio, whooping cough and Haemophilus Influenza Type B (HIB)

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

14 Tothill Street

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission for how many months the offices at 14 Tothill Street have been empty; for what reasons the offices have been empty; and what the cost of (a) rent and (b) business rates during this period has been. [257557]

[Official Report, 9 March 2009, Vol. 489, c. 25W.]

Letter of correction from Nick Harvey:

An error has been identified in a written answer given to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) on 9 March 2009. The answer incorrectly stated that the rent-free period was 12 months. The rent-free period is six months. In addition it incorrectly implied that the Memorandum of Understanding was already in place whereas it is in fact yet to be agreed. The answer should have read as follows:

Nick Harvey: The building was acquired following a property search to meet a need from the House of Lords for decant space to facilitate the development of the Millbank Island site and a requirement for additional space from the House of Commons. The property search had revealed a dearth of suitable accommodation at that time within an acceptable distance of the Palace of Westminster, 14 Tothill street being the only one available with sufficient space that met the criteria.

The lease commenced in October 2007. It is held by the House of Commons and a Memorandum of Understanding will cover the House of Lords' use of part of the building and the facilities.

When acquired it had been refurbished by the landlord ready for fitting out, including services, by the tenant. The initial six months were rent-free, reflecting the sort of period that would be needed for any tenant to bring the building into beneficial use. Work on the floors to be occupied by the House of Lords is timed to be completed for the return of the House from the summer adjournment and the move of the Law Lords to the new Supreme Court building. A decision will be taken this month on the occupation of the House of Commons' space. The decision will be based on the need to free up 1 Derby Gate for occupation by Members as recommended by the Administration Committee.

The Commons share of the total rent paid to date, including the current quarter, is £2.38 million (including VAT). Business rates are not due until the property is occupied.

TRANSPORT

Rolling Stock

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 4 March 2009, Official Report, column 1612W, on rolling stock, when the remaining 227 carriages will be ordered; and to which operators they will be allocated. [264203]

[Official Report, 18 March 2009, Vol. 489, c. 1152W.]

Letter of correction from Paul Clark:

An error has been identified in a written answer given to the hon. Member for Wimbledon (Stephen Hammond) on 18 March 2009. The correct answer should have been:

Paul Clark: The remaining 327 carriages for High Level Output Specification (HLOS) capacity are made up of the growth element of the Thameslink build which is due to be ordered in 2009-10, and is identified in the Official Report, column 1612W.

HEALTH

Cancer: Death

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of trends in mortality rates of (a) common cancers and (b) rarer cancers; and if he will make a statement. [232840]

[Official Report, 18 November 2008, Vol. 483, c. 344-50W.]

Letter of correction from Kevin Brennan:

The UK Statistics Authority has identified an error in the written answer given to the hon. Member for Norwich, North (Dr. Gibson) on 18 November 2008.

The original answer provided a table of the age-standardised mortality rates in England, by sex, for the period 1971 to 2005 for all cancers combined and for each cancer where this information was readily available. The error occurred in the rates presented for prostate cancer, which were incorrect for all the years shown, because of a clerical error. In the original table, prostate cancer is ranked 9th on the list for males. On the corrected table, it appears 5th on the list, as the figures are presented in rank order for the first year of data (1971).

The corrected tables are as follows:

Table 1: Age-standardised mortality rates per 100,000 population by cancer site and sex, England, 1971-2005[1]

Blood: Donation

Mr. O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of donated blood was used in each year since 1999. [256709]

[Official Report, 23 February 2009, Vol. 488, c. 200W.]

Letter of correction from Dawn Primarolo:

An error has been identified in the written answer given to the hon. Member for Eddisbury (Mr. O'Brien) on 23 February 2009. I am sorry that some of the figures in the last two rows of the table were transposed.

The correct figures are as follows:

	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Whole blood donations collected (thousand)	2,039	1,971	1,972
Red cells validated (thousand)	1,939	1,876	1,838
Red cells expired	6	6	3
Red cells issuable	1,933	1,870	1,835
Percentage red cells issuable	94.8	94.9	95.2
Red cells issued (thousand)	1,941	1,873	1,825
Number of hospitals participating	119	119	112
Percentage transfused	100.4	99.8	97.1
Percentage not transfused	2.6	2.2	2.2

A validated unit of red cells is one that has been processed, tested, and labelled/validated as fit for issue to hospitals.

Participating hospitals have only been submitting data on units transfused for a full 12 months since 2005-06.

Figures stated for the percentage of units transfused and not transfused are based on data submitted by hospitals compared against NHSBT figures for number of units issued. There is a small degree of duplication in submitted data due to the transfer of blood between hospitals, meaning some figures exceed 100.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Redundancy: Hertfordshire

Mike Penning: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) how many people have been made redundant in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire in the last six months; [265801]

(2) how many people identified as unemployed in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire had been out of work for 12 months or more in each of the last five months; [265804]

(3) how many people under the age of 21 years were identified as unemployed in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire in each of the last five years; [265806]

(4) how many people identifying themselves as disabled have been employed in (a) Hemel Hempstead and (b) Hertfordshire in each year since 1997. [265818]

[Official Report, 24 March 2009, Vol. 490, c. 284-85W.]

Letter of correction from Kevin Brennan:

The UK Statistics Authority has identified an error in the written answer given to the hon. Member for Hemel Hempstead (Mike Penning) to question 265806 on 24 March 2009.

The original answer provided a table of the number of persons claiming JSA under the age of 19, resident in the Hemel Hempstead constituency and Hertfordshire for the periods February 2005, 2006, 2007, 2008 and 2009. This was provided as an alternative answer to the above question, as statistics of the count of claimants of persons claiming JSA were not available for persons under the age of 21. The error occurred in the count of claimants for Hemel Hempstead and Hertfordshire, which were incorrect for all the years shown—they were double the corrected figures, because of a clerical error.

The correct table is as follows:

Table 1. Number of persons aged under 19 claiming Jobseeker's Allowance resident in Hemel Hempstead and Hertfordshire

As at February each year	Hemel Hempstead	Hertfordshire
2005	134	949
2006	161	1,106
2007	140	1,098
2008	121	886
2009	189	1,594

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Sustainable Development

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many Level (a) 1, (b) 2, (c) 3, (d) 4, (e) 5 and (f) 6 sustainable homes have been built in each quarter since the Code for Sustainable Buildings was implemented; and how many homes at each level she expects to be built in each of the next three years. [265270]

[Official Report, 29 April 2009, Vol. 491, c. 1383W.]

Letter of correction from Iain Wright:

An error has been identified in the written answer given to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield (Grant Shapps) on 29 April 2009.

The correct answer should have been.

Mr. Iain Wright: The Code for Sustainable Homes (the Code) became operational in April 2007. We estimate that it takes on average 18 months to two years to go through the design, planning and building of any home. To achieve Code status in the most cost effective manner, homes need to be specifically designed for the Code.

The Code process has three main stages, registration, design and post construction—there is a significant number of homes within the process—and these numbers are increasing monthly, even in the current difficult economic climate. The following data are March 2009, with an August 2008 comparison.

Number of code certificates issued by end March 2009 and August 2008

			Post construction (by code level)
	Registration	Design	1	2	3	4	5	6

Military Aircraft

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the average number of (a) planned and (b) actual flying hours for aircraft was in each year since 2001; [216235]

(2) what the average number of (a) planned and (b) actual flying hours for the (i) Harrier GR7, (ii) Harrier GR9, (iii) Tornado GR4, (iv) Tornado F3 and (v) Typhoon aircraft was in each year since 2001. [216252]

[Official Report, 10 July 2008, Vol. 478, c. 1748-1750W.]

Letter of correction from Bob Ainsworth:

Errors have been identified in the written answer given to the hon. Member for Woodspring (Dr. Fox) on 10 July 2008. In compiling the table the actual flying hours for the Typhoon fleet were understated because the data provided did not include the hours flown by 17 Squadron Operational Evaluation Unit.

The correct answer should have been:

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There is no requirement to hold data on average flying hours. The planned and actual flying hours for fixed wing aircraft from all three services in each year since 2001 are broken down as follows:

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Broadband: Rural Areas

Anne Milton: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what plans he has to improve the telecommunications infrastructure in rural areas to extend the provision of high speed broadband. [270209]

[Official Report, 28 April 2009, Vol. 491, c. 1270W.]

Letter of correction from Pat McFadden:

An error has been identified in the written answer given to the hon. Member for Guildford (Anne Milton) on 28 April 2009. There was an error in the first sentence of the answer which read:

"The Budget confirmed the Government's plans to deliver a Universal Service for broadband up to 2 Mbps by 2012."

The correct answer should have been:

Mr. McFadden: The Budget confirmed the Government's plans to deliver a Universal Service for broadband at 2 Mbps by 2012. This will allow virtually everyone to benefit from broadband services. The Budget also underlines the Government's commitment to helping business take full advantage of the opportunities offered in this area by announcing a review of Ofcom's powers and duties to ensure it can strike the right balance between supporting competition and encouraging investment. As you are aware, Universal Service and Next Generation Access are also key aspects of the Digital Britain report, which will be published shortly.

The Government will also be carrying out research on broadband 'Not spots' under the cross-Government paper "Delivering Digital Inclusion—An Action Plan for Consultation" with the objective of putting information into the hands of local communities to enable them to manage the risks, and realise the opportunities of Next Generation Access locally and regionally, where they identify a need and want to activate their own solutions. This will also cover the devolved Administrations of Scotland, Northern Ireland and Wales.

Ministerial Correction

Tuesday 19 May 2009

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Business of the House

Ms Sally Keeble (Northampton, North) (Lab): Will my right hon. and learned Friend, who expressed her views and gave voice to the House on the issue of the need to clean up the expenses system, urge the House authorities to provide Members on request with an electronic copy of our receipts and claims, with full access rights—not just a read-only copy—so that we can make the redactions that are indicated but not made on the electronic copy that we have? We can then put them on our websites or do what we want with them. Please will she ensure that that happens so that we have proper access to our own data and can manage it as we choose?

[Official Report, 14 May 2009, Vol. 492, c. 1024-1025.]

Letter of correction from Harriet Harman:

An error has been identified in the oral answer given to the hon. Member for Northampton, North (Ms Keeble) during Business Questions on 14 May 2009. The answer given was as follows:

Ms Harman: Many hon. Members have been asked by their local newspapers, which are read by the constituents who elected them, to put details of their own claims and the payments received in the public domain so that the local newspaper can report them. Many hon. Members want to do that because, having been elected by their constituents, they feel that their constituents are entitled to know where their Member of Parliament stands amidst all of this. The difficulty is that the information on the claims and payments made that we have been given by the House authorities in electronic form cannot be given to local newspapers because it includes all sorts of information that to give out would breach the freedom of information laws. For example, if I gave out the information about my expenses to the South London Press, which I want to do without having to wait for the House authorities to do so, I would be putting in the public domain the bank statements of my assistant, who is not at all keen that I should do that. I understand why, and it would be breaking the law.

This morning I asked the Clerk of the House if we could have not only a read-only copy but one that we could pass on to our local paper with the genuinely personal bits crossed out, and he is discussing that with the House authorities. That is not the situation at the moment and hon. Members will just have to tell their local newspapers that they can either come in and read the hard copies, with the personal parts, such as bank account details, crossed out, or simply wait for the House of Commons to enable us to provide an electronic copy. All local newspapers should recognise that although many hon. Members would not feel obliged to respond to national newspapers, they do feel accountable to their local constituents. The local newspapers report to the local constituents and Members want to be accountable to them.
